Latest about the Fryer Process.

[From The Stock Report, Dec. 23.]

R. M. Fryer lately returned from the East, where he has been looking after the patent for his process, and is now in this city. The Nevada Transcript says of the process:

"We were astonished when the proprietor informed us of the chemicals used by him, as we supposed that was a secret he would always keep to himself. Scientific men have known of them for centuries, and have used them in the same manner a thousand times, and they will be surprised when they find that a little machinery only was necessary to allow them to reduce ores and extract therefrom all the precious metals. The first and principal ingredient used is carbon, which is manufactured at the works as fast as needed. In combination with this, a fluid which is inodorus, invisible, colorless, elastic the specific gravity of which, to that of water, is nearly as 1 to 838, and which is composed by weight of 8 parts of oxygen to 28 parts of nitrogen, is used, and that is about all. The success of the process depends upon the novel process the rock is subjected to after roasting has been accomplished. We have no further hesitation in assuring every one that the new process, beyond possibility of doubt, is a success, that it must soon supersede the present style of reducing gold and silver ores. It is simple and easily understood, and the cost of erecting works, capable of reducing twenty tons per day, will not exceed that of a first class mill. Rock can be worked for about $3 per ton Mr. Fryer does not propose to make test assays with any one, but cordially invites any one to assay the tailings of the rock he has worked, and see if any mineral can be found."

The Grass Valley Union, speaking on the same subject, says:

"We will not excite the expectations of our readers by saying that we will impart to them the information we have received, as we are not at present at liberty to do so. We can only say that it is a fire process; that it would seem impossible for any of the precious metals to escape, and that the whole process is wonderful in its simplicity, and remarkable in its neatness, economy and despatch. * * * * * * * We will here correct a prevailing misapprehension that but little quicksilver is used in this process. Quicksilver is freely used in the amalgamation, as in all mills, but there is no loss at least but an infinitessimal quantity. We will say further, that the idea which to some extent has prevailed that superheated steam and chemicals are used is entirely erroneous; the process is simplicity itself, and requires no skill beyond that possessed by any man of ordinary intelligence in conducting the entire operations of the works

The "Process," while it cannot make poor ore rich, will extract all of the precious metals they do contain, or within a very small fraction thereof, and at a cost not exceeding $3 per ton which will be the means of stimulating mining to a wonderful extent, and of making it a more reliable and more attractive industry than it has ever been before."

Mr. Fryer is now in San Francisco arranging for the erection of a foundry, which will be devoted to the construction of his furnaces.

In the Palace.

Mary Ann Angel Young, the woman whom Brigham is pleased to call his legal wife, has taken up her abode in the Amelia Palace, a suit of three or four rooms having been finished and furnished for her occupancy. This is, of course, only a temporary arrangement of the Prophet's to make the Saints and the world generally believe that he still has some regard for his first love. But when Feramorz Little returns from his mission with ten car loads of costly furniture, Mother Young, as she is called, will be bundled back into the school house behind the Chinese wall. Then King Brigham will show us that Amelia is still his queen.—[Salt Lake Tribune.

—There are about 106 Republicats in the House of Representatives, and of these 88 voted for the anti-third term resolution.

Improved Method of Teaching the Alphabet.

M. Thollois has, authorized by the French School Inspector, applied in the primary school in Paris his improved method of teaching the alphabet and reading. It is done by the help of a small wooden box, divided into compartments, each holding a letter, sign, or figure. Each scholar has such a small box, and the teacher a much larger one. The teaching is done by naming a letter, say A, and the teacher takes it from his box and shows it to the class; each pupil does the same and places his letter on the inside of the cover of his box, which, when opened, turns over like a desk. In this way the child is forced to give attention, while he is entirely occupied with mind, and hand. The experiment of M. Thollois has already proved eminently successful. In the first school he undertook to teach, twenty-five children were given him totally ignorant of their letters, and in two days fifteen of them knew them tolerably well. But after this the greatest advantage commences, namely, letting the child form his words with the letters. Such alphabetical blocks are sold as useful toys for children in most of our toy stores, and they should be more extensively used by teachers in all our primary schools.

The Presidential Succession.

There is no possible contingency in which a very serious national complication might result from the death of Vice-President Wilson. That possible complication lies in the fact that in the event of the death of President Grant the Democrats might claim that Speaker Kerr would be President of the United States. The leading Senators of both political parties have recently given the subject much thought, and it was therefore determined to settle the question so far as Congress can do it, at the earliest day possible after holidays. A resolution of Senator Edmonds, of Vermont has been referred to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, for a new election on the 7th of January of a President pro tem. of the Senate, who, according to the present law of Congress, passed in accordance with a provision of the Constitution on the subject, shall act as President in case of that officer's removal, death, resignation or inability. At present there is an alleged vacancy in the Presidency of the Senate, the Vice-President being dead, and the Senate having met after the recess without electing a President pro tempore.—[S. F. Bulletin.

What Tucker Wanted.

A correspondent of The Chicago Times tells a touching anecdote of Stephen A. Douglass. One time, at dinner with some of his intimate friends, when his election to the Presidency seemed certain, he was promising them certain offices. One of the guests, Beverly Tucker by name, did not ask any office. Douglass, turning to him, requested him to state what position he desired. The man replied he had no wish for office, but only a request to make, which he disclosed as follows: "It is simple: I have a Christian name. My mother baptized me Beverly. Some call me 'Bev.' Now, when you are elected President, I want you upon every occasion when we meet in public to say, 'Halloa,' Bev, is that you, old fellow.' I want you to slap me on the shoulder, and talk with me confidentially. If you will always treat me like that when we meet, I will ask no more."

Felt Greatly Discouraged.

"How did you feel, Mis' Allison," said Mrs. Gould, yesterday morning, as she stepped in to see that lady and find out how she bore up under the affliction of last week, when her Peleg was brought home dead from Bethel, where he had been wound up in the machinery of a hat factory. "How did you feel Mis' Allison ter see Peleg a-comin' into the house 'n that predicament?" "O," was the unhappy woman's response, with arms akimbo, "I felt very much discour ged, Mis' Gould—very much discouraged."—[Danbury News.

Egypt.

After January Egypt is to be governed by an entirely new system of laws. Heretofore justice has been administered there acording to the obscure laws of Koran. By a decree of the Khedive there is to be substituted on that date what is to be called the "Egyptian code," founded upon the French laws, or, perhaps, more strictly speaking, upon the civil law.

Death of Judge Deering.

An article dated December 18th, says: "Alexander Deering, Judge for the Thirteenth Judicial District of the State of California, died at Merced at 4:30 P. M., after a long illness."

—What is the next thing to a hen stealing? Why, a cock robin, of course.

—A North Carolina editor will dress his paper in mourning for $10, if any one dies, and his liberal terms have endeared him to the hearts of a whole county.

—Mother Stewart, famous in the "temperance crusade" in Ohio, has received an invitation to begin a similar movement in England.

—A young lady of Philadelphia has broken off her engagement with her lover because he "made fun of the Centennial." This shows how strong public sentiment is on the subject.

Greenland Dogs.

Two of these dogs can drag as much as one man. Nothing can be more exhilirating than dog sleding in the Arctic regions on a fine day. The rattling pace of the dogs; their intelligence in choosing the road through the broken ice; the strict obedience paid by the team to the one powertul dog whom they elect as leader; the arbitrary exercise of authority by the master dog, the constant use of the whip, and the running conversation kept up by the driver with the different dogs, who well know their names, afford constant enjoyment. However useful they may be, these Arctic dogs seem to be deficient in that affectionate disposition which endears their species so much to man. A traveler once said he believed the Esquimaux dogs to be the most ungrateful creatures in the world. He had traveled several hundred miles by sledge, and it was his duty to regularly feed the dogs, but after only a few weeks absence, on the conclusion his journey, they would not recognize him in the slighest degree. It is impossible to domesticate these creatures as under kind treatment they sicken and die.—[Fancier's Journal.

A Love Adventure.

A colored man living on Macomb street having long admired a colored widow living on the next block above, being afraid to come out boldly and declare his passions, went to a white man of his acquaintance the other day and asked him to write the lady a letter asking her hand in marriage. The friend wrote, telling the woman in few brief lines that the size of her feet was the talk of the neighborhood, and asking her if she couldn't pare them down a little. The name of the colored man was signed, and he was to call on her Saturday night for an answer. Yesterday the writer of the letter met the negro limping along the street and asked him what the widow said. The man showed him a blood-shot eye, and scratched nose, a lame leg, and a spot on the scalp where a handful of wool had been violently jerked out, and answered in solemn tones: "She didn't say nuffin', and I didn't stay mor'n a minit."—[Ex.

How to Get Rich.

A merchant had just as well expect to get rich by closing his doors and keeping his goods concealed from public view, as to hope to succeed without advertising, while his cotemporaries are continually exhibiting their stocks to the public gaze and inviting calls from purchasers. It is just as natural for the subscribers of a newspaper to buy from those who advertise in it as for children to follow soldiers when on a parade. The simple fact of seeing certain goods published, morning after morning, has an irresistible attraction that will fasten itself upon the mind and never fails to guide each reader to the very store at which his or her wants can be supplied. Every merchant of common sense knows it to be so; and yet many of them fail to resort to the very method to make sales which is used to make purchases.—[Ex.

Rules for the Care of Canary Birds

During the Summer season you should have both a drinking cup and a bathing dish in the cage, and should wash them well twice a day and fill with fresh water. The seed cup should be filled every morning.

The room in which the bird is kept should never be warmer than 60 degrees.

Feed plain food. Now and then a lump of sugar does no harm; but, as a general rule avoid sweets. Keep the cuttle-fish dry and clean, and feed only fresh and dry seed.

Never place the cage where a draft can strike the bird.

Never smoke, nor allow any body to smoke, in a room where your bird is kept; as the odor of tobacco is fatal to canaries.

As a general rule, never keep the bird in a painted cage; for the bird will peck at the wires, and it will lead to disease.

When your bird is shedding feathers, which is generally styled moulting, avoid drafts of air.

By obeying these simple directions, you can keep your bird in excellnt health for years.—[Country Gentleman.

Renounced Her Faith.

Miss Ella McCabe of Carson City, for many years a devout member of the Catholic Church, the other day renounced her religious faith to become a member of the Jewish Church. The ceremony took place in San Francisco, and as it was completed she was married to Frank Boskowitz, an Israelitish merchant of Carson.

Col. Hayne.

Colonel W. A. Hayne, Assemblyman to the California Legislature from Santa Barbara and Ventura, is a son of the famous Senator Hayne of South Carolina, whose debate with Daniel Webster over forty years ago gave him an imperishable immortality. Colonel Hayne is a Democrat and a citizen of Santa Barbara.

Fitting Rebuke.

Mr. Laird, British Minister, while traveling in Bilboa recently refused to receive a visit from Burriel, the Captain General of Santiago de Cuba, an infamous butcher whose name goes down into history as one of the blackest fiends on record. Mr. Laird is to be commended for this act.

CARRIER'S ADDRESS.

The Old Year has gone—and with it many joys, many sorrows. The bitter and the sweet in libations it poured out together. It was a dear Old Year—it brought flowers, birds and sunshine, its golden mornings and silvery, tinted twilights; its gorgeous noon-days, its mellow moonlit nights; its bounteous harvests, its rich, red, ripe fruits. It was a sad Old Year—it brought its dark, gloomy days, its chill mornings, frostier nights. It brought sickness, death, sadness, grief. It brought into time—yea, sent into eternity! For you, in illuminated letters on the scroll of time, it wrote—Joy! For you, on the same in sad black lines, it wrote—Sorrow! For all, in silver lines, it inscribed—Hope!

Forget the bad, cherish the good. A dirge for the dead year, a pæan for the new.

To all a glad New Year, a Cornucopia with pleasure and plenty filled.

Promptly, every week the old year through, the Carrier has laid THE INDEPENDENT at your door. Both he and it have done their best to please you—could do no more. In that we could not hope always to succeed, But please remember, as these columns you read, That, just what you may swear at and condemn on sight, Another may consider most truthful and right. To please and do right, we have done our best, What more can any one do?—but here we'll let all that rest. Unlike the Carrier's rhymes of all former times, When, to read such trash, you had to pay your cash, In sums none too small—mine, to you, is free, good Patrons all. If it is worth your reading—well, it don't cost a quarter, You needn't pay a cent for't—unless you should happen to take a notion you oughter. May good fortune attend you, wherever you may go, Is the wish of yours truly, THE INDEPENDENT'S

Important Railroad Movement.

Elsewhere will be found the preambles and resolutions of a well attended and enthusiastic railroad meeting which took place in Los Angeles last week. Los Angeles seems to be dead in earnest in this matter, and it looks as though something is going to come of this movement. The only comments we have now to make is, that we believe Inyo county with a railroad will be second to no other in this or any other State in the way of prosperity, while, without it, she will never be very much more so than at this time. As things now are she has but very few mines indeed that can offer a very seductive margin for clear profits, while with railroad facilities such mines certainly exist almost by the thousand.

Beautiful Calendar.

The Home Insurance Company, Chas. J. Martin, President, of New York, sends us decidedly the handsomest and best arranged sheet calendar, extending clear through 1878 that we have yet seen. It is a Centennial issue of course, the backs of each sheet containing an interesting scrap of our National history, the same being neatly illustrated in colors and gold bronze on the opposite side. We infer from this that the Home Insurance is a live and enterprising company, worthy of a wide spread acquaintance and patronage.

List of Patents.

The following is a list of patents issued to inventors of California for the week ending December 11, 1875, and each dated November 23, 1875, furnished this paper by Cox & Cox, Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C.: Photographic Backgrounds, J. Taber & T. Boyd, Tappet Clamps for Stamp Stems, N. Colman, Fac Simile Telegraphs, J. Ludwig, Potato Diggers, N. Martyn, San Francisco; Gang Plow, F. Hill, San Leandro; Watch Case Springs, A. Buckelew, Colusa.

The Vice Presidency.

On the 27th ultimo, the Senate of the United States formally elected Thos. W. Ferry, President of the Senate The particular motive in this was to settle the vexed question as to the disputed right of succession to the Presidential chair in case of Grant's death during his term of office.

A Daily for Visalia.

The town of Visalia must be making substantial progress. The Visalia Weekly Times, which recently completed its eleventh volume, starts in next week as a daily paper. The Times has proved itself a very good weekly paper, and we are glad to see this additional evidence of prosperity.

—It is reported that the Democractic United States Senators propose to look into the origin of the nominations of the Indian agents, with a view to ascertaining how far the Churches are really concerned in these appointments, and who are the persons to whom each denomination delegates the nominating power.

MOVE TO DIVIDE THE COUNTY

We observe that Mr. Griswold has introduced a "petition from citizens of Inyo county, praying its division and the formation of a new county." As we have never seen a copy of the petition, which, so far as we have been able to find out, has never been circulated through this portion of the county, we know nothing certain as to its terms We understand, however, that since the proposition was first broached a material change has been made in proposed division lines. But for that, neither we or but the fewest number on this side, would have a single word to say in the way of opposition to the creation of this new county, even though it was to rob Inyo of its most important, in fact almost its only mining territory of declared value, as things are at the present time. On the contrary, nearly if not quite every one we have heard express an opinion, were quite content to leave the whole thing with those most affected, to wit, the property holders in the proposed county of Darwin, as we shall for convenience call it, not knowing anything at all about what name it is to bear. It was the universal expression, however, that the move was so premature, and promised so little of good and so much of evil to that section, however it might affect this, as to appear almost absurd. The objectionable change referred to is this: Instead of making some point near the lower end of Owens lake the dividing line, as first proposed, Mr. Murphy, the Atlas who is trying to carry the new world, has changed his lines, or what he said here was to be his lines, so as to include Cerro Gordo in his county, and for this he is now lobbying in Sacramento. This, and this only, is what will cause an earnest effort to be made from this side to defeat Murphy's aspirations. Whatever there is of a permanent or flourishing character for Inyo county up to the present she owes to an eminent degree to Cerro Gordo. While it is clear, should she be set in another county, we would retain many of its most important advantages as a market, etc., and get rid of no little expense in the way of hospital and such extra criminal bills as emanate from all mining towns to a greater or lesser degree, yet there are many reasons why the people of Inyo would feel themselves most unjustly treated should they be thus robbed of their most valuable mining territory, one with which their every struggle both for a county and an individual existence has been so long and so intimately associated. But there are other than reasons of sentiment why Inyo demands, and shall insist upon an amendment of Mr. Murphy's lines in regard to Cerro Gordo. These we shall have to pass now while we take a look at the project in its financial aspects.

In round numbers the total of taxes this year due and payable in the whole of Inyo as it now stands, amounts to $45,000, the tax rate being three per cent. If the whole of this was paid up, as it will not be by several thousands, it, with receipts from licenses, something over $4,000, would barely meet interest on outstanding liabilities ($92,000), State dues, contingent expenses and salaries for one set of officers. It is proposed to tax the same property and the same territory to the extent of maintaining two counties instead of one. If there is any reason why it can be done for any less than twice the cost of one we yet fail to see it. We make no account of the considerable sum needed to prepare the new county for housekeeping—merely the current expenses. Evenly divided this would imply a tax levy of six per cent. Even a somewhat less rate than that would not only be an effectual bar to the introduction of new capital so longingly looked for to develop our country, but would also cause such a withdrawal of that already here, and such a general shrinkage of values as to utterly preclude any hope of any materially larger tax return next year than this. The chances are that it would be less, notwithstanding our present prospects of a large increase, which, but for this assumed obstacle, were never better since the county was settled. Leaving all interested to deduce whatever conclusions they choose from these and other facts obvious to all who are acquainted with the country, we offer some additional figures Those relating to taxes due we sum up from the Collector's books. But they are not given as being perfectly correct, but as being quite near it. The assessment closed barely six months ago. Since then Darwin has enhanced property values a hundred per cent., perhaps twice that, but on the other hand, Panamint, though now on a better business foundation, we are assured, than at any prior period in its history, will fall so much short in its tax payments as to give promise of but a very small enlargement of the sum total upon another assessment if made now. The taxes now payable by the proposed county are: Panamint, $7,972, of which not much over $4,000 is supposed to be collectable; Darwin, $1,914; Olancha, $780. Total, $10,636 without Cerro Gordo; for that we have $4,490 more, making $15,126 as the whole sum of taxes payable at this time upon every parcel of property shown by the Collector's books to lie any where in that portion of Darwin county to be taken from Inyo. There cannot be in the distant parts to come from the other counties much more than will pay the cost of collection, stage property excepted, no part of which is included in the above.

The average yearly cost of running Inyo county since its organization has been about $24,000, State tax and interest on 1892-bonds not included. It has varied but little from that sum each year, although until within the past year, its officers served at starvation salaries, and in general it has been as economically and as honestly managed as any county in the State. When its current expenses, cash values, were much less than at present, the actual sums finally required to pay them were even greater by reason of the depreciated worth of its scrip, of which, as we know to our cost, it often took three dollars to pay one. Similar conditions must prevail in any new county, however grand its future prospects, starting in $50,000 or $60,000 in debt for the first year, as Darwin must do, so far as we can see. One-half of the last sum will be about the new county's pro rata of the Inyo debt, allowing boundaries as now proposed. Being exclusively mining, with a necessarily shifting population, it will require time for the new connty to establish its securities for the issuance and sale of bonds, should that plan be in view to avoid such a fearful rate of taxation to begin with. Given, the advantages of a railroad, and not a killing tax rate as this movement implies, we feel it a certainty that Darwin will become a rich and most prosperous county; and to a fair degree it will become so anyhow without the former, but not for many years, starting in at this undeveloped stage under such a tremendous tax pressure which, as we see it, cannot possibly be avoided. It would be nearly as disastrous to the prospects of this county, too, for a time. We are fully convinced an ultimate separation will be a decided advantage perhaps to both sections, certainly to this. If reasonable anticipations are realized that time will occur by the meeting of another Legislature, two years hence. That is but a brief period to determine the status of the most flattering mining prospect ever seen!

Our Round Valley Letter.

ROUND VALLEY, Dec 28

MESSRS. EDS:—The latest news, in THE INDEPENDENT, from this section, was wind and fire, which caused much "bellyaching" at the time. Since that little unpleasantness we have had delightful weather.

Whilst old Boreas howled and tumbled things, accompanied by one or two "right smart" little earthquakes, we felt like humming "The Melancholy days have come." Many thought it high time to travel—prospect for

"CLIMATE"

Boys who were footloose (I mean those who have no babies attached to their coat tails) thought it advisable to roll up a pair or two of blankets, shoulder them, and go hunting, not for ducks, but for "lovely climate." Even venerable gray headed men, with large families, entertained a similar notion—"let's hunt a better climate." Now this far-off "delightful climate" idea is affecting a large class of the farming community—not worthless men—small loss should they emigrate to a hot climate—but industrious and intelligent men—sturdy old taboose eaters.

During a storm (and in fact our storms are like McClellan's battles—"short, sharp and decisive") there is considerable scouring—d—ash the country. We also conclude, after weeks of sunshine, that a little storm is condusive to health and hilarity of spirit. "Consistency, thou art a jewel!" What an ungrateful set we are, when we really enjoy months, uninterruptedly, of finer weather than the far famed Italian skies afford. More anon, may be, on this

CHRISTMAS, IF YOU PLEASE.

For several weeks the young folks had been on tiptoe. Great expectations swelled their little bosoms—they knew that that big wind storm would start Santa Claus out of the snowy region. Correct. The old gentleman arrived in due time, Christmas eve, and bounced in at a fearful speed through the school house window. He being old it took him a long time, although assisted by a son-in-law or two, to distribute a great variety of goodies, nick-nacks, jimcracks, shoes and stockings, lifeless babies, churns, prose and poetry, very fine—a conglomerate mass of incongruities, besides fun for everybody.

As soon as the Christmas Tree was divested of its valuables, the crowd repaired to the house of J. E. Jones, where they tripped the light fantastic until morn. Singing, eating and drinking were also indulged in; nobody intoxicated, except some of the ladies might have been, probably slightly boozy by drinking strong tea. However, many thanks are due those matronly ladies for furnishing abundance of food. Many brought their baskets brimful, picnic fashion. The supper table presented a fine appearance—fairly groaned under its load of nice eatables. Old and young bachelors hope and pray that the present growing crop of girls will eventually mature into such commendable womanhood.

THE MUSICIAN

was Mr. James Peregrine, an old timer, who has for many years, entertained and produced lively music to the folks of Owens Valley. The celebrated violinist, Ole Bull, may be a more accomplished musician, but we doubt whether any old or young Bull, steer, or any other man can beat Jeems for indomitable pluck. When he starts a gallop in the evening, liquor nor foul lemonade never affects the fiddle nor the fiddler. You can bet on music long and music sweet for 24hours, if required, or just as long as a jig is left in a pair of legs.

JINGO.

Legislative.

Following is a copy of Legislative doings, previous to adjournment for the Holidays, of special interest to this section:

Mr. Patterson, from the Sacramento delegation, reported back Assembly Bill No. 26 recommending that section 1 of said bill be amended by adding after the word "Sacramento," "and the First Supervisor District in the county of Mono."

Mr. Griswold—One of the counties which I represent is mentioned in that amendment, and as I am not aware what the nature of the bill is, I would like to have an opportunity for examining it before it shall pass.

Mr. Clunie—For the information of the gentleman I desire to state that the object of this Act was to amend an Act passed in the session of 1873 and 1874. [Reading the former bill and explaining that the object of the present measure was to include the whole of Sacramento county instead of a portion, and that in preparing it, the clase relating to Mono county had been left out by accident, and this amendment was simply to correct the oversight.]

Mr. Griswold—I withdraw my objection.

The amendment was adopted and the bill passed.

The Senate refused to order to engrossment the bills by Laine, Hendricks and McGarvey, extending the time for the payment of taxes.

By Mr Griswold—An Act to amend Section 172 of the Political Code. [Fixing legal distances from Mono county.]

Laine's bill extending the time for the redemption of property sold for taxes, from six to twelve months, passed the Senate.

Griswold introduced the following:

Resolved, By the Assembly, the Senate concuring, that our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives be requested, to use all honorable means in their power to procure an increase in the mail route from Caliente, Kern county, to Lone Pine, Inyo county, and have it changed from tri-weekly to a daily mail service. On suspension of the rules, the resolution was taken up and transmitted to the Senate.

Senator Laine's bill repealing 869 and amending section 870 of the Penal Code, is intended to relieve committing magistrates from the necessity of taking down in writing all the testimony at primary examinations. A bill similar to this was passed by the Senate two year ago, but failed to pass in the Assembly.

By O'Connor—Amending section 3985 of Political Code relating to county seats. Requires a petition before an election for removal is ordered signed by three-fourths of the votes cast at the preceeding election. Also amending section 3785 of the Political Code—providing that county officers shall make deeds under delinquent sales free of charge. Referred to Committee on Retrenchment.

Mr. Griswold presented a petition from citizens of Inyo county, praying for a division of the county. Referred to the Committee on Counties and County Boundaries.

Closing of the Bloody Chasm.

The St. Louis Times thus feelingly describes the scene that occurred as the Federal and ex-Confederate officers met at the recent Railroad Convention in that city: "As they stood up and shook hands—Johnston and Sherman—for the space of five minutes the temple shook as though a storm was raging. There was no longer any war in the land. Two of the prominent men of the civil strife, coming together in the interests of a restored Union, had met to set an example of fraternal intercourse and reunion. The spirit of these two soldiers was communicated to the delegates as if by an electric spark, and the effect was magical. Both were old friends. What mattered the past? Peace is to have her victories also, and this time the Federal and Confederate can march under the same flag to the Pacific. Immediately came an ovation to Beauregard. Sherman met him as he stepped upon the platform, shook hands cordially, and led him to a seat. There sat the trio, the past in the shadow and the present in the sunshine. Was it fate after all that had made commerce more powerful than war?"

A Hurtful Misstatement Corrected.

[From The Carson Appeal, Dec. 22.]

In the issue of The Carson Appeal for November 30, last past, we had a synopsis of the testimony in the Ashim trial and at the end thereof some statements regarding the conduct of the case, also reflections upon the character and standing of Mr. P. Reddy, counsel for the defendant, and his brother. Since the publication it has come to our knowledge that our comments were calculated to create a false impression regarding Mr. Reddy,s professional demeanor during that trial; and that our denunciation of him as "a king of the desperadoes," and of his brother as being a member of that dangerous class, was an unwarranted assaut upon those gentlemen. We wrote what we did upon the strength of heated avernents and vehement charges made in our presence; and as we are convinced by most excellent and trustworthy evidence, recently placed in our possession, that we perpetrated a wrong in making those unfavorable comments, we very cheerfully retract the same as publicly as we made them And in thus acknowledging our error it is but just we should say that we have it from General Clarke himself (who was of counsel for the prosecution), that Mr. Reddy's deportment during the trial was in all respects courteous, professional and gentlemanlike. Therefore we owe it to Mr. Reddy and ourself to say, in all truth, that there never was any intentional slur upon his character and standing as a lawyer, however, inferential such an interpretation might be from the tone of our allusion to him. As to our statement that he was "a king among the desperadoes," we meant to convey the idea—that he was looked up to by the rougher elements by whom he is surrounded as "a very present help (professionally) in time of trouble." But it seems that we charged Mr. Reddy with being a ringleader of a set of outlaws. We are convinced that he does not merit the epithet in any sense.

We are prompted to this act of justic to this injured gentleman by a very full, polite and handsome testimonial in behalf of his character, standing and impulses received yesterday from Independence, his place of residence in California. This letter contains, among other earnest attestations of Mr. Reddy's motives and reputation, the following:

"It is a well known and a notorious fact, as a matter in the history of Inyo county, that Mr Reddy has waged a relentless opposition and warfare against all species of lawlessness in this county, whether it occurred in the criminal act of an individual, or took upon itself the more atrocious and more to be deprecated form of an organized mob. * * To illustrate to you Mr. Reddy's position in this respect: In the case of Welch, charged with murder, Mr. Reddy positively refused to take charge of his case, though offered a fee that ran into the thousands of dollars; for he was well satisfied that it was a cruel and unprovoked murder. Welch was tried and convicted. * * Mr. Reddy's voice and his every act have ever been for the upholding of that which is for the good of society and the supremacy and vindication of the law."

There are other and equally strong testimonials in Mr. Reddy's behalf in this excellent and very welcome letter; but these extracts will be deemed sufficient cause for our effort at making reparation for what was a hasty and unjust assault upon the reputation of a gentleman who is a stranger here and against whom we have no reason to entertain any but the most kindly feelings The Appeal strives to avoid everything which looks like injustice, always; but that it is not the good fortune of the most careful to get along without sometimes making mistakes and inflicting undeserved injuries, is illustrated in this unfortunate matter. The fact that we have been accorded an opportunity thus to make amends is the best proof in the world of the value of courtesy in intercourse and of making frank and earnest efforts at arriving at an understanding between parties concerned in a difference of this nature.

The Man Burt.

Here are a few paragraphs from the Carson papers concerning Burt, the man who was hanged at that capital by "601" a few nights since:

The remains of Burt were taken to the graveyard this morning by S. C. Wright, and by him deposited in the earth. No mourner followed, and no clergyman or priest performed the last rites over him. We understand that Burt had a mother and father living in San Francisco, but no doubt the name he bore was assumed, and so we trust that his parents may never know what their son's life was.

The undertaker's shop was besieged the livelong day by persons of all classes, anxious to get a look at the body of the man Burt; and when the Coroner's jury was taken in to view the corpse the crowd was so great that it became almost impossible to get in or out of the room. We saw several soiled doves endeavoring to get a look at the man.

The story goes that Burt was one of a number of suspicious characters who had received warning to leave here and that they all left but him on Thursday afternoon. He thought to brave it out, as Kirk did in Virginia, and so met with Kirk's fate.

Very Good for Inyo.

In the second volume of H. G. Langley's Pacific Coast Business Directory just issued, the gold product of California in 1874 is estimated at $20,000,000. The annual silver product is estimated at $3,000,000, of which amount $2,000,000 is extracted from the crude bullion of Inyo county. The copper, quicksilver, iron, coal and other mining industries are also referred to statistically. The total number of quartz mills is 390, of which 190 are driven by steam, 183 by water and the remainder by both.—[Stock Report.

A Notable Family Record.

The friends of the late Mrs. Capt. Macgowan will be interested in the following, which shows her family record as one of the most ancient in existence, covering a period of no less than eight hundred years.

It commences with Ormus de Danneport, born in Chester, England, A. D. 1086, and has been regularly kept from that time down to the present.

Prior to the seventh generation, as we see by the record in the Captain's possession, Danneport became Davenport, as spelled at the present day. John Davenport, of that generation, born in Coventry, in the year 1597, and Theophelus Eaton collected a band of colonists, with whom, in the ship Hector, they sailed for America, landing at Boston, June 26, 1637, finally settling in New Haven. John Davenport becoming their first minister.

From some cause it was universally believed by the colonists of Connecticut that the 19th of May, 1780, was to be the veritable Judgment Day. The Legislature was then in session; the members of the House of Representatives became so alarmed they adjourned. A similar motion was made in the Council, whereupon Hon. Abraham Davenport, of this family, made this historical speech: "I am against adjournment. The Day of Judgment is either approaching or it is not. If it is not, there is no occasion for an adjournment. If it is, I choose to be found doing my duty. I wish, therefore, that candles may be brought."

Francis Augusta, the late Mrs. Macgowan, a lineal descendant of the above named, in the twenty-fourth generation, was born on the old homestead in New Haven, January 25, 1836, departing this life the 22d ultimo. She married Alexander B. Macgowan, November 1, 1858. Their children, the twenty-fifth generation, are: Charles Davenport and George Pierpont Macgowan, born in San Francisco in July, 1860 and November, 1863, respectively.

Mrs. Dr. C. B. White, of the Post, is of the same family of Davenports.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Getting a Name Abroad.

What with earthquakes, murder trials, ante-religious Supervisor ordinances etc., Inyo county is making a name for itself abroad, independent of its but little known mineral and other advantages. That ordinance against the use of the court house for religious meetings has furnished an item for almost every paper in the State, and the eastern papers quote it as evidence that "civilization is advancing rapidly (backwards) in the wilds of California." We hope the Supervisors will take the very first opportunity to rescind the order, not because any preacher or congregation large or small in this place, desire the use of the court room for ordinary meetings, or would be apt so to use it again, except on extraordinary occasions if they had the opportunity, but simply for the credit of the county at large. Before the present order was made, and while the conditions of insurance on the building forbid its use for other than legal purposes, it so happened that several noted or prominent churchmen from abroad were here desirous of holding special services according to their respective denominations, but were unable to do so in a manner to invite general attendance because no suitable building could be had. The last of these, that we now call to mind, was the President of the San Barbara (Catholic) College. He, like the others, was refused the use of the only suitable or passably respectable room for such purposes in the town, but for the reason above stated, had to make use of a private parlor. Now, while we have no reason to suppose either one of these reverend gentlemen did make this a subject for special sermons in their own churches, yet it would be strange if such a circumstance was not the cause of comment anything but complimentary to our "manners and customs." But anyway, the conditions of insurance were changed, and some public gatherings took place; also, there was some nail holes made in the wall—it would have taken full twenty five cents' worth of plaster paris to have obliterated those nail holes. Certain parties took on about it and would not be comforted until a formal edict excluded Vanity Fair, Terpsichore and all that sort of thing, neck and heels from that noble hall, as it was sacredly devoted to Justice, political conventions and tobacco juice. The County Dads then rested from their labors, and everybody said they had done well. Some way or other it was found out that about a dozen persons repaired to that hall an hour or so once, sometimes twice, a month to listen to a sermon. The supreme inconsistency and ridiculousness of associating the worship of God, by using the same room, with Justice and County Conventions struck many fin people with such force they at once began to clamor for an order that should exclude the Almighty, the other co participants in the use of the room having the first rights. In deference to this clamor and not, we have reason to believe, strictly in accordance with their own sentiments, the first public order of the new Board was to formally dissolve the incongruous co-partnership, and thus set a shining example to every other county in the United States, so far as the returns have come in. One of the first results following was seen in the late Governor's Thanksgiving Proclamation. Seeing that God could be officially denied a hearing in a county court house he couldn't see the propriety of acknowledging his existence in a State paper, so God's name nowhere appeared in the official call to give God thanks for blessings enjoyed. But this is a progressive age. We think it but right to add that when the order was under consideration District Attorney Snelling advised against its adoption most warmly, although he thought it came quite within the legal powers of the Board; others think it was a mere assumption of a power which, strictly speaking, is vested in the Sheriff, who is the legal custodian of the property, and, as such, he alone and not the Board, is responsible for its misuse. In this case, though, Sheriff Moore had no objections, if he did not desire it, to be relieved of the responsibility.

A Friend Worth Having.

We infer from certain things that Henry Isaacs and his affiancee, Miss Heissmann, (we beg pardon if we are anticipating anything) have a friend or so in New York precisely of the kind to make anybody feel proud. From this friend a short time ago came two magnificently executed and framed pictures, a present to themselves of themselves. Now comes, bearing on a silver plate the initials of the lady as they are to be, a large rosewood mahogany, richly lined and beautifully finished box or case, literally packed full of silver knives, forks and everything of that sort to make a separate and complete breakfast and dinner service for a dozen persons (and not little ones either unless it should so happen.) Each piece has its own velvet resting place and altogether it is an (ante) wedding present to be broud of.

Fun Ahead.

Extensive preparations are being made by competent parties, to give a "Shadow Pantomime and Chromotrope Exhibition" in the Masonic Hall, next Wednesday evening January 5. Admission, one dollar, children half price; performance begins at 8, sharp. Besides affording our people a chance to pass away a very pleasant evening, the object of this entertainment is to partly defray the cost of costumes, etc., for one of the most elaborate and best amateur theatrical performances yet attempted in this place, the proceeds of which in turn to go to the benefit of the school.

Staging.

"Uncle" George Smith of the Northern Line, and one of the most popular and efficient road agents, tells us that the epizootic interfered but very little with staging operations, although every horse was afflicted more or less. So far, the Carson stage to this place has been thrown out of time but once, that being for a day or so during the first storm when the snow fell so deep on Esmeralda mountain. The Aurora people and the teamsters turned out in force, and it was but a short time till the road was put in good condition and has remained so ever since. It is possible though that the storm of the present week may cause some trouble, but with the volunteer aid of the Auroraites, who are always ready to help, also the teamsters and the company, the weather and snow will have to be bad, very bad indeed, if it causes an interruption to the mail exceeding a few hours at the most. Speaking of stage matters we are reminded of a neglected promise, which was to offer the thanks of certain ladies of our acquaintance who traveled over this line some time ago, for the unusual care in driving the boys seemed to take to insure their especial comfort. We are so reminded of another thing, this time touching the office agents of both the Northern and Southern lines, especially the San Francisco office of the latter. When [illegible] go there to book [illegible] for any part of Inyo, and especially to points north of Lone Pine the agents do not seem to be able to tell anything about certain important particulars of the road—whether Darwin, for instance, or any other place in particular is on the line of travel or otherwise. The consequences are (or were in one or two cases we know of) travelers buy tickets for points short of their destinations, entailing extra cost, and start out "blind" when it would be one of the easiest things possible for these offices to supply them either with the required information or a card containing table of distances over every inch of stage road in this county from either direction. THE INDEPENDENT having been favored with such tables by the officers who made the measurements, published them in the first place as a whole in its columns, and then, at its own expense, and for free distribution among agents and travelers, issued over a thousand time and distance cards for the two lines. We should think it would pay the companies to supply their offices with such tables, and still better, a card to every through passenger booked at either end of the line.

Christmas Times.

We are not advised as to how Christmas times went off generally in the county, but, at Lone Pine, they had a magnificent tree and a grand ball, both of which it is said, were successes beyond ordinary. In this place nothing was undertaken of a public nature except a Christmas Tree, which gave very fair satisfaction to all, and certainly not less than usual to the delighted little ones. People generally reserved their forces for sumptuous private dinners, a style of observance more generally indulged in than common. At the Post or rather, Milton school house, Santa Claus scattered favors in grand style, and impressed scores of little hearts with an idea of his munificence and goodness, which will never be erased even in after years when they find that Santa Clause is but a myth after all. A ball took place at Big Pine, which, we hear in a general way, was a very pleasant affair. That is all we know about Christmas times for 1875.

From Idaho.

Last week we received a call from Mr Shepherd, formally furnace Superintendent for Belshaw & Co., at Cerro Gordo. Since his departure fiom here, over a year ago Mr. Shepherd has spent considerable time, and to poor purpose he tells us, at south Mountain, Idaho. That was a smelting camp of great promise at one time, and of real substantial merit, even now, Mr. Shepherd thinks, but for various reasons other than actual failure of mines, the camp is now "dead as a door nail," and Mr Shepherd, as many have done before him, returns to Inyo, his first love, which country he thinks is better than the best to be found elsewhere—Utah, Nevada or Idaho, it don't matter which.

Personals.

That irrepressible Al. Briggs, of Daneri & Briggs, Darwin, was in here this week, trying to make folks believe he knows something about affairs of State and such....Mrs. P. Reddy has gone to Darwin for a short visit, and to look after Superintendent P. Reddy who, it seems, thinks that place his home now days....S. Sneden and Pat Yaney left here yesterday evening for San Francisco, where the first named has been engaged for a very long time in the Internal Revenue Office....Mrs. Yaney and daughters of Bishop, returned from a visit to San Francisco, about a week ago.

For the East.

Capt. Macgowan started for San Francisco last Monday, taking the embalmed remains of his wife to be forwarded to be East for burial. In a note received from him since his departure he returns his warm thanks for the sympathy expressed by all for his great bereavement, and to Rev. L. Case for his reading of the beautiful Episcopal service.

Crowded Out.

Spite of ourselves several rather important items of which news and some matters of local interest, are crowded out of this issue, besides a very brief comment upon the article copied from the Carson Appeal, or strictly, from a slip forwarded us by a friend. If such things came to hand before the "paper and time was up" it would be different.

The Jockey Club Races.

Writing from Taboose Station, December 30, the junior says:

Wednesday evening a number of Independence and Bishop Creek representatives were gathered together and harmonized beautifully in regard to the frequent close communion services and the toasting of shins before a splendid fire, but there was a collapse when John Gibbons, Bishop's representative, undertook to run a bluff at the Independence men, "Dad" Moore and Tom May; he announced himself as ready and willing to stake a little coin on this assertion: That Bishop Creek could outstrip her sister town in turning out the fastest horse, the prettiest and most elegant rider, the champion wrestler, the most inveterate talker, the highest jumper, and lastly, but most important, "could show the meanest man in the county," upon which latter declaration our Independence trio would'nt "take water" by any means. In arranging for the place for this exhibition, however, there was some discord, for, said Mr. Bishop Creek: "if I bring my man to Independence the people will recognize and hang him immediately." Said Messrs. Independence: "If we bring our man far from home the citizens will likewise enter a protest and send him to Stockton." So it was agreed to meet at some future time at this place and enter their respective men in good trim for a single dash of a half mile; mean time they will be put into a rigid system of training.

FIRST DAY'S RACES.

Pool selling commenced early Friday and sold rapidly up to the time set for the race. Over $219 worth of pools were sold. Charley Ross, Molly Smith and Johnny were entered for the half mile race, by Hitchcock, Wright, and Earle, respectively. The day was extremely cold and some windy, but the track was in good condition and the home stretch favorable with the wind. The race was closely contested, Molly Smith winning the purse by about 50 feet.

SECOND DAY'S RACING.

Friday morning dawned clear and cold, but the bitter winds of the day before had almost entirely subsided and gave promise of an exceptionally fine day. The trainers were out early exercising and familiarizing their horses with the track, and judging from the way the men and animals stepped around the exercise was needed; the intense cold was a too familiar subject to talk about. But three horses were entered for this, the mile race; none others seemingly cared to compete with such blooded stock as Budd Doble, Glencoe Chief and Sheep Driver. These were entered by Crumley, Jones and May, respectively. Pool selling continued from the night before, and throughout the forenoon considerable interest was manifested. Doble, if anything took the lead and was for a time, the favorite. This interesting performance was cut short by the announcement of a sumptuous dinner—greatly to the relief of the auctioneer, our worthy pool seller, who had become dry and husky. An inventory was had of the pool-pot and found to contain the snug little sum of $420, which completed the day's sales. After dinner the Judges started

FOR THE TRACK.

The horses were brought out at 2 o'clock as announced, and scripped for business. No little interest was felt by all present, as well as the owners of the bloods, not for the consideration of a small purse and the money staked, but the opportunity for determining the best among the three well know horses—whereof the very hairs in the tail of each could give a history of past victories. Budd Doble was the same sedate, honest looking fellow that he always was; he puts on no frills and has a don't care look in his eyes except when aroused, then he flashes fire in a manner to prove that "blood will tell." Glencoe Chief was a stranger to the majority present, but won admiration and applause for he is in beauty, the very ideal of a horse. Although 18 years old he would put to shame a colt of four, for he is so proud and intensely nervous that two men had their hands full to restrain him within the bounds of good horse behavior, and from bounding off on his own hook. We were pleased with this beauty and would like to go into details, but your space forbids. Sheep Driver is too well known to need any description whatever. He is honest, faithful, more so, in that respect than his master, some one said, (but that fellow was trying to perpetrate a cruel joke and he was simply entered to make up the requisite number, as he was received without the least attention and of course was in but in a little better trim than a farm horse would be taken from the plow as a motive power for some loving swain on a 20-mile trip to see his rustic sweetheart. A large number were assembled on the track, including several ladies, awaiting the

TAPPING OFF

and in justice to the gallant old Chief we note the rather premature utterance of the word "go," accompanied by the tap of a drum which gave the Sheep Driver and Budd Doble full 60 feet the advantage in the start. At the first quarter everybody was excited for the Chief was gaining; at the half-mile stake he was even, and the excitement was intense; the noble old racer came flying in on the home stretch, all of 50 feet ahead, greeted by the cheering of backers and opponents alike. The day had turned out pleasant, and finished by numerous scrub races, turkey raffling, etc. Mine host, Harry Wright and his estimable lady entertained their numerous guests with their usual hospitality and, we wind up this somewhat curtailed report with the statement that everybody was well pleased with the manner in which everything was so impartially and fairly conducted, and the complete success of the Jockey Club's first races.

Taxes Last Year and This.

The total tax for the year 1874 was $41,000; of this $39,618 was collected, which less the Collector's percentage of $1,392 18, was applied to county purposes. That is to say it took $38,226 18 to run the county last year which, however, included the redemption of some $4,000 of the 1872 bonds, interest on $40,000 of the same, and the sum paid the State, a total for these purposes to be deducted from the actual running expenses of the county of say $13,000, leaving $25,000 in round numbers as the actual cost of maintaining the county government. This year owing to some expensive criminal trials and other unprovided for extra expenses, the total expense for that purpose will be something near $30,000, and in consequence there will be a deficiency on the Expense Fund alone of well on to $4,000. The total tax for this year is $45,000, but for various reasons not necessary now to specify in detail, the chances are full $10,000 of that sum is not collectable. This is not as flattering a showing as we could wish, but that is about the way it is likely to foot up notwithstanding.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach in this place to-morrow, at the usual hour. He will not hold the usual service at Lone Pine to-morrow.

The Races.

For particulars of the races at the Taboose track, see the junior's notes elsewhere.

Accidents and Other Matters at Darwin.

A friend writing at Darwin on the 28th says times are improving there decidedly in every way. The Defiance and New Coso furnaces are both running finely, the first mentioned now making regular shipments each day, the other having been doing so for some time. The Bella Union mine is looking particularly well. Mr. Hollihan, the Superintendent, is expected to return from San Francisco now in a few days with a furnace for the mine. The Cuervo furnace is about completed and will start up soon. On Christmas Day a sad accident occurred by which a most estimable young man, only about seventeen years of age, named Wilson, lost his life. He with a friend named Loose, were fooling with a pistol, which, in some way, was discharged, the ball passing through young Wilsons stomach causing his death in about 36 hours afterwards. He is mentioned as being a young man of fine promise and the pride of his parents. On the 28th a man by the name of Jim English was seriously hurt in the Lucky Jim mine, by the breaking of the bail to the bucket, which, as we make it out, fell upon English from a height of about 60 feet. It is uncertain what the result of his injuries may be. "Darwin had a nice dance and Christmas Tree," says our correspondent. As soon as a suitable building can be found a Lodge of Good Templars is to be organized, there being fifteen or twenty persons, several of them now members of the order, ready to apply for the charter. Gerrish will have the frame of Hanson's hotel addition enclosed in a few days.

Borrowed.

A party of Mexicans borrowed Charley Begole's guitar, the other day, and forgot (?) to return it. Whereupon Charley telegraphed by some mysterious means to the Sheriff, who was at the Taboose Station, and who persuaded them, as they passed, to loan it to him.

Quite a Change.

By way of contrast to the magnificent weather we have had up to Tuesday last it then began to rain, and continued to do so for about twelve hours, after which it cleared up, and is giving us a taste of Winter weather in earnest.

Stock for Sale.

As will be seen by his advertisement, Henry Muller offers to sell either some fine thoroughbred or a large number of common cattle, and at a bargain.

Important Railroad Meeting at Los Angeles.

[From The Los Angeles Herald, Dec. 24.]

WHEREAS, The Los Angeles and Independence Railroad has already added greatly to the facilities of commerce by bringing ship and rail together in a safe, deep and placid harbor, and has been the means of greatly cheapening the rate of fares and freights to and from the sea;

AND WHEREAS, We may assume from the benefits already derived from this road, its extension eastward until it should meet the Southern Utah coming westward would give to the commerce and productive industries of Southern California an impetus of incalculable value;

AND WHEREAS, Salt Lake City and its tributary country are as deeply interested in securing a railroad outlet at this point as we are in extending our commercial connections into the interior;

AND WHEREAS, We hold that the geographical and business conditions of the proposed route are so inviting that they would, if clearly and earnestly presented by representative citizens of Salt Lake and Los Angeles to the Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad, have powerful influence in inducing the managers of that corporation to aid in the work of building the two converging roads; therefore,

Resolved, That the people of Los Angeles will cordially co-operate with Hon. J. P. Jones in such plans as he may deem the best in order to secure the speedy extension of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad to such point in the interior as he may determine as the probable point of connection with a road to connection with a road to come west from Utah Territory.

Resolved, That the people of Los Angeles will, as far as they are financially able, aid in the continued progress eastward through Cajon Pass of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad, and that they stand ready to meet such assessments as may be levied upon the stock they have already subscribed to this road.

Resolved, That a committee of three citizens, consisting of His Honor, Mayor Prudent Beaudry, and Messrs. H. D. Barrows and C. C. Lips, are hereby appointed to proceed to San Francisco to consult with Hon. J. P. Jones; and to go thence to Salt Lake to lay the views of our people, and to proceed thereafter, if it be deemed advisable, to the East, and lay before the Board of Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad Company the views of the people of Salt Lake and of Los Angeles and such plans as they may have matured, urging the active co-operation of that company in the construction of a railroad which will connect the two cities.

Mr. E. Workman said that it would be only right to provide means to pay the expenses of the committee, and proposed the appointment of a Finance Committee of three. The chair appointed Messrs. Johnston, Hoover and Ferguson such committee.

It was then decided that a grand mass meeting of the citizens should be held in the District Court Room on Monday evening next, December 27th, the arrangements for which should be made by the Finance Committee.

In the meantime the Committee named in the resolutions will place themselves in communication with Senator Jones, so as to be able to submit to that meeting whatever views he may have to communicate.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the call of the posters next Monday night.

Colored Forethought.

Yesterday, as we were passing a street beyond the Atlanta Medical College, and on which a number of negroes reside, we heard an old negro calling out to his wife:

"Manda! Is you got dem chickens coral'ed in de smoke house, like I told yer?"

"No! an' I'd like to know whar's de matter wid you, dat you's so 'tickler 'bout dem chickins all at once?" she replied.

"Nebber you mind! I know whar's de matter, and dat's nuff till dem chickins is housed! When I hears dat dem niggers ober dar in the next yard is gwine to hab a party to-morrow night, I wanted to be shore dat my chickins doesn't tend it, you hear me!"

The chickens were at once locked up. —[Atlanta Constitution.

Our Delegation in Congress.

California is not forgotten by its delegation in Congress. Each several delegate is heard from as working in the interests of his constituents. Luttrell wants $75,000 for the improvement of the Sacramento and Feather rivers; and Sargent and Piper have agreed upon a bill to secure an appropriation for a Postoffice building in this city; and the names of Page and Wigginton have appeared in connection with California measures. If we get the appropriations asked for, so much the better; but in these times, when "economy" is the watchword in Congress, the feat, we fear, will be somewhat difficult to accomplish.—[S. F. Bulletin.

Cured Him.

A married woman in Decatur, Ill., whose husband spent his time loafing at saloons, became tired of supporting the family, dressed her child in its best garments, took it to the saloon where its father was and said, "I want you to take care of this little child;" and so saying she sat the little one down upon the floor and left. The dumfounded benedict sat a few moments, when he got up and left the saloon and has not been seen there since.

Nice Young Men.

When a Sclavonian jabs a knife into a fellow mortal or fires into a stage load of women and children, The Carson Appeal says "he is represented to be a young man of excellent habits and peaceable disposition." Is it usual for men of this lamb-like dispositions to engage in such practices? If so, a real desperado must be a devil incarnate.—[Austin Reveille.

Better for the Boy.

"I know that my little boy is bad" said a loving mother, "and I know that he may be breaking somebody's windows or something right now; but isn't it far better for him to be out in the fresh air than to be stuck here in the house, where he might be falling into a tub of hot water or permanently injuring himself some way? Seems to me it is."

Don't Forget It.

The proverb, "A stitch in time saves nine," is thus set forth in an old English ballad:

For want of a nail the shoe was lost;
For want of a shoe the horse was lost;
For want of a horse the rider was lost;
For want of a rider the battle was lost;
For want of the battle the kingdom was lost;
All for the want of a horse shoe nail.

Factories South.

Georgia is gradually filling up with cotton factories, which continue to arise on every hand. The Memphis Avalanche, in noticing the latest enterprise of this kind, predicts that the time is not far distant when a very large portion of the cotton growth of the South will be manufactured at home, not only for dometic supply, but for export.

—"Talking to the husband in a loud tone of voice" is enough to send a Persian wife to jail for thirty days.

—Teacher.—"What is the definition of flirtation?" Intelligent young pupil. —"It is attention without intention."

—Every Philadelphia girl with a spark of ambition in her nature expects to catch a lord during the Centennial.

—A lady of Gautemala has contributed to the Chilian Exhibition a hat for gentleman's wear, made out of the hair of her two daughters.

"There was a young lady of Bicester,
One day her lover had kissed her,
She seemed quite perplexed,
And to show she was vexed
She gave such a slap to her sister."

—Dominick Lynch, who came out here as mate of the steamer City of San Francisco and was deposed soon after his arrival on account of his conduct in Shanghai, has gone East.

—A special from St. Paul de Loanda, states that Captain Cameron's exploring expedition arrived there November 9th, having traversed the continent from Ujiji. The expedition was a complete success. All the men were well.

—Said a Dakota judge to the plaintiff in a divoace suit, "Johnny, I ain't goin' to inquire inter circumstances in this deleterious age. You say you smashed the feller. You wouldn't a done it, as a man, without reesing. Divorce granted."

—One night a short time since, in Virginia City, Theodore Giurgevich was stabbed and perhaps fatally wounded by H. Ivancovich. Both men are Sclavonians and were partners in business, until the partnership was dissolved by the knife.

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG,

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge.

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Numberf, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and Sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

D. 1875, for the sum of Two hundred and Fifty-five dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides costs amounting to the sum of Eighteen and 40-100 dollars, duly attested the 4th day of December, A. D. 1875, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of Two hundred and Seventy-three and 40-100 dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described real property, to wit:

That certain piece or lot of land situate, lying and being in the county of Inyo, State of California, described as follows to wit: One lot or piece of ground in the town of Darwin on the south side of Main street, being twenty-five feet front on Main street by one hundred feet deep, joining and bounded on the west by James Provard's lot, and on the east by Sharp's lot, together with the improvements thereon.

Notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 3d day of January, A. D. 1876, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to wit, at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant, David Thomas, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs, at public auction to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

Application for a Patent.

To the Ygnacio Quartz Mine.

No. 60.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, INDEPENDENCE, CAL., December 11th, 1875.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT J. S. Rothschild, W. A. Greenly, P. Reddy, J. E. Daneri, H. B. Stewart, Esther Woodworth, R. Daiz and V. Beaudry, whose Postoffice address is Independence, Cal., has this day filed their application for a Patent for 1,600 linear feet of the Ygnacio Quartz Mine or vein bearing silver and lead with surface ground one hundred feet in width situate, lying and being in Cerro Gordo Mining District, county of Inyo, and State of California, and known and designated by the field notes and official plat on file in this office as Lot Number 43 in township 16, South Range 38 East of Mount Diablo Base and Meridian.

The exterior boundaries of said lot No. 43 being as follows, to-wit: (Variation—15 deg 45 min E.)

Commencing at a post marked "P No. 1 Y M," on south boundary of mine from which corner common to sections 3 and 4 on north boundary of T 17 S R 38 E. bears S 31 deg 1 min 7 W 415 chains 67 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 75 links to post marked "P No. 2 Y M," in a stone mound two feet high 10 links north of the Belshaw grade from which a pine stump 10 inches in diameter bears S 24 deg W 35 links distant, thence N 11 deg W 24 chains 24 links to post marked "P No. 4 Y M," in mound 50 links south of road, thence S 79 deg E 1 chain 51 links to post marked "P No. 5 Y M," in stone mound two feet high, a pine stump 8 inches in diameter, bears N 25 deg E 100 links distant, thence S 11 deg E 24 chains 24 links to post marked "P No. 7 Y M," a pine tree 7 inches in diameter bears south 20 deg E 140 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 76 links to post and mound on south boundary, the place of beginning, containing 3 66-100 acres.

This claim is bounded on all sides by mineral land and mining claims.

The Location of this mine is duly recorded in the Recorder's office of Inyo county, Cal., and in books of Cerro Gordo Mining District.

Any and all persons claiming adversely any portion of said Ygnacio mine or said mining ground as hereinbefore described, are required to file their adverse claim with the Register of the United States Land Office at Independence, in the state of California, during the sixty days period of publication hereof, or they will be barred by virtue of the provisions of the statute.

SUMMONS

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF THIRD TOWNSHIP in the county of Inyo, State of California. C. L. Jackson, Plaintiff, vs. R. L. Thomas, Defendant. The People of the State of California send greeting to R. L. Thomas, Defendant. You are hereby required to appear before me, at my office in Third Township, in the county of Inyo, in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff and answer the complaint in said action, on file in my office, within ten days, (exclusive of the day of service,) after the service on you of this summons.

The said action is brought to recover the sum of One Hundred and Ninety-one and 75-100 dollars U. S. gold coin on an implied contract, for the direct payment of money, to wit, for goods and coin furnished you by the above named plaintiff. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the said amount of $191 75-100 together with costs.

To the Sheriff or any Constable of said Inyo county, greeting: Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 29th day of November, [L. S.] A. D. 1875.

R. L. PETERSON,

28714 Justice of the Peace of said Township.

What is a Printer!

[From The Washington Index.]

A printer is the most curious being living. He may have a "bank" and "quoins," and not be worth a cent; have "small caps" and have neither wife or children. Others may run fast, but he gets along swifter by "setting" fast. He may be making "impressions" without eloquence, may use the "lye" without offending, and he may be telling the truth; while others cannot stand while they set, he can "set" standing, and do both at the same time; may have to use "furniture," and yet have no dwelling; may make and put away "pie," and never see a pie, much less eat it, during his whole life; be a human being and a "rat" at the same time; may "press" a great deal and not ask a favor; may handle a "shooting iron" and know nothing about a cannon, gun or pistol; he may move the "lever" that moves the world, and yet be as far from the morning globe as a hog under a mole hill; spread "sheets" without being a house wife; he may lay his form in a "bed" and yet be obliged to sleep on the floor; he may use the "dagger" without shedding blood and from the earth handle "stars;" he may be of a "rolling" disposition and still never desire to travel; he can have a "sheep's foot" and never be deformed; never without a "case" and know nothing of law or physic; be always "correcting" his "errors," and growing worse every day; have "embraces" without ever having the arms of a lass thrown around him; have his "form locked up," and at the same time be far from jail, watch-house, or any other confinement; he might be plagued by the "devil," and yet be a Christian of the best kind.

Walking as an Exercise.

1. Every muscle, remarks Dr. Bowditch in The Sanitary Record, in the body is gently and uniformly brought into action by the swing of the legs and arms, and consequently of the trunk in a vertical direction. The undulations made by the head, chest and abdomen in a vertical plane are thus not only according to "Hogarth's line of beauty" but also in that tending to perfect health. Every internal organ is gently stimulated to more robust action. The circulation goes more freely and uniformly. 2. Never, in a common walk, does a person breathe twice the same air, because he is constantly changing his position. This fact alone is of incalculable advantage. Some writers contend that the re-breathing of air once partially used is one of the most fertile causes of consumption. The most favorable time for walking is undoubtedly about mid-day in Winter, and in the morning and towards evening in the Summer.

The Spelling Fever.

Smith says this spelling school fever is getting to be an intolerable bore. On going home to supper in a great hurry, one evening lately, he found his wife in front of the parlor fire, with a spelling book in her hand, and heard an indistinct mumbling in which he could occasionally distinguish, "c-o-m-p-la-c-e-n-t, s-a-t-i-s-fi-e-d, h-a-p-p-y, etc.

"Is supper ready, my dear?" asked he.

"S-u-p-p-er," was all the answer he could hear.

"Come, come, I must be up town shortly," said he.

"S-h-o-r-t-l-y," echoed the lady, moving toward the kitchen door, pausing in the door to take one last look at McGuffey.

"Mrs. Smith, I must be back up street in a few minutes, and must have my supper immediately," yelled the now irate husband.

"I-m-m-e-d-i——" but this was too much, and here the coal scuttle crashed against the kitchen door, just as the fortunate lexicographer dodged behind and closed it, while Smith avers that he heard something, as she whirled through the door, that sounded like "c-o-a-l c-o-a-l s-c-u-t——" and here the sound was lost amid the clatter of tin pans, skillets, etc. He is now prepared to fight any man who says "McGuffey" to him once.

—Soundings on a bar—Rapping for drinks.

Items Worth Remembering.

Benzine and common clay will clean marble.

If you buy carpets for durability, choose small figures.

Naturalists say that a single swallow will devour six thousand flies in one day.

Butter will remove tar spots. Soap and water will afterwards take out the grease stains.

To remove paint splashed upon window panes, use hot solution of soda and a soft flannel.

Kerosene and powdered lime, whiting or wood ashes, will scour tins with least trouble.

Immersing a growing plant in water of 120 degrees will clean it of lice and other insects, and not hurt the plant.

To clean a browned porcelain kettle, boil peeled potatoes in it. The porcelain will be rendered nearly as white as when new.

A strong solution of carbolic acid and water, poured into holes, kills all the ants it touches, and the survivors immediately take themselves off.

An inkstand was turned over upon a white tablecloth; a servant threw over it a mixture of salt and pepper plentifully, and all traces of it disappeared.

To take the mildew from linen, mix soft soap with starch powdered, half the quantity of salt, and a piece of lemon, and lay it on both sides with a paint brush; let it be in the open air—on grass is preferable—till the stain is removed.

An excellent, well recommended pickle for curing hams is made of one and one half pounds of salt, one half pound of sugar, one half ounce of saltpeter, and one-half ounce of potash. Boil all together till the dirt from the sugar has risen to the top and is skimmed. Pour it over the meat and leave the latter in the solution four or five weeks.

Presidential Contest.

The Detroit Tribune says that "There is some talk of a sharp game planned by the Democrats for the coming Presidential contest, having as its object the throwing of the election into the House of Representatives. It is intimated that, bearing in mind the old motto, 'Divide and conquer,' they are planning to run two Presidential tickets, one Hard and one Soft money. The programme is to press the former exclusively in the Eastern States, and the latter in the West and South, with the hope of carrying enough States for the two tickets to prevent the Republican candidate from receiving a majority of the Electoral voted, thus throwing the election into Congress."

The Great Race.

At last we have the following, which seems to have the appearance of something definite: "The Jockey (San Francisco) Club met December 21st, at 3 o'cock, and decided, after consultation with the owners of the horses, to run the race on February 22d, good day and track. Six entries were made to-day, and the time for closing entries was put at January 10th. The club will deposit $30,000, and assure the public that the event is now fixed."

A Polygamist Sentenced.

George Reynolds, indicted for, and convicted of, polygamy, has been sentenced by Chief Justice White to two years' imprisonment at hard labor in the Utah penitentiary (if there be really any such place). Being admitted to bail, pending an appeal, Reynolds is yet a free man, so far as his conviction for polygamy is considered.

Disposed of.

The Pittsburg Dispatch has an arithmetical and laconic way of disposing of the third term pretentions in this wise: "There is no written or unwritten law against a third term, but in the case of President Grant there would be a majority of about 1,000,000 against it, which might, perhaps, answer the same purpose."

—A crying shame—Our neighbor's young one.

—The old maids in Athens (Ga.) recently met in a convention and resolved that the Legislature ought to make it a penal offense for any widow to marry again.

—Cardinal McGloskey has his hands full of high toned marriages and big fees. There are some New York folks who would not feel married unless the Cardinal did the work.

—A Duluth girl married a young man because he lifted his hat so beautifully when he passed her. She got a divorce because he lifted the table so beautifully when the dinner didn't suit.

—An Iowa man who had been married a month recently committed suicide by drinking green paint, and it's a fine point as to whether his awful fate is to be looked upon as a warning against paint or matrimony?

—He, and he only, is safe from a drunkard's death, who never tastes a drop of anything that can intoxicate.

—It is estimated by The Boston Transcript that Daniel Webster, during his public life, received over $1,000,000 in gifts from his friends and admirers.

—A doctor went out West to practice his profession. An old friend met him on the street one day, and asked him how he succeeded in his business. "First rate," he replied, "I've had one case." "Well, and what was that?" "It was a birth!" said the Doctor. "How did you succeed with that?" "Well, the old woman died, and the child died. But I think I'll save the old man yet!"

A Gallant Exploit.

[From The Los Angeles Express, Dec. 30.]

The unsurpassed skill of the native Californians on horseback has been the subject of remark for years. Yesterday we saw City Marshal, John J. Carillo, acquit himself of a dexterious feat of horsemanship that would extort admiration in any quarter of the world. We may remark, en passant, that this official has been the means, during his incumbency in his present position, of saving a number of lives.

About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a mule team was observed by the Marshal dashing up Main street in wild career, from about Arcadia street. The whiffletree of the wagon to which they were attached had broken, and the mules were maddened with fright, their driver being powerless and unnerved. To increase the danger, the street was full vehicles. Quick as thought Carillo put spurs to his noble and intelligent horse, and in half a dozen paces his hands were on the bit of one of the mules, and for two squares the struggle between man and beast—muscle, intelligence and a trained horse on one hand, and the tremendous strength of frenzy on the other, was a grand sight, though a fleeting one, owing to the rapid gait. At last, by a splendid effort of strength and dexterity, the City Marshal disengaged his leg and gave one of the mules a kick on the breast of prodigious force. This and the unrelaxed grasp happily brought the team up standing. Any one unacquainted with Carillo's rapidity, horsemanship and steady nerve, who saw the exploit, would have sworn that accident or death would result to him, and if he had not put in an opportune appearance, a serious accident to the driver and to other persons would certainly have resulted. The rescued man had not even the grace to thank his deliverer. The Marshal informs us that the muscular strain was so great as to leave a serious pain in his chest.

Hurricane at 156 Miles an Hour.

Mount Washington is a favorite place for Summer jaunts, because of its grand views, and on account of its cool and refreshing Summer breezes, but in the latter days of November "cool" becomes superlatively cold, and the "refreshing breezes" rage as most violent hurricanes. Not long since, one Monday afternoon, the wind on the summit of Mount Washington swept the mountain top at a velocity of 156 miles an hour, and the thermometer marked 24 degrees below zero. A wind moving at the rate of 100 miles an hour is classed as a violent hurricane, and exerts a pressure of 49 pounds on each square foot of surface perpendicularly exposed to it. As the pressure varies with the square of the velocity, the pressure during the hurricane above referrred to must have been 119 pounds to the square foot. Appleton's encyclopædia states that it has been contended that a velocity of ten miles a minute must have been momentarily attained in some storms, but that the highest hurricane winds actually observed have, on the British coast, attained a velocity of 130 miles per hour. The observed velocity at Mount Washington on this occasion was, it is said, the greatest recorded since the establishment of the station; the observers must have trembled for the safety of their little house, chained though it is to the immovable rocks. An outside stretch of wall or weatherboarding, 35 feet long by 19 feet high, would have been subjected to a force of 41,650 pounds, and the surface of a man's body presenting an average superficies of five square feet to the windward, would have been struck by a pressure of 495 pounds.

Fighting in Durango.

A Mazatlan journal gives the particulars of the late fight between the Revolutionists and the Government forces in the State of Durango. The battle took place in the mountains of San Luis, in the heart of the revolutionary district. The insurrectionists, 800 strong, were commanded by Col. Susano Ortiz, and in a strong position. The Government forces were only 200 strong and under command of Col. Garfias and Capt. Onate. Which commenced the attack is not stated, but the combat lasted three hours, ending with a total route of the Revolutionists, who left 56 killed on the field, losing 39 captured as prisoners, 190 arms of all kinds and 150 horses. On the Government side the loss in killed was one officer, one man and twelve horses. This undoubtedly settles the Revolutionists in that State for the present. It is certain, however, that Ortiz has been planning a raid on the State of Sonora and it is surmised that he is in league with Serna, for the purpose of dethroning Governor Pesqueira of that State. The serious condition of affairs there demands Federal intervention, and the State authorities have asked for the co-operation of the National troops. Pesqueria has a force of 600 men under arms and Serna between 200 and 300 men. The whole State is represented to be in the greatest state of alarm.

—The mysterious cabal of newspaper men who brought about the death of Greeley by nominating him—Murat Halstead, Henry Watterson and Sam. Bowles—has met in Washington, and people wonder who is to be its victim. What man will the conclave nominate for death and the Presidency? Charles Francis Adams, Samuel J. Tilden, or who shall it be? We should like to know, for we wish to mourn intelligently and particularly—not in a general sort of way.—[Graphic.

The War in Egypt.

The Weiser Zeitung, of Bremen, Dec 8, contains the following account of the capture and massacre of a detachment of the Egyptian troops by Abyssinians: As briefly reported some time ago by cable, we have had news from Abyssinia. The expedition of about two thousand men, sent by the Khedive under command of Gen. Arendross to subjugate the Abyssinians, was drawn into ambush and nearly every man slaughtered. Gen. Arendross, the Pasha and many other officers, were literally hacked to pieces. Their heads were stuck on spears before the Abyssinian tents, and their bodies thrown to the wild beasts. An expedition comprising twelve thousand men, infantry, cavalry and artillery, is to set out from Cairo without delay, and will be joined by every American officer in the service, including Col. Stone.

A Free Gift.

The result of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Union Pacific Railroad case makes that and the Central Pacific road almost a free gift from the Government to the companies that built them. Not only that but these soulless corporations have ingeniously contrived to cheat the States and Territories through which the line passes, out of the taxes that ought to be paid on the enormous land grant forming a part of the endowment. Mr. Ingalls, United States Senator from Kansas, introduced a bill to put a stop to this refinement of dishonesty by authorizing taxation whether the roads have taken out patents for the lands or not.

Gen. Crook's Father in Law.

The father in law of Gen. Crook, Mr. Dailey, was an unsuccessful applicant for the position of doorkeeper of the House of Representatives. During the war one of the old man's sons who was a Confederate officer, operating in the Shenandoah Valley, stole through the lines with a small force, visited his father's house in Maryland and made Gen. Crook a prisoner. The General at that time was paying his "distresses" to his future wife. Crook was exchanged soon after and revenged himself by making a permanent capture of the sister of his former captor.

Oregon Railroad.

Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, has introduced a bill granting the right of way for a railroad and telegraph line to the Walla Walla and Columbia River Railroad Company across the Fort Walla Walla Military Reservation, in Washington Territory, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs. It contemplates the use of so much of the Military Reservation as will be required for the track and telegraph line.

His Titles.

In addition to being Major of Engineers in the regular army, Gen. Babcock, who was recently indicted for supposed connection with the whisky frauds, is Military Secretary of President Grant, Commissioner of Public Buildings and Grounds, President of the Columbia Lying-in Asylum, Engineer in-Chief of the Washington Aqueduct, and Architect of the new State and War Department buildings.

Six Hundred and One.

The people of Eureka becoming tired of having crimes committed in their midst, organized a vigilance committee and sent "tickets of leave" to the various scoundrels who have infested that burg. All receiving them departed at once, and we guess the Base Rangers will not have to resort to the stretching process.—[Eureka Sentinel.

For a Divorce

Mrs. Hayward has applied for a divorce from Alvinza Hayward on the ground of desertion, and asks for a division of the property. Hayward has filed an answer in which he acquiesces n the divorce prayed for, and is also willing to give the petitioner ample share of the common property, amounting, it is said, to ten millions.

Be Reduced

The army will probably receive a orough overhauling this Winter. The ommissions of several hundred officers will probably be revoked, for as matters stand now there are only about sixteen men to every officer. This is not likely to be tolerated much longer.

—The President has nominated Charles E. G. French, of California, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Arizona.

FOR A LARGER SALARY.

A petition is to be presented to the Legislature asking an increase of salary for the County Assessor. The fixed compensation now allowed the Inyo Assessor is precisely the same as when the county was organized in 1866. At that time the assessable property of the county, all told was $600,000 approximately, and was confined to an area considerably less than one-half of that over which the present $1,500,000 of taxable property is now spread. In consequence of this greater area, and increase of property and population the work of assessing the county is quite three times as great as originally, while the compensation remains the same, save the trifling addition through the personal property per centage, as allowed by a subsequent general law. This per centage is one per cent. on collections, and last year amounted to about $300. The salary is $600 making a total of say $900 for the Assessor's salary. He has now to traverse a lenght of over two hundred miles in one direction with lateral journeys of as much as fifty miles. Supposing him to pay as other travelers pay, his traveling expenses alone in visiting every place and house in so great an area would eat up his salary, perhaps entirely. It is fair to presume the hospitalities of our people do enable him to make something of a saving in that way, but we do not know this to be the case, nor does it make any difference as to his right to a fair compensation. It is clear to us and to all whom we have heard express an opinion that he does not receive a sufficient compensation, and in that belief the petition, for an increase to $1,200 per annum, is being signed by the heaviest taxpayers and business men generally. Therefore we may say that it is the general desire of the Inyo tax payers that their Assessor should be better paid than he now is. It should be understood that if the change is not made prior to the first of next March, at which time the Assessor elect begins his term, he will have to serve his four years through at the present starvation salary, and yet it is quite within the bonds of probability that before these four years pass away he will have to assess perhaps $10,000,000 of property, involving something like six times more work and personal expense than at the present. After the beginning of the term there can be no increase in the fixed salary. His per centage, of course, will increase in the same ratio as the personal property collections, but that increase will be disproportioned to the extra work and expense, should values and property enhance anything like as much as we have anticipated.

As a principle we believe that within certain limits the better salaries allowed public servants, the better will be the servants and the service, and consequently the more economical the county or any other government. Whatever the duties or the office, the pay ought to be sufficient to command the best talent, by which we we mean ambition and energy in an officer to do his whole duty, and not hang back in a questionable case, because he feels that "it won't pay" to do anything more than the plain letter of the law requires, and too often, hardly that. In that belief in general and in this case in particular, as judged from obvious facts, we think it quite right than the Assessor's salary should be considerably enlarged.

But we do not endorse the loose way in which it is proposed to do this. The bill ought to be so drafted as to guard the rights of the people, the other party to the contract. As the law now stands there is nothing in it, as we understand it, to prevent any Assessor from doing the entire work of assessing by deputy. Should he so determine (let it be distinctly understood we mean no imputation direct or indirect upon the honorable intentions of our Assessor elect), we know of nothing in the law to prevent him from drawing his regular salary on a mere pretense of having done work himself and at the same time, the full allowance from the county, in addition to that as pay for the unlimited number of deputies he might choose to employ. The point is that the Assessor should have his own personal work distinctly marked out, or his powers of appointment for doing the work by proxy, so limited or clearly defined as to permit of no chance of imposition upon tax payers. This might be done by having the pay allowed deputies based on a per centage on the total assessments made by each, all over a certain amount or proportion to be deducted from the fixed salary of the Assessor, which, as the case now stands, he draws whether he does any work himself or not; or else by contracting with him to do the whole work for a fixed sum, he to pay his own deputies if he saw proper to employ any. Without having given this matter the consideration its importance demands we may say that we think it would be cheaper to allow our Assessor $2,000 per annum and his per centage as at present, provided he would do the whole work free of any additional expense to the county, than to pay the $1,200 as asked for or even keep it as it is, as the extra expense for field and office work by deputy are yet to be paid, and there is no telling how much the total may be. We hope our Representative and the Legislature as a whole will give this matter due consideration before passing the bill, although, if no better plan than that in use heretofore, which is the same as proposed in this petition, can be devised, then pass it as petitioned for, for our Assessor, in view of the four years without change in his own favor, is clearly entitled to a better salary than he now receives.

On Account of Their Ears.

Those Washoe papers are disposed to be cynical and cross-grained, and to bother about things they would do as well to let alone. Not long since they most all put themselves very much out of shape to traduce Inyo justice, one of our very best citizens and lawyers, our jurymen, not forgetting to lie directly concerning an unfortunate family, which, though not Inyo citizens, are, any of its members, more honorable and of better standing than those traducers, and lastly, to gratuitously misrepresent the "local paper"—all this without the manliness to offer one word of amends further than fear of personal consequences compelled. As another instance in point, though comparatively trifling as to consequences, The Gold Hill News represents Senator Laine, of Santa Clara, as an illiterate boor, all because he led in the opposition to the appointment of a Senate Chaplain. As a matter of fact Senator Laine is a well educated lawyer, having the distinction of having been the very first collegiate graduate of this State. The trouble with those Washoe editors is, they expose themselves out doors too much in the zephyr season; they go out to walk with ears all exposed, and with such a spread of sail, they get so flopped about they don't know anything for hours after. In this state, like a goose by moonlight, they blaze away at random, befoul whom they may.

Did not Implicate Him.

Carl Schurz has positively denied having endeavored to connect President Grant with the whisky frauds, as was asserted he had done, some time ago, through the columns of a St. Louis journal. He does not believe the President implicated in any way, and declares that he always said so. But, as men enjoying his confidence are involved, the ex-Senator seems to blame him because he does not withdraw his confidence until they are actually convicted. There are many, and they among the most worthy of the world's worthiest, who would consider this steadiness of friendship toward a man, until he be proved guilty, as rather a commendable strength than a weakness. If one were to drop a friend as soon as an accusation or a hint were made, how many friendships would any man retain?

Fine Papers.

The New Year's edition of The Los Angeles Daily herald is a 16-page number replete with interesting matter principally relating to Los Angeles county and Southern California. It is, we believe, the largest and most complete paper yet published south of San Francisco.

As usual The Sacramento Record-Union comes out with a mammoth New Year's 16-page sheet, containing a vast amount of valuable information well worth filing away in every home in the land. Last year the Record-Union New Year edition gave twenty pages, but this one gives pages enough, and is good enough.

Sonora.

The San Diego World thinks that the troubles on the southern border of California are but the legitimate outcroppings of the disturbed state of affairs in the more popular State of Sonora, and we may expect them as long as life and property in that State are at the mercy of the robber and assassin.

Peanuts.

Last season the peanut crop of the United States reached 2,000,000 bushels, valued at $3,000,000. The oil of the North Carolina nut is said to possess great commercial importance, and is extensively used as a substitute for almond and olive oils.

—"Does my baby annoy you nights?" said a fond mother to a serious looking young man who occupied the adjoining room. "Oh, no, not at all," he meekly replied; "I love babies." and yet he had been engaged for several days upon an article in defense of Herod.

—Senator Farley has introduced a bill in the legislature, to submit to the people, at the general election in 1877, the question, whether they want a Constitutional Convention.

GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF THE LATE DOUBLE HOMICIDE IN CERRO GORDO

[From an occasional Correspondent.]

CERRO GORDO, Jan. 6.

MESSRS. EDS.—I have been somewhat dilatory in furnishing you a report of our New Year's tragedy, as I was desirous of throwing as much light on the shocking event as the circumstances will admit.

For a long time nothing has occurred to mar the friendly relations between our American and Mexican citizens and we are confident that in the future, also notwithstanding the killing of two men on the morning of the 2nd, no more trouble need to be anticipated, as the best citizens of both nationalities are anxious to preserve peace and order and are determined to quell any disturbance be it created by an American or Mexican rough. As a matter of course our camp has been greatly excited and either party was suspicious of the other and were armed and ready should the dance begin. Through the endeavors, however, of Mr. Beaudry and J. R. Hughes, and of the Mexicans, Figuero, Lozano and Hermosillo, the best results have followed.

The occurrence giving rise to all this excitement and bitter feeling was the folloing: On New Year night our Mexican population concluded to celebrate the beginning of the New Year and probably the early inauguration of better times in Cerro Gordo, by giving a grand ball, in which the best American and Mexican families participated. Everything passed off pleasantly enough until the ladies had departed and dancing had ceased, when suddenly a pistol shot roused the attention of the merry-makers and two men came scuffling into the saloon from an adjoining door and one or two more shots were fired, when one of the combatants, an American named Kimble, got up and passed out of the room, remarking, that the man had brought it on himself. The victim was lying behind the bar, shot through the breast, and soon expired. It was Rafael Salazar, a Mexican, one of four brothers living here, and universally respected for his quiet and gentlemanly behavior.

The versions as to the origin of the difficulty are too numerous to mention; the most probable one, however, is the following: Kimble, excited probably by drink, had a difficulty or rather took offense at what a foolish, drunken young boy, who was perfectly harmless, said to him—taking out his pistol he started after the boy who ran into an adjoining room. Salazar seeing the trouble stepped between them and told Kimble to put up his pistol as that was no place for it. Kimble refused to do so, and during the scuffle that followed Salazar was killed. Nothing further was elicted at the inquest.

The affair created the deepest feeling and the highest excitement amongst the numerous friends of the deceased. The slayer had taken refuge in the Union Hotel which was soon surrounded by an excited crowd of Mexicans, all bent on avenging the death of their countryman, but the doors were guarded by armed men and they did not dare to break into the house—and now comes the most shocking part of the tragedy.

Going down to the house of Charles F. Duval, who had been Justice of the Peace, they tried to obtain a warrant, but could not do so. It is claimed, however, that he appointed a fellow by the name of Merritt as special Constable to go and arrest Kimble. Merritt, who speaks good Spanish, led the mob to the house and under his pretended authority, searched the building. Kimble had taken refuge in a bed room under a bed, where he was found and dragged out by Merritt who remarked, "You are the d—d s— of a b— that I want." As soon as Kimble saw the excited crowd all eager for his life, with their six-shooters leveled at him, he exclaimed, "For God,s sake don't shoot me here, but give me justice?" The pseudo Constable took hold of him, and in spite of the warning of some Americans, who were in the room, but powerless to offer any resistance, led him out—a pistol shot was heard amid the unearthly yelling of the excited Mexicans that told his fate. He was found between the Union Hotel and Pyzer's, shot through the brain, the bullet entering behind the left ear.

Nothing was elicted at either inquest to warrant Justice J. R. Hughes in holding any one, as the witnesses examined were more or less reluctant to tell every thing they knew, or else were too excited to perceive sufficient to convict a person. The cowardly behavior alone of the fellow Merritt, dragging his victim out and delivering him over to the mercy of an excited mob, fully aware that he was leading him to certain death, excited the greatest contempt and rage for the wretch among our honorable, though sometimes rough, miners, and it was agreed among them that he must leave camp if he valued his life. Indeed, had it not been for the determined action of Mr. Hughes, whose well known double-barreled shot gun—"the old persuader," as it is called—was leveled at the boys, Merritt would have joined his victim in another land. Mr. Hunter also interceded, snd obtained the promise of the boys that they would not harm the man if he would forthwith make tracks down the canyon, which he did with considerable alacrity.

On the next day various circumstances came to light showing the base action of Merritt and incited the sensure of the Justice who did not obtain these addtional facts in time for the inquest, so as to have been able to hold him. Merritt was heard to make the remark, that he did not care; he had received $10 to fetch him out, but that the job was worth more than that.

A man from Darwin was here and heard these particulars. On his return he found Merritt at Darwin, and was the means of having him promptly arrested. Witnesses were sent for, and P. Reddy, Esq will prosecute the case, so that after all Merritt stands a good chance of receiving his just dues.

JUSTICE.

Los Angeles Newspapers.

[From The Los Angeles Herald.]

Los Angeles supports three daily newspapers, one semi-weekly Spanish paper, five English and one German weekly paper, one monthly and one or two semi-occasional publications. Of these The Daily and Weekly Herald is the widest circulated and most influential.

The Star is a daily morning paper and has also a weekly edition.

The Express is published in the evening and has a weekly.

La Cronica, the Spanish newspaper, is the only organ of the Spanish speaking population of Southern California. It is published semi-weekly and is circulated widely in California, Arizona, Mexico, the Central and South American States and Spain. E F. Teodoli is the editor and proprietor.

The Sued Californische Post, a German weekly, is published by Conrad Jacoby. It has been established about eighteen months, and has a good circulation and influence among the German population of city and county.

The Schoolmaster, published weekly, is the organ of the Public Schools of our county. It is edited by Dr. W. T. Lucky, Superintendent of the City Schools. It is a valuable publication for teachers and those interested in educational matters.

The Mirror is a weekly printed for gratuitous distribution in the interest of the Mirror Office.

Semi-Tropical California is published monthly by the Los Angeles Immigration and Land Co-operative Association, with L. M. Holt as editor. It is well filled with matter of importance concerning our country, and more particularly the lands of the Company, in whose interest the paper is published.

It is but just to say that these publications all receive a fair amount of patronage, and are altogether in a flourishing condition. The people of Los Angeles are believers in printer's ink, and not only take the papers and read them but advertise in them, and supply a good moral support. This fact will attest the intelligence and public spirit of our citizens.

The Border Troubles.

A San Diego despatch of December 30 says:

The arrests made by Bradillo on Monday at Treate have caused some commotion. It is thought, by some, that these arrests will throw more light on the subject, and are likely to implicate some parties who are least suspected; and it is not improbable that Cruiz Lopez will soon be captured.

A letter from Campo says: Little by little the true history of the raid is elucidated, and there is no doubt but that almost the entire Mexican population hereabouts were in sympathy with, and had previous knowledge of, the attack at Gaskill's, and that not less than fifteen men were implicated. Only six were in sight, but the others were in hailing distance, and would have shared in the spoils had they been successful.

The Sheriff's posse at Campo will be withdrawn in a day or two. The officer in charge of the military telegraph has asked for a detachment of soldiers from Fort Yuma for protection of the telegraph line and office at that place.

Our Congressman.

Hon. P. D. Wigginton, member of Congress from this district, has received the following compliment from a paper published at his old home in Wisconsin:

If we had as much confidence in the patriotism and honesty of a majority of the Democratic members of the next Congress as in Hon. P. D. Wigginton, a member from California, we should have no fears of any abuse of the power which is placed in their hands. Mr Wigginton formerly lived at Dodgeville, Wisconsin, is a gentleman of talent, education and ability, and we are glad to see that the people of his adopted home have so handsomely recognized his worth.

We would inform that Wisconsin paper that, while not in the least disposed to deny Mr. Wigginton's worth, we do deny that its general recognition cut any essential figure in his election. His name filled a blank on his ticket and that was all a great majority knew or cared to know about it, since they did know a good deal about his principal opponent.

—James Brown has resigned the position of hostler for the hotel at Washington Corners, Alameda county, and goes to Canada to assume the management of a baronial estate bequeathed him by his uncle.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

HUGHLITT'S IVORY WHEAT.

80 to 100 Bushels to the Acre.

Something New.

ALLOW US TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO this new kind of spring wheat that will yield 80 to 100 bushels to the acre. This wheat was imported from Africa, and has been grown in the United States with unparalleled success for two years.

The grain of this wheat is small, plump and heavy, of a whitish color, and weighs 70 pounds to the measured bushel. Its growth is quite different from all other grades of wheat, one pint being sufficient to plant an acre. 100 grains of the seed is sufficient for a farmer to plant in order to obtain an abundance of seed for 20 to 40 acres the following year.

Its Great Value Consists

1. In its abundant yield.
2. In its flour qualities.
3. In the quality of bread made from its flour.
4. In its great yield of flour.
5. In the facility of which it is harvested.
6. In its making a good yield on any kind of land.
7. In its being of a very heavy nature, and not liable to rust
8. In its being easily threshed on our common threshers.
9. In its retention of these properties through successive years of cultivation, and not "running out," as many new kinds do in America.

To any one desiring to act as agent we will send a sample package of 100 grains for $1, or 500 grains for $4, with circulars giving full directions as to time and manner of planting, cultivating, &c., (and terms to agents) pre-paid by mail.

Send money by Postoffice Order or Registered Letter. Address LUCIUS OSMENT & CO.,

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF A DECREE OF FORECLOSURE of mortgage and order of sale issued out of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the county of Inyo, in the suit of J. P. M. Perham, Plaintiff, against Fidelio P. Ball and Rafael Diaz, Defendants, upon a judgment or decree of foreclosure rendered in said Court on the fourth day of November, A. D. 1875, for the sum of Five Hundred and Sixty-one and 78-100 dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides costs and interest amounting to the sum of Two Hundred and Sixty-eight and 95-100 dollars, duly attested the fourth day of January, A. D. 1876, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of Eight Hundred and Thirty and 73-100 dollars in gold coin of the United States, besides accruing costs and interest, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants in and to the following described real property, to wit:

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the town of Upper Cerro Gordo, county of Inyo, State of California, and bounded and particularly described as follows, to wit: That certain town lot in the town aforesaid on the south corner of Main and Lincoln street, said lot being fifty (50) by one hundred (100) feet, together with all the improvements thereon.

Notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 31st day of January, A. D 1876, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to wit, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. of that day, in front of the Court House, in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Defendants, Fidelio P. LOCAL AFFAIRS.

County Court.

Judge Hannah's Court met in regular term last Monday. Pending the action of the Grand Jury, which was duly impaneled and instructed the first day, no business of importance was transacted till Friday.

In the case of John Dehy, under bonds to answer for alleged incendiarism, his counsel, A. R. Conklin, challenged off James Peregrine for implied bias. Witnesses in this case were examined on Thursday. The Jury refused to find a bill against Dehy, whereupon the Court ordered the case dismissed and release of bonds.

Their report was submitted on Friday, accepted and the Jury discharged.

No indictmeets were found.

Sullivan & Melstedt vs. J. Sharp, appeal from Justice's Court; on motion of District Attorney Snelling, case dismissed for want of prosecution, plaintiffs and appellants to settle costs.

Henry Smith vs. J. Dolan; Gregg for plaintiff, Conklin for defendant; set for next Monday.

People vs. F. Dabeeny, appeal from Justice's Court; set for Monday.

Court adjourned till 10 A. M. Monday, January 10.

The Magic Lantern.

The "Shadow Pantomime and Chromotrope Exhibition" came off at the Masonic Hall last Wednesday evening as announced, and afforded a very pleasant entertainment for the little ones. The shadow pantomime puzzled evan the older ones as to how the shadow could assume such immense porportions in decending from above so mysterously. This is a favorite parlor amusement in the Atlantic States, but was quite a novelty here. The audience was rather sparce on account of the tremendous blow out the night previous; however, those present expressed themselves as well pleased, and took part in a merry little dance at the close of the entertainment.

Good News.

Mr. Beaudry informs us that he has put a force of men to work in the Union mine, Cerro Gordo, and that as soon as ore enough can be got out to justify a start, his furnace, so long silent, will steam up again and stay steamed up. By this we also infer that the Belshaw furnace, now and for some time past, running on ores from various other mines, will be supplied from the Union, and things generally will smile again. As but little preliminary work was required to get at the ore in the Union it will be but a few days or weeks at the most before the furnaces can both have a supply from it, and will be in full blast.

Weather.

We have had considerable weather, this week, of the most approved rough winter style, although to-day it is almost summery. We infer that Cerro Gordo, where the more snow the greater the blessing, is somewhat happier now, as the Inyo range in that direction appears to have several feet of snow upon its tops. North, on the Greenley grade to Deep Spring, there is an average of about fourteen inches reported, with deep but not impassable drifts in places.

Gone to Work.

W. B. Daugherty, County Clerk elect, after trying his hand temporarily at the newspaper business, began his official duties this week as Mr. Hammarstrand's deputy. Mr. Daugherty has had a great deal of experience in clerical duties, and as soon as he obtains a little experience in the official routine, will be a most efficient officer. He will not be duly installed as Clerk in full until March, when the general installation takes place.

Soap for the Million.

Elsewhere will be found the advertisement of a peculiar kind of soap said to be a great deal cheaper than dirt, and just the thing needed in every well regulated family. We can't say from personal knowledge that we know this "Rock Soap" to be superior to all others, but at the same time, it comes so well recommended we are inclined to think it well worth the trial by everyone who wants to be decent.

The Killing at Cerro Gordo.

We have heard quite different versions of the late double homicide at Cerro Gordo, and it is a matter of more than common difficulty to get at the facts in full. We think, however, the story as told by our Cerro Gordo correspondent, as full and reliable as any thing we are likely ever to have of the remarkable and most unfortunate affair, and to that account we refer our readers.

Business Change.

Something of a change in the firm of J. S. Rothschild & Co., has taken place or is pending. Theodore Rothschild, nephew to the senior member, quits with the view of going into business on his own account, at some point in the valley. Mr. Ibe &c. we are told is likely to become sole owner, and in that event, there is bound always to be a rush of custom at the old stand.

The Grand Jurors.

Following is a list of the Grand Jurors: Henry Giles, J. Vagt, J. B. Steward, S. G. Gregg, H. N. Tibbetts, Z. F. Uhlemeyer, John Meyer, C. Cohn, E. Mallory, J. B. Chamberlain, James Peregrine, J. F. Hutchison, John Blair and Geo. Shedd, Foreman.

Cash for Somebody.

Holders of certain county warrants, more particularly described in Treasurer Isaacs' advertisement of "Warrants Payable," will confer a favor if they will present them for payment immediately.

From Sylvania.

T. F. A. Connelly, just in from Log Springs, informs us that Broder started up his furnace on the 4th instant, and though it had not been tapped prior to Mr. Connelly's departure, was running to perfect satisfaction, and no doubt whatever is entertained but it is a success. The mine, the Uncle Sam, has a body of ore seven or eight feet in width assaying 84 ounces silver and 76 per cent. lead, and its prospects are as encouraging as any one could desire. There are about 500 tons of this ore on the dump, and at the mine. A force of four men in the mine is considered ample to keep the furnace constantly supplied although it has a capacity of upwards of twenty tons per day. As buildings are incomplete, it is possible this stormy weather may cause some inconvenience, and possibly a temporary stoppage, everything being new. This, however, is a mere surmise. There ore has to be packed about one thousand yards and then conveyed two and a half miles in wagons to the furnace. Mr. Connelly says of this mine and furnace that he never saw a better prospect.

Some Growling.

There was no little dissatisfaction expressed by Grand Jurymen because they were kept waiting here several days for the appearance of witnesses, who, but for an alleged oversight on the part of District Attorney Snelling, should have been here the first day, as it was known two weeks ago, when the venire was drawn, tnat these particular witnesses would be required, and the District Attorney then said he would see that they were here. It seems, though, he forgot it, and on that account, the jury had to stay so much longer than would otherwise have been necessary. They did think seriously of adjourning sine die, the first day and not wait for these witnesses, there being no other business requiring a longer session.

Land Patents Received.

The following patents for agricultural lands have been recently received at the Independence Land Office, and will be delivered to the parties named on delivery of their respective duplicate receipts, viz: Jacob A. C. Gunter, Louis Sammann, J. W. Clausen, Peter Bennett, Joseph Rowan, Bernard McGill, William Arcularius, Benjamin Weaver and Henry Seeker. We understand there are a number of similar patents yet remaining uncalled for in the office notwithstanding they have been already published. As the title to Government land is not, nor cannot be complete without the patent, the owners of these patents commit an error in not getting them in their own possession at the earliest moment.

Assessment Levied.

As we hold the responsible position of Secretary of the Inyo County Jockey Club, also Treasurer in the absence of Mr. Isaacs, we would call the attention of the members to the fact that there remains $55 to be raised by the Club which will be liquidated by an assessment of $2 50 per member. This is a very low assessment when the fact is considered that President Wright donated $50 toward making up the purses and the printers have deducted 30 per cent of their bill—the only expenses allowed.

Taxes.

Before the expiration of the last day of grace, and pretty much all at once, Sheriff Moore received $34,867 64 taxes The total due, exactly stated, was $45,750 90; deducting the above amount paid, this leaves a delinquency of $10,883 26, full one-third of which, it is anticipated, will be paid in before advertised for sale, two weeks hence. Should this anticipation be realized the delinquent list will be that much smaller but better than we surmised last week.

New Goods.

Harris & Rhine are now receiving the largest pile of new goods, all descriptions, we have seen these many days. Their commodious store room is fairly crowded with cases etc, and a force of clerks is kept constantly employed. For variety their stock is sort of a commercial encyclopedia.

Mails Delayed.

The stage men north seem to be having a time of it on account of the storm. No mails from that direction north of Benton have reached us since Tuesday or Wednesday. The snow is or was about a foot deep at Benton.

The Bishop Creek Hotel.

Elsewhere will be found J. B. Swearingen's advertisement of the Bishop Greek Hotel, the which he has just got in good running order, and we are told, is conducting it in a manner to give the highest satisfaction.

Racing at Bishop.

New Year's they had had some extensive quarter-racing at Bishop. For the principal race, $40 purse, there were six entries, though but three ran. These were Lightning Bug, Monte and Croppy, Monte taking the race and money.

The Bishop School.

This school, S. W. Blaisdel, teacher, boasts of sixty pupils. Mr. Blaisdel is giving the best satisfaction in his teaching and management of so large a number.

Pay Up.

Ye, who are concerned, note what "Uncle Abe," under the head of "Notice" with three astonishers, has to say on the above topic

---

—The project to form a new county from portions of Placer and Nevada has been abandoned, and an attempt will be made, during the present session of the Legislature, to attach Truckee and vicinity to Placer county.

—Mr. Spurgeon had symptoms of gout while at Marseilles, and could not move for some days, but is much better, and is able to proceed on his journey.

Matrimonial.

The event of the week was the nuptial ceremonies, through which County Treasurer Henry Isaacs became a Benedict (and a better man of course) and Miss Amalie Heissmann gave up the latter name for the much easier written one of Isaacs. It is nothing unusual for folks, in this section, to get married, now days, but it is unusual for them to require a double ceremony, one ecclesiastical, the other civil, as in this case. But, without stopping to consider the question yet mooted in the highest Courts of England, and not long since of the United States whether or not it requires a civil marriage to legalize a purely ecclesiastical one, we will explain as briefly as may be about

HARRY'S TAKING OFF.

At 6 P. M. of the 4th a select few gathered at the house of Jos. Harris, the bride's residence, to witness the ceremony performed according to the most ancient or orthodox Hebrew rites. Arriving at the appointed time we found the bride arrayed in magnificent bridal costume, looking as fine as brides ever look, and the aforesaid bridegroom so happy he seemed as if he never had, or ever expected to have a care—which is the ultima thule of human happiness. The marriage contract, written, signed and witnessed in Hebrew, was a puzzle to all of us unclassical people. Pursuant to church requirements all present were requested to remain with heads covered during the ceremony, and right then was when a shocking bad hat looked uglier than ever to its owner. The first of the ceremony took place in a room separate from the secular portion of the small gathering. This, which was apparently nothing more than the intoning of a lengthy address in Hebrew by soon ended. The door opened and preceeded by the Rabbi, first came the bridegroom, next the bride, followed by nearest of kin, the principals taking their places under a small canopy upheld upon wands by four gentlemen. The bride was then directed by the Rabbi to pass once entirely around the bridegroom, a ceremony she performed most gracefully. Then the Rabbi, reading from a book, intoned (or sung something in the Quaker style of preaching), a page or more of Hebrew, after which, the pair were required to take wine from the same glass, beginning with the groom Then came another page or so of Hebrew in the same style of delivery, after which the nearest of kin respectively handed each candidate a glass of wine. Then followed another reading, wherein, even to our unlettered ear, it was easy to distinguish the frequent repetitions of the same words or phrase, but just what we will not undertake to say. This through, the Rabbi placed a glass or goblet on the floor, commanding the groom to break it which, with his foot, he did as if educated in the business of smashing bottles and things. That ended the ceremony, the Rabbi informing the happy couple that now, henceforth and forever, according to the law of the Prophets and the Hebrew rites they were flesh of one flesh, and bone of one bone—in short that they were whereupon everybody congratulated them most heartily. These ceremonies required about ten minutes time.

RABBI J. S. ROTHSCHILD

MR. AND MRS. HARRY ISAACS,

THE CIVIL CONTRACT CEREMONIES.

But the ordeal wasn't quite ended yet. Everybody and his wife and their pretty sister-in-laws were invited to a wedding to take place on the Masonic Hall at 8, these being the parties. This was to be in accordance with the limited partnership ceremonies of the civil law. At the appointed time quite a concourse gathered in the beautiful Lodge room, and a good many more would have been there except for dilatoriness or deceptive time pieces. With the junior of this establishment and Miss Emily Flowers as the Right and Left Hand Supporters, Mr. and Mrs Isaacs stood up to be married some more. The ceremony as per the civil statute was performed very creditably by His Honor, J. A. Hannah, of the County Court, after which came the warm congratulations of a host of friends. The writer hereof being married, and consequently having but very little fear of unmarried ladies, has no hesitation in saying that the best of them may feel proud, if when they stand up to be married themselves (a danger that threatens all of them sooner or later) they can appear as gracefully handsome and as tastefully arrayed as the bride of this occasion. As the groom, viewed from an outside stand point, is always considered pretty much of a nobody at such times, it is enough to say that Henry M. looked well and was certainly as radiantly happy as any one could wish. Immediately after the close of His Honor's address, the bridegroom rose to saying in effect "that being unexpectedly called upon and totally unprepared to deliver an address upon this momentous, all important and ever-to-be-remembered occasion—that never having been married but once before, and that only two hours ago, in his life—that, being totally uncalled upon, and unexpectedly prepared to address a delivery upon this—that, in short, in the name of Mrs. H. M. Isaacs, and in behalf of her unsophisticated better half—he would say with the greatest diffidence, that a collation, and he hoped an abundance was prepared for all, and that dancing and a good time, without ceremoneous restraint was the order of the evening." In honest truth, though we must say it is likely that report is for Henry made a very neat little speech of welcome, in effect, that dancing in the lower hall, and the collation was subject to the will and pleasure of all present, to come and go, and enjoy at their own pleasure and convenience. And here we will remark this cordial speech and spirit and consequent freedom from undue ceremoneous restraint made the subsequent events of the evening the most highly enjoyed and yet perfectly decorous of any we have yet witnessed. It is almost superfluous to say that H. M. Isaacs and his fair bride are universally popular, and that their friends were there in force from far and near. The only drawback to the full enjoyment of the dance was the crowded state of the hall. However, we don't know that that was a draw back for a most joyous spirit pervaded the entire assembly. Coffee, champagne and a most was there in profusion and partaken of without the restraints of the grand supper style, upon which it was an innovation that tended no little to the general enjoyment.

A POINT OF ORDER,

SLIGHTLY MIXED,

Austin.

Austin, Nevada, is a town of 2,000 inhabitants. It is mainly kept up by the Manhattan Company. This Company employ 350 men, and disburse about $90,000 per month, while the yield from their ore brings them in $125,000 per month.

The Religious Card-Player.

A private soldier by the name of Richard Lee, was taken before the magistrate of Glasgow for playing cards during divine service. The account is thus given in The English Journal:

Sergeant commanded the soldiers at the church, and when the parson had read the prayers he took the text. Those who had a bible took it out; but this soldier had neither Bible nor Common Prayer Book but pulling out a pack of cards he spread them before him. He first looked at one card, then another. The sergeant of the company saw him and said:

"Richard, put up the cards; this is no place for them."

"Never mind that," said Richard.

When the services were over, the constable took Richard a prisoner and brought him before the mayor.

"Well," said the mayor, "what have you brought the soldier here for?"

"For playing cards in the church."

"Well, soldier, what have you to say for yourself?"

"Much, sir, I hope."

"Very good, if not I will punish you severely."

"I have been," said the soldier, "about six weeks on the march. I have neither bible nor common prayer book. I have nothing but a pack of cards, and I hope to satisfy your worship of the purity of my intention."

Then spreading the cards before the Mayor, he began with the ace:

"When I see the ace it reminds me that there is but one God."

"When I see the deuce, it reminds me of Father and Son."

"When I see the tray, it reminds me of Father, Son and Holy Ghost."

"When I see the four it reminds me of the four Evangelists that preached—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John."

"When I see the five, it reminds me of the five virgins that trimmed their lamps. There were ten but five were wise and five were foolish and were shut out."

"When I see the six, it reminds me that in six days the Lord made heaven and earth."

"When I see the seven, it reminds me that on the seventh day God rested from the great work which he made and hallowed it."

"When I see the eight, it reminds me of the eight righteous persons that were saved when God destroyed the world, viz: Noah and his wife, his three sons and their wives."

"When I see the nine, it reminds me of nine lepers that were cleansed by our Savior. There were nine out of ten who never returned thanks."

"When I see the ten, it reminds me of the Ten Commandments which God handed down to Moses on the tablets of stone."

"When I see the king, it reminds me of the great King of Heaven, which is God Almighty."

"When I see the queen, it reminds me of the Queen of Sheba, who visited Solomon, for she was as wise a woman as he was a man. She brought with her fifty boys and fifty girls, all dressed in boys apparel, for King Solomon to tell which were boys and which were girls. The King sent for water for them to wash. The girls washed to the elbows and the boys to the wrists; so King Solomon told by that."

"Well," said the Mayor, "you have described every card in the pack except one."

"What is that?"

"The knave," said the Mayor.

"I will give your honor a description of that, too, if you will not be angry."

"I will not," said the Mayor, "if you do not term me to be the knave."

"The greatest knave that I know of is the constable who brought me here."

"I do not know," said the Mayor, "if he is the greatest knave, but I know he is the greatest fool."

"When I count how many spots there are in a pack of cards, I find three hundred and sixty five, as many days as there are in a year."

"When I count the number of cards in a pack I find fifty-two—the number of weeks in a year."

"I find there are twelve picture cards in a pack representing the number of months in a year, and on counting the tricks I find thirteen—the number of weeks in a quarter."

"So you see, a pack of cards serves for a Bible, Almanac and Common Prayer Book."

A Narrow Escape.

A Detroiter got home at midnight the other night with a black eye and a boozy step, and as his wife met him at the head of the stairs she exclaimed:

"Why, you've been fighting!"

"Yes'm," he meekly replied, as he leaned on the rail.

"And some one has blacked one of your eyes!" she continued, as the tears came.

"Don't cry, zharling," he said, in a coaxing voice, as he put his hand on her head; "fi hadn't had a chance to run, he'd have blacked both of 'em."—[Detroit Free Press.

—The maddest man in Wisconsin is John Leigh, of Oconto. He was a candidate for member of the assembly and being a concientious man, voted for his opponent, who was elected by just one majority.

—Dr. Holland says: "Sixty thousand Americans annually lie down in a drunkard's grave. It were better to bring into the field and shoot down sixty thousand of our young men every year, than to go through all the process of disease, degradation, crime, and despair through which they inevitably pass."

—A. M. Rainwater was a witness in the St. Louis whiskey cases. The Chicago Times affects to have a cold in the head when it says they "got damp poor satisfaction out of him."

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG,

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge.

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3.00 a year; Single Numbers, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4.00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7.00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10.00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3.20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

"WORDS AND THEIR USES."

BY A MYSTIFIED QUAKER.

Respected wife:—From these few lines my whereabouts thee'll learn--
Moreover, I impart to thee my serious concern:
The language of this people is a riddle unto me,
And words, with them, are figments of a reckless mockery.

For instance—As I left the cars, an imp with smutty face,
Said "Shine?" "Nay, I'll not shine," I said, "except with inward grace!"
"Is 'inward grace' a liquid or a paste?" asked this young Turk;
"Hi Daddy! What is inward grace? How does the old thing work?"

"Friend," said I to a Jehu, whose breath suggested gin,
"Can thee convey me straightway to a reputable inn?"
His answer's gross irrevalence I shall not soon forget—
Instead of simply yea or nay, he gruffly said "You bet!"

"Nay, nay, I shall not bet," said I, "for that would be a sin—
Why don't thee answer plainly: Can thee take me to an inn?
The vehicle is doubtless to carry folks about in—
Then why prevaricate?" said he perversely, "Now yer shoutin'!"

"Nay, verily, I shouted not!" quoth I, "my speech is mild;
But thine—I grieve to say it—with falsehood is defiled,
Thee ought ta be admonished to rid thy heart of guile."
"See here! my lively moke," said he, "you sling on too much style!"

"I've had these plain drab garments twenty years or more, said I,
"And when thee says I 'sling on style,' thee tells a willful lie!"
At this he pranced around as if "a bee were in his bonnet,"
And, with hostile demonstrations, inquired if I was "on it?"

"On what? Till thee explains thyself, I cannot tell," I said.
He swore that something was "too thin;" moreover it was "played!"
But all his jargon was surpassed, in wild absurdity,
By threats, profanely emphasized, "to put a head on me!"

"No son of Belial," said I, "that miracle can do!"
Whereat he fell upon me with blows and curses too,
But failed to work that miracle—if such was his design—
Instead of putting on a head, he strove to smite off mine!

Thee knows I cultivate the peaceful habit of our sect,
But this man's conduct wrought on me a singular effect;
For when he slapped my broad-brim off, and asked, "How's that for high?"
It roused the Adam in me, and I smote him hip and thigh!

The throng then gave a specimen of calumny broke loose,
And said I'd "snatched him bald-headed," and likewise "cooked his goose;"
Although I solemnly affirm, I did not pull his hair,
Nor did I cook his poultry—for he had no poultry there!

They called me "Bully boy!" although I've seen nigh three-score year;
They said that I was "lightning" when I "got up on my ear!"
And when I asked if lightning climbed its ear or dressed in drab,
"You know how 'tis yourself!" said one inconsequential blab!

Thee can conceive that, by this time, I was somewhat perplexed;
Yea, the placid spirit in me has seldom been so vexed;
I tarried there no longer, for plain-spoken men—like me—
With such perverters of our tongue, can have no unity.

Jones and Gould.

While in San Francisco recently we received information which we regard as reliable, that Senator Jones and Jay Gould have clasped hand across the chasm between Southern California and Utah, and are quietly operating together to secure the construction of a transcontinental road which will give the Union Pacific an outlet to tide water in Southern California. The construction of the Los Angeles & Independence Railroad with Santa Monica for the sea-port terminus will form the western portion of this new line of railroad, and we are satisfied, from what we learned while in San Francisco that Senator Jones will soon have money, taken from his own mines, to resume the work of constructing the road now built from Santa Monica to Los Angeles and will push on to San Bernadino, the cost of building the road being paid by Senator Jones out of his own resources, as fast as it is built. There is not a dollar of indebtedness on the road from Santa Monica to Los Angeles, now completed and in operation. We are also informed that Jay Gould has purchased a controlling interest in the Southern Utah Railroad, and will push that road on to completion, meeting Senator Jones on his way to Independence.—[Santa Barbara Press.

"Great Cæsar!"

The coming theatrical sensation in New York is the production of Shakespeare's "Julius Cæsar" at Booth's Theatre. For over a year the preparations have been going on. Three hundred supernumeraries, each over six feet in hight, have been engaged to do the Roman populace. The New York World says:

So far as we are enabled to judge of the preparations already made, the presentation will be far more elaborate and showy than any that preceded it. A score of artists have been for months ransacting historical and archæological authorities for designs. Here are hundreds of beautifully drawn and carefully colored water-color pictures of every costume, trophy, banner, group and architectural adjunct. Plutarch has been conned over for weeks. The commentators have been exhausted. The celebrated historical paintings in Europe have been photographed, for it is no longer sufficient to present a Shakeperian revival a beautiful picture, it must be an accurate one. Every toga, peplum, vest, sandal, weapon and piece of armor must be the thing itself. A play once meant an illusion in which the likeness of things was presented. A revival means a rehabilitation of the things themselves. Some idea of the expense of this is gained when it is seen that Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer have to equip three companies of Roman soldiers for a three months' campaign. They undertake to renew for us Brutus' garden, the Forum, the sports of the Lupercal and the cremation scenes, just as they actually appeared to the Romans. They actually challenge the commentators, students and critics to come and detect, if they can, where reality ends and illusion begins. It is interesting to observe that accurate models of all the scenes have been made with every person represented thereon. These models are set up for us on a table, and we perceive at once what a prodigious amount of search and labor has been undertaken to reproduce with such nicety in an objective form all the minutiæ of Roman life. When the scene is set there is nothing left for the imagination. The senses are all sufficient. There can be no sort of doubt that whatever may be the case with acting, scenic art has reached a perfection in our day never dreamed of by our predecessors. The astonishment of the Romans themselves, whose stage never got beyond its sipaveum, its frowsy auleum, its pro and post sceniums, unlit and unmoved, would be great at the mere effect of artificial sunlight upon our mimic boards. The use of oxygen light is in itself equivalent to a revolution in scenic illusion. Not less amazed would be the wits of the last century, who so lashed the managers of of Drury Lane for their elaborate pictures, to see the curtain rise upon the set pieces of our time, which have taken months to paint and have cost thousands of dollars. This one scene of the cremation, as it is called, occupies the whole stage, and not only employs 350 people, but represents 50,000. The Roman populace is seen swarming the streets in the background, and it is a stage manager's trick to prevent the spectator from drawing the line between the real and the painted personages. A similar ensemble is attempted in the first act, which represents the procession of Cæsar on its way to the sports of the Lupercal. Probably nothing in history affords so splendid an opportunity for the artist, the drillmaster and the manager as this event, and the attempt, as we see by the models, has been made to reproduce the streets life, thus pompous royality and the picturesqueness of this old story.

An Encounter at Washington.

Private letters received in this city report that a fearful encounter of words and ink has taken place between the Secretary of the Treasury at Washington and Senator Sargent. The discussion, it is said, grew heated over crooked whisky--not crooked whisky upon the great round table in the Secrtary's office, but of crooked whisky proceedings in St. Louis, Chicago and San Francisco. The Secretary of the Treasury of the United States hinted at a whisky ring upon the Pacific coast, and even went so far as to hint that it was under the protection of the Senator of California. Then up rose Aaron, and by the great gods he swore that there was no whisky ring upon the whole Pacific shore, and at the head of the greenback Secretary threw great black oaths and an ink pot of Department blue. The oaths missed the chief, but the ink saturated the Cabinet Minister and made necessary the immediate surgical aid of clerks armed with blotting paper. When the great reformer was fairly restored to his good temper and his cleanly condition he apologized to the Senator for his language, and amicable relations were at once restored. We are glad to know that Secretary Bristow is not to be blotted out of existance, and we are glad to be assured, upon so high authority as Senator Sargent, that there is no whisky ring in California.—[San Francisco Chronicle, Jan 6.

—About these times the sentimental maiden wanders forth to gather the golden leaves. As she picks them up one by one she soliloquizes: "Oh! falling leaves, he that passeth may read a lesson in your falling. You are typical of human life. Your mission accomplished, the cold hand of--wo-o-o-o! that big dead caterpiller--wowch!"

Clerical Blunders.

An instance of clerical absent-mindedness which we know to be true is as follows: An Irish minister was invited to baptize a friend's child, which he did, omitting altogether, however, to place any water upon its head. The parent took the bowl and presented it to the minister, but he declined it. Thereupon the father took the water a second time, and insisted upon his taking it. The bewildered clergyman held the bowl for a moment, and then said: "I had a glass of water before I came into church, but, so long as you insist on my drinking this, I will do it, though I assure you I am not at all thirsty." And he actually drank the water from the baptismal bowl!

Ignorance of the true situation is another cause of professional mistakes. It is a safe rule in traveling to expect everybody to do as other people do, and to take nothing for granted until first we find out definitely the simple facts of the case for ourselves. And there are good rules in other matters. Some time ago, in a large Roman Catholic church, a funeral was appointed to be held at one o'clock. It was a grave-digger and assistant sexton, who had fallen into drinking habits, who was to be buried. The priest who was to conduct this particular funeral was half an hour late, and, on arriving at the church and seeing the funeral procession waiting for him, he went on at once with the service. As there were supposed to be many of the old grave-digger's friend's present, the priest thought it a good opportunity to speak kindly of the deceased, and point a moral from his sad ending. So he begon as follows:

"This man, my friends, whom we are about to bury, though addicted to a great and common vice, was in every other respect a true man."

"Father Melaylee," whispered an Irishman, "let me spake a word to ye's."

"No," replied the priest, "I will not be interrupted. I know this poor man's faults before me, but he was a true man in spite of his failing."

"O, Father Melaylee," groaned out two of the pall-bearers, "just listen to us; please, Father Melaylee, only a word, your riverence!"

"No," said the indignant priest, "I will not yield for one moment. As I was saying, this poor man before me was a—"

"Father Melaylee," cried out the irrepressible mourner, "the t'other priest has buried the grave-digger half an hour ago; this one's a woman we're burying, sure, and it's Tim Lannigan's wife we've got here!"

The last experience mentioned was that of a clergyman at his first baptism of infants. He was then very young in years, and had never before held a baby that he could remember of, much less hold a baby and a book in the presence of a church full of people. The first infant given into his arms was a big, squirming boy of thirteen months, who immediately began to corkscrew his way through clothes and wrappings. The minister held on bravely, but in a few moments the child's face disappeared in the wraps, and his dangling legs beneath were worming their way to the floor. Seized with the horrible impression that the child was tunneling his way through his clothes, and would soon be on the floor in a state of nature, he clutched the clothes violently by the sash-band, and, straddling the child upon the chancel-rail, said to the mother, "If you don't hold that baby he will certainly be through his clothes, and I shall have nothing left but the dress to baptize."

The sheerest case of incompetence in the matter of linguistic examination that could happen before a board was the following:

A converted German Jew was seeking admission to the ministry of a Protestant church, and was examined in Hebrew by a trio of clergymen who had forgotten their seminary days, and with them their little stock of the Oriental languages. They had come to the same conclusion the poet had in mind when he said that

"....Hebrew roots are found
To flourish best in barren ground."

One of the examiners asked the candidate to read the sixth psalm.

Being something of a wag, the whilom Jew recited very rapidly in the Hebrew the supposed portion.

"That is very correct," said one of the examiners, "that will do for the Hebrew."

"Nonsense!" answered the Jew; "I have been repeating the one hundred and thirty-sixth psalm, and none of you knew it."

A Great Mother to a Great Son.

The mother of John Quincy Adams said, in a letter to him, when he was only twelve: "I would rather see you laid in your grave than grow up a profane and graceless boy."

Not long before his death a gentleman said to him: "I have found out who made you."

"What do you mean?" asked Mr. Adams.

The gentleman replied: "I have been reading the published letters of your mother."

"If," this gentleman relates, "I had spoken that dear name to some little boy who had been for weeks away from his mother, his eyes could not have flashed more brightly, nor his face glowed more quickly, than did the eyes of that venerable old man when I pronounced the name of his mother. He stood up in his peculiar manner and said:"

"Yes, sir; all that is good in me I owe to my mother."

Important Land Decision.

A decision important to settlers on public lands was recently made by the Secretary of the Interior. It lays down the rule that a mortgage unsatisfied at the date of proof and entry defeats a pre-emption claim. This means that if John Doe settles on a tract of land, makes his declaratory statement, improves it with a view to making it his home, and finally proves up his claim and purchases the land, he must be sure that any mortgage he may have given on the premises is fully satisfied before he makes such final proof and payment, or else his title will prove worthless and he will be at the mercy of any rival settler or speculator who may detect his ignorance of the law. In making this decision the Secretary reverses the ruling of the Commissioner of the General Land Office. It is probable, therefore, that the question has been given close attention. Pre-emptors will do well to make a note of this ruling.

Double Suicide.

A remarkable double suicide was committed a couple of weeks since in Los Angeles. The parties were Edward Foster and Celia O'Toole, the latter having a husband living. She, however, became infatuated with Foster and on the day previous to the suicide married him. Fear of consequences from the bigamous act seems to have affected both of them so much they saw no escape in life and resolved to take their own lives, which they did with a coolness of preparation as to constitute the deed a most remarkable one. Foster, who had nothing from the law to fear on his own account, resolved to die for her he loved, and she, rather than live disgraced. Going to a somewhat retired place in the open fields, they each took a dose of poison, and died locked in each others arms. Foster left one thousand dollars to defray expenses of their funeral.

Vick's Floral Guide.

The first number for 1876 of James Vick's Floral Guide, came to hand some little time since. Typographically it is second to no publication we have ever seen. There is, in this number, one chromo flower page that is a marvel of beauty, and well worth framing. The book itself is one every horticulturist, every lover of flowers ought to have. It only costs 25 cents a number. James Vick, publisher, Rochester, N. Y.

Captain Sawyer.

Captain Sawyer, of the ship Orpheus which ran down the Pacific and was cast away herself the next day, is now undergoing trial in San Francisco on the charge of wilfully wrecking his ship. He was arrested at Los Angeles while on his way to New York. When such a charge as the above is sustained the penalty is death. As far as the trial yet shows the case looks pretty black for the Captain.

A "Horrid Description."

The Sacramento Weely Union in speaking of the arrival at New York of the steamship Salier, from Bremerhaven says "a passenger gives a most horrid description of that Thompson explosion." We read carefully what the passenger had to say about it, and while the scene he describes was horrible enough, we don't see that his description was so very horrid after all.

Some Relief.

As the bill to give delinquent tax payers twelve, instead of but six months in which to redeem property sold for taxes, passed the Senate before the Holiday adjournment it is quite likely it will also pass the House and the Governor.

—The Wyoming legislators are fighting over a bill for the repeal of the Woman Sufrage Act.

—The Eureka Vigilantes are still serving notices on persons who are deemed undesirable residents. The Sentinel protests, and says the laws are equal to the protection of the community from such persons.

CONCERNING A HIGH SCHOOL.

There is one proposition to which we would again call the attention of every person in Inyo county feeling an interest in there own and its future welfare, from an educational stand point. That is, that some steps ought to be taken during the present session of the Legislature to organize a high school for Inyo county. The arguments in favor of such an undertaking are numerous, and of such a character as to need no frequent presentation to impress their importance upon every citizen having a desire for the permanent welfare of the county. There are but two points under this head upon which we shall touch at this time. The first of these is, that, at this time there are say two hundred children in this county just now attaining an age to need better facilities for obtaining a good English education than that afforded by the public schools, the only kind we yet have. To obtain these advantages such children have to be sent away hundreds of miles to schools not a whit better in any respect than could be had right at home, or within easy reach of home, wherever it may be in the county. This involves an expense too great to be met by many parents, and consequently their children must pass through life in comparative ignorance, to their own sorrow as well as that of their parents. The next point is that the few who have the means, and are now sending their children to advanced schools elsewhere, do so at an aggregate expense of not less than $8,000 per annum, every cent of which is that much cash capital utterly lost to the general property interests of this county. In the nature of the case as may be inferred from the increased number of children who now, or will soon require such advantages, it is not unreasonable to anticipate that enough parents will manage some way or other to send their children off, involving an additional aggregate outlay which in a year or two more will amount to perhaps $24,000, or three times what it does now, all of which is an utter loss to the financial interests of this county. If the people of this county will but consider this matter a few moments, and make a little exertion nearly the whole of this large sum can be saved, while a still larger number of children can enjoy advantages now entirely beyond the reach of all but a favored few.

There is no incorporated town in this county, therefore no move of the kind now to be proposed can be accomplished except by the county as a whole. One plan, simply stated, is this: To petition the Legislature to authorize Inyo county to issue and sell $10,000 of 20-year, 7 per cent. bonds, the proceeds to be applied in building and fitting up with proper apparatus an academy or high school. The school, wherever it may be located, is to be under the control of a Board of Trustees, to be elected from different portions of the county precisely as county Supervisors now are, except that the number should be slightly increased. After the buildings, including a boarding house, are built as can be done with this sum, the matter of maintenance is next to be provided for. First, there will be the sum of $700 per annum interest on the bonds, not one of which is to be paid off until maturity; secondly, comes about $2,000 for salaries of a competent teacher and assistant, which, for some years to come, will be sufficient, and for incidentals not otherwise provided for. Toward this sum of $2,700 annual expense it is proposed to appropriate the $500 public money of the district where this school is located, the pupils of the public school to have the privilege, under proper restrictions, of the high school. That part of the plan might be made to do for a few years, if not permanently. This would leave a sum of say $2,200 yearly to be guaranteed by the county, for perhaps five years, possibly longer. Should the school be so managed as to become popular there is no good reason why it should not become entirely self-sustaining after two or three years at the most. Scores of such schools are now being run elsewhere in this State as private enterprises and as such, are paying institutions, and there is no reason in the world that we can see why, once started, such would not be the case here. It is only a question of management. But assuming that it would not be self-sustaining and that $2,200 a year would have to be raised by the county, we have that as the total of expense to be paid by this generation to give all the children of this county a chance to obtain a good education, and to step, without an intermediate, directly into the State University, and at the same time, save to the county from $8,000 to perhaps $24,000 every year in sums which otherwise are certain to be paid to outside schools. The whole expense of maintaining such a school here, any where in this county, interest on bonds included would not exceed a tax of five cents on the hundred dollars. The final payment of the bonds would fall upon the generation for whom the debt is made.

We are satisfied that, save on the possible score of local jealousy, there is scarce a parent or business man in this county but would willingly incur this slight additional expense if assured of the advantages of a good high school at home. Now, while we believe that this particular locality would be generally as advantageous as any for the location of such a school, we wish it distinctly understood that our leading business men will agree to take these bonds at their par value, and to otherwise do all they consistently can to assist in building up such a school whether located in this place or near it, or at any other point from Lone Pine to Bishop Creek. Just how that question might be settled in advance is more than we can undertake to advise at this time, but the main point above stated can be relied upon.

If some of our lawyer friends will draw up a suitable bill we would be glad to print it free for general circulation and as a petition to the Legislature, if after such circulation and consideration a majority of our citizens saw proper to sign it.

REDUCTION OF THE ARMY.

The proposition of certain Congressmen to materially reduce the army, and thereby an immense outlay, is eliciting a good deal of newspaper discussion. The Democratic papers in the thickly settled East are pretty unanimons in their support of the Democratic House in this effort at retrenchment and bid for popular favor, but those of the outlying territority, even of the same party proclivities, are about as unanimously opposed. They conclude, sensibly enough, that if our already insignificant army as regards numbers, is to be any further reduced in efficient strength, it might just as well be done away with altogether, and the business of maintaining peace with opposing forces of all sorts, and of protecting border settlements be undertaken on the Quaker plan. If the representative army of 40,000,000 of people, covering an area of nearly 2,500,000 square miles, has to be so reduced as to present any less of restraining strength than it now does upon savage enemies and border ruffians of various kinds requirng restraint, all the way around west from the eastern side of Dakota through Montana, Idaho, Washington, the whole of the Pacific States, Arizona, and New Mexico to Texas, then such a pretense had better be withdrawn in toto, and instead give us a few smooth faced, oily tongued villainous agents who can say, "don't, please, there's a good Injun," with such unction poor Lo won't have the heart to scalp anybody, particularly when they behave with proper humility. But suppose they should clean out a border settlement now and then, notwithstanding the soft words and blankets and such of the agents, what are the lives of a few settlers to government economy, especially just prior to a Presidential election? These territorial chawbacons don't have a Presidential vote no how.

Seriously, though, if the army must be rednced, or rather, its cost, it should not be the rank and file. If, as an exchange remarks, the Lower House of Congress and the howlists want to economise (and there is need of it), they can make a saving of some $400,000 a year, and still leave the army proper intact. This would be by dispensing with about fifty per cent. of the laundresses and all the military bands but one or two, to say nothing of quite a number of supernumerary officers, particularly of the higher ranks. However, we need not bother much about it. If the Lower House passes the bill reducing the army one-fifth, as proposed, without obvious reason other than as a bid for votes, it is very likely it will fail in the Senate, a probability these economists count on.

It is said the only real, earnest advocates, outside of Congress, for the reduction are the Indian agents, contractors and other thieves connected with them. They fear and with good reason that if the army is not rendered incapable by reduction of taking active control of Indian affairs, that department will be assigned to the military, and the thieves will lose their occupation—and thereby the Government would effect a saving about eqnal to that expected from this army reduction.

Will Demonstrate.

Enropean dispatches say that the Roman Catholics of Germany have resolved to make a grand public demonstration on the 3d of February, in celebration of the end of Archbishop Ledochowski's term of imprisonment. It is further reported that deputations from the Reichstag and the Landtag will wait upon him and tender their congratulations. The Archbishop still maintains an attitude of contumacy toward the civil power, and refuses to acknowledge the jurisdictiun of the new Ecclesiastical Court.

A SAD CASE.

The Victim of a Foul Slander Dies Heartbroken.

The Sacramento Bee of Jan. 5 announces the death of Minnie Conlan, aged 21 years, who was the victim some months since of a scandal which was afterward conclusively proved to be a malicious fabrication, and comments on the occurence as follows:

Take all in all, this is the saddest case we have ever known. A foul breath blown on the fame of a tender girl, and wafted from ear to ear, until it becomes a pestiferous cloud enveloping all her hopes and drawing out her life. The young heart withered beneath the calumny; the fruit was destroyed at the root of the tree and could only pine upon the branch and fade into nothingness. And yet, before this fatal blow came,

She flourished in a bright parterre.
A maiden rose in sweetness blooming,
Unconscious that a blight was there,
Unmindful of the tempest coming.

She never lifted her head or heart or hope after the blow decended. She was stunned and recovered not from the fatal wound. In her lonely room, hidden from public gaze, with only the comforts of her devoted mother and weeping sister and her own consciousness that she had been so foully wronged, she lived, wishing to die and daily preparing to deserve in the hereafter a portion of that happiness which was so cruelly denied her here. And the poor thing in talking of her death and burial, besought from her parents a promise that they would not permit her face to be looked upon by strangers after death, and that they would bury her quietly away from this city, so as to let her pass "beyond the river" unknown to earth. This pledge the sorely tried parents have kept, hence it was that the body, consumed by grief until there is only bone and sinew left, was taken to San Francisco for interment. She looked upon Sacramento as her Golgotha, where she was stung to death by slander, and desired only that she might be forever hidden away from this people. It is a sad, solemn lesson—one which every man who is a man should forever remember so that in all his life he may never again be guilty of the terrible crime of slandering innocence, or of repeating the insinuations of others against womankind; and the woman gossips of the day—the women who do not defend their sex in such cases, but are foremost in circulating the slander—should remember that they are, even more than the men, responsible for the evils that grow out of such calumnies.

The Popular Land Steal.

[From The Truckee Republican, Jan. 1.]

Truckee's future depends materially upon whether or not Truckee men control the timber tracts. The cute little dodge of laying soldiers' additional claims upon unoccupied lands, bids fair to make Eastern capitalists the owners of our magnificent forests. Every one acquainted with the various methods of stealing land now in vogue, emphatically declares this the grandest swindling scheme ever devised. Human ingenuity was exhausted when the law was formed which enables soldiers' claims to give title to land without prior occupation or improvement, and enables speculators to buy up the claims. If the poor "Boy in Union Blue" derived the benefit, we would say amen! welcome to the best timber lands in our midst. But when the soldier only gets a mere song for his claim, and the monopolists gobble up the land, we protest that it is an outrage. The corruption of legislators in this blessed Centennial period reaches a climax in this land law. Should these claims continue to be spread on lands as rapidly as they have been for the past three months, there will not be an acre of unoccupied land on the Pacific Coast in two years. Land-grabbers will have deeds in fee simple to the valuable tracts which ought to belong to the immigrant and the hard working farmer. This is not the only section that is being stolen bodily, and we call upon the papers of the Coast to denounce in unmeasured terms this wholesale land robbery.

Are Making a Mistake.

Our Democratic Legislature and also the Democratic government of San Francisco are certainly overdoing the thing in their sweeping efforts to give all their gaunt old Bourbons a chance at the public crib. It really seems as if they considered an enefficent, or even dishonest Bourbon Democrat, a better man for office than the most competent and worthy Republican or conservative Democrat. It looks as though not a man from Siskyiou to San Diego of either of the latter classes of politics, no matter what his worth, or how insignificent or non political his office, but has had or will have to "take a walk," provided it rests in the power or influence of the State or that city Legislature to compel it. It is all very fine and strictly orthordox according to the Marcy doctrine, but we'll bet a smooth quarter that but very few indeed of those now mighty men will ever have a chance to be so mighty again.

Remarkable Lake.

The Idaho Avalanche contains the following account of a remarkable lake: A short distance up the side of the mountain from Smith's Fork, in the southeast corner of Oneida county, Idaho, is a lake one and a half miles long by a mile wide, so densely inhabited by trout that they appear along the shores in one continuous school, many of them being scarred by others biting in their attempts to devour them. The lake has no outlet. This wondrous trout pond was shown to the whites a short time since by Shoshone Indians.

—At a recent dinner in the mountains of Spain given to Don Carlos, the principal toast, "Viva King Charles VII," was drunk standing. The "King" himself was drunk sitting.

Constitutional Convention.

Following is a special Sacramento telegram, dated January 6th, to the S. F. Chronicle:

Late this afternoon a joint convention or caucus of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees, was held to discuss the legality and advisability of recommending the calling of a Constitutional Convention. The following questions were submitted for debate:

First—At the recent election for members of the Legislature, held on the 1st of September, 1875, was there a sufficient number of votes cast in favor of calling a Convention to effect that object under section 2, article 10, of the Constitution, and the Act of the Legislature approved March 27, 1874, submitting that question to the people?

Second—Should an Act be passed by this Legislature calling a Convention to revise the Constitution, would such Act be a legal and Constitutional exercise of power?

Third—Would the Convention so called be a legal body, and would the Constitution framed by it, if ratified by the people, be the legitimate Constitution of the State?

The debate on these questions was very spirited, Senator Laine of Santa Clara opposing the calling of a Convention, and McConnel of Los Angeles favoring it. Laine held that the calling of a Convention would be legal under the provisions of the Constitution, but not legal under the Act passed by the last Legislature. On the first two propositions the final vote of the caucus stood 8 in favor and 12 against. As to the last proposition the vote was, strange to say, unanimous in the affirmative. The sentiment of the Legislature is in favor of the calling of a Convention, and if the question comes to an issue in that body it will surely pass. During the caucus meeting Creed Haymond took extensive notes. It is understood that he is holding himself in reserve, and will make a rattling argument in favor of calling the Convention when the matter comes up for debate. The question of the Convention hinges on the construction of the vote at the last election. Senator Farley of the Judiciary Committee is opposed to the Convention. The discussion by the caucus has excited considerable interest especially among the country members, who are very desirous of a revision of the organic laws.

The San Francisco delegates of the House held a meeting to-night and discussed the petition of the Inebriate Asylum, regarding a transfer of fines of the Police Court, and other minor matters of San Francisco legislation.

Death of James Anthony.

James Anthony, the senior and controlling spirit of the old Sacramento Union, died suddenly at his residence in San Francisco, January 6, aged within two days of 52 years. His remains were taken to Sacramento and laid beside those of his two sons, both of whom died just on the eve of reaching man's estate. Both Houses of the Legislature, to their credit be it said, adjourned on the day of his interment in respect to the memory of the great journalist, the man who above all others did more in the troublous days of the rebellion in opposing the disloyal policy of the majority of these very members than any other one man in the State. In those days James Anthony through The Union was a power in the land. It was he in reality that saved California from a threatened civil war; it was he who breathed the breath of life into the great Pacific railroad, and it was that same railroad which, as soon as it became vigorous enough, crushed the life out of James Anthony's paper in return. We truly believe The Sacramento Union was the most honest, powerful and best newspaper friend the people of this State and coast have ever had, and the man whose death is now announced was the chief in making it such, although others may have choosen its words, as he himself was not a writer.

Our California Plimsoll.

Our California Plimsoll [Senator Pullen], like his British prototype, is drawing to his aid a powerful popular sympathy and support in his raid against the "floating coffins" which year after year have been sent forth from San Francisco to encounter the winds and waves which they were so ill-fitted to battle with successfully. The Assembly Committee on Commerce and Navigation, upon which devolves the duty of inquiring into the condition of passenger-carrying vessels, will be expected to grapple resolutely with the subject and to report some definite and well considered measure. The people of the State are thoroughly aroused on this subject and they will not be satisfied unless something is done by the Legislature which shall promise protection against such disasters as the loss of the ill fated Pacific.—[S. F. Chronicle.

Mother Alta.

The Alta has entered upon the twenty-eighth year of its existence. It is the pioneer newspaper of the Pacific Coast, and maintains its position in the van of journalism.

Gaining Rapidly.

According to The Southern Californian the "town" of Ganfield has doubled its population all in the last year. A year ago it had two inhabitants; now it boasts of four.

—Stokes, the murderer of Jim Fisk, is likely to die before the expiration of his term at Sing Sing. He has yet about nine months to stay and his friends are trying to get Governor Tilden to pardon him out.

For Disunion.

The question is being seriously discussed as to holding a Pacific Coast Centennial at San Francisco. An appropriation of $50,000 from the Legislature for the purpose has been asked. If we are to have a National Centennial, a grand reunion, let us have it, and stop this foolishness of every State and county doing all it can to set up for itself, thereby to create disunion feelings. We haven't the least doubt it was a bona fide desire to create a disunion sentiment that originated this picayune centennial scheme at San Francisco. It is a glance ahead to the next Centennial, then to be by a Pacific Coast Confederacy, petty monarchy or something different than as now, a part and parcel of the Great Union.

Married His Niece.

Morris Schloss in 1836 married his niece, the laws of his church (Hebraic) permitting it, and he did not know that the laws of California prohibited it. Since learning it they have not cohabited, and he now brings suit in San Francisco to annul the co-partnership existing between them, for a division of their property, $20,000, and a receiver to be appointed.

MARRIED.

At the residence of J. L. Bourland, Bishop Creek, Inyo county, January 5, by Rev. L. Case, Geo. W. Rowan, of Benton, Mono county, to Miss Catharine P. Berger, of Bishop Creek.

We are going to get the above notice right and according to copy if it takes all Summer. The next time friend Rowan gets married we are going to see that he has proper credit in the announcement, or there will be a tolerably melancholy case of printer suicide to record.

At the Parsonage, Independence, January 14, by Rev. L. Case, James A. Frisbie to Miss Melissa A., daughter of Rev. James Lambert, of Bishop Creek.

DIED.

At Lone Pine, January 12, after a brief illness, the young son and only child of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Phillippay, aged one year, two and a half months.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Eclipse Clean Up.

After putting through 180 tons of average ore, the Eclipse mill made a general clean up, a few days since, and we are very much pleased to be able to say, with quite satisfactory results. As was perfectly well known in advance the ore is low grade, and consequently the margin for profits per ton could not be large. As an actual fact this clean up shows a clear profit of two dollars per ton, which, small though it is as compared to some mines, is yet the most promising and important mining success, mill process, that has yet been made in this county, perhaps without a single exception, although ores have been worked, each ton showing nearly as much profit as these 180 combined. But this success indicates what can, and sooner or later, will be done upon hundreds of our low grade mines which, otherwise, would remain untouched. The Messrs. Eudeys have, in this, demonstrated what judgment and economical management can do, and in doing it have accomplished more of real promise for Inyo mining interests than any others in this particular branch of mining that we know of. The working value of this ore was $10 per ton. We do not know the percentage of loss, but as this was the first run and necessary appliances by no means full or complete, it was doubtless somewhat larger than it need be hereafter. Instead of twenty stamps thirty will be put to work, and with everything as intended it is quite likely the same class of ore will be made to yield about double the profit it did this first run.

Not a Fair Beginning.

THE INDEPENDENT didn't make a very auspicious beginning for the Centennial year as regards accidents and errors for the first week. We have the satisfaction of knowing, though, that it wasn't whisky that caused a leading date line to pass unnoticed, thereby setting us back a year, nor that caused a galley of "live matter" at the last moment to be put hors du combat, if that foreign phrase fairly describes the situation, nor that caused the apparent marriage of an estimable young lady to the wrong man, or name rather—nothing of the sort, but it was caused, one of these things at least, by such an unusual press of work and demand upon mind and muscle as to materially interfere with that "ubiquitous over sight and second sight" always required to keep everything straight in a newspaper office. Josh Billings, or some bilk who tried to imitate him, once remarked that it was "impossible tew change the dait of a nusepaper after the outside was worked off," all of which is true enough, but such things are not past remedy, let us hope, or is it beyond remedy when the wrong name happens to get into a marriage notice, no matter if it did happen by the most inexcusible carelessness, as was the case here referred to. Such things are too annoying to justify any jokes, good or bad, so we pass without further remark.

A Humbug.

The Santa Cruz Sentinel says that "Ivory Wheat, 80 to 100 bushels to the acre," etc., as advertised by so many papers is a swindling humbug. We are not prepared to say it is not, though the Tennessee firm which sends out these advertisements has offered such things in the same way heretofore which turned as represented. Our only object in giving place to such advertisements is in the hope that some benefit may accrue to our farmer readers. In point of actual value the pay received from the advertiser does not amount to the value of a quarter of a cent to us. As far as this "Ivory Wheat" is concerned though it may be, and probably is a false pretense, yet we are not at all sure the introduction of any new kind of wheat from a different climate or locality will not prove a paying investment. Our farmers are the best judges of these things, though, and with this warning concerning this particular wheat, we leave it all to them.

To Go East.

Dr. C. B. White, of the Post, who, as our readers will remember, was not long since promoted, and is now a full Surgeon, has received orders to hold himself in readiness for a transfer to the recruiting station and hospital, at Columbus, Ohio. It will probably be a month or two before he takes his departure. The doctor has been so identified with the interests of this county during his lengthy stay at this Post, it will seem like losing one of our leading citizens, rather than a "nomadic army officer," when he takes his leave.

Encouraging.

Since the law, which came into effect two years since, requiring the County Judge and Clerk to keep a memoranda and record all marriage contracts, Judge Hannah has officiated in the ceremony of uniting twenty-five couples. Fifty palpitating hearts he has made beat as twenty-five—twenty-five times has the Judge tasted the nectar from the lips of a pretty bride, and still he ain't happy.

Magnet Hammers.

Fragile young husbands as well as pater familias will no longer complain when—"you know, my dear, the carpet must be tacked down," for the magnet hammer we saw at Harris & Rhine's, the other day, beats all the (finger) nail saving inventions yet invented.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach in this place to-morrow at the usual time and place.

Personals.

Quite an extended list of personals intended for our last issue got "knocked out of time and space" then, and of those we can only now make mention of the departures for the Bay. These were Hon. Mr. Willett, of the Eclipse, who, however, will return here before starting for England where he goes soon, and Rabbi J. S. Rothschild Mr. L. C. Gray, of the Kearsarge, and Lieut. Haskell, U. S. A., took their departure for the same destination yesterday, the fromer with expectation of returning here shortly—may-be-so the Lieutenant also. Capt. Macgowan, of the Post, is expected home in a day or two, and Paul Bennett, Esq., next week. Mrs. P. Reddy has returned from her visit to Darwin. Isaac Harris, of Harris & Rhine, has gone back to business at Panamint.

Held for Murder.

Last Tuesday Under Sheriff W. L Moore brought to jail Loyal Merritt committed by Justice Grant at Darwin, under $20,000 bonds to answer for the murder of Charles Kemble at Cerro Gordo, as mentioned last week. This Merritt went from there to Darwin. Soon after his arrival Constable Wales arrested him on a warrant sworn out by Fred. West. He was duly examined before Justice W. T. Grant, P. Reddy for the prosecution, with the result above stated. The prisoner, in default of bail which he is not at all likely to be able to give, will have to lie here till the meeting of the regular Grand Jury in March, as there is but little liklihood Judge Hannah will call a special one in the brief interval.

Grange Officers Elect.

Secretary A. H. Jnhnson, Lone Pine Grange, No. 212, P. of H., sends us the following list of officers elected by that Grange at its late meeting for the purpose: I. P. Rittgers, Master; A. H. Johnson, Overseer; Joseph Seeley, Lecturer; J. A. Rittgers, Stewart; C. W. Johnson, Ass't. Stewart; J. Roeper, Chaplain; John Dodge, Treasurer; R. A. Loomis, Secretary; W. H. Lambert, Gate Keeper; Mrs. Mary McCall, Ceries; Mrs. A. B. Rittgers, Pomona; Mrs. Dela Johnson, Flora; Mrs. Augusta Lubkin, Lady Ass't Steward.

The Kearsarge.

Mr. Gray, G. Washington Todd and some more have been operating away up the mountain at the Kearsarge mine, and notwithstanding the late severe cold and heavy snow storms, experienced no difficulty whatever in carrying on work on account of the weather. They are much encouraged at the developments in the mine, but just what these developments amount to we are not prepared to say.

County Court.

Judge Hannah's Court met on Monday pursuant to adjournment. In the matter of the People vs. F. Dabeeny on appeal from Justice Peterson's Court District Attorney Snelling for the People, Judge Conklin for appellant, it was agreed to modity the judgment from $300 to $150 fine, imprisonment in default from three hundred to one hundred and fifty days. There being no other business before the Court it adjourned for the term.

Thompson's Ducks.

V. G. Thompson, of the Blaney House has two pet ducks. These two quacks learned something of possible value to them a couple of nights since. They went to sleep in the dammed creek, (nothing profane intended there,) near by and when morning came, found themselves, feet and feathers, frozen fast in the ice and had to be chopped loose. They still waddle about as if it were an admirable joke.

Threatened to Hang Him.

It seems that the feeling at Darwin against Merritt, who played Judas in the Kimble murder at Cerro Gordo last week, was so strong there was various threats of Lynch law. P. Reddy, Esq., who prosecuted the case before Justice Grant, and his friends interposed and saved the threatened man from a fate it is quite possible he deserved, but in a more legitimate modus operandi.

From Visalia.

Dr. Blair got back from his visit to Visalia early this week, and he speaks in the highest terms of the hospitalities of which he was the recipient from his old friends over there. On his arrival at Lone Pine he was delayed a day or two in attending Mrs, Eames of the Orleans Hotel who was dangerously ill. At last accounts she was doing well.

Races on Feb. 22nd.

There will be a series of races at the Taboose Race Course commencing February 22. On the first day there will be a purse of $50 in a half-mile race, open for all saddle horses—the entrance fees to be added to the purse. Ye owners of fast nags will have sufficient notice this time to prepare. The more entered the larger the purse.

The Yield of Precious Metals.

John J. Valentine, Superintendent of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express gives the yield of precious mentals in the States and Territories west of the Rocky Mountains, for the year of 1875, as follows: California, $17,753,151; Nevada, $40,478,369; Oregon, $1,165,046; Washington, $81,932; Idaho, $1,554,902; Montana, $3,573,609; Utah, $5,687,490; Arizona, $109,093; Colorado, $6,299,817; Mexico, $2,408,671; British Columbia, $1,776,953. Total, $80,889,037. He also says that the present prospects indicate an aggregate yield of $90,000,000 for 1876, of which Nevada will doubtless produce $50,000,000.

—President Grant and Secretary Bristow have botn been subpœnaed to testify in Babcock's case at St. Louis.

NIGHT MUSING.

FOR THE INDEPENDENT

Among the lovely vallies wild
A way-worn pilgrim band,
We pitch our tents where round us high
The frowning mountains stand;

While slow the Day-God's golden robes
Trail o'er their jagged sides
And shadows creep from all the glens,
Where night with darkness hides,

Mysterious voices of the night
Go whispering thro' the pines,
And far upon the zenith's height
Orion dimly shines.

And the thunder of the cataract,
Or the tinkling of the rills,
Through all the mountains solitudes
Each hour of darkness fills.

What restless spirit wings to-night
From countless E'ons flown
List'ning with bated breath I hear
Far down the cañons lone.

Weird sighs upon the odorous wind
Go floating softly by,
And round the grey old mountain peaks
Strange shadows seem to lie.

And from their dim and vaporous folds
Bright faces glancing serene;
Fair faces of the youthful dead,
Crowned with a light divine.

Ah! shorter seems life's dreary road
Viewed thro' the night's dim shade,
And mid the stillness of the hour,
Life's bitter sorrows fade.

It seems a few more weary steps
Would bring me to the door,
From which my loved ones took farewell
Of sorrow evermore.

But swiftly fly the enchanted hours—
The morning dawns apace.
And slowly with the fading stars,
Nights visions melt in space.

And far before the weary eyes
The drifting clouds unfold,
Above life's endless desert path—
How far the gates of gold!

Now up behind the eastern hills
Come morning's golden gleams,
And banished all night's shadows strange,
Weird voices, sighs, and dreams.

Now weary hands take up life's toil,
Sad eyes look thro' their tears
And trembling feet still journey on,
Across the waste of years.

—JOSEPHA.

Letter From Benton.

BENTON, MONO CO., CAL.,
January 11, 1876.

MESSRS EDS:—I don't think that I am much of a correspondent, but must tell you of the "big fun" we had here a few days agone. Some one in Owens River Valley sent to this place a petition for signers, praying the Legislature to re-establish the old county line between this and Inyo county. When the thing was first handed around it required some explanation, which Swamp John readily proposed to give. All ears were open to hear the learned gentleman spread himself. Then came the rush of names; some could write well and others not so good, so B. B. proposed that old Robinson, the Road Overseer should write all the names from his list of Road workers which contained all the names between the ages of twenty-one and fifty; the old men and boys could be put down afterwards. By this the petition soon received some two hundred and seventy-five names; then Swamp John remarked that "we would give Alpine county Antelope valley, and then we would very soon have the county seat at Benton." But the old Road Overseer objected, saying that "we must keep Antelope as then we would very soon have population enough for a first-class county; then the salaries of officers would rise and that he wanted the office of Road Supervisor." Swamp John said "all right" and that he "might want to be County or District Judge," and then the rush for town lots commenced; everybody but C. Miller and C. Bennett wanted a lot, and these two gents never moved for some time, but sat close together talking in low voices When everything got still they went straight to the stone quarry and re-located it. Coming back they said they would like "to furnish the county with rock to build the Court House, jail," etc. The saw mill man wanted a plank road to the top of the hill. E. R. Miner proposed a "fur company," others said we were wanting a "dancing hall and a church, and we must send for Beecher or Moody to preach for us." By this time old Sandy declared himself a candidate for Foreman of the Fur Company and was elected unanimously, and that's how that petition fared.

THE MINES, ETC.

The mines are all turning out well. John Kellog had some ore worked at Mack's mill that paid $775 60. B. B. Alverson had some worked going to $1,778 10 per ton. Nelson has struck a fine body of ore. Mack's mill is running day and night, turning out huge bars of fine bullion. The Consolidated Mill and Mine is doing well; the Indian Queen Mill and Mine are shipping six bars per week.

Uncle George Smith still sends out our mails, notwithstanding the snow is ten feet deep at Aurora.

J— R— has quit pulling the "single line" and is going to Oregon for a mate so he can have a check team.

Some one passed a Road Tax Receipt on one of our merchants for a check and got twenty dollars poker change.

SLAP JACK.

Tweed.

Tweed's attorney and bondsmen have brought suit against members of the ring, asking that all except Tweed be compelled to refund, and that a receiver of claims against them be appointed. The City and County Attorney, the General Corporation Counsel and others, are made defendants.

Mediation.

The under current of the best opinion at Washington is that the President, within a few weeks, will recommend mediation in Cuban affairs, unless the war there ceases. If mediation is rejected the United States will pursue its own policy, even at the cost of a war with Spain.

—To lie about a man never hurts him, but to tell the truth about him some times does.—[Josh Billings.

Those Readers.

The more that hasty act of the Legislature and the Governor, forbidding a change in text readers, is discussed and understood, the worse it looks. It will be remembered that was the very first bill which became a law this session. It was hurried through with astonishing rapidity. Croton oil or the Flying Cloud never made a quicker passage. The country members were told, and believed at once, that if they did not vote in favor of that fraud-tainted Cincinnati book concern the people of this State would lose a large sum of money, and they voted, because they were sent there to vote to save money. It looks as though the Governor ought to have known enough not to sign the bill, as before the time expired when he had to return it, he had or could have had indisputable evidence that that that bill simply robbed the people of not a cent less than twenty per cent. on the cost of the series of readers, besides doing a decided wrong to a home firm which had in good faith expended a large sum of money toward the fulfillment of their part of a legitimate contract, fair and open on its face. The agents of that fraudulent foreign concern were to powerful to permit of fair or honest dealing, and the consequence is a wrong on the taxpayers of the State, and a fraud on an enterprising, worthy home institution.

Mexican Affairs.

The New York Sun considers the House resolution for a special inquiry into Mexican robber incursions into Texas the first step toward war with Mexico. If Mexico cannot restrain its bandits, and will not authorize the United States to repress them by effective pursuit on her soil, public sentiment tends toward force to compel ample redress.

For a Raise.

The Kern county Assessor, whose present salary is $1,000, is asking an increase, how much we do not know. His petition to that effect is being very generally signed.

—An old wreck has come ashore at Monterey, that has lain in the bay since 1857.

—The San Francisco Bulletin has entered upon its 21st year, and appears in a new dress.

—Senator Roach has introduced a bill in the Legislature to have "wife beaters" whipped with the lash.

—United States Paymaster Spaulding has been arrested under orders from the Navy Department and is a close prisoner on board the Independence at Mare Island.

—Goodall. Nelson & Perkins have telegraphed their agent at Victoria, B. C., that owing to the severe criticisms of the Victoria press that they have deemed it advisable to withdraw their steamers for the present from that route.

—It is understood that Pinchback has abandoned his Senatorial aspirations and will resign at once, that the Legislature may elect his successor. His admirers assert that a colored man shall be elected in his stead.

—A darkey who was stooping to wash his hands in a creek, didn't notice the peculiar actions of a goat just behind him, so when he scrambled out of the water and was asked how it happened, he answered: "I dunno 'zactly; but 'pears as ef de shore kinder h'isted and frowed me."

A Man of Distinction.

[From The Vicksburg Herald.]

While the delegates from Mississippi were en route to the national railroad convention at St. Louis, a little scene occurred in a sleeping car worthy of being noted. Walking into the sleeping car at Milan, one of the Mississippi delegates, stretching himself at his full height, demanded in thunder tones of the conductor:

"Which is my berth, sir?"

"I don't know that you have one," replied the conductor.

"What, sir?" replied the Mississippian indignantly, "didn't my secretary arrange this matter?"

The conductor looked a little puzzled.

"Do you treat men of distinction as if they were commoners? Do you know who I am, sir?"

The puzz?ed conductor answered that he did not.

"Well, sir," continued the Mississippian with lofty and blustering tone, "I require extra attention when I travel, I'm a man of distinction."

The conductor drew his tablet from his pocket and began to scan it closely in the hope of finding this distinguished gentleman's cognomen, or else to place it there, and it was with something of a tremor that he inquired:

"What might be your name, sir?"

"My name? Gen. Beauregard, sir."

A modest, unassuming gentleman sitting within an arm's length of the tall, portly Mississippian, looks somewhat curiously into his face and smiled. A moment later a Louisiana delegate called out, "Gen. Beauregard," and the Mississippian was about to answer, when the quiet and unassuming Frenchman arose from his seat and passed out of the car. As the Mississippian recognized the features of Gen. Beauregard, he slipped away into a retired corner and declared he was henceforth only a private citizen, with no more lofty title that of a plain doctor.

Pioche.

A friend writing from Pioche gives a very gloomy account of affairs in that camp. He says: "Pioche is now in a languishing condition; is shorn of its fair proportions, and stands drooping like a maid deserted at the altar. Business is dull in every respect and money is almost an unknown article. Bankruptcy stares many in the face, and unless a bonanza is struck the majority of people now here must leave the camp. —[Austin Reveille, Dec. 28.

Montana Land Grab.

The Helena, Montana, Independent says: "It has leaked out here that a big effort will be made in Congress by a ring of land-grabbers to get hold of the most valuable mineral lands in Montana, Arizona and New Mexico. It is even broadly intimated that Hayden's and Jenney's surveys, ostensibly undertaken for scientific purposes, were in fact designed to further the purpose of the robbers."

The Prophet.

A Salt Lake paper, not having the fear of the great prophet before its eyes, discoursed thus about Brigham Young: "We are pleased to chronicle the great improvement in the old fraud's health, and prophesy it will be permanent until he is again needed in Court on account of his murders or lustful proclivities, when he will doubtless produce a score of medical certificates to the effect that he is about to enter the valley of the shadow of death."

—Pious old party—"And now, Mrs. Stubbins, I've one important question to ask. Does not Satan ofttimes tell you that you are not a Christian?" Mrs. Stubbins—"Yes, 'ee do so." P. O. P.—"And what say you to him on these occasions?" Mrs. S.—"Well, I say, whether I be or no, it can't possibly be none of 'is business."—[London Fun.

—The gold product of California in 1874 is estimated at $20,000,000. The silver product for the same period is stated to be $3,000,000. The total number of quartz mills is 390, of which 192 are driven by steam, 183 by water and the remainder by both.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG,

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Number, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and Specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

Commencing at a post marked "P No. 1 Y M," on south boundary of mine from which corner common to Sections 3 and 4 on north boundary of T 17 S R 38 E, bears S 21 deg 1 min 7 W 415 chains 67 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 75 links to post marked "P No. 2 Y M," in a stone mound two feet high 10 links north of the Belshaw grade from which a pine stump 10 inches in diameter bears S 24 deg W 35 links distant, thence N 11 deg W 24 chains 24 links to post marked "P No. 4 Y M," in mound 50 links south of road, thence N 79 deg E 1 chain 51 links to post marked "P No. 5 Y M," in stone mound two feet high, a pine stump 8 inches in diameter, bears N 25 deg E 160 links distant, thence S 11 deg E 24 chains 24 links to pest marked "P No. 7 Y M," a pine tree 7 inches in diameter bears south 20 deg E 140 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 76 links to post and mound on south boundary, the place of beginning, containing 3 66-100 acres.

This claim is bounded on all sides by mineral land and mining claims.

The Location of this mine is duly recorded in the Recorder's office of Inyo county, Cal., and in books of Cerro Gordo Mining District.

Any and all persons claiming adversely any portion of said Ygnacio mine or said mining ground as hereinbefore described, are required to file their adverse claim with the Register of the United States Land Office at Independence, in the State of California, during the sixty days period of publication hereof, or they will be barred by virtue of the provisions of the Statute.

Stoning a Jew to Death in Persia.

The details of the recent terrible murder of a Jew in Hamadan (Ekbatana of the ancient), in Persia, have been received. A wealthy Persian owed a large sum of money to the Rabbi Chajim, who asked the Persian to repay him one day when they chanced to meet in a bazaar. A quarrel ensued, and the crowd which had collected asked the Persian what the cause of the trouble was. He determined to get rid of his creditor, and turning to the crowd, said: "If this man had merely insulted me I should have kept silent, but he has abused our religion and blasphemed the prophets. I cannot, therefore, be silent." The crowd fell upon the Rabbi and threatened to kill him. He took refuge in the neighboring house of a rich Persian, to whom he appealed for protection. The latter concealed the Jew in an inner room and barred the doors of the house. The crowd demanded his surrender. The noble Persian refused, and the doors were broken down. The lawless rabble poured in, found the fugitive, dragged him into the street, and stoned him to death. The dead body was dragged about the town with jeers, and finally brought into the market-place, where the mouth was filled with powder and the head was blown to pieces. A fire was then kindled, and the corpse was burned up. Four Jews who had fallen into the hands of the mob, were ill-treated and severely wounded. The dwellings of the Israelites were plundered, and a general massacre of all the Jews—and Christians likewise—would have followed had not the authorities interfered.

Suspension of The "Overland" Monthly.

The friends of Pacific Coast literature will regret to learn that The Overland Monthly has suspended publication. It commenced its brilliant but brief career in July, 1868, under the editorial management of Bret Harte, with A. Roman & Co., as publishers. Subsequently it passed into the hands of John H. Carmany & Co., who continued to publish it up to the time of its suspension with the close of the fifteenth volume in December. Since Mr. Harte's retirement from its editorial management, the magazine has been edited in turn by W. C. Bartlett, the late Benjamin P. Avery and Walt. M. Fisher, the latter retiring two or three months before its demise. The Overland never has been a financial success, the field for a magazine of its high literary standing being too limited to support it. It was well-known and perhaps better appreciated abroad than it was at home. The suspension is not to be permanent, the publishers intending at some future day to revive it. It is expected that as the country fills up with a literature-loving people, the demand for such a magazine as The Overland will spring up and it will then be able to keep its head above water.—[S. F. Bulletin, January 13.

—A Washington dispatch says: Information indicates certainly that the House Railroad Committee strongly favors Tom Scott's Texas Pacific measure, but it is not yet fully determined to press it to a vote this session. Many who secretly favor the measure prefer to postpone definite action until after the Presidential election.

—"Pull on this rope," wrote Mr Winegardner, of Williamsport, "you will find me in the canal." Now, that kind of a corpse deserves encouragement. No fuss, no noise, no dragging the water nor firing of cannon. Just pull the rope, and he comes, fresh and dripping. A child five years old could find him.

—Intelligence has been received from Washington that the Supreme Court, by a vote of 7 to 2 has decided the celebrated Osage ceded land case in favor of the three railroad companies. It is believed, if the rumors prove true, that the companies will make satisfactory terms with bona fide settlers.

—Poverty is the grimmest foe the world holds. A serpent that stifles talent ere talent can rise, that blasts genius ere genius can be heard, that sows hot hate by a cold hearth, and that turns the germ of good into the giant of evil.—[Ouida.

Wedding Anecdotes.

Sometimes the united services of differing persuasions make the marriage ceremony a trifle difficult. A Methodist minister who was about to marry an Episcopal lady, called upon her minister to secure his services, and to ask that a friend, who was a presiding elder in his church, might assist in the office of marrying. The Episcopal brother who was a High Anglican, replied:

"I would like to oblige you, sir, in your wish but I fear I cannot, as I do not recognize the validity of your orders!"

"My orders not valid, sir?" exclaimed the indignant Wesleyan. "I tell you it's a purer ministry that has come down from John Wesley than a ministry that has come down by your apostolic succession through all their dirty popes!"

As a general rule, ministers find, on the principle that "a bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," that it is always better to take the fee at the time of the wedding than to wait for any after judgment of the matter. A certain clergyman to this day bears a grudge against New Jersey because a Jerseyman, after his wedding, asked if he should pay at the time or settle when he came for the certificate. The modest minister said, "Oh, when you come for the certificate." And that man has never come yet!

There seems to be a strange atmosphere of mistakes about the wedding service. Even the printer joins in this. An English edition of the "Prayer Book" came out some time ago with the following misplacement of a single letter: "Wilt thou love, honor and cherish," etc., etc., "and forsaking all others, keep thee only unto her as long as ye both shall like"—a change from "live" to "like," well suited to the changing habits of present matrimonial life!

Another very common mistake among ignorant people who want the Episcopal service, is in the alliterative sentence, "To have and to hold from this day forward."

The nervousness of the parties to be married very often accounts for some of these mistakes. A pretty well frightened groom on one occasion feeling that he must be brave and speak up well when the officiating clergyman asked any question, boldly replied to the question addressed to the father of the bride, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" "My sponsors in baptism!"

Another frightened youth, remembering in the presence of some beautiful bridesmaids the answer to one of the questions in the order of baptism, replied to the question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" "I renounce them all, and, by God's help, will endeavor not to follow or be led by them!"

Readers of Thomas Hardy's story, "Far from the Maddening Crowd," will remember the scene in which Bathsheba on taking charge of the farms inquires how it come to pass that Mrs. Ball ever consented to name her son "Cain." Joseph Poorgran and the others explain that the "pore" woman was flustered at the time of the christening, and got the Bible brothers mixed up in her mind, and thought at the moment "as how it was Abel what killed Cain, and not t'other way; however they tried to soften it down by calling him Cainey."

On the same principle in England, at a wholesale parish wedding, where some dozen couple were to be united en masse on a Sunday, a shy sort of a man got crowded in the wrong place, next to a strong, bustling woman, who had likewise missed her man, and before they knew it, they were married, as was also the odd couple number two. Hereupon, the shy man made so bold as to tell the minister of the mistake, and while he was debating in his own mind what was to be done, the old woman exclaimed, "Sure, and let it be; isn't it fair for all round, after all, and isn't one man as good as the other? The divil a bit's difference!" says Bridget McShane.

Duelling in the South.

The mania for duelling has again broken out in the South. In one instance in Georgia the parties met, fought, and the challenger was killed. In two others, one occurring in South Carolina and the other in Louisiana, one of the parties, of several persons, including seconds and surgeons, was arrested on the way to the scene of hostilities, and the other, after they had reached it and were taking places to exchange shots. All of the Southern States have repressive laws against duelling, but the irate individuals who seek this mode of avenging real or supposed wrongs pay but little attention to them.

—Sardou, the author of L'Oncle Sam, that atrocious libel upon American life, was recently introduced to an American woman in Paris. "I am delighted to make your acquaintance, Madam," said the playwright. "I should think you would be glad, M. Sardou," was the reply, "for, to judge by your 'Uncle Sam,' you never met an American lady before."

—A sacred burden is the life ye bear;
Look on it, lift it, bear it solemnly,
Stand up, and walk beneath it steadfastly,
Fail not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
But onward, upward, till the goal ye win.
—[Frances Anne Kemble.

—A careful deacon, with a cold in head, will say, "Let us unite in prayer," instead of saying, "Let us bray."

A Fight in the Olden Time.

[From The Springfield Republican, Dec 29.]

Two hundred years ago yesterday our Puritan forefathers fought the "Great Swamp Fight" in Rhode Island with the savage warriors of King Philip, crushing the Narragansetts, and settling practically the questions at issue with the crafty Indian monarch. The indomitable courage of a little band of men saved the colonies on that day from anarchy and destruction. One hundred years ago to-day the war for independence from Great Britain had actually begun. If the colonists had not been successful in King Philip's war, there might never have been an American revolution, and there might never have been an American republic. The Great Swamp Fight being the decisive battle of the Indian war, it may well be considered an important event in the history of this country. The Boston Advertiser justly says, in re-telling the story of the fight, that "that Sunday afternoon battle rendered possible the wonderful growth of New England in the next century." There were but 1,000 men in the little army of the colonists, and they marched through the blinding rain to the stronghold of the savages, where the foes gathered to the number of 5,000. This stronghold was upon a little island, thickly palisaded and accessible only by a bridge of a single log. The battle lasted two or three hours. The first fire of the colonists was promptly returned. One thousand Indians are said to have been killed, the battle resulting in a complete victory for the colonists. They lost seventy men, including four captains, and 150 wounded. The colonial army was commanded by Josiah Winslow.

Men as Lovers.

In the first place it is an imposition on any well bred girl to keep her up later than 10:30 o'clock, when you have the opportunity of seeing her often. If you always leave her with the wish in her heart that you had staid longer, you gain so much. Never run the risk of wearying her with your presence. Be just as earnest and straight forward as in your honorable dealing with men. Impress your friends with the worthiness and seriousness of your love, so that vulgar and senseless bantering will appear to them as such. Love in religion—the supremest happiness, wear it manfully and holily. Woo a woman bravely. If there is anything humiliating to a woman, it is to have a lover, whom she wishes to honor, weak and vapid, ever yielding and half afraid of her. She longs to tell him to "act like a man!" The man who conceals or denies his love for fear of being laughed at is a coward. A love that has no element of divinity in it is not love, but passion, which of itself has nothing ennobling. That was a beautiful inscription on an engagement ring, "Each for the other and both for God."—[Miss Abbie J. Terry, in Scroll Work.

The Wind Storm.

From Mr. Hill, of Tejon, we get particulars of the wind storm on the plains. When it commenced there were about 100,000 sheep scattered among the various camps, and after it had continued about two hours, the herders were utterly powerless to restrain the flocks. It seemed a storm of gravel, sand and stones, the latter driven with force enough to beat the animals to death. A wagon was capsized and nearly torn to pieces by the wind and men on horseback left their animals and came into camp with their faces bruised so as to nearly close their eyes. Mr. Hill estimates that one third of the sheep perished. Thousands were driven into narrow gulches, and finally covered with sand—literally buried alive. On the San Emidio, cattle driven into the beds of the streams, were in some places buried completely out of sight. The grass, which had grown to good feed, was taken out by the roots and piled up in waves along the plains. It was the most disastrous storm known to this country for many years.—[Southern Californian, Jan. 13.

Responsibility of Seedsmen.

The Court of Errors of New Jersey has just decided a very interesting case, growing out of a matter of twenty-five cents, but which has led to an accumulation during its six years' pendency of several thousand dollars costs. It involves the liability of seedsmen for what they represent their goods to be. The plaintiff in the case bought a quarter's worth of what purported to be early turnip seed, and sowed a good sized piece of land therewith, but the crop proved to be late and miserable tubers, and not marketable. Damages were claimed for the loss of the expected crop; and these were awarded by one after another of the courts—Justices', Common Pleas, Supreme and of Errors. The decision is an important one, as it not only applies to the whole seed, flower and nursery business, but admitting the principle of consequential damages, has a much wider application.

—Life imprisonment in Illinois means about seven and a half years' confinement. Such has been the average in previous years, and on Christmas day, Governor Beveridge turned loose two murderers, one of whom was sent up for life in July, 1867, and the other for 20 years in March, 1868.

—A beautiful and aristocratic Louisville girl of seventeen smokes a short, black clay pipe filled with the strongest plug tobacco. She was born with a love of the weed, and the habit has steadily grown upon her.

The Legislature.

Our Legislature seems to be crowding work along at a satisfactory rate, but, in their later proceedings, we note no bills of general importance or interest, or any at all affecting us locally. Griswold introduced the petition for the repeal of our stock law, but except to refer it to a committee, nothing has been done about. The Governor's first veto was the bill to extend the time for the first publication of the San Francisco delinquent tax list; this was only that its phraseology might be corrected in one particular; that was that as passed it could be construed to mean that the entire delinquent list of the State must be published in San Francisco. The bill was amended in that particular, passed both Houses and again submitted to the Governor who then signed it.

To Merchants and Traders.

We are in receipt of the January number of The San Francisco Journal of Commerce, containing carefully compiled information with regard to the commerce, agriculture and mining of the Coast. It is the most complete statement of this kind ever before offered to the public, and the edition of of 16,000 the largest ever published by any purely commercial paper in America. It also contains a large railroad map, statistics of wealth and population of this State, and an annual review of its commerce for the past year. We should think every merchant and trader desiring to keep posted in matters of importance to his every day business, would find this publication of material value. W. H. Murray, business manager, 414 Clay street, San Francisco. Price, $5 per annum.

A Newspaper Man kills Himself.

Col. Jonathan Williams, of The Pioche Journal, and one of the founders of The Virginia Enterprise, committed suicide at Pioche, on the 14th instant having taken laudanum. The cause he assigned in a note found on him was that "he had done too much for others, and had not been appreciated." If that was cause sufficient for a newspaper man to kill himself, particularly the first clause, there wouldn't be any newspaper men left pretty soon. Williams furthermore left his curse upon both the above named papers.

On the Board.

The New Coso and Defiance stocks, particularly the former, appear regularly in the stock reports. Prices vary, of course, the latest quotations being the highest for both stocks, but that was only $3 per share, which shows that dealers there have a very poor idea of the real value of those mines. They are certainly worth more than those figures indicate. There is but a few hundred Defiance shares on the market, or likely to be soon.

Billy Killingly Killed.

The Eureka Sentinel gives extracts from Pioche letters clearly showing that a horse thief and desperado, of the above name, who, it seems lately figured about Panamint, has been killed by two men from whom he had stolen horses. These men followed Killingly some three hundred miles, recovered their horses and left the thief's bones on a desert not far from Hiko.

Improved.

Dewey & Co., publishers of The Scientific Press and The Rural Press, both sixteen page sheets, now have their leaves cut and pasted, which is an improvement that all readers of that otherwise inconvenient form of journal will appreciate very much. Every farmer would be a gainer were he to subscribe for The Rural. It is decidedly a valuable paper, and The Scientific Press is no less so to mining men.

War.

The prospects are said to be unusually flattering, lately, for a war with Spain. Some say it is to be brought about because Grant is bound to keep himself before the people; others, that the Spanish Government treated that "note" with contempt, and that Grant is not responsible for the impending danger. Meantime warlike preparations are going on constantly in our navy yards.

Completed.

The splendid new quartz mill for the California Company, Virginia City, was completed on the 13th, and started up on the following day. It has a daily capacity of three hundred tons.

—In China the heads of swindling bankers are chopped off and thrown in with the assets.

SHAPING THE FIGHT.

Quite an exciting debate took place in the House of Representatives at Washington over the Amnesty Bill. Randall, of Pennsylvania, first undertook to champion the Democratic side of the question, but met more than his match in Blaine. Then B. H. Hill, of Georgia took up the fight, and, confining the application of our remark to his closing peroration simply, made the most sensible, eloquent and feeling acknowledgment and speech concerning the rights, duties and interests of the Southern people, as well as those of the North, that we have seen for many a day. Unfortunately, however, the question at issue raised many of the old Andersonville-Camp Douglass prison matters, and tore open wounds that all well-wishers of the country would a thousand times have preferred should never have again been irritated. The result pretty clearly marks the line of the pending Presidential fight as likely to be very nearly identical with those of the rebellion—strictly sectional.

We fully believe, though, that Blaine and Gen. Garfield, who was scarcely less effective in his speeches on the same side, were clearly in the right in insisting upon this amendment to the bill. They simply asked as a condition of universal amnesty, that the remaining 750 ex-rebels whose disabilities as citizens remained to be removed, should be required to swear to support the laws and the Constitution of the United States. Blaine said he did not want to force citizenship unasked upon such men as Toombs who had boasted in this country and in Europe that he would not take it as a gift. Neither did he want to place himself on a level with the head and front of all these Andersonville and similar horrors, Jeff. Davis, the man who, alone, or above all others, was responsible for, and advised the torturing to death by slow degrees of 22,000 of his fellow men in that worse than Spanish Inquisition, the prison pen of Andersonville. He did not want to punish either Davis or Toombs, or any man of that rebellion, but he did most strenuously object to again place such in the position to become the possible rulers of the country they had striven so hard to destroy, without so much as requiring them to say on oath they would try to sustain and cherish its institutions. Republican Congresses one after another had granted full and absolute amnesty to every soul engaged in that rebellion save those 750, former officers of our army and navy, members of the Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Congresses, Judges, heads of Departments and Foreign Ministers. He only asked that these should swear allegiance as a condition to citizenship, and citizenship untrammeled should be theirs thenceforth, and by the vote of every Republican on that floor.

This attack upon Davis and Andersonville brought Hill to their defence, chiefly by recrimination regarding the alleged inhuman treatment of Confederate prisoners at Camp Douglass, Elmira, etc., and the refusal of the cartel of exchange offered by the Confederates by which the horrors of Andersonville and these places might have been saved. Garfield showed clearly that the condition of that proposed cartel excepted the blacks, then recognized as not only human beings but citizens of equal rights, a condition of facts for which Davis was responsible, and which rendered the exchange as proposed a simple impossibility.

Hill concluded with the peroration before alluded to, and which did him honor. In the course of this exciting and warm debate, Blaine proved himself a most able general in debate and parliamentary tactics, and succeeded in forcing certain northern Democrats like Randall, and Caulfield of Illinois, into a most unpleasant position for them and their friends. As Randall positively refused to accept the amendment, the bill, not receiving a two-thirds vote, was lost by nearly a strict party vote, and these 750 disfranchised ex-rebels remain disfranchised, and probably ever will until they humiliate (?) themselves sufficiently to at least ask that they may be received to citizenship as thousands of better men, better rebels and fighters when they were rebels and fighters, have done before them.

We are sincerely sorry these old issues have been raised, but, nevertheless, we repeat, Blaine and Garfield did just right in insisting upon this proposed qualification however it may have been as to the propriety of their arguments in support.

Those of our readers who desire to see the full report of the speeches and remarks of this important episode are referred to The Sacramento Union of the 15th, which, alone of our coast papers, appears to have it in full.

TAXING MINING PRODUCTS.

The question that has been occupying the attention of members of the Board of Supervisors, and a great many others, for some weeks past is, What is to be done to prevent this county from drifting hopelessly into debt? The rate of taxation, now sufficiently onerous, will not produce a revenue equal to the increasing demands. Except one county (Calaveras, whose rate is $3 10) Inyo pays the heaviest rate of taxes of any in the State. It is already too heavy to think of increasing it to meet current liabilities, if it can possibly be avoided. If current expenses are not paid off in full annually, or nearly so, the debt increases in a compound ratio, precisely as it did before the adoption of the Expense Fund. That fund took the place of the General Fund, the warrants upon which did not command at times to exceed forty cents on the dollar, in effect almost trebling the current expenses. The Expense Fund was expected, and did in fact for the past year, place the county on a cash basis. That fund absorbed two others, and, including those, one-third, or one dollar in three of the entire tax rate, besides receipts from licenses, etc. Notwithstanding a margin of about $4,000 was set aside, or allowed in excess of known requirements for contingences, the fund is now depleted, and unless something is done to relieve it, must certainly lapse into the condition of the original General Fund. In that case the expense of running the county will increase in such ratio as to give a tolerably fair prospect of bankruptcy.

It looks anomalous, but is true nevertheless, that the evidences of our prosperity and of our illimitable resources, are indirectly, the very cause of our lack of financial prosperity as a county. As matters are now arranged every new, prosperous mining district opened causes an increase of county expenses out of proportion to direct returns. A mining company goes to work; however valuable or productive its mining ground, mining ground has hardly any assessable value. The whys and wherefores for this need not be entered into at this time. The company employs, directly and indirectly, say two hundred men many of whom not paying even a poll tax. In that number we are certain to have say two or three, perhaps half a dozen, patients for the county to take care of in the hospital, one or two perhaps of insane, to cause from two or three hundred dollars each of expense, and last but not least one or more of criminal trials, scarce one of which can ever be submitted to a jury without costing the county $2,000, possibly five times that amount, in no case, if committed to jail, less than $500. These are the causes which have already produced the present depleted condition of the county treasury. What portion of this outlay falls upon the owners of such mine? If a milling company, having costly mills and appliances for the Assessor to reach, it may be as high as $2,000 taxes actually paid in the county treasury. If a smelting company where there is less need of outlay for necessary appliances, it will average about $500; say three times as much as a farmer who causes the county no expense whatever, except possibly as a party in a criminal trial, a circumstance of such rare occurrence as to hardly enter into the consideration. It is no more than some of our merchants and other business men pay, to whom the same remark applies, and for the same reason in all these cases. That is, that their business, though paying say an equal amount of taxes, does not indirectly cause a proportionate outlay for so many unfortunate and impecunious employees. We attach no blame whatever to mine owners for this condition of affairs. It is not their fault as individuals. They expend their money, take great risks to develop a value for their property, to give employment to the many who ask and need it, to indirectly sustain every other calling, almost without exception in a county like this, in short to make a county, for all of which our State laws and people generally have, in various ways, accorded them privileges beyond any other class of producers. Then the statutes assume mining ground and products on hand to be taxable property. The law, though, taxing mining ground, developed or otherwise ought, we think, to be abrogated. Such a tax is rarely equitable, is always the merest guess work. But we can see no reason why mining products should not be taxed just the same as all products of the farm and work shop. These last two are taxed according to their full value on the ground without the slightest deduction for cost of production. Mining products, for various reasons, should have so much of a premium as would as allow for the cost of production.

This then, is the proposition we submit for consideration, That, throughout this State, as in the State of Nevada, mining products should be made to bear a larger portion of taxation than they now do. Some such thing is very nearly the only hope to maintain the credit—to save from bankruptcy—nearly every mining county in this State. It will most likely not meet the approbation of mine owners, but that is no proof it would not be right. It don't meet the approbation of the saloon keeper, the mechanic, the farmer, the merchant or anybody else to be compelled to pay such heavy tribute to maintain government, but they all have to do it, nevertheless. Though the fact that nearly or quite every profitable mining enterprise now in this county, either is or soon will be in the hands of owners mostly non resident or outside corporations, does not alter the equities of the case, yet tax ridden people can't help but call up the fact that these non-resident, parties, with a few exceptions not identified with the permanent interests of the county, are deriving and will derive millions of profits annually from our resources while hundreds who have a permanent interest at stake, (though that amounts in too many cases to naught but the means of existence,) have to pay an undue proportion to make such results possible. All those who have given the matter any thought so far as we know, believe that this Legislature ought to adopt a law to tax mining products, somewhat after the style of the State of Nevada, which is this: First, to deduct $15 or $20 for the cost of mining and reducing each and every ton of ore. Secondly, then to make a further reduction of twenty five per cent. of assay value of the bullion, whatever its character, and then, on this remainder, levy a tax of one per cent., more or less this sum to be divided in certain proportions between State and the county where the mine is located. That is the main point of the proposition, the time, manner, etc., of assessment and collection, to be stated, should the main proposition be deemed worthy of action. It will be seen that this plan of taxing mines or mining products, affects those and those only which are being run at a profit, and therefore, cannot be a dead weight in the slightest degree to undeveloped mining enterprises of any sort.

The law now nominally taxes bullion as any other property. But the law is a nullity in effect, for it touches only such bullion as may be on hand upon one certain day in three hundred and sixty-five. It may (and is not likely ever to do more) reach say 200 bars out of a year's production of six or seven thousand to a furnace.

Incest.

Two revolting cases of incest have lately come to light in Iowa, one in Dubuque, the other in Davenport. In the first mentioned a German named Lawrence Schebert has been living with his own daughter as his wife for the past nine years, the pair now having two children. They had gone through a form of marriage, and having no acquaintances in this country, their true relationship was not discovered until after the recent arrival of a grown son and brother from the old country, who on discovering the facts, had the hoary headed old villian, his father, arrested. The daughter is soon to become a mother again. About the same time one Hans Lase was put under arrest in Davenport to answer a charge of incest with his two daughters aged respectively 15 and 13. This man is the father of eight children including these two daughters. These cases have created a great deal of excitement among the people.

Suspended Again

Temple & Workman's bank at Los Angeles, suspended again on the 13th. The bank never fully recovered public confidence after the September suspension. The immediate cause this time was the protest of a $30,000 draft in San Francisco, following still larger amounts that had just been honored. The officers have assigned all their property to the creditors, and the assets will ultimately cover all the liabilities.

The San Francisco Chronicle.

The Chronicle has just entered upon its 12th year and 23d volume. It is undoubtedly the most fearless, outspoken, effective and enterprising newspapers this coast boasts of, and with passing years, stands higher and higher in public estimation.

In Soak.

According to The Humbolt Register of January 12, a General Harris, of Nevada, don't know much, if any more than Thompson's ducks which, as mentioned last week, went to sleep in the water and had to be cut out of the ice the following morning. This General Harris took a warm bath in Robinson's bath house, Winnemucca, the other day. Starting in at 2 o'clock, and being tired, dirty and worn out, he fell asleep in the tub; waking up at 4 he found himself encased in ice! He shouted for help, and a boy came and cut him out with a hatchet. After getting out the General remarked, "By smash, I feel like a boiled turkey." In that he had the advantage of the ducks as also the proverbial colt, for they couldn't express themselves so intelligibly in English.

Sonora.

The San Diego Union's letter from Ures, Sonora, of December 30th, says: Nothing later has been received from the Yaqui country; but we have the following from the seat of war on the Melano: On the 12th the Monuse commander of the State troops sent 113 mounted men to the Cajon Huajara, which is the refuge of many of the Yaquis. During the time of the freshets a decent was made at night and eight or ten families captured and brought off as hostages. A large lot of stock was also captured and driven off. This mode of carrying war into the heart of the Indian country will soon bring them to terms. The murder of Don Juan Luna by the Apaches is confirmed. A party of men under command of Senor Valarde, on the way from Guaymas from Sabuarapa with $40,000 in silver, were waylaid near Monton Delana and robbed of the treasure. Nothing later from revolutionists under Serna.

IN MEMORIAM.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF CHARLES PHILLIPPAY.

Sad is the office we are here performing this 13th day of February, 1876. Christian piety, and heartfelt sympathy for these bereaved parents and relatives, and the purest, most disinterested love for this departed angel, prompted us to gather together to pay the last tribute of true love and sincere affection to the dearest child that ever lived among us. Only yesterday he was blooming like the most precious flower in a well-cared for garden, and to-day?—sleeping here his eternal sleep! Only yesterday, smiling to us with his angelic smile, and to-day?—those radiant, intelligent eyes, two stars of hope and pride to his parents, and of comfort and satisfaction to all of us, closed forever! Only yesterday we were happy to meet him, and to gaze with admiration upon his bright face, and to-day?—lifeless, speechless, with the mortal palor upon his once radiant and beautiful features!

Oh mighty and eternal God, Creator and Ruler of the firmament! we submit humbly, although sadly, to Thy will and Thy laws! Impart Thy divine help to this desolate family and accept the prayers that this angel will surely offer at the feet of Thy glorious throne for the welfare of the beloved authors of his being, the grandma who so adored him, and for this town of Lone Pine, his place of nativity, whose citizens were proud of his presence, and will remember him forever! Farewell, Charley! Be thy angelical spirit with us, and be our advocate in heaven to-day, and evermore! Amen. P. G. GELCICH.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

For a School District

Darwin citizens, some two weeks since, petitioned County Superintendent Symmes to have established a school district at Darwin. The petition no doubt, will be granted by the Board of Supervisors at their February meeting, which will be as soon as it can be done. The petitioners are in error in one point, as set forth in this petition. They seem to think that as Darwin has already maintained a school three months, it is accordingly entitled to its pro rata portion of public money. Until fully established according to law and rule, no district is entitled to public school money, and in that respect, this three month's school cuts no figure whatever. Darwin is part and parcel of the Cerro Gordo school district, as matters now stand, all its school tax heretofore assessed going to the benefit of the Cerro Gordo school. Superintendent Symmes has posted the required notices of the intended application, one each in Darwin, Lone Pine and Cerro Gordo.

Jack Dow.

Geo. Dow, of Cambridge, Wisconsin, writes to Postmaster Rowley, of this place, seeking information of his son Jack Dow, who came to this county some seven or eight years ago. Any one knowing of the fate or whereabouts of the young man will confer a favor by addressing the information to his father, as above. We have been told that young Dow, some years ago, left this place for Los Angeles, and subsequently, for Arizona, where, rumor states he was killed by the Indians. There is no assurance that this rumor was well founded, however.

Another Case of Insanity.

Constable Jas. Wales brought in from Darwin, last Saturday, one Patrick Vaughn who has become insane upon religion and women—a singular combination of causes. Drs White and Blair held an inquiry Monday last, but deferred a decision in his case till a further examination. It is quite probable he will have to be sent to Stockton. Vaughn was a former resident of Pioche and Belmont, Nevada. He is about 35 years of age, and a man of temperate habits.

Darwin Items.

It is said the latest developments in the Defiance mine confirm the belief that it has no superior as a base metal mine in the world. It is ore everywhere, the hard ore going as high as $225 per ton. Superintendent Reddy has gone to San Francisco. The furnace is averaging over 200 bars per diem.... The Loretta tunnel was expected to strike the ledge some time this week.... The Cuervo furnace was to start this week.... The Modoc Company have ordered a furnace for their mine, of the same size and patern as the Defiance.

The Days.

To-day the sun rose in this latitude at 6:57 and sets at 5:27, giving us ten hours and a half of day light in which to wear ourselves out. Some minutes, though, are to be deducted from both ends on account of our big mountains, which, on one side, causes the sun to be late getting up of mornings, and on the other to still earlier retire behind the lofty Sierras.

Confirmed.

We have heretofore stated that the Union-San Felipe suit was settled. It seems though, that all the details were not fully arranged until quite recently. It is stated on what we believe to be good authority that the whole property will be incorporated. There is a question about this, however. Paul Bennett comes out between $60,000 and $100,000 winner in this big fight.

Fire at the Eclipse.

Last Saturday night a fire broke out at the Eclipse mine and entirely consumed the stables, also a cabin occupied by some of the miners. Captain Eudey's horses were got out in time, but were singed a little by the fire. About $80 in gold-backs and some silver, belonging to the occupants of the cabin, were destroyed.

An Explosion.

Operations at Broder's furnace, Log Springs, were interrupted last week for a time by an explosion of the furnace. Up to that time it had been running successfully. The explosion was due to the generation of steam in the cupola, caused by shoveling in ore covered with snow. The damage is not material.

Our Next Sheriffs.

Sheriff elect Thos. Passmore, we understand has selected Steve Gregg, of Big Pine as his Under Sheriff. Mr. Gregg, with his family, will take up his residence in this place. Mrs. Passmore has been quite sick for some weeks past, being at Lone Pine unable to get home.

Installation.

Members of Independence Grange will note the time set for installation of officers as per order elsewhere published.

Operations Suspended.

The late stormy weather caused a suspension of lumbering operations at the Black Rock saw mill. Proprietor Jas. Smith, though, is preparing for extensive work for next Summer.

Where is She.

The latest novelty at the Post Office the other day, was a package of letters directed to "Sarah Gordo."

That "Spell."

Our compositor was asked to spell Tehachapai. He said he'd "Pass," and fainted.

A Short Sermon.

Every man's religion is his own concern, and he is alone responsible to God for the correctness or errors of his own opinions, and, with certain exceptions, his acts as regards mankind. Nevertheless, we think every intelligent, morally disposed person, whatever his particular religious tenets or lack of all of a denominational character or predilection, fails to do both himself and the community justice, when he fails to lend his countenance in some degree to the efforts of unselfish men who labor for the moral and intellectual improvement of their fellow men. If there are any men in the world whose life and duties entitle them to respect for unselfishness the border itinerant preachers are the men. As a rule there is no inducement in such a life and calling for rascals. When a good man offers his whole life, energies and more than ordinary learning in an effort to help others rather than himself beyond the merest daily necessities, it has a bad and discouraging outlook when those for whom he labors will not spare even one hour in a month from their nightly monotonous pastimes or business to listen to what such a man may have to say. We should think the desire to break the monotony of such a class of pastimes as an isolated country like this can often afford would cause a small school house to at least be partly filled one or two evenings in a month on the occasion of a sermon. Our local preacher here is never prosy, never uninteresting, but with an unusually easy and pleasant delivery, his remarks are instructive and of an elevating tendency even considered wholly aside from doctrinal application. There is little or none of that "must come and be saved anyhow" exhorting style, rarely or never a contribution plate to affright anybody. His endeavors are certainly worthy of a better proof of appreciation than has been accorded in the way of attendance. We just thought we would mention this so as to fill a vacant space, not that we care what is to be the hereafter of those who know better but won't do better for themselves and those around them in the present.

A Dance.

We omitted to mention last week that in connection with the races on the 22nd, at the Taboose, Harry Wright will make every provision for a sociable dance. All the arrangements are under Harry's own supervision, and will undoubtedly prove a success. The Jockey Club is a sort of a clubbed out club it seems—leastwise the Secretary was fearfully demoralized when he footed some of the principal bills. But, recuring to the Birthington Washday's operations, there will be one race in which no less than eight saddle horses will be entered, besides a match race between three of our most noted horses. As the conditions of the latter are not fully settled yet, we shall defer further particulars in regard to it till next issue. Altogether the prospects are that more sand will be made to fly on that track that day, than on any similar occasion ever before in the county. In addition to this a large, comfortable pavilion for dancing is being built expressly for the occasion. Bishop Creek and the upper country generally is coming out in unusual force, while Darwin is sanguine in the expectation of recording Fireman as the champion race horse of the county.

All Right Again.

From W. A. Greenley, who came in from Log Springs on Thursday, we learn that the damage to the furnace, as mentioned elsewhere, is about all repaired and that by the time a sufficient supply of coal is ready, which will be but a few days, it will start up for an extended run. The buildings have been enclosed, so that no danger of another explosion need be apprehended, however stormy the weather. The mine is turning out beyond expectation, and there is an abundant supply of ore now on the dump. Another important fact is that the bullion is worth not less than $356 per ton. Mr. Thomas, furnace Superintendent, says he has never seen ore anywhere which smelts with such facility as does this. Altogether, Mr. Greenley says there not be the slighest fear but this enterprise will be a perfect success in every respect. We consider this information and opinion perfectly reliable, and therefore, locally considered, the most important item of mining news we have had for some time.

For a Pardon.

The mother of young Spees, who got five years for being one of the Lewis and female bandit crowd here last Summer, is circulating a petition in Tulare in the hope of procuring her son's pardon. We understand she proposes to visit this county with the petition. By the way, that innocent and virtuous young thing for whom so much sympathy was manifested in certain quarters, and who escaped the State Prison when Spees and her other pals didn't, lately went galivanting off to Nevada with a lot of Mexicans. They had a team and the sympathee was driver.

Bullion Shipped.

Agent Sam. Cowles, of Cartago, informs us that the Cerro Gordo Freighting Co. are getting off bullion about as fast as the furnaces turn it out, as yet. He gave us the number of bars shipped daily, but as we are not certain as to the exact amount, not having made a note of it at the time, we will not risk a statement this time.

Greenbacks.

Col. Broadhead, Paymaster, and Lieut. Spencer, Clerk, arrived two days since at the Post for the purpose of balancing the books with Co. "D."

Sporting Dull.

The only game indulged in about town this week, was necessarially "on the square." It was chequers they played.

Parties wanting a quantity of hay can be accommodated by calling on Col. Boley, of Bithop Creek. See notice.

It Was Thus.

Seventeen little snow flakes fell in the valley Thursday, and everybody are talking through their noses about it.

A Leap Year Novelty.

The Carson Tribune, of the 15th, gives a la Jenkins a lengthy account of a Leap-year ball given by the ladies of that city. Here are the introductory remarks:

Carrying into effect their programme for last night, after a week's endeavor, the ladies met with marked success in the final development of a pleasing novelty few of our citizens have ever seen equaled—the Leap year ball. No one supposed the transposition of sexes could be effected so completely or sustained so long even in spirit without intervention from the creative power. But so it was. The ladies assumed bass voices and manly airs, proved themselves diplomatic "rustlers" in going for escorts as well as partners in the dances, and did all this fully as satisfactorily to the other sex as our's ever did for them; while the gents took to the situation as naturally as pigs to a mud hole, occupied the seats, simpered, primped, and said "yes" or "I'm engaged" in the most delicate treble.

The ladies arranged everything, decorated the hall, provided the supper, secured a splendid band of music and tip-top caller, paid toll at the door, and made things lovely generally for all hedom.

Biblical Learning.

Soon after Chief Justice Chase assumed the Gubernatorial chair in Ohio he issued his proclamation appointing a Thanksgiving Day. To make sure of being orthodox, the Governor composed his proclamation almost entirely of passages from the Bible, which he did not designate as quotations, presuming that everybody would recognize them and admire the fitness of the words as well as his taste in their selection. The proclamation meeting the eye of a Democratic editor, he bounced at once upon it and declared he had read it before; couldn't exactly say where, but he would take his oath it was downright plagiarism from beginning to end. That would have been a pretty fair joke; but the next day a Republican editor came out valiantly in defense of the Governor, pronounced the charge libelous and challenged any man living to produce one single line of the proclamation that had ever appeared in print before.—[Toledo Commercial.

The Golden Trout.

We learn from Mr. J. M. Hutchings, of Yosemite, that some months since he discovered on the head waters of Kern river at an altitude of 10,500 feet a new and beautiful fish which he has named "the Golden Trout." In color it is deep, but of a richer hue than the gold fish itself, and is dotted with black spots about a quarter of an inch in diameter and has a black band along its sides. It grows from six to eight inches long in its habitat, but if it were where fish food is more plentiful it would doubtless become much larger. If it can be acclimatized in the coast streams, it will be a beauty in the ponds.—[Cal. Exchange.

A Little Ahead.

The Los Angeles Herald says they have new potatoes coming into that city, and that they sell at three cents a pound. That beats us somewhat. We astonished ourselves not long since with a new change of diet of this sort, but the tubers hadn't been very new since they left the Humbolt coast.

Letter from Inyo.

[From The Amador Ledger, January 15.]

From private letters received by parties in Jackson from R. M. Briggs, we make the following extracts relative to matters in Inyo county:

This county is undoubtedly the richest mining county in the world, but only partially developed, and none but the richest discovered veins are being worked, as from the high price of labor and cost of transportation, low grade mines will not pay. If a railroad should ever reach the county, Inyo would soon contain a large mining population. The county is a mass of mountain ranges all bearing mineral, such as lead, copper, silver and gold, and notwithstanding hundreds of claims have been located, the country has been but very partially explored. The Darwin mines, I am informed, are looking remarkably well. Two furnaces running constantly and turning out 200 bars each of bullion of high grade. Should these furnaces continue successful, others will go up in the Spring. In all likelihood Darwin will be the main town of the county, but mining camps will spring up everywhere whenever cheap transportation shall reach the county. I think by Spring Darwin will be so developed as to form an opinion as to the future. Should Darwin prove a decided success, it would not be long before a railroad would be built to that point. In fact from the point on the Southern Pacific nearest Darwin to that place is nothing but a level desert, with no obstruction whatever to the cheap and rapid construction of a road. The large amount of freights brought to the county, should Darwin prove a success, will demand the early construction of a railroad. I think the county has a grand future, but when it will commence its upward march is the problem I now desire to see solved. At present Inyo is out of the world, its resources in minerals not understood, and it may require a long time to develop its wealth.

The Wrong Person.

The Napa Reporter is responsible for the following story:

A day or two ago a lady was trading at a dry goods store and found herself short of money. In the emergency she said to the clerk: "You may charge the balance to my husband. I suppose you know him, don't you?" "Mr——? Oh, yes," replied the clerk; "I gave him credit for a silk dress for you the other day. How did you like the shade and quality?" The lady did not answer. She hadn't seen the aforesaid dress, and as she hurried home she clinched her fingers and gasped: "Wretch—silk dress, eh? Oh! I'll——!"

—The other day when a Detroit woman asked her husband to bring home a bar of soap as he came to dinner, he exclaimed:

"What! is that bar gone so quick?"

"It's all gone," she replied, "but I was as saving as I could be. I haven't washed the children for five days past, so as to make it last the week out!"

—A Detroit boy paid his first visit to one of the Union schools the other day, as a scholar, and, when he came home at night, his mother inquired: "Well, Henry, how do you like going to school?" "Bully," he replied in an excited voice. "I saw four boys licked, one girl get her ear pulled, and a big scholar burned his elbow on the stove! I don't want to miss a day."

Where the Boulders Come From.

[From The Scientific American.]

All have seen the immense boulders, called "lost rock" in some sections, scattered over the northern part of the United States, which have little or no resemblance to any mass of rock anywhere in the vicinity, and have perhaps asked the question: Where did they come from? Also, the heaps of sand, gravel, and cobble stones of various sizes, which form many of our ridges, knolls and hills, and which are totally unlike any fixed rock near them. All these phenomena are attributed to a single cause, and that is the great sheet of ice which Nature stored up ages ago without the necessity of protecting it in an ice house. According to Agassiz, the sheet of ice extended in this country as far south as South Carolina or Alabama, and was thick enough to cover all the eastern part of North America except Mount Washington. This peak projected, a lone sentinel on that vast waste of ice, two or three hundred feet. In the latitude of northern Massachusetts, he conceives the ice to have been two or three miles thick. The boulders were all torn off by the advancing ice sheet, from the projecting rock over which it moved, carried and pushed as "bottom drift," scratching and plowing the surface over which it passed, and being scratched and polished themselves in return, till they were finally brought to rest by the melting of the ice. They were not carried as far south as the ice-sheet extended, seldom beyond the parallel of forty degrees north. The native copper of Lake Superior was drifted four or five hundred miles south; and the pudding stones of South Roxburry, Massachusetts, were carried as far south as the Island of Penikese.

Its Effect.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG,

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Immigrant Bureau Circular.

SAN FRANCISCO, January, 1876.

MESSRS. EDS:—This Bureau has now been in successful operation for more than seven months. During that time we have procured homes and situations for many thousands of the immigrants arriving. We need your assistance and co-operation in carrying out this great undertaking. Among the new-comers are hundreds of good practical farmers, mechanics and laborers, a good proportion of whom desire immediate employment. Heretofore strangers in this city have found it very difficult to obtain reliable information, and those seeking employment have exhausted their scanty means while waiting for work. By the establishment of this Bureau, however, these difficulties have been greatly obviated, as situations and information have been offered the new-comer free of charge. Much more good can be done by the hearty co-operation of those having lands to sell or needing help. We would, therefore, respectfully urge upon such the necessity of sending their orders for help of all descriptions, male and female to this office. Especially do we solicit and expect the support of the Grangers in this important matter, as the manager is the appointed immigration agent of the State Grange and the assistant manager of their former business agent. The inquiry for lands to purchase and rent is well maintained. You will find it to your interest and that of your section to send us a full description of such lands as you may have to sell or rent, and get your neighbors to do so. We have the facilities for their disposal here, and can soon secure good purchasers or tenants for them, without any charge whatever.

Among the questions continually asked are:

Is there land to Homestead or Pre-empt?

Can we purchase land cheap?

Can we rent land and be found, and at what share of the crop?

Can we get work in that vicinity? Do they irrigate?

Are there schools there? What kinds of crops are raised?

Can stock of any kind be had on shares?

What is your nearest market?

In conclusion we would request that you give the matter of this circular all the publicity that you conveniently can, and encourage the immigration which is constantly arriving to develop our vast resources.

Respectfully, J. EARL, Manager.

A Novel Light.

A light has been invented of a curious sort, which is very convenient for occasional use. A three or four-ounce bottle is token of clear glass; into this is put a piece of phosphorus about the size of a pea. The bottle is then filled one-third full of boiled sweet oil, and tightly corked. Whenever a light is needed, the cork is drawn for a moment, and fresh air let in, and then replaced tightly. The phosphorus, coming in contact with the fresh air, becomes luminous, and gives out about as much light as a common lamp. If it grows dim, the cork must be drawn again and replaced. In cold weather the oil becomes chilled, and the bottle may need to be held in a warm hand, or put for a moment or two in a warm place before the cork is removed. It is said that one of these bottles will do service for six months.

—C. W. Clarke, while boring an artesian well near Tulare Lake, struck at the depth of 140 feet, a frothy substance, giving off a gas which, when lighted, burned with a bright flame for several hours, accompanied by a smell like burning alcohol. Boring is still going on and it is a question what the auger will strike next.

—There has been a marked increase in the production of quicksilver of late at New Almaden. In the first half of last year the average yield was only 900 flasks a month, but for the last four months it has been 1,300, with a fair prospect that the average for 1876 will be between 1,600 and 2,000.

Newspaper Editors.

[From The Nevada Tribune, January 19.]

There is probably no more abused nor worse paid person than the editor of a newspaper, and yet there is a fascination in the profession that is almost unaccountable, and the longer it is followed the more attractive it becomes. But after all it is a life of toil and great anxiety, for the editor, if he gives the truth as it is, will surely offend some one, and to be as independent as all men should be means, to the newspaper man, starvation; and let his motives be ever so pure, they are construed by some as emanating from some personal bias or interest. On this subject The New York herald says:

The truth is that there is scarcely a newspaper published from one end of the year to the other, that will not, if critically considered, give offense to somebody in the community. The politician objects to the way his speech is reported. The buyer of one set of shares is offended because the money column reports another set as going up or going down. Gentlemen who find themselves in the hands of the police are grieved at the license of the press which reports their arraignment and trial among the police proceedings. The sympathizer with France is offended at letters from Berlin, and the believer in German unity mourns over the dispatches from Paris. The newspaper thus offends some one, just as the weather—rainy to-day and sunshiny to-morrow—is sure to annoy somebody. The common sense view is that the newspaper is the history of yesterday written to-day; that it is the mirror of the times, and that those who conduct it care nothing for individuals, except to do them justice.

The Oakland News adds:

The only way we can imagine for the newspaper man to come anywhere near pleasing people, is to write as he thinks, avoiding prejudice as far as possible, and use language fit for all to read—and let the rest take care of itself.

We thoroughly indorse the above, and if editors generally would take the advice, it would be a more agreeable, if not a more profitable calling.

The Sultan's Household.

The Sultan of Turkey pays almost daily visits to his collection of wild beasts and birds. Some he makes favorites, while to others he takes a dislike from the tone of their voices or other causes, and they are banished from the Imperial Gardens to the extremity of the seraglio. Men-of-war are sent to all parts of the world to increase his collection, and the Government of every province tries to afford him an agreeable surprise by costly presents—Arabian horses, carpets, fruits, etc. So, too, wealthy Mahomedans, as soon as they purchase a handsome slave, send her to the Sultan, who never refuses her. Of late years pictures and vases from China and Japan have accompanied these gifts, the Sultan having taken a passion for these, and having spent this year £60,000 on pictures. The palace expenditure has been £2,000,000 a year ever since his accession. His servants number 5,500—the kitchen employing 500, the stables 400, the menagerie 200 while there are 400 Caikdjis, 400 musicians. 300 doorkeepers of the twenty-one palaces and kiosques, and 100 porters. The harem has 1,200 inmates. The Sultan has 25 aids-de-camp, seven chamberlains, six secretaries, and at least 150 employes with various functions. There are 50 medical men, 150 blacks eunuch and 100 harem messengers, while they have under servants, so that 7,000 are daily fed in the palace at an average cost of £500,000 a year. The horses, 700 in number, are mostly presented by the Khedive. The stables cost at least £40,000 a year, and the harem £160,000, while the pensions of the Imperial Family amount to £1,821,600, and repairs to the palaces and kiosques £86,000, not to speak of the Sultan's passion for building, which since his accession must have swallowed up at least £560,000. His nominal civil list being only £1,240,000, the remainder of the £2,000,000 must figure in the budget under other items.

A Christmas Tree Tragedy.

A Brunswick girl took a great deal of pains with a pair of slippers for her beloved. On the toes, in flaming green, she worked a Cupid shooting a knitting needle into a cheese, and on the sides blue pelicans sported in yellow lakes. She hung the beautiful present upon a Christmas tree, duly labeled, and anxiously awaited the hour when he should rush into her presence and claim her for his own. Up to this date he has not rushed. On the contrary, he gave the wonderful slippers to the negro man who carried his notes to another girl—a girl who never gave him anything, but encouragement. Hath earth any greater sorrow than that which hath settled down upon the heart of the slipper-worker?—[Brunswick, Missouri, News.

—Two gentlemen representing San Francisco capitalists are in Los Angeles, taking measures for the organization of an opposition line of steamers between San Francisco and Santa Monica.

—"Oh! I'm only going to stop a minute, I don't need to cover my horse," is a frequent exclamation, when a friend goes to make a call at a house, store or shop. But the "minute" often extends to a quarter or half an hour, and in the meantime the horse suffers.

The Scarlet Fever.

[From "Good Health."]

It is as unnecessary for a child to die of scarlet fever as it is that it should be blind of cataract. Let us see: At any time before the body has finished its ineffectual struggle we are ready to help it, not by wonderful medicine, but by the knowledge of anatomy, and the application of common sense. We consult the sympathetic nerve, and do what it commends us to do. We must give this child salt when it wants it; we must give it acid when it has fever and anxiously craves it—not vinegar, but lemon juice, because the first coagulates the albumen, the latter does not, on account of the surplus of oxygen it contains. To imitate the soothing mucus in the intestines, which is now wanting, and to give some respiratory food at the same time, we add some gum arabic. To restore and relieve the injured nerve, we apply moist warmth.

In practice we can fulfill all this with the following simple manipulations: Undress the child and bring it to bed at the very first sign of sickness. Give it, if it already has fever, nothing but sourish warm lemonade, with some gum-arabic in it. Then cover its abdomen with some dry flannel. Take a well folded bed-sheet, and put it in boiling hot water; wring it out dry by means of dry towels, and put this over the flannel on the child's abdomen. Then cover the whole and wait. The hot cloth will, perhaps, require repeated heat. According to the severity of the case, and its stage of progress, perspiration will commence in the child in from ten minutes to two hours. The child then is saved; it soons falls asleep. Soon after, the child awakes; it shows slight symptoms of returning inclination for food; help its bowels, if necessary, with injections of oil, soap and water, and its recovery will be as steady as the growth of a green house plant, if well treated. Of course, if the child was already dying nothing could save it, or if it has already effusions in the lining of the heart or brain, it is much better it should die. But if the above is applied in time, under the eye and direction of a competent physician, I will guarantee that not one in a hundred will ever die of scarlet fever. I know this will startle some of my readers, especially those who have lost children already, but I shall go further. I maintain that a child will never get the scarlet fever if properly treated. If a child has a correctly mixed blood, it will not catch the disorder if put in bed with a sick child. This is still more startling, but nothing is easier of proof.

The President and the Thieves.—Carl Schurz's Opinion.

I know that the President has given some members of the Whisky Ring evidences of his confidence and even friendship, which, coming from any other source, would hardly bear explanation. But here we deal with a curious character, to whom other things can be applied to explain these things. We may say with truth that the man who deemed Charles Sumner capable of the basest and meanest act, while he embraced to his heart "Johnny McDonald" and such fellows, as his most intimate, bosom friends, having, up to the very doors of the penitentiary, full confidence in their integrity, has evidently no conception of the difference between a man of honor and a thief. We may also say that such a man, who clings to the worst and falsest of friends with even greater tenacity than his truest and best, must undoubtedly exercise almost a demoralizing influence upon public life, and, through his manner of carrying on the highest functions of the Government, become dangerous to the public; and that therefore it becomes the duty of all good citizens to put a stop to it just as soon as the law will allow; all these conclusions are justified. But all this is still far from actual participation in the frauds of the whisky ring. Indeed, is it possible the President would have permitted the investigation to go on which threatened the exposure of the whole frauds and all the participants in them, if he himself had belonged to them? Surely not; and it is certain he could have throttled the investigation in its incipiency if he had so desired. With such power as his, one who feels guilty could have found the means to do so, and would not have failed to have availed himself of them. Every suspicion of such participation, therefore, I hold to be unfounded and unjust.

—Conversation being dull at an evening party, the hostess requested one of her guests to go home, that the rest might have some one to talk about.

—If there is anything in the world that will make a woman mad it is to have a man hang over the fence and survey the week's washing on the line, and grin and grin.

—The Yolo Mail, combining sentiment with an eye to the main chance, makes the following cheerful suggestion: "We suggest to all persons concerned, considering the uncertainty of life, that they come immediately to The Yolo Mail office and get a first-class visiting card printed to carry with them, so that they may be identified in case they should accidentally drop off where they were not known. It seems sad to hear of so many people found dead without any cards or papers which give any intelligence as to who they are. We will furnish them with or without mourning borders at $2 per hundred—first-class quality of Bristol board."

Luttrell's Grazing Bill.

Mr. Luttrell has introduced a bil which, after declaring in a preamble that there are in various parts of California public lands neither mineral, agricultural, nor timber lands, but fit only for grazing, goes on to provide that any persons entitled to the benefit of the pre-emption and homestead laws, who is in the exclusive posession or may hereafter become possessed of any lands, may purchase an area not exceeding 640 acres of the same at fifty cents per acre, or pre-empt or homestead the same under the existing homestead and pre-emption statutes. If the lands are unsurveyed, they shall be surveyed by the proper officers, under the direction of the United States Surveyor General. But in such case it shall not be requisite to make any further survey than is necessary to establish the location and boundaries of the land, though all the surveys must be in accord with the general land survey system. Upon the completion of the survey the United States Surveyor General is to determine whether or not the land is grazing land, within the meaning of the Act, and shall certify his decision to the proper land officers, subject to an appeal, as in other cases. The last section requires every person claiming the benefit of the foregoing provisions to make oath that his application to purchase, pre-empt or homestead such lands is made in good faith to appropriate to his own exclusive use or benefit, and that he has not, directly or indirectly, entered into any contract or agreement to divert the title to any other person. False swearing in this respect is to be punished as perjury, and work a forfeiture of all right and title to the land, as well as moneys paid for it.

Bills Approved by the Governor.

The following is the list of the bills passed during the present session which have received Governor Irwin's approval, up to January 22:

To prevent changes in the text-books in the public schools.

For the relief of S. A. Baker.

Providing for additional Justice of the Peace and constable for the township and county of Los Angeles.

Authorizing the Superintendent of the Public Schools in Tehama county to apportion certain school moneys.

Repealing article of the Political Code establishing a State Marine Board.

For the support of the State Printing Office.

Amending Act protecting agriculture in Sacramento county.

For funding certain indebtedness in Sonoma county.

Amending Political Code concerning redemption of property sold for taxes.

Amending Section 3756 of Political Code, making taxes receivable up to six o'clock P. M. on the first Monday in January.

Repealing Sections 363 and 702 of the Political Code.

Amending the San Francisco Delinquent Tax law.

Pacific Coast Postal Changes.

The following postal changes have been ordered for the Pacific Coast: Offices established—At Altoona, Trinity county, California; Charles Howard, Postmaster. At Prairie Creek, Wasco county, Oregon; R. M. Downey, Postmaster. At Friday Harbor, San Juan county, Washington Territory; John Taylor, Postmaster. Offices discontinued—Piute, Kern county, California; Sitkum, Coos county, Oregon. Postmasters appointed—Charles F. Shagon, Darwin, Inyo county, California; John G. B. Broemme, at Panamint, Inyo county, California.

Senator Christiancy's Bill.

Senator Christiancy's bill in regard to jurors in Utah provides that any trial for bigamy or polygamy is a sufficient cause for a challenge and for the rejection of any jurors: First that he has more than one wife living in said Territory, whether married by ordinary rites or by so called sealing ceremony; or second, that he believes it morally right for a man to live with more than one wife.

Government Railroads.

According to telegrams, the Government of Germany is making efforts to purchase all of the railroads located in Prussia. This is to be the solution of the railroad problem, in all probability, all over the civilized world. Belgium was the first to move in this direction, and the experiment has been wonderfully successful.

Land Titles.

By a decision of the Supreme Court applications for Sixteenth and Thirty-sixth sections of school lands, which were made before the approval of the surveys of the same by the United States Surveyor General, are declared illegal, thereby setting aside many certificates of purchase held by parties throughout the State.

A CHANGE OF TACTICS.

By referring to our Benton correspondence it will be seen that J. M. Murphy of Panamint, having found his scheme of organizing a new county out of Inyo a hopeless undertaking, for the present at least, is going into collusion with certain parties of Benton, Mono county, and of Bishop Creek, in this county, by which he hopes to effect the next best thing for himself and employers, to wit, a restoration of the original boundary line, between Inyo and Mono, which, of course, would involve a change in the county seats of both counties. We confess, we are quite at a loss to understand what particular hope of gain Mr. Murphy can have in thus spending time and money to cause other people expense and trouble. However, we will not stop to inquire into motives now.

We do not propose to talk but very little about this proposition, not but what we deem it of the very first importance to the welfare of the county, but simply because, if people are so short sighted as to give encouragement to such a ruinous, unjust and selfish scheme, it is but little use to endeavor to dissuade them from it. But look at it. It is but a few months since Inyo county paid the last installment of $12,000 and accumulated interest, to Mono county for this very territory she now proposes to rob us of, without so much as saying thank'e or giving us any voice in the matter at all, if it can be helped.

To put it in the mildest possible terms, it would be an unmitigated fraud upon Inyo county, and scarcely less upon Mono and Inyo both. Saying nothing about the loss of territory, the price paid for it, and the general equities, it would involve Inyo county or what there would be left of it, in not one cent less than $25,000 extra expense in a re-location of the county seat; it would do exactly the same thing for Mono. But that would not be all it would cost that county by any means. Inyo county has a debt of over $92,000. Of this, Mono, while taking our territory, would in law and equity be compelled to take its exact pro rata of this debt, which would be about $35,000 to be added to the $25,000, making $60,000 in all of a new debt for Mono to start in with. With loss of territory Inyo, or what would be left of it, would be relieved of that amount of indebtedness on the one hand, but only to incur full as much on the other in the expense of a change in the county seat location. For this we have assumed it to cost only $25,000 in the case of Mono. It cost Inyo, while under the management of men just as honest and economical as either county is likely ever again to have, nearly $40,000 to prepare its present county buildings. As these schemers who are manipulating this present business would claim the prerogative of managing for each of the new counties in case of the success of their scheme, it would be perfectly safe thing to say that neither county with such managers need hope to change county seats and rebuild for any less than it cost Inyo. But it don't matter whether it would cost $40,000 or $200,000 to men who are not acuated by other than selfish motives, who are never contunt to let well enough alone.

But, allowing the lowest figures, Mono will simply be paying not a cent less than $60,000 for the privilege of robbing Inyo. Inyo will be paying full half as much for permitting herself to be robbed. The agricultural interest of Owens River Valley, which now, in question of governmental policy as between that and the mineral interest, is an effective unity, then becomes as a power a perfect nonentity in both counties. If the latter wishes to take the official control or any part of it, it can most surely do it, either in Mono or Inyo, after this division of the valley interest is consummated. Bishop is then a part of a mining county, in which, standing alone, she will have just as great a load to carry in certain ways we cannot stop to specify, as she now does in conjunction with the whole valley. She will not be scarce a rod nearer her new county seat. She will have exactly the same portion of the general debt to pay she now has, besides full one-half of an additional one, to be increased in bringing the Mono court house no nearer than this of Inyo now is. It is not in the bounds of possibility for taxation in Mono, if this change is made, to be less than that of Inyo at this time.

We defy any man in Inyo or Mono county to point out one single gain to accrue to either county or the territory to be cut off, that will in the remotest degree compensate the obvious and indisputable disadvantage that will inevitably follow. If there is the slightest promise of gain to anybody, save the few having a property interest in the proposed county seats, we would like any man to name it. On the other hand, it can be accepted as an inevitable certainty that the people of these two counties will create a new debt, for no adequate purpose, of well on to $100,000. Taxes in both will just as certainly be greater. This scheme might have something to commend it if it was to separate the mining and agricultural territory, giving each a separate county government, but on that score, if the present plan is carried out, it will even be worse for the agricultural portion, even Bishop Creek, than it now is. We repeat now what we have said hertofore, that Murphy's original scheme of erecting a new county out of Inyo, one being almost exclusively mineral the other principally agricultural, has a hundred times more promise of good for this valley at least, than this absurd, foolish and ruinous plan of division, which is nothing whatever other than for the personal aggrandizement of a few interested individuals at the cost of the many.

We have faith in the honor of our Representative, Dr. Griswold, who certainly has the power to kill the bill for this robbing scheme if not to pass it, over the better sense of the other members of the Legislature. But should he, without the unmistakable consent of all the parties in interest (by which we mean, a clear and decided majority) lend his power to thus rob one of the counties he represents for the assumed aggrandizement of the other, of which he happens to be a citizen, he would be doing a most dishonorable, unjustifiable thing, and would prove himself a traitor to those who have honored and trusted him.

—The vote of Los Angeles is estimated at over three thousand.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Concerning Salaries.

A petition is to be submitted for signatures asking the Legislature to increase the District Attorney's salary. It is to be expected the proposition will not receive universal endorsement, these hard times, but whether it does or not, there are some very good reasons in favor of it. It is true economy to pay any officer so that he can afford to devote his whole time and talents to his business. The salary now allowed our District Attorney will not near do this. It would not pay his traveling expenses, were he to attempt to do his whole duty, which, in all cases where the people are a party, require the presence of their attorney in every Justice's court, perhaps, in the county in the course of the year. In that case, either the expense of so many grand juries would be saved, or else more criminals would receive their deserts. This presupposes such attorney to be a competent lawyer. Except only on rare occasions, or exceptional ciscumstances, the ten or twelve hundred dollars a year will not secure the services of a lawyer capable of maintaining the people's rights as against those set up in opposition which are so generally maintained by the very best talent money will command. On the one side a conditional fee of $25 is expected to accomplish even more brilliant results than say $5,000 on the other. With such a huge percentage against, saying nothing about the obvious vantage ground nearly always enjoyed by the defense under law and rule, isn't it absurd for the $25, or people's side, to hope for better results than are generally achieved? And yet people growl, and have to foot bills of costs amounting to thousands of dollars in the end when much of it can be saved by paying competent agents a competent price in the beginning. We shall refer to this matter more in detail next issue.

Incorporated.

Paul W. Bennett got home from the Bay last Saturday, and from him we learn the particulars of the Union-San Felipe incorporation, in which he is an extensive stockholder. The incorporation was the means of settlement of the "big suit." It is known as the Union Consolidated Mining Company of Cerro Gordo. Capital stock, $10,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares. The Trustees and officers are: Egbert Judson, President; Geo. S. Mann, Vice President; Victor Beaudry, Treasurery; M. W. Belshaw, Superintendent and Galen M. Fisher, 5th Trustee. The mines included are the San Felipe, Union, Jefferson, Santa Maria and Omega, with which goes both the Belshaw and Beaudry furnaces. This consummation is one of great importance to this section. We think it will be conceded that the Union Consolidated has about as thoroughgoing and competent Superintendent as is generally found to look after the multifarious interest of such an extensive enterprise as this is quite certain to be. The other officers are, no doubt, just as well suited for their respective positions, but the acting Superintendent is the responsible man, we take it, in all such cases.

That Kimble Affair.

Last night we received a somewhat lengthy communication from a responsible gentleman of Cerro Gordo for publication over his own name, in answer to a certain mischevious, lying communication which last week, appeared in The Coso Mining News over the signature of "J. S. Thomson," reflecting most unjustly and gratuitously upon "Justice," a Cerro Gordo correspondent of this paper, in connection with his account of that Kimble-Salazar murder. This creature, who signs himself Thompson, made several assertions in his article, some, of which at least, we know to be false, and it is pretty evident that he did not write over his true name, for no such person as J. S. Thompson is to be found in Cerro Gordo, as we are assured by numerous responsible citizens of that place. It is utterly out of the question for us to give place to this communication in this issue, but will do so next week, and also, to so much of this "Thompson" statement ae may be necessary to give an idea of its scope to those who have not seen it.

Got a Ducking.

California boys are not so used to ice water duckings as the eastern boy, and only those of the mountain counties ever see ice enough to wear out the tender portion of their pants on. Our town scholars struck it rich, the other day, on a duck pond—those at least who skated around the circle, but those in the center didn't think it so funny when they broke through up to their arms into the water. It was a comical sight as their treble voices raised in concert, "Oh, teacher, save us!" No doubt all their little transgressions such as playing "hookey," rushing into the print shop and disturbing the compositors, stoning cats, etc., was vividly portrayed before their guilty consciences while in the chilly bath.

Weather.

The weather for the past week has "chopped" considerably. It has alternately been trying to snow, rain, freeze hard and thaw out, and after sputtering about this way to its heart's content, making single folks disagreeable and giving every body the epizooty, it is evincing a desire to let up and moderate for awhile. Enough snow fell in the valley to whiten the ground for a short period, but farther south at Little Lake and on the desert about Red Rock, Grape Vine Canyon and Ivanpah, the snow fell from four to five inches in depth. None at all fell in Darwin, that town being situated in a strip of country that is rarely ever visited by snow.

Thanks.

The junior returns thanks for the many congratulations offered on the successful termination of his little experiment in the manipulations of the lightning pots. Had it been the senior's operations it would have been no matter of surprise, as he is a married man, consequently could have stood a thunder bolt or two, thrown in to boot.

Expected.

Brother Jeems Parker, our late junior, and family are going to make Inyo their permanent home. Mrs. P., and family, arrived a couple of days since at Bishop Creek where they will tarry a short time. Jas. E. has not yet left Virginia City, his late home, but will be on in a week or two.

To Start Up.

John Broder was in from Log Springs early this week. Through him we learn that his furnace was to start up again today, having been delayed a short time after otherwise ready, to be sure of a supply of coal to keep it running straight along.

Inyo's First Telegraph.

The first lightning ever utilized for practical purposes north of Caliente or south of Aurora, was set in motion last Sunday by the Inyo Consolidated Calithumpian Telegraph Company. It was a memorial day, for the transactions of that day will occupy a conspicuous place in the history of Inyo. Although there were no loud huzzahs when the last pole was raised to split the virgin breezes (the first pole was raised at the same time), and although the gaping multitude didn't enthuse and call out the President of the I. C. C. T. Co. to make flowery speeches, yet each individual felt in his heart that the little fiery agent introduced in their midst was the forerunner of prosperity, wealth, happiness, empty jails and the demoralization of transgressors generally. We shall avoid going into details concerning the topography of the territory traversed, and, for the benefit of the guiless stranger, try and not exaggerate the length of the circuit completed. The actual distance from the main office at The Independent office to the terminus at the Land Office is considerable and the return multiplied by the expectations of the company is about a "right smart chance." In lieu of poles the company decided to make use of extempore buildings, etc, but they do not recommend the practice, in fact they will use their influence in the endeavor to get the bill, now before the Legislature, through, which prohibits telegraph companies from making telegraph poles of peoples' houses, bridges, etc., the magnetic influence being a detriment to the buildings and the weight of the wire on the bridges endangers the peoples' lives. There should, also, be an amendment to the bill for the protection of our native sage brush, for should the telegraph corporations monopolize them to string their wires on, it would necessitate the trimming of the trees, thus mar the beauty of our scenery and possibly blight the fruit. However, the company will consider all these important points in regard to our private citizens' rights, at their earliest convenience. Everything being in readiness Sunday night the operators took their respective positions and fired up for business, but the first attempt was a failure; the message would only make about half the circuit and return to where it started from so a small boy was dispatched with the message, but this also, was a failure for the boy would stop to play marbles with the Piutes and the idea was abandoned. In connection with this an important discovery was made, and it is to regreted that Professor Morse is dead for probably he didn't know that a circuit would be broken where both wires hang on the same insulator. This was the dicovery—it was soon remedied and the circuit made complete. Ye junior, one of the boss engineers, seated himself to open the line with congratulations, etc. to Mr. Levin, who had charge of the other end; he could think of nothing more appropriate or fitting for the occasion than dropping a few tears as a tribute to the memory of Ben. Franklin and his kite—he sent them with his love, but the Land Office man misconstrued the message, as operators are wont to do, and it appeared to him thus, "I'm cold and dry—send me an old fashioned cock-tail." The mixture was forwarded and was eventually used to wet down the armature and key to temper the over-charged, but now subjugated lightning. During the week the wires have worked splendidly and regular communications are received concerning the climatic influences on the operators and notes compared. For the present the company have magnanimously opened their lines to the public and messages are transmitted gratis, but as the operators are not sworn to official secrecy, conspirators are warned to be cautious. The ground current of their batteries is connected with the ground currents of all the rest of the world and by this means daily cablegrams may be expected direct from Europe. Any one wishing to take stock in the enterprise can do so without risk for the company's private means are immense and their time is still more immense. They propose unraveling all the mysteries pertaining to the science—leaving no experiment half investigated. It is said that by connecting the zinc pole of a battery to a couple of old maids who are in the act of kissing the sparks caused by the friction of their lips are instantly transmitted to the sounder and a succession of astonishing remarks will be the result; that by introducing stout wires promiscously among the rising generation you can obtain a civil answer; that a little manufactured lightning under the seat of a young writer will elicit a few original phrases; that by passing a coil of copper wire under the tongue of a modern talker he will cease to brag of himself and die in the attempt to acknowledge his superiors, besides many other marvelous things which will be experimented on and the result given in due course of time.

Water Scarce.

During the cold snap this week, every well in town went dry and the mountain streams were blockaded at their sources. For one day, at least, there was no water to be had for any purpose. Our boss devil gained a fearful appetite exercising around town in search of water enough to wash the forms. He finally brought up in the brewery and substituted lager, and then striking an attitude, exclaimed, "At a time like this, what would become of our property in case some fractious cow kicked over a lamp?"

New Buildings.

Mr. J. L. Woods, our popular wheelwright, has been treating himself to a new dwelling house and now his friends are urging him to take unto himself a house-keeper. Do it, uncle Woods,—we will send you a subscription and do your printing gratis. L. Wood, the merchant, has, also, been building an addition for a store room.

Our Benton Letter.

BENTON, MONO CO., Jan. 25.

MESSRS. EDS.—Since my last letter to you I have learned some additional facts about that county matter. Mr. Murphy, of Panamint, has left Sacramento, believing his new county scheme to be at an end. He now proposes a partnership with Benton and Bishop Creek to rob Inyo and Bridgeport [Mono county] both of their court houses, by getting some gentlemen from either this place or Bishop to return with him to the Capital, and work for the at Big Pine. This, of course, will leave your place and the "Bridge" both out in the cold. I think Inyo and the "Bridge" had better make a "cow" and send some one to the Capital, with instructions to fight it out on that line if takes all Winter.

RE-ESTABLISHMENT OF THE OLD COUNTY LINE

MILL MATTERS.

Two of our mills are now shut down; Mack's for the want of ore, but will only be idle for a few days, as it is merely waiting for the new hoisting works to get fairly to work. The Consolidated mill is stopped for the want of a scientific man to take charge and run it. I understand they have secured the services of Mr. Aaron, but whether it is he who made the golden calf deponent saith not. But we still have three mills which are running day and night. B. B. Alverson's is doing well. Superintendent B. B. running it himself, and I must say he can mix you up as good a whisky straight as any man this side the Bay. Geo. Crass' is running constantly, and there anybody can get justice in the way of gin, pickled tripe, or most anything else that's good to eat; Dan Ashley's mill goes late and early, with Tim Lynch to feed batteries, which he knows how to do.

OTHER THINGS.

Mr. Abbott has gone to San Francisco to attend the races, and to train his three mares. Old Sandy and the Superintendent of Indian Instruction are doing well in the fur business, and I believe there are a good many others who have taken stock in the concern. Last Thursday we came near having a very serious affray. Three or four young "bloods" drew their knives, and for a time it looked as if blood would certainly be spilled; but D. C. drew his ten-inch blade and disarmed the other boys, and thereby restored peace and quiet.

SLAP JACK.

For a Postal Route.

A petition is being circulated in this county and Tulare, and is receiving the signatures of everybody, praying the establishment of a postal route direct from Visalia via Porterville and Mineral King to Lone Pine. This route would shorten mail time from here to San Francisco about twelve hours, as it is only about 90 miles across to the railroad at Visalia. The principal point to be subserved is Mineral King; thence to this valley is only about 25 miles to complete a through line, which, as above stated, would be dicidedly the shortest, and therefore, the most advantageous to mining and other interests, when dispatch is generally so essential, of any we have, or in the nature of the country, ever can have.

Brown's Water.

B. L. Brown had the good judgment to go for the bottom of his well, at the Pioneer Stables, and struck a pretty good supply of water at only 25 feet from the surface. He says now he is going in "cahoots" with the weather clerk. The clerk is to do the drying up and B. L., the selling of water.

Hay for Darwin.

A half a dozen large teams loaded with hay for Darwin, camped near this office yesterday, and heavily loaded teams pass nearly every day for different points south. Hay sells at $60 per ton, wholesale, in Darwin.

An Opportunity.

Our young friend Morris Levin, who, besides being an accomplised musician, is an expert telegraph operator, and any one desiring lessons in this most useful acquirement, can be accommodated by making application to him.

An Ill-Fated Family.

A Sedalia, (Mo.) dispatch of the 19th says:

David Turley, aged 34 years, is under sentence of death in the Sacramento (Cal.) jail. Turley is from this county. His brother, James M. Turley, writes Col. Philips to secure evidence that David had been subject to insanity—this plea to shield him from the gallows. No evidence of this character can be adduced in this county, hence Turley will doubtless be executed. His family seem fated. His father killed himself during the war; his older brother killed his mother by accident, and was himself afterward killed by bushwhackers, from which his oldest sister became insane and died. John Turley, another brother, was murdered in a row in western Kansas about one year ago. James M., who now appeals for his condemned brother's life, was only lately discharged from eighteen months imprisonment in the Colorado jail for shooting a man at Central City.

Law Affecting Administrators.

Senator O'Conner has introduced a bill concerning Public Administrators to this effect:

At the expiration of the term of office of every Public Administrator, it shall be the duty of his successor in office to examime the inventory and accounts of said outgoing Administrator, in every estate which had been under the latter's charge during his term of office, and when said successor in office shall have reason to believe that there are any moneys or funds in the possession or in the hands of said outgoing Administrator and not accounted for or paid over to the County Treasurer, the incoming Administrator shall sue said outgoing Administrator on his official bond, and recover three times the value of said moneys and funds in any Court having jurisdiction, and shall be entitled to retain 10 per cent. thereof to his own use, paying the balance over to the County Treasurer.

—The Sisters of Charity of Virginia City have purchased a three-fourths interest in the Gold Hill ditch in Mason's Valley, and also a large tract of arable land lying contiguous to it.

—The cold is so severe at Austin, that water pipes are bursting all over town, and the trouble has become so general that a water famine is imminent in some places.

—Mayor Beaudry of Los Angeles, has been offered, and has refused $125,000 for his water franchise and works, which his energy has constructed out of an unproductive swamp.

The Trespass Law.

So far we get no very clear conception of what the Legislature is trying to do in relation to the fence law, or, for the matter of that, of any other legislation as regards terms or details of proposed laws. Printer's ink seems to be costly down that way, else postage prevents Representatives from sending printed copies of bills to constituents, as we should think they ought to do in all matters of special local importance. From The Bulletin correspondent we have the following in relation to the fence law:

Senator Graves, on Saturday, introduced a bill amending the No-Fence Law of last session. The bill is the result of a conference of the delegations of the southern counties to which that bill was made applicable. It is a very long one; an impression appears to have gone abroad that this bill is inimical to the farmer and for the benefit of the stock-raiser. This, Senator Lindsey informs me, is not the case. The Act of last session is only amended in details for the better carrying out of its provisions, and will, therefore, benefit the farmer. One of its chief provisions is a clause providing for the appointment of Constables as Pound-keepers, thus remedying a difficulty which has existed under the original act upon the impounding of the animals found trespassing. The bill stands referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

Careless Handling of Children.

I wish to enter a protest in the name of all nervous persons and of the injured little ones against the reckless way in which many heedless persons express their love for children, such as lifting them up by their heads, tossing and catching them in the air, carrying infants on their hands without any support to their backs, and otherwise endangering their limbs or senses. I have now in my mind the case of a man who was rendered a cripple for life through his father's carelessness in lifting him by the ankles, while he was a small child, he (the father) having unfortunately lost his balance and turned the child's ankles in such a way that he was lame ever afterward. Two different persons have told me that they knew when too late that by their thoughtless play with them they seriously injured infants intrusted to their care, one case resulting in spinal disease and the other in fits. And yet it is a sight daily to be seen, that of people doing these things. Do give the little folks tender handling!—[Rural New Yorker.

General Beauregard Applies for Removal of His Disabilities.

Following is the letter of General Beauregard applying for the removal of his political disabilities:

NEW ORLEANS, January 9, 1876.

DEAR GENERAL:—My friends here, believing that I can be of service to the State of Louisiana by becoming a member of the proposed Levee Board of Commissioners, have expressed a desire that I should apply to have my disabilities, removed, so there should be no doubt of my ability to hold a State appointment. I beg you, therefore, to have the kindness to present to Congress my application for the removal of my disabilities.

Yours, G. P. T. BEAUREGARD.

To Gen. G. B. Gordon, United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

Altitudes.

Mr. J. B. Hiskey, Deputy United States Mining Surveyor, furnishes the following statement of the altitudes on the stage road from Aurora via Columbus to Alida: Aurora, 7,775 feet; Five Mile Ranch, at foot of Aurora grade, 6,831 feet; Fletcher's Station, at the junction, 6,615 feet; Big Bend, 8,218 feet; First Summit, 9,004 feet; Toll House, 7,865 feet; Powell & Wild's Station, 6,574 feet; Indian Spring Station, 7,268 feet; Second Summit, 7,768 feet; Teel's Marsh, 5,015 feet; Bellville, 6,111 feet; Columbus, 4,248 feet; Oasis, (Piper's Ranch), 5,490 feet; Alida, 6,111 feet.—[Borax Miner, Jan. 15.

Discount on Silver.

The discount on silver coin is an anomaly. In New York it is graded according to denomination, as follows: Trade dollars, 2@3 per cent. discount; half dollars and quarter dollars, 4@5 per cent. discount; dimes, 8@13 per cent. discount. In San Francisco, the practice is somewhat reversed, trade dollars being subject to a greater discount than the fractional parts of a dollar, dimes alone excepted, while half dimes command a premium. And yet all silver coin is a legal tender to the amount of five dollars.

—A Eureka man had the cheek to make capital off the Vigilance Committee of that town. Being hard up and desirous of reaching the Black Hills, he went about among the towns people and stated he had received a note signed "601," ordering him to leave town in 48 hours on penalty of death, and the sympathetic populace "chipped in" and gave him money enough to take him to Cheyenne.

—The Erie Railway, one of the longest lines of railroad in the world, employs 15,000 persons in various occupations. It is estimated that there is scarcely an hour of the day or night when there are not one hundred trains actually running along the line.

—A Winnemucca Chinawoman, who had been abused by her owner, committed suicide by taking poison Wednesday night. Her owner became frantic at the affair, saying that she cost him $450.

—The total length of the Sutro tunnel from its mouth to its intersection with the Comstock lode will be 19,899 feet, of which 11,807 feet are now completed.

—The grand spelling match at Virginia, a short time ago, was an exciting affair, and the first prize of $20 in gold coin was won by Miss Minnie Shirts.

Food for Children.

Children do not like fat meat, so give them good bread and butter, and allow them plenty of sugar. A chemist will tell you that both fatty substances and saccharine or sweet substances are eventually oxidized in the body. Sugar is the form to which many other things have to be reduced before they are available as a heat-making food; and the formation of food is carried on in the body. It has been proved that the liver is a factory in which other constituents of food are transformed into sugar. Now, it is probable that your children really need sugar to keep them well, and it is fortunate that most children are fond of vegetable acids. A saucer of berries, or a ripe apple, is often a better corrective for children's ailments than a dose of medicine; yet the majority of parents give the nauseous dose in preference over the fruit. It does seem sometimes as if parents were occupied more in denying than gratifying their children's appetites. This is neither necessary nor fair. They get as tired of bread and milk as you would.

Divorces.

Six hundred and forty-two applications for divorce were filed in the Clerk's office in San Francisco the past year, and three hundred and fifty-four were granted. Only two cases were refused, and the balance were settled between the interested parties.

--A Brooklyn clergyman, when called upon to visit a dying milkman, said: "I'll go; but it isn't any sort of use. I never knew our Heavenly Father to forgive one of that class yet."

--A Los Angeles county woman, who had been deaf and dumb for several years, was recently cured by being thrown from a mule.

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Numberf, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World: Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

Plain Women.

Among plain women of exalted rank who have been wanting in beauty are Margaret of Sweden; Matilda, Empress of Germany, and Christiana, of Sweden. Fuvia, wife of Anthony, had few personal charms; nor had Terentia, wife of Cicero, if one may trust to the majority of historians; but most of these have found some admirers among biographers. Neither Ann, of Cleves, nor Catherine, of Aragon, were good looking, still for a while they swayed the fickle heart of their Bluebeard husband. Queen Anne was a dowdy, graceless woman in her best days. Cromwell's wife was plain.

When Queen Anne, of Bohemia, came to England as a bride, there was a pageant at Cheapside of a castle with two towers, from both of which ran fountains of wine, and we are told that the beautiful girls who blew gold leaf into the faces of the King and Queen caused the plain bride to look plainer; yet she made her way into the good graces of King and people. In France the gay and pleasure loving plain women have gained many laurels. Madame de Stael is a memorable instance, though no one was more conscious of her personal defects. Even her name was a power in itself.

The great Napolean condescended to be so jealous of her influence that no persuasion would induce him to allow her to return to France. Mademoiselle de Lespinaisse, one of the most fascinating women of her day, who exercised a marked influence on those around her, was marked with small-pox. Madame Geoffrin was a plain woman. Madame de Epinay was neither beautiful nor clever, but most attractive. Madame de Mailly was the plainest woman of the court.

Maria Leczinski, daughter of Stanislaus, King of Poland, wife of Louis XV, was good, but uninteresting; and that famous Palatine Princess, second wife of Philip, Duke of Anjou, brother of Louis XIV, and mother of the Duke of Orleans, the Regent during Louis XV's minority—a woman who exercised more sway than any other of her time—was coarse of feature, and so ungainly that her large hands passed into a proverb. She was of masculine habits, clinging to the customs of Germany, and wore a short, close wig like a man's.

The Way the Money Goes.

A Washington dispatch of January 21st says that among the points brought to the attention of the Sub-Committee on Postal Affairs is the dubious practice, running back seven years, of permitting mail agents to draw a salary from the Government and charge traveling expenses when they had not raised a hand in the public service outside their offices. The salaries of agents of the departments range from $2,500 to $3,000 a year; besides this they are allowed under the law $5 per diem for traveling expenses when en route. It is found, however, in the face of the law, bills for traveling expenses are regularly allowed to men who never leave their desks in Washington. When cases of this sort reach up into the hundreds, as the records show they do, the loss to the Government may be estimated. Postmaster-General Jewell admits the practice, and admits that an opinion of the Attorney-General forbids it; but he felt constrained to continue it because it had been sustained by his predecessor.

Third Term.

The third term project receives this vigorous snub from The N. Y. Independent: The delegates of the next National Republican Convention would be downright fools if they nominated President Grant in the face of certain defeat as a consequence thereof. Conventions are not apt to select candidates simply as a compliment to them when the selection is sure to bring defeat to the party they represent. The nomination of President Grant for a third term would almost certainly give the victory to the Democratic party; but we see no prospect of the danger of any such folly on the part of the next Republican National Convention. It is unfortunate for the President himself, as it has been for the Republican party, that he has not long since put an end to this third term discussion. He might very easily have have done so without hunting for an occasion, or any sacrifice of official dignity.

The Comstock Lode.

[From The Virginia Enterprise.]

As much as has been said about the Comstock lode those most intimate with it do not comprehend it, while people abroad have no conception of it. Its daily yield is two thousand tons. That is, from this ore channel there is every day extracted ore enough to load ten trains of twenty cars each, and those car-loads would average $700 in value each. This is dug out of a space of ground less than three miles in length and less than four hundred feet in width. Indeed, when we confine the estimate to the part of the ledge which at this time is yielding ore, we find that a half mile in length will cover the whole ground. When we compare that stream of gold and silver to anything ever heard or read of before in history or romance we discover that everything else ever talked about begins to seem small and mean. Dumas pictured a man who was able through his wealth to almost subvert empires and to make Fate his servant. And yet in the next eighteen months the Comstock will supply money enough to balance the tremendous account which Dumas placed to the credit of the imprisoned sailor. We see the figures piled up in the newspapers which in dollars represent the national debt. That debt is so tremendous that though the fortunes of forty millions of people, an empire of three millions of square miles with its cities, townships, mines, fertile soil are all mortgaged for its faithful payment, still the promise of the Government (which is the people) to pay is at a discount of fifteen per cent. And yet as the Comstock is yielding this year and as it promises to yield for many years to come, it will take it but thirty-five years to add to the treasure of the earth as much as that debt to-day amounts to. For more than a quarter of a century San Francisco has been the shipping port of the Pacific. In the country back of it thousands of men have been toiling in the richest land in the world, and San Francisco has gathered almost all the net profits of their work. Lured by the marvelous opportunities offered there, rich men have gathered there and built up a city, until to-day it is ample in size to accommodate its two hundred thousand inhabitants. And yet the accumulated wealth of all those thousands is but equal to five years' product of the Comstock. Indeed, a single quarter of a mile in length of the mighty vein holds in sight to-day treasure enough to almost buy that city.

The Ottoman Empire, peopled by more than thirty-five millions of people, and covering the seat of the earliest civilization and the loviest land on earth is about to be declared a bankrupt because she owes about as much money as the Comstock will probably yield in the next twenty years. But it is idle to extend these comparisons. It is simply marvelous, and the indications now are that the coming sixteen years will add to the wonder which the last sixteen years has created. We heard a shrewd man say a few days since: "The wonder of the second Centennial of American Independence is to be the destroying of the value of gold and silver. It is going to be cheap as iron before another century comes around." We do not think the remark was quite justified by present appearances, but there is no telling what will happen when another thousand feet in depth is reached on the mother vein.

The Chinese New-Year.

It is not the first day of January, nor January at all, but the sixth day of February that ushers in the Chinese New-Year. The grandest festival in all the calendar, so think the Celestials; and they celebrate it with the most imposing ceremonies. Not a man, woman or child that does not take part in the festivities; neither the infant of days nor the man of a century, the millionaire nor the beggar—none may be excused from donning his best, and going out holidaying on New-Year. From the Emperor in his gorgeous palace, surrounded with pomp and luxury, down to the humblest subject, living and rearing his family perhaps in a boat, where kitchen, laundry, nursery and bedroom are all encompassed within the narrow limits of a space about twelve feet square,—everyone, according to his rank and ability, enters with heart and hand into the festivities of the season. All business is suspended, and for three days at least, mirth, jollity and feasting rule the realm, while some of the wealthy keep, up for a much longer time, the routine of gayeties. All who can possibly procure it don on New-Year's Morn an entire new suit, no article of which has ever been worn before; but even the very poor are sure to be arrayed in at least one new garment—a cheap hat, fan or handkerchief, if nothing more costly can be afforded.—[St. Nicholas for February.

That Note.

A dispatch from Madrid to Washington says: Respecting the negotiations between Spain and the United States it is semi-officially pointed out that the Washington government, not yet having replied to the Spanish note of the 15th of November, 1875, nor having officially communicated at Madrid the contents of the American circular note to the European powers, all hopes of a favorable reply frhm Spain may be regarded as destitute of foundation.

—The editor who was told that his last article was clear as mud, replied: "Well, that covers the ground, anyhow."

Capital Punishment.

Advocates of the abolition of capital punishment will find matter to reflect upon the experience of Sweden in this direction. Formerly the crime of murder was punished with death and the punishment was rigorously applied in every case. While this law was in enforced murder was very rare indeed. During the last year the king has favored a less severe penalty, and he has commuted the sentence of every murderer who has been condemned to the scaffold by the courts. The consequence has been such an alarming increase in the number of murders that the press and the people have become clamorous for protection, and the King, recognizing the force of public opinion and the necessity for a change in the method of disposing of assassins, has just consented to confirm the sentence of death in the cases of two murderers. No one would regret to see the death penalty abolished, if it could be done with safety to society. The sentimental regard for the poor murderer may, however, be carried too far; as, for instance when it is done at the expense of an increase in the number of victims, as in Sweden.

St. Nicholas for February

Is out, and with the usual number of stories, sketches, poems and pictures. Its frontispiece is a very effective drawing by that admirable artist, Mary A. Hallock, illustrating the opening story of "The Black Douglas," contributed by Hezekiah Butterworth. Among the other stories are "The Two Goats," by Susan Coolidge; "The Shower of Gold," a dainty little fable by R. R. Bowker; "Sally Watson's Ride," a thrilling narrative; "All for Bijou," the record of a very laughable predicament; and one of Mr. Trowbridge's capital "Bass Cove Sketches." The serials, Mr. Brook's Western story, and Mr. Bayard Taylor's narrative of Icelandic life, continue as interesting as ever.

Brainard's Musical World.

No person interested in music can afford to be without this valuable musical monthly. Each number contains forty pages of elegant new music and choice musical reading. As the music in each number would alone cost, in usual sheet form, more than the subscription price for one year, we know of no better investment for those desiring a monthly supply of the best new music at a trifling cost. Send $1 50 to S. Brainard's Sons, Cleveland, O., and you receive the "World" regularly one year, together with a valuble book of 216 pages, entitled "Musical Hints," as a premium; or for 15 cents a sample copy will be sent.

Another Comstock.

A Los Angeles paper is the authority for the statement that Senator Jones' new Kernville mine is apt to be the opening of a second Comstock. A prodigious body of ore has already been disclosed by levels, shafts, cross cuts, etc., this account figuring the discovery at 600,000 tons as a starter, and each ton assaying $300, with no end of the probable result in the vast deposit.

Wide Awake.

Minnesota, always wide awake in the matter of advertising her resources, proposes to appropriate $35,000 for the purpose of making a creditable exhibit at the Centennial Exposition. Of this sum $12,000 are to be reserved for the construction of a building which is to be exclusively devoted to the exposition of Minnesota products.—[Omana Bee.

—A prominent Sacramento bachelor received a delicately scented billet the other day, written in a beautiful female hand, claiming the privilege of the Leap Year, and expressing a deep admiration of him, together with a request to meet the writer in a designated spot that evening. This he did, and was met by a richly apparelled person who poured out an impassioned tale of love, to which the bachelor gracefully responded, and, raising the veil, imprinted a warm kiss beneath it. At this interesting juncture the group was made the focus of the glare of half a dozen dark lanterns, and the bachelor found himself in the centre of a crowd of laughing acquaintances who "had put up a job," and a look at the lady showed her to be a man in woman's apparel. A supper made everything right, however.

—The editor of The Austin Revelle had fourteen offers of marriage from as many young ladies within ten minutes of the first sound of the bells announcing the advent of leap year. At least that is the statement he confidentially whispered to the President of the Sazerac Lying Club.

—The Herald obtains the gratifying information by cable from London that the supposed female gorilla in the Zoological Gardens at Dresden, just before she died, recognized her relationship to Director Schoepf, and kissed him tenderly thrice. The Director was visibly affected, and became a Darwinite from that moment.

—Horace Greeley's advice to "Go west" was a glaring swindle. The fact that the Indians have been living west all their lives, and are still poor, with scarce enough clothes to cover their nudity, proves this.

Modest

The Southern Pacific Railway recently proposed to Flint, Bixby & Co., owners of the Lomas de Santiaga ranch in Los Angeles county, that they should give up half of their property as a bonus to the road for running its track through it. The road has now applied in Washington to the Attorney General to set aside the patent issued to Flint, Bixby & Co.

THAT DISMEMBERMENT PROPOSITION.

That proposition to dismember this county in favor of Mono looks rather too unreasonable to appear to be worth serious consideration, but it is evident our Representative attaches some importance to it, since he is desirous of obtaining the general sentiment upon it. We cannot conceive what kind of a Legislature it would be that would take the responsibility of disturbing county relations as proposed in that petition without first having a full and reliable expression of all the people interested. It is hardly possible it would dare to do it on such a mere ex parte presentation. It would be beyond precedent if it was to do so, particularly when its disinterested members are made acquainted with the fact that it is an issue seriously affecting the whole people of two counties, trumped up and sureptitiously presented to them for final action, without ever having been even hinted at as a probable issue in the election for the Representative whose influence is of the first importance in its determination. But, since these disinterested members do not know anything about it except what is set before them in that petition—and furthermore, it may be plausibly shown to them that it means nothing more than the restoration of previously existing boundaries, changed to suit peculiar and merely temporary conditions, now not requiring a longer continuance, it will be far safer for the adverse interest to make a counter statement in the way of a remonstrance by which the Legislators may be disabused of any possible wrong impression likely to mislead them to our cost. We are confident Mr. Griswold proposes to do whatever is right in this matter, even though that might in a certain sense be against his own individual predilections. But, if left to hear but one side, he and the rest may be mislead as to what is right. That petition does not even hint at the restitution of money paid by this county for that territory, much less at an equitable assumption of its proportion of the Inyo debt, and yet, if granted at all, it is just as likely to be as prayed for as with equitable conditions, supposing equity to be associated with such a scheme of robbery in any manner. Of course the constitutional provision against impairing contracts would in the end be sufficient to compel a payment, and equitable division of the county debt and all that, but that is a contingency we have no need to invite or permit. If so disposed, and we have no reason to think they are otherwise, our Board of Supervisors as a body ought to endorse a remonstrance, which, we are assured on the best of authority, will receive the names of nearly or quite every business man from Big Pine south to Darwin and Panamint, and also, a majority of Bishop Creek and Round Valley. This is all Mr. Griswold desires to relieve whatever question he may entertain as to what he should do in the premises.

An Economical Suggestion.

The Chronicle says 40,000 readers read its advertisements every day. As it will take about an hour for each reader to get through with the advertisements, which do not concern but comparitively few, we may estimate that those advertisements cause a waste of about 38,000 hours every day. Such being the case it would be true economy for this economical Legislature to send their Blacksmith sneaking down there and have him knock The Chronicle out of existence.

The New York World.

The above paper, the leading Democratic paper of the United States, has published its World Almanac for 1876, and a valuable one it is. For instance it gives the vote of each and every county in the Union at the last election, and therefore, to a prognosticating politician it is invaluable. The Weekly World is furnished a whole year for only $1. Address "The World, 37 Park Row, New York."

Improved.

The Musical Echo, for January, is a credit to its publisher. Its name is changed to Hempsted's Musical Echo, and is greatly improved by being printed on fine tinted book paper and bound with a bright green cover which adds very much to its appearance. It only costs $1 per annum. H. N. Hempsted, Broadway, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

A Whisky Bill, Etc.

The Senate has ordered to engrossment a bill making it a missdemeanor to give intoxicating liquor to an habitual drunkard or to a prisoner in a county jail; and making the term of office of Supervisors three years, commencing on the first Monday in January after election.

Nebraska.

The Omaha Bee sends us a copy of its huge New-Year's illustrated edition, which, in general excellence, compares well with any effort in that direction we have seen. It is full of splendid pictures of Omaha and surroundings, and appropriate reading matter.

Babcock a Gone Coon.

A St. Louis special says that the conviction of General Babcock seems absolutely certain. The Government attorneys assert that they will land him in the penitentiary.

Blockaded.

The Central Pacific experienced a snow blockade at Humboldt Wells last week, which stopped trains for several days. The blockade has since been raised, and trains are running on time.

Gen. Thomas Bullion.

The Borax Miner, of Jan. 29, says: Three bars of bullion were shipped from the General Thomas mill this week, aggregating $5,166 80.

A STATE DETECTIVE EORCE.

There is a proposition before the Legislature to establish a State Detective Force. It is designed particularly to ensure the prompt arrest of highwaymen and robbers—a class of criminals who, having rendezvous and hiding-places widely separated, remote from telegraph stations and difficult of access, have hitherto been signally successful in evading capture. Aided by the situation of the country, they move rapidly from point to point; persistent, long-continued pursuits cannot be made by Sheriffs without neglect of other legitimate duties; and, in the nature of things, that prompt and thorough concert of action essential to success cannot be had between Sheriffs of different counties.

There being no provision in the laws of the State to repay a Sheriff for the expense of an unsuccessful pursuit, he has no inducement beyond the impulse of professional zeal and pride to continue pursuit beyond the boundary lines of his own county. To do so with a posse is a serious draft upon his private purse, his only source of reimbursement for the outlay being the possibility that a friendly Legislature may grant a relief bill in his favor—a kind of special legislation against which there is a growing prejudice, based upon serious and well-grounded objections. With a State Detective Force consisting of a Chief and ten deputies—men familiar with the haunts, habits and hiding-places of banditti—the State can soon be effectually purged of banded outlaws and professional robbers, and at a comparatively small expense to the State. Vasquez alone cost the State, from the date of the Tres Pinos massacre, upwards of $40,000. The first duty of the Government is the protection of the lives and property of its citizens; and it is certainly time the State made a decisive move toward checking the operations of the robbers now infesting the public highways. The bill provides that the Force shall co-operate with Sheriffs and other officers, and aid District Attorneys in procuring and arranging evidence in difficult cases. The duties will in no way interfere with those of other officers.

The Governor is to have the appointment of the Chief of the Force, he to select his own deputies. The headquarters will be in San Francisco, the deputies through the State at large, each from a given section with the topography of which he will be perfectly familiar, upon which, of course the efficiency of the Force is largely contingent. The Chief is to have a salary of $4,000 per annum, and each deputy $2,400, besides actual traveling expenses. Such outlays are to be itemized and verified by oath. No member of this Force is to be allowed to be a delegate or representative of any political party, or to be selected for partisan reasons, or in any manner subject to political influence. Each and every member of the Force is strictly inhibited from receiving any rewards of any sort or character for the arrest of criminals, beyond his regular pay.

An Act like that herein proposed has been thoroughly tested in Massachusetts and other States, and has accomplished the most satisfactory results. Such a Detective Force has long been needed in California, and now that the State is being rapidly filled up by immigrants from all quarters—among them some of the most dangerous criminals in existence—who seek here a safe harbor from the prying eyes of the detectives of the Eastern States and of the Old World—the creation of a State Detective Force has become a necessity. Judicious management of a Detective Bureau—composed of officers selected solely on account of their known experience, capability, honesty and energy—cannot fail to soon create an esprit du corps certain to accomplish the most satisfactory results, and without other hope or expectation of reward than that provided in this Act, and the credit earnest and competent men ought to receive, and which such men always value far above mere sordid considerations.

Other Crooked Things.

The gigantic proportions of the whisky frauds, as they are being brought to light in Chicago, reveal the existence of a corrupt organization in that city whose field of operation was not by any means limited to the "crooked" liquid, but included buildings, harbor jobs and almost everything else on which there has been occasion to expend public moneys. It is hinted that there have also been some newspapers in that city that have been the recipients of heavy doses of pap from that source and have thus been prevented from dropping out of existence. These will be apt to go by the board now, and that portion of the public to whom the continued existence of these "organ grinders" was a mistery will begin now to see how it was brought about.

—A very rich mine has been found near Laramie, Wyoming Territory, which assayed at the Mint in Denver, $47,051 83 to the ton.

DOWN ON THE NEWSPAPERS

It really looks as if this present Legislature has a mortal antipathy to newspapers. The other day a big ruffian by the name of Wilcox, known as the Mariposa Blacksmith, and who as their Representative, disgraces Merced and Mariposa counties, made the most dastardly, sneaking effort to murder a press representative yet recorded in connection with the annals of State Legislatures. Our readers generally are doubtless ere this acquainted with the circumstances of this most cowardly attempt at murder, so we shall not recapitulate them at this late day.

We do not for one moment wish to convey the impression that we think any newspaper or newspaper representative should have any greater license to abuse individuals or any body of individuals, than any other person in his private capacity. But there is a wide distinction to be made as to what constitutes abuse. It is no abuse of right or duty in a newspaper to pass judgment upon the acts of public officials, even though it is to question their integrity under certain and quite frequent circumstances. The most unmitigated thieves outside the penitentiary are at times to be found in official positions, and though an innocent man may now and then be unjustly associated with such in newspaper reports, yet about the only safeguard the public has against the actual thief or public peculator is through the watchful eye of the public press. Blind that, and "the State would be stolen blind," were the words accredited to one of our State Senators but a few days ago. One of the most fearless and useful guardians of the public rights in this respect has been The San Francisco Chronicle. In doing this it has pictured out some of these Legislative nincompoops and cowardly bullies like this Wilcox in a manner so truthful and well deserved in most cases as to cause the aforesaid nincompoops and bullies to chafe and worry like mad bulls. Among these is a circumstance named Lewis, who misrepresents one of the northern counties in the Senate. Some country paper had touched up this Lewis concerning some alleged disreputable practices he was accused of while at home. The Chronicle had made a reference to this, and also criticised some of Lewis' legislative acts. After reading The Chronicle's remarks in this connection, and which were the cause of the Senate voting to expel its reporter, we will say that it shows nothing unreasonable, abusive or unjust to any member to cause such a terrible ebullition as it did among those honorable bulls of Bashan. Lewis rose in his seat; he boiled over with wrath; he pronounced The Chronicle correspondent a "villianous liar" and moved his utter and total exclusion from that hall. Laine, of Santa Clara, who had also caught sight of the red flag, bellowed into the arena, and amended the motion so as to exclude not only this one in particular but all other representatives of the Chronicle. The motion carried and the reporter was walked out. But the foam even yet flew from the lips of those intellectual giants. They glared at the other reporters, but did not dare to run at any more just then. So they went to work to fix up a libel and slander law for the especial benefit of newspapers, The Chronicle in particular. They fixed up one and passed it at once, to punish a convicted libeller or slanderer with a fine and imprisonment, the latter in any event. They further repealed the law of 1872 which required the plaintiff to give bonds in the sum of $500 to be applied in the payment of costs when he failed in a verdict in his favor. As the Assembly has no member capable of making much of a fight in opposition, (except Wilcox, of course), it is altogether likely the bill will become a law. In that event blackmailing libel suits will be everyday occurrences. It will squelch out newspapers to some extent and then such demagogues as Laine, Farley, Lewis, Wilcox, and all of that sort, will stand some show to become law makers another time; otherwise they never will. They are a smart, honest, hightoned set, any how. California ought to be as proud of this Legislature as Merced and Mariposa must be of their Blacksmith.

We will add in reference to the new libel and slander law that no honest newspaper or individual is likely to object to its provisions, except in the non-requirement of bonds. That clause is outrageous, and truly, we do not see how any really honorable Legislator could so vote to open the door to allow any unprincipled scoundrel in the country to blackmail not only newspapers, but any and every person almost, without restriction. Scoundrels have nothing to lose in character in any event, while the defendant is bound to be put to costs, even if he proved that he had never before heard of the plaintiff. It creates a magnificent opening for shyster lawyers, such as will take a "share," and agree to settle for what it would cost to defend.

A Reply to "J. S. Thompson."

CERRO GORDO, Jan. 29, 1876.

MESSRS. EDS.—In the last issue of The Coso Mining News appeared an article signed by one J. S. Thompson, and dated at Cerro Gordo January 14, which, in analyzing the statements of "Justice," and giving his own version of the Kimble-Salazar affair—the white man's side, as he claims it to be—stigmatizes Justice as entirely prejudiced in favor of the Mexicans, his account as abominably false and lying, and paints every one of the Mexicans as a blood thirsty assassin, while Kimble, as he represents him, was a meek, quiet and inoffensive citizen who suffered martyrdom at the hands of an enraged mob.

The article signed Justice having been written by the undersigned, I must necessarily refute the slanderous and lying assertions of this J. S. Thompson, who, like a chivalrous knight of the quill as he is, "scorns the cowardly anonymous," and signs his name in full, initials and all! And yet, strange to say, the name, J. S. Thompson, is unknown to any one in camp, even the oldest inhabitant. Spite of all our exertions, up to the present time, no one here can obtain the slightest clue toward the identity of this Truthful James, or "J. S. Thompson," [with a p.]

Presuming that some of your readers at least have read the communication signed by this J. S. Thompson, they will see that it was the work of a bitter fanatic; and as fanaticism is only the parent of slander, lies and deceit, I shall not descend to his level to reply to personal attacks on myself or the "barroom orator," who can easily be recognized by J. S. T's further reference to him as being "the only man in this place who gives employment to Greasers as well as whitemen." I would however say to this no-where-to-be-found J. S. T. that a brilliant imagination and flowery language, may answer to produce an effect even though it conveys a plausible lie from beginning to end, but that effect is to condemn himself as a prejudiced falsifier in this instance, as is evident by a plain narrative of facts based on sworn testimony. It was upon just such and no other that Justice made his statement of the tragedy—and that account is as true to-day, as the evidence will show in every essential particular, as when it was written.

There was no such testimony given by a native Californian as that cited by this mythical Thompson; it cannot be denied that Kimble was not after the boy. The romantic story of the self-sacrificing and heroic action of Kimble in trying to save the boy from seeming certain death, was a pure fabrication. We do not deny, nor never have denied, that Kimble was not murdered, but we do object to the reflections of J. S. T. upon the whole Mexican population in this place, characterizing them all as assassins, as wholly uncalled for. It is a falsehood, and he knows it to be so himself. It is another equal lie that every Mexican was at that ball for the purpose of murdering Kimble, or any of the white braves. If J. S. T. was aware of such design, why, with his vaunted courage, did he not give some hint, if no more, in the way of warning of such a hellish plot? It is against common sense for him or any one to perpetrate such injurious assertions. That a large number of the participants at that ball were armed is likely true, because that has always been something of a custom on such occasions. This was no exception to the rule, nor at all significant that it was not. His sneer at the application of the word "citizens" to Mexican residents is in keeping with, and as mean as the rest of his mischievous fling. We all know, allowing that there are bad ones, that we have hosts of Mexican citizens in this, and every community, who, I dare say, are as highly esteemed as any we have, whatever their nationality.

We cannot understand how any man, who claims to be as well acquainted with Cerro Gordo society as does this unknown scribbler—at the same time of such high moral perceptions and fine feelings, such as he claims for himself—could so far forget all principles of decency as to dare call that ball a "hurdy gurdy dance"—and to have the impudence to brand nearly every respectable woman in the place, married or single, as a "prostitute." It is true the ball took place in a hall formerly used as a dance house; but that was one or two years ago. On this particular occasion not a woman of disreputable character was present, the rule for their exclusion having been rigidly and effectually enforced. The girl alluded to was in a neighboring saloon, and the tragedy did not take place till after the ball had broken up. Why does this champion of truth and virtue(!) utter such unmitigated lies? Does it escape the perceptions of this man that it is just such senseless back-biting language as he indulges in which is likely to produce a spirit of discord between the nationalities, when there is not the slightest occasion for it? It really looks as if he was actually trying to inaugurate bloody discord and dangerous distrust among people who are bound together as a community.

While we do not try in the least to excuse the way in which Kimble was murdered, we cannot help remarking that, according to the testimony given at the Coroner's inquest, he, so far from being a quiet, inoffensive citizen, we believe him to have been the slayer of Salazar. Disguising facts will not mend matters an iota one way or the other—neither will falsifying them. Both men now stand before a tribunal where their merits and deeds stand in their true light, whatever their mysteries here.

And lastly, while we appreciate the trenchant style of this J. S. T., and deplore that he should be content to sink such talents [for lying] in an out-of-the way place like Cerro Gordo where they are so poorly appreciated, we must again entreat him to let us know his true name—or if J. S. Thompson is his proper cognomen—his place of abode, occupation, or any clue by which we can have a hope of fixing his identity.

H. A. HEHNER.

Proposed Legislation for Inyo.

BUTTE RANCH, Inyo Co., Cal., Feb. 2, 1876.

MESSRS. EDS:—I have received from our Assemblyman, M. Griswold, a copy of the bill introduced by him into the Assembly to raise the salary of the Inyo Assessor to twelve hundred dollars a year, and also a copy of a petition asking that that part of Mono county which was annexed to Inyo county some six years ago be remanded back to Mono by act of Legislature. As the petition shows the object sought for, which is a matter of great public concern—and as our Hon. Representative desires that these matters should be thoroughly canvassed, and has requested me to publish, I presume the public will appreciate the favor if you will give them place in your next issue.

To me, it is very difficult to divine the object of these malcontents. The advantage to be derived by Big Pine, Bishop Creek and Round Valley in going back to Mono, is beyond my perceptive faculties to find. To use a homely adage, it would be to "jump from the frying pan into the fire." It is an utopian scheme the hard fisted tax paying farmers of this valley should never favor. Put the plain question to the people of the upper end of this valley: "What will you gain by going back to Mono, when you have taken your proportion of Inyo's debt, established the county seat at Benton, and constructed your necessary county buildings? Are you so blind as to expect your tax rate to be less than four dollars on the one hundred when all that is accomplished?"

Hoping that reason and good counsel will prevail, I remain, yours truly,

D. B. CURTIS.

AN ACT TO FIX THE COMPENSATION OF THE ASSESSOR OF INYO COUNTY.

SECTION 1. Hereafter the salary of the Assessor of Inyo county shall be twelve hundred dollars per annum.

SEC. 2. In case of any disability whatsoever of the Assessor, whereby he is personally unable to perform the duties of his office, he shall be required at his own expense, and without additional cost to the county, provide a deputy, for whose acts he shall be responsible.

SEC. 3. Whenever, in the judgment of the Board of Supervisors, it shall clearly appear that the duties of the office of Assessor do exceed the ability of the Assessor to adequately perform, the Board of Supervisors shall appoint one or more deputies at a compensation not to exceed five dollars per diem for time actually employed, and for services actually rendered.

SEC. 4. All acts and parts of acts, so far as they conflict with this act, are hereby repealed.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

THAT BUCOLIC PETITION.

WHEREAS, There has been a petition sent to your Honorable Body praying for the formation of a new Co. out of the southern portion of Inyo Co., and parts of other Co.s, and also, a remonstrance thereto; and

Whereas, We, the undersigned citizens of Inyo and Mono Co.s, believing that neither set forth the real welfare of the people of the whole district, but that their real interest would be subserved by reinstating the old Co. line between the respective Co.s, and then submitting the subject of the location of Co. seats to a vote of the people of the respective Co's, will save the people the expense of one extra Co. government, and at the same time subserve the interest of a larger number of the people than any other measure that you can enact: Therefore, We would pray your Honorable Body to pass an act reinstating the Co. line between Inyo Co. and Mono on the old original line, to wit, commencing at a point on the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains due west of the stream known as Big Pine creek and flowing into Owens river, and running due east of said source; thence down the middle of said creek to its mouth, thence due east to the State line. Also an act requiring the Boards of Supervisors of the respective Co.s to call an election at an early day stated in the Bill—at which the People shall vote on the removal and establishing of their respective Co. seats. Believing it our best interests as well as the interests of all concerned, we will ever respectfully pray, &c.

[Should think they ought to pray: first, and with unction, for the bucolic author of that wonderfully worded petition, or burlesque, or whatever it is—such smartness is surely not long for this world; secondly, the signers, each for himself and the whole gang collectively, for so endorsing that lie as to what they "believe is for the best interests of ALL concerned!" S'elp us! However, it's all very good if the man don't die before the Spring posies come to relieve his surcharged brain, except it was a fatal omission in not having at the same time provided for the "reinstating" of that Benton Fur Company. Pelts (Legislative) will command a premium when the Inyo-Mono line meanders along the steamboat channel of Big Pine creek.—EDS.]

Some More Climate.

The wonderful benignancy of our climate, supplemented by the astonishing fecundity of our soil, affords a theme of endless resource to the facile writer.

The above was paragraphed from an editorial in The Los Angeles Express. The Herald says it's a conundrum and the readers give it up.

—It is etiquette for the lady to "wink" first.

—H. H. Granice, who has been granted a new trial by the Supreme Court for the murder of Edward Madden, at Merced, has been admitted to bail in the sum of $8,000.

—The arrivals in this State over departures last year foot up a little over 70,000.

—Los Angeles has expended $100,000 for churches during the past year.

—Many a man has ruined his eyesight by sitting around bar rooms looking for work.

—An Idaho man, splitting stolen rails, was killed by a rebounding wedge.

—Mrs. Martha Bradshaw, a witness against Mr. Beecher, has been excluded from the South Congregational Church, on the ground that her name has been unpleasantly connected with the great trial.

—Representative Luttrell has introduced a resolution to prevent the naturalization of the Chinese and Mongolians; also a bill to amend the Texas-Pacific Act by providing for a branch road from Marshal county, Texas, to the southern boundary of California.

—A soldier was murdered by some of his comrades at Camp Mohave, and it was some days before the body was found. The particulars were unknown, but a soldier has confessed that himself and two others of his comrades killed him for his money.

—The suit under the Civil Rights bill recently commenced in the United States District Court in San Francisco against manager Magnire, for refusing a negro admission to the dress circle of his theater, was terminated by a verdict for defendant, rendered in accordance with the instructions of the Court.

NOTICE OF HEARING FINAL SETTLEMENT AND PETITION FOR DISTRIBUTION OF ESTATE.

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California. In the matter of the estate of Patrick Sheridan, deceased. Notice is hereby given that John Sheridan, the Administrator of the estate of Patrick Sheridan, deceased, has rendered and presented for settlement, and filed in said Court, his final account of his administration of said estate; and also his petition praying for distribution of said estate, and it also appearing to said Court that said estate is ready for distribution, and that Saturday, the Fourth day of March, A. D. 1876, being a day of a term of said Court, to wit, of the January term, A. D. 1876, at 10 o'clock, A. M., at the court room of said Court, at the court house in the town of Independence, in said Inyo county, has been duly appointed by the Judge of said Court, for the settlement of said account, and for hearing petition for the distribution of said estate, at which time and place any person interested in said estate may appear and file his exceptions in writing to the said account and petition and contest the same.

THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county, will publish this notice for four successive weeks.

By order of the Court.

M. W. HAMMARSTRAND, Clerk.

Dated February 3, 1876. n294t4

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Duncan Campbell, Sr., plaintiff, vs. S. C. Halsey, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court. The People of the State of California send greeting to S. C. Halsey, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against said defendant, and in favor of said plaintiff, for the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and sixty-eight cents ($419 68), principal, and Thirty dollars and forty-six cents ($30 46), interest, alleged by said plaintiff to be due him from said defendant on a certain promissory note made by said defendant to said plaintiff, together with interest on said sum of $419 68 at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of commencement of this suit, and for costs of suit, and that the whole judgment be made payable in U. S. gold coin, as does more fully appear from plaintiff's complaint to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiff's complaint, filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of [SEAL] the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy five.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Spikes Celebrate.

"Dad" Moore and Johnny Irwin had two aristocratic turkey gobblers. One cost $30 and the other $20, besides a liberal supply of saw-dust porridge, shoe-peg oats and carpet tacks to fatten them on. Wednesday, a dispatch was received to the effect that the gobblers had been sacrificed, and an invitation to assist in holding an inquest on the remains at the Blaney House. We hadn't any need for worm medicine, but we realized that there was a cavity in our anatomy that had needed filling for several years, so joined a motley procession of ancient bachelors—a lot that had been shunned for years by the census taker as only fit to pay poll taxes—and went to the obsequies. The collation was all that could be desired by the old boys. Toasts were offered and mirth reigned supreme for the time. Their motto seemed to be, "eat, drink and be merry, for to-morrow ye may be tempted to partake of the forbidden fruit." The skeletons that were cleaned up after the repast were very apropos of the frame-works of the party of the first part.

Settled.

A suit was entered by certain parties against the San Felipe Company pending the settlement with the Union Company, to enjoin the conveyance of certain shares of stock to a Mr. Harrington, Trustee for the De la Mear estate, Gen. Vallejo, and we believe some others. These parties, it seems, were fearful Harrington intended to disregard their claims to the shares claimed by each, and have them made out to himself. It was also thought by some here, that the suit would have the effect of stopping the pending settlement between the two companies, or else compel the payment of a large sum for the shares. The fears were groundless in both cases. Harrington at once signified his desire to make over all the stock belonging to the several claimants, and that being done, the suit was withdrawn. In the other particular it threatened no interference in any event.

School Examination.

Miss Carrie Whitcomb closed her school after a six months' term, Milton District, on Wednesday of last week, and with an examination which occupied the entire day. Pursuant to invitation it was our desire and intention to have been present on the occasion, but too great a press of work forbade it. We are informed by parties, whose judgment is better than our own, and who were present, that the arithmetic, geography, grammar and some other classes, acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner. There is not a question but Miss Whitcomb is an excellent teacher. She has had this school now for several terms, and will again re-open it as soon as funds sufficient can be obtained, which will be in about two or three months.

A Safe Safe.

Harris & Rhine lately received a 4,800-pound safe, the very looks of which is sufficient to descourage the most accomplished cracksman. It is constructed of six or more sheets of three-quarter-inch chilled steel and soft iron plates, together bidding utter defiance to drills and even dynamite itself, since there is not the sligthest opening to insert a charge. The lock to the money department is invulnerable in every respect. That alone cost $175. The safe is to be inclosed in masonry and, for a time at least, is to be county Treasury Henry Isaacs' strong box.

Sent Below.

Under Sheriff W. L. Moore started below with Vaughn, the crazyman, last week but at Lone Pine turned his charge over to Constable Wales. Like a great many others about town, Dad is suffering considerably from a severe cold and general indisposition, on which account he did not feel able to make the trip to Stockton, hence the above arrangement.

Snow and Mud.

We are told that Bishop Creek' Round Valley, and that region had quite a snow fall; the late warm weather has melted it off in good part, and now the complaint is of mud and water, particularly in Round Valley. From this place southward the roads were never better than at this time.

Stopped.

The Defiance furnace has been idle for some days, on account of the difficulty of obtaining coal during the late bad weather. Mr. Reddy thinks he will be able to start up to-day or to-morrow, having been notified that coal haulers are again masters of the situation.

Installed.

The officers of Independence Grange, No. 210, P. of H., were duly installed last Saturday. Also, on Wednesday and Saturday nights respectively, those of Good Templar Lodges, Busy Bee, No. 250, and Honor, Military, No. 4.

Snowed Up.

Owing to the great snow fall at Log Springs, Broder's furnace did not start up last Saturday as was expected, it being impracticable to haul either coal or ore through so much snow.

Bitten by a Dog.

John W. Martin of this place, while trying to separate two fighting dogs last Saturday, had his hand badly lacerated by one of the vicious brutes. It will disable him for some weeks most likely.

Preaching.

Rev. Mr. Case will preach to-morrow evening at the usual time and place.

Assessor and District Attorney's Duties.

It is suggested by some of our contemporaries that it ought to be made incumbent upon Assessors to give accurate descriptions of every parcel of real property advertised as delinquent. They claim, and reasonable enough too, that as such descriptions are now advertised, parties who, in many cases would become purchasers at tax sales, are often afraid to bid because of the risk occasioned by the insufficient descriptions in the conveyance. It is the duty of the District Attorney to see that the Assessor does his whole duty in this respect. In the nature of the case in every county, this with the rest, that would involve a great deal of extra labor for both officers, but at the same time it looks as though it would result in a final saving, since a great deal of such property would find purchasers, which now, reverting to the State, will not command enough for recording the deeds, and which deeds are often of no legal value if they were recorded. This county now has a first rate District Attorney elect—one who rarely or never makes a fatal error in papers of any sort. We have every confidence that if Mr. Bennett, the District Attorney elect, undertakes the duties of the office, that he will fulfill them to the letter, and that if that is done, it will result in a saving to the county in various ways far more than sufficient to pay the increase of salary it is thought ought to be attached to that office. The fact is, as we understand it, the present pay of the office will not justify the actual expenses if the incumbent undertakes to do all that the best interests of the county demand at his hands. We are told that on this account, the District Attorney cannot afford to bring suits to assist the Assessor in the collection of taxes that ought to be paid by migrating stock, and that in consequence, but a few hundred dollars have been collected from some three or four hundred thousand sheep that Los Angeles and other southern counties have pastured in this county without paying a cent of taxes in numerous instances, also, that the same remark is true as regards stock from Mono and Nevada. We have no positive information on this point, but those who claim to know, say that Inyo losses several thousand dollars of taxes every year in this way, most all of which could be saved if an officer was properly paid so as to be enabled to sue such cases. We mention these things as suggestions rather than as arguments in favor of higher salaries, because it may be the trouble cannot be obviated in any case, or that it is due to other causes than that assigned.

Worth Considering.

County Hospital matters have always been a source of expense, and discussion as to how best to manage them. It is best and cheapest for counties, when they can, to own their own hospital buildings, whether the management is let by contract or to salaried physicians, either of which plans can be adopted as may be thought best. Should this county conclude it best to own and control its own Hospital there is now a chance to do so on better terms than is likely to again occur for years. This would be to purchase Dr. C. B. White's Hospital at the Post. There is no better location in this county; it is a good building and well fitted up for the purpose; it has a water right, garden and all conveniences, including stoves, quite an assortment of drugs, and every necessary household and ward appliance. As the doctor is ordered East he will sell the whole to the county for the small sum of $2,500 in Hospital warrants. The buildings alone are worth more than that in gold coin. It is a proposition well worth the consideration of the Supervisors, as, ere long, the matter of re-letting the Hospital, with another possible annual removal of patients from one locality to another, and all those things will have to be considered. Every time contractors are changed a new hospital has to be fitted up, though it is but for a year at a time, and as a matter of course the contract price must be large enough each time to wholly or partially at least, cover that expense. In that way it is quite possible, not to say certain, that this lack of permanent location costs the county as much more in one or two years than would pay for the first and whole cost of this excellent building now offered.

A Jaunt to the Eclipse.

A visit to the Eclipse last Sunday, found the mill running night and day without intermission, except during the severe cold snap last week when late of nights the ice would clog in around the large turbine water wheel and effectually stop it. Formerly when this happened they would go at it with bars, etc., and it would often take a day or two in getting started again, but Mr. Eudey has devised a simple means by which he can kindle a small fire near the wheel, when necessary, and is thereby never delayed but a few minutes. Fires, also, had to be kept under the water pipes leading to the batteries, as one of them had already bursted from freezing. Although Capt. Eudey has worked under many disadvantages lately, yet there has been a gain from $10 to $11 78 per ton, as the clean up of something over 200 tons this week will show. The weather having cleared up we may expect to hear of longer runs, and trust that the Captain may be recompensed for his hard labor and indomitable perseverance.

Back Again.

P. Reddy, Esq., who has not been to see us for several months or since the war, has been among us this week as natural as life. He is merely rusticating for a few days till things are in shape to start up the Defiance furnace.... And while talking about mining men whose presence at this time gives promise of something of general interest, Treasurer Beaudry and Superintendent Belshaw are both at Cerro Gordo putting things in shape to turn over to the new company, and to start up the work in that camp.

Change of Owners.

O. I. and J. D. Mairs this week purchased Al. Wapelhorst's saloon, dwelling and property of all sorts in this place. Henceforth the New Headquarters will be run by the Mairs Bros., as will be seen by advertisement. Jerry is to be chief engineer and dispenser of liquid comforts, the which, we are told, he can do not only in good style, but in a very agreeable way.

To Meet.

The Board of Supervisors and County Court meet in regular terms next Monday. These bodies, including the Grand Jury, will have more business than usual to determine this time, particularly the Supervisors as to matters of public policy.

Cerro Gordo.

A private note from Cerro Gordo of the 3d instant informs us that the Union Consolidated are taking out ore, buying coal, wood, etc., and expect to have both furnaces in full blast, as of yore, in twelve or fifteen days.

The Assessor's Salary Bill.

Elsewhere will be found Mr. Griswold's bill to fix the Assessor's salary. Allowing that its wording fulfills requirements in clearly conveying its intent, we consider this bill as quite satisfactory in all except the manner of paying deputies. The price for a day's work is not too large, but the difficulty is to determine what is a day's work in assessing so that the Supervisors may know what amount of "actual work" they are paying for. The fact is, it is impossible for them to do it, should any deputy feel disposed to "nurse his job." We have heard of deputies who required say seventy-five days at $5 each to do an amount of work it is very likely they could have got through just as well in a week, had it been on the percentage system. If so disposed a deputy can make twenty trips, each occupying a day, if it paid him better to do so than to cover the same number of assessments in one possible circle requiring possibly not over two days. It will prove far more satisfactory to the public, and to the Supervisors, on whom the delicate and difficult duty devolves of determining the "actual work" done, if deputies were allowed a liberal percentage on amount of assessments made by each, even though he at times might make as high as $50, or even more, a day at it. It is not at all a difficult thing to so arrange it. It is a matter which within certain limits might be left to the discretion of the Board of Supervisors. The per diem system as provided for in this bill, is, and always will be an invitation for swindles in some degree, let the Supervisors be as exacting or watchful as they may.

Delinquent Tax Lists.

The Inyo delinquent tax list is considerably larger this year than ever before. But leaving out Panamint, where a peculiar turn of affairs has rendered a good deal of real estate in many different parcels almost valueless, the list is really but little or no larger than last year. But taking it as it is it does not compare either in total amounts represented or number of parcels with those of some of our neighboring and more pretentious counties. That of Fresno, for instance, would cover full twelve columns of THE INDEPENDENT, those of Placer, Tulare, Kern and many others full as much or more. Placer advertises all delinquent poll taxes, and a good healthy string it is, as shown by The Argus.

Gilmore & Co.

Parties interested in the patent business soldier or sailor bounties, pensions or anything of the sort needing a legal agent at Washington will find in the firm of Gilmore & Co., just what is required. At least we have good reason to believe that it is a reliable and competent firm. For particulars see their advertisement in this issue.

Medical.

Dr. Blair last week had a call across the Inyo range to Piper's Ranch to attend Mrs. Piper who was seriously ill. He spent several days over there returning Thursday. Mrs. P., we believe, is doing well.

Social Dance.

We are requested to state that there will be a social dance at the Masonic Hall next Monday evening. Everybody is hereby invited and expected to be on hand.

Filed.

Articles of incorporation of the Union Consolidated Mining Company of Cerro Gordo were filed in the Clerk's office here last week.

Boots and Harness.

C. Dugal has moved his boot, shoe and harness shop to the Inyo House. Mr. Dugal does as good work as anybody, if not a little better.

Retrenchment.

Billy Emerson, the favorite delineator of negro character, gets from his employer, Mr. Maguire, a salary of $500 a week, and is now in his fourth year of engagement at that figure. Senator Laine, the anti-press monomaniac from Santa Clara, proposes to pay the Chief Justice and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court $5,000 per annum—less than one-fifth the sum paid to an artist in the negro-melody line. Miss Kate Mayhew, the pretty soubrette actress, gets for her services $100 per week—just the amount which the distinguished economical statesman would pay those Judges of the District Courts who have the most work to do; to the Clerk of the Supreme Court $200 per month, something less per day than is received by the Sergeant-at-Arms who put reporters out of the Senate. The moral of this kind of legislation is that Supreme and District Court Judges should try the line of negro minstrelsy. Judge Dwindle would make an indifferent clog-dancer, but he would draw houses to justify a salary of $75 per week if he made a serious effort to please his audience.—[Chronicle.

Sylvania.

We are informed by John Chiatovich that Kinkaid's new "basso" furnace has proved to be a splendid little success. The furnace is constructed of a new material found in Sylvania district, and after a run of several days there was not the slightest indication of weakening, and those who have seen it think that it is good for a two or three months' run. Some of the bullion already taken out assays as high as $2,000 per ton. The Broder furnace will not start up very soon, the snow being so heavy as to interfere with the work.—[Borax Miner, Jan. 29.

An Outside Opinion.

That eccentric old codger, Senator Laine, has introduced a bill in the California Legislature to compel newspaper men to affix to every article appearing in their journals the name of the author, and it is possible that the chuckle headed fools who compose the House of Wisdom (?) in the Golden State will pass it; but if old Laine thinks that this law will prevent newspapers from speaking out boldly, he is dead off.—[Carson Tribune.

—The twenty-five persons who pleaded guilty to being spectators of the recent prize fight at Nortonville, Contra Costa county, were fined $10 each.

—Small-pox is reported as raging at La Paz, Lower California, and steamers do not touch at that port.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure as "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge.

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Number, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons

The Way They Do in Congress.

Saturday, when "Big English" saw that it was going to be a lonesome day for the bootblacks, he set his head to work to devise something to break the monotony. About ten o'clock he got a number of boys into the alley behind the Postoffice and organized the "Forty-Fifth Congress." "Big English is a regular reader of the daily papers, and he is a great organizer. It took him but fifteen minutes to get the "House" and "Senate" running so smoothly that lawyers and others looked down from their windows with great interest.

"Who is a liar?" yelled a white-headed boy as he jumped up.

"Oh, dry up!" shouted "Sixth Ward Tom."

"Put him out—he was in the rebel army!" called a boy from Grand River avenue.

"Some one clubbed my dog fifteen years ago, and I never forgive him," howled Strawberry Bob.

"Get out the records and less see who was loyul," put in Kingsboy.

Big English rapped on his box to restore order, but King Tommy threw up his hat and said:

"I moves for the aizes and the nozes."

"He can't gag me," shouted a lathy boy fron Windsor.

"Less have a salary grab," piped a Congress street boy.

"The peepul won't stand it," whooped another.

"Hain't we the peepul?" demanded a boy on the railing.

"Are we one country?" asked the Speaker as he rose up.

"I are, but you hain't!" yelped "Nickety Nick."

"Doesn't one flag float for us all?" continued the Speaker.

"It does about tax-time!" screamed a crosseyed youth from Springwells.

Somebody kicked the honorable Speaker. He than struck the honorable gentleman from Wisconsin. The honorable gentleman from Wisconsin smashed at the honorable gentleman from Georgia, and hair stood up and coat-tails stood out. When the row had quieted down the honorable Speaker remarked:

"It was pretty good for the fust time, though you didn't abuse each other enough."—[Detroit Free Press.

How to Succeed.

The young man who thinks he can carry his boyish pranks into the serious business of life, is not a man; and defrauds his employer. "After work, play." That should satisfy the most sanguine. "Business before pleasure," is the motto of the prudent man, whose guide is experience, and it is sufficient for the novitiate in active life.

But it is despicable to see the young man just starting out in life so wedded to his former enjoyments as to place them above present duties. Yet this is often the case. The young man, who to steer his own bark launches forth on the sea of life, too often looks back on the pleasures he leaves behind; and, forgetful of present duties, steers back to past enjoyments. There is no royal road to success any more than to knowledge. He who would succeed must work; and after all, there is more real enjoyment in work, which has a worthy object, than in play, or pleasure, intended to kill time. We remarked a few days ago to a business man whose present means are amply sufficient, but who worked really harder than any of his numerous employees, than he ought to "take it easy." Said he: "I am never so happy as when I have more than I can do. I may wear out in working, but I dread to rust out in idling." He was right. His work was a part of himself, a part of his life, and it was always faithfully done. To apprentices, especially, this earnestness and interest in their work is necessary, it success is ever to be attained.

Flax Seed for Horses.

Mr. Bonner, it is said, has been feeding the trotting horse Grafton, who was in bad condition when purchased by him, largely on flax seed, which seems to agree with him.

—Jones of Nevada is knocking round the United States in an $11,000 railroad car, especially prepared for himself and family.

Government Monument to the Union Dead.

The monument ordered by the United States Government for a memorial of the 17,000 Union soldiers who died in the rebel prison at Salisbury, North Carolina, was to have been shipped from the McDonald quarry at Mason, New Hampshire, Monday, the 10th ultimo. This monument is 13 feet square at its first base, and its second base is 9 feet square, 18 inches high, and handsomely moulded. The die of the monument is 7 feet square, 4 feet 8 inches high, panneled on four sides, enriched with laurel leaves, and weighs nearly eighteen tons. The cap above the die is 9 feet square, 1 foot and 4 inches high, and molded. The base for the shaft is 6 feet 6 inches square, molded, ornamented with olive leaves, and mounted with helmet, sword and shackles. The shaft is 4 feet square at the base, is one solid piece, 31 feet long and weighs 22 tons. This is ornamented with a United States shield, with stars and stripes. The raised tables above, covered with carved drapery, could hardly be better executed in marble. The only lettering on the monument comes just above, where, in handsomely cut letters, we see the simple inscription, "Pro Patria," and still higher, twining to the very top of the obelisk, is a branch of olive leaves. The Government has also ordered of Mr. McDonald a heavy granite curbing to surround the monument, and it is intended to have the whole in place about the last of January.—[Ex.

New Mode of Washing.

The ill effects of soda on linen has given rise to a new method of washing, which has been extensively adopted in Germany, and introduced into Belgium. The operation consists in dissolving two pounds of soap in about three gallons of water as hot as the hand can bear, and adding to this one tablespoonful of turpentine, and three of liquid ammonia; the mixture must then be well stirred, and the linen steped in it for two or three hours, taking care to cover up the vessel containing them as nearly hermetically as possible. The clothes are afterward washed out and rinsed in the usual way. The soap and water may be reheated and used a second time, but in that case half a tablespoonful of turpentine and a tablespoonful of ammonia must be added. The process is said to cause a great economy of time, labor and fuel. The linen scarcely suffers at all, as there little necessity for rubbing, and its cleanliness and color are perfect. The ammonia and turpentine, although their detersive action is great, have no injurious effect on the linen; and while the former evaporates immediately, the smell of the latter is said to disappear entirely during the drying of the clothes.

Good Shooting.

Among the great shooting feats that have been reported, all interested in the subject will remember the story of the six dozen birds that were caught in a split limb on which they were roosting. This has just been outdone by a gentleman in North Carolina, who managed to "bring down" five negroes with one crack of his rifle. It happened thusly: A gentleman who owned a smoke-house situated near his residence was awakened from his slumbers one night, in which he detected the accents of the Ethiopian. Procuring his rifle he wandered out to look around and discovered in the distance a negro seated on the of a fence-rail, which he was using as a lever to pry the smoke-house from its foundations. He fired at the dusky pupil of Archimedes, and killed him on the spot. The smoke-house instantly sank to its normal position, and on investigating its condition it was found that it was resting on four other dead negroes, who were in the act of crawling under it when his rifle-ball interrupted the action of the lever. It may be safely assumed that such execution was never before done by a single bullet.

A Wonderful Invention.

General Benet, Chief of Ordnance, has appointed a commission of Ordnance officers to proceed to Philadelphia to investigate an invention of Eldridge Wheeler for welding steel with iron. Millions of dollars have been expended by different nations of the earth in experimenting with this problem, but without result. Eldrige Wheeler, it is understood, has succeeded in manufacturing an iron gun with steel lining. In the opinion of the Ordnance officers of the army and navy it is destined to revolutionize the gun business all over the world. The invention of Mr. Wheeler is thought to be a discovery of the art of manufacturing the famous Damascus blade. It is understood the Prussian Government has sent a Commission, which is now en route for Philadelphia, to examine and report upon this wonderful invention Admiral Porter who has examined the model of Mr. Wheeler's gun, expressed a very favorable opinion of it.—[S. F. Alta, Jan. 17.

Miraculous.

One of the most wonderful transformations ever recorded took place on the Vandalia Railroad a few days since. Two freight trains collided, and it was found after the collision that the shock had changed several barrels of "mess poak" into good merchantable whisky, the marks on the barrels remaining entirely unaffected. The matter is undergoing investigation at the hands of experts, but the prevailing impression is that the change is due to the fact that the pork was corn-fed.

A Horse with a Silver Throat.

We have heard of people born with a silver spoon in their mouths and all that, but the most unique thing of the kind we ever heard of or saw is a horse with a silver throat. He was as a kindly, hard working beast belonging to the Cincinnati Omnibus Company, but was "wind-broken," and on that account had grown almost useless. It was a pity and a loss as well to turn him out to die—he wouldn't sell—so it was determined by Meyers, the veterinary surgeon to try an experiment—in short, a "kill-or-cure" remedy. So two months ago he made an incision in the animal's throat and inserted a silver tube in the windpipe to facilitate breathing, leaving a sort of artificial nostril at the point of insertion. The device works like a charm, the terrible wheezing has ceased the incision has healed up beautifully, and the horse is doing his full day's work and eats his full allowance. The silver throat can be removed and replaced at will for cleaning, but is so arranged as not to get out of place or cause any inconvenience to the horse. This unique case of equine surgery can be seen almost any day at the omnibus office on Race street, between Fourth and Fifth.—[Cincinnati Commercial.

Improper Advertisements.

The publication of filthy and improper advertisements in a general newspaper is a breach of taste and breeding that no publisher has any right to inflict upon the reading public. We refer in this instance to a Special Notice which occupies a prominent place among the reading matter in many of the leading papers of the State. It is an advertisement of some quack's specific for catarrh. It is not the remedy that we object to, but the grossly foul and filthy manner in which catarrh affections are alluded to. No one has a right to offend and disgust the reader with such suggestion as are introduced in the very beginning of the advertisement referred to. We decline to soil our columns by quoting the offensive terms, but any casual reader of the leading papers will have no difficulty in tracing the allusion.—[Kern Co. Courier.

Struck It.

In our last issue we predicted a bright future for this and the surrounding mining districts in Nye county. The ink was hardly dry on the paper carrying out reckonings, when information reached us from one of the districts more than confirming what we claimed for it. In due time a detailed statement of the newly discovered bright star in the West will be given through our columns. "Seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto ye." The hardy miner sought and found, and the whole world will stand aghast with astonishment when this "find" is opened to the public for inspection. We are not willing to even except the Consolidated Virginia. We refer to Spanish Belt District.—[Belmont Courier.

A Bad Sign.

Sitting Bull, the notorious murderer of the upper Missouri, has recently declared that before Spring he will wipe out of existence all frontier settlements in his section. Among other threats he makes is that he will harass the military, kill and scalp settlers, burn ranches, haystacks, grain and other property, steal horses and cattle, but take no white captives. The post commanders in that country are fully advised of this bloodthirsty red devil's designs, and are prepared to protect the frontier and administer such punishment as circumstances may demand.

It's Effect

"H. V. R. the intelligent correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial thus sums up the result of the recent amnesty debate in the House: "It will help Blaine along towards the Presidency, for he thinks that, as the other issues are all dead, and the school question does not pan out well, we must have our main reliance on the war spirit. It will help Hill into the United States Senate from his section. So we may sum up the remarkable debate in Congress about this way: Benefited, Blaine, of Maine, and Hill, of Georgia. Injured, the people at large North and South."

—A sweet young girl went into a Cedar Rapids music store and asked the clerk, inquiringly if he had "A Heart that Loves Me Only?" "No," he said, "but here's 'A Health to Thee, Mary'" That wouldn't do, but before she turned to go she asked, "Have you 'One Sweet Kiss Before We Part?" That Cedar Rapids clerk looked up and down the store; the book keeper was out, the boss was upstairs trying to sell a granger a wheezy old melodeon and so he leaned over the counter, and turned out about half a dozen of the best and most artistically finished articles that the astonished young lady had ever seen in a job lot. She didn't say much, but she went out of the store in a step and a half, and rubbed her cheeks thoughtfully all the way home.

—"Charles," said a young wife to her husband as the sat at the window watching the fashionables on their way to church, "when you die and I get hold of the insurance money I intend to have a fur cape and muff just like that lady has on over there."

—A Chicago man closed his testimony in his action for divorce from his wife as follows: "I don't want to say anything agin the woman, judge, but I wish you could live with her a little while."

—"Young and beautiful maiden, will you condescend to sacrifice your own convenience to my exquisite pleasure, to insert the five digits and a portion of the extremity of your contiguous arm into an angular aperture formed by the crooking of my elbow against the perpendicular portion of my frame?—or in plain words: Miss, will you take my arm?"

—Life is short, and perhaps this is the best thing about it.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

Mr. Bagge's Bill.

Mr. Bagge, Assemblyman from Alameda felt called upon to do something in the way of legislation, so, some time ago he introduced a bill to limit taxation for county purposes to just fifty cents on the hundred dollars. Bagge is just the kind of a financier tax ridden people have been looking for, for lo, these many years. If he can make his proposed law practicable and then comes out for President, or Roadmaster, or anything, he'll bag our vote sure. Here, Inyo county for instance has been paying three cents on the dollar tax right along and even that is not quite sufficient. Now, if Mr. Bagge, and the Judiciary Committee which reported back his bill favorably, can make one-sixth that sum answer the same purpose, wouldn't it be elegant? While Mr. Bagge is at it he ought to make a law that no member of this Legislature shall be allowed to take to exceed ten cock-tails, or their equivalent, in any one day. One is just as feasible and sensible as the other.

We are to infer from Mr. Bagge's bill that county Supervisors are in the habit of cracking on taxes just for the fun of the thing, without regard to the needs of their respective counties and hence they ought to be checked by general statute. Seriously this proposition of Mr. Bagge's with its favorable Committee report trenches closely upon the ridiculous. It would impoverish every mining county in the State. As it cannot in any degree lessen actual, necessary current expenses, and as those expenses are bound to accrue, and will have to be paid, the effect this law would have, would be to compel the over issuance of scrip, which, in a few years would accumulate so much it would have a no more reliable value than did Confederate bonds in '64. The inevitable result would be county bankruptcy, because county expenses would increase in the same ratio that its promises to pay depreciated. That is to say, property in this county, under Mr. Bagge's law, would have to be assessed, say five times higher than its cash value to produce current expenses, or else it would require the first year, six dollars in script to pay one of accuring indebtedness, and possibly twice that much for the second and succeeding years. Mr. Bagge may have the right idea as to what will do for his own county with its $20,000,000 of taxable property, and if so, to that he had better limit his legislation.

Haymond's Bill on County Officers.

Haymond introduced into the Senate a bill extending the terms of county officers to four years, and reducing their salaries 20 per cent. The bills reads as follows:

Section 4109. All county and township officers, except judicial officers, assessors and supervisors, must be selected at the general election held in September, 1877, and at the general election in September every four years from the first Monday in March next after their election. The officers now holding office shall continue in office until the first Monday in March, 1878, except Assessors hereinafter provided. Assessors must be elected at the general election held in September, 1875, and every four years thereafter, and hold office for four years from the first of March next after their election, except in the city and county of San Francisco the Assessor holds his office from the first Monday of December next after his election. The provisions of this section apply to every county and city and county in the State.

Section two of the bill provides that the salaries of all county and township officers shall be reduced to eighty per cent. of what they are now fixed by law.

There is a further section which provides that the law shall not go into effect until the first Monday in March, 1878, and as to Assessor not until 1880.

Beecher.

Bowen has written Plymouth Church a letter in which he among many other things, says: "I solemny give it as my unwavering opinion in view of all the facts and evidence presented to me that the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher without even a shadow of doubt is guilty of the awful crimes of adultery, perjury and hypocricy." As Bowen has been intimate with Beecher from the time the latter came to Brooklyn and, no doubt, knows more of his private life than any other man, this letter would seem to be sufficient to prove the great preacher one of the most remarkable and unmitigated pastoral scoundrels the world has lately seen. It is astounding, this whole Beecher business.

Our Railroad.

The indications are quite favorable for renewed activity in the construction of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad. The Southern Utah is to be extended one hundred miles farther in this direction or southerly this year and, from what the Utah and Los Angeles papers say about it, it is pretty well understood that it is with the view of an early connection with our road. The Union Pacific is at the bottom of it.

Removal of County Seats.

The act relating to the removal of county seats has passed both branches of the Legislature and received the approval of the Governor. By the provisions of this act a county seat cannot be removed within four years of a previous removal. The petition to the Board of Supervisors for an election must be signed by three-fourths of the registered voters at the next preceeding general election, and there must be a two-thirds vote in favor of removal.

Can Go.

The Senate has concurred in the Assembly amendments to the bill providing that county officers may leave the State for a period of 60 days with the consent of the Board of Supervisors, but providing that no officer shall at any time leave the State without the consent of the Supervisors.

TAX MINING PRODUCTS.

As Legislators are worrying themselves with financial problems we would earnestly suggest to them the propriety of adopting the Nevada tax law in relation to mining products. Let it be to tax all bullion products, after deducting average cost of production, also all ores above a certain value, say above $18 assay value, as in Nevada, but exempt mining ground or mines in toto save for surface area, at Government price, which is $5 an acre. Then as a matter of even handed justice to struggling mining counties, turn over to them full five-sixths of the tax so collected for use of the county where the mines may be located. The mining counties of this State add as much to the State's wealth as any equal number of cow counties, yet deriving no direct benefit from the millions of cash their mines produce, their limited amount of real and personal property has to bear a most onerous tax to maintain even a semblance of county government. In this way every business and property interest other than mining in California mining counties is borne down and kept down by heavy taxes to their own misfortune, to the end, in effect, that the cow counties may prosper by lighter taxes. We think it quite probable that in the coming twelve months Inyo county will add $10,000,000 to the State's wealth, and yet the county itself will barely be able to meet its current expenses, notwithstanding the highest tax rate, save one, in the State. At the same time many non-productive and possibly worthless mines will be assessed at figures pretty much the same as if they were producing millions, and for the ground alone. The truth is, valuation of undeveloped mines is wholly arbitrary, while that upon so called developed mines is yet but the merest guess work. It is true it can be closely approximated in case of incorporated mines, by taking average quoted values of their stock sales for a given time, but, until the present year there has been no Inyo stock on the market, and in any case there still remains a vastly greater number of mines undeveloped or not represented by stock whose owners can ill-afford to develop them, much less to pay a round tax upon their ground before it begins to yield a cent in return. If we want to foster mining, which is certainly the proper policy, it is the non-paying mines that should have the benefit of remaining untaxed beyond the mere nominal Government acreage value. On the other hand it can be no burden to tax the mere profits of paying mines, and from their plethora take something to relieve and stimulate the others and every other business contingent upon them, as all others are in a county like Inyo, and several other struggling, though really the richest, California counties.

THE TRESPASS LAW.

The Assembly has passed a bill to amend the act relative to the trespassing of animals upon private property. It is simply a change of section 16 of the original act so as to remand the whole question of a fence law or no fence law to a vote of the people. On the principle that the people ought to have the right to determine all questions of policy of immediate interest to themselves left to their own decision, this proposition or act offers the easiest, and on the above principle, the fairest solution of the vexed fence question. But there is this about it: All citizens are voters, yet all voters have not a direct interest in questions of agriculture, and this is particularly the case in a mining county like this. Therefore, under the peculiar existing conditions we would have no better assurance of a rightful decision of the fence question, after submitting it to a general vote, than if left wholly to the determination of the Legislature. The Local Option Law, which by the way, has been repealed, was declared unconstitutional. We believe that was a forced decision, but nevertheless, it looks as if the Legislature had as much right to delegate that question to the hands of the people as it has to do the same with the fence question. But, notwithstanding objectionable features, it is perhaps just as well for the people to undertake to determine these matters themselves as for the Legislature to take the responsibility of doing it for them. It will be seen by the copy of the bill subjoined that Inyo is probably one of the counties to which the new act will apply. We are not sure, however, from the reading of this section whether it is to be an open question or not in counties like this where there is already such a law in force, or whether it is merely intended to affect those, not otherwise excepted, where no fence law has been applied heretofore:

Any of the counties of this State not included in this Act, except such as are hereinafter named, are hereby authorized to submit the question to the people in the following way: Whenever a petition, signed by one hundred qualified electors of the county, shall be presented to the Board of Supervisors, said Board shall cause to be entered in the journal of their proceedings a copy of said petition, and shall submit to the qualified electors of said county, at the next general election thereafter, the proposition whether or not this Act shall apply to that county; and the notice of said election, and the object thereof, shall be published in all the newspapers published in the county if any there be; and if no newspapers be published in said county, then by posting notice thereof in three of the most public places in each of the townships of the county for one month next prior thereto; provided, that nothing in this Act shall be so construed as to be applicable to the counties of Amador, Butte, Mendocino, Trinity, Siskiyou, Mariposa, Calavaras, El Dorado, Fresno, Kern, Tulare, Tehama, Shasta, Humboldt, Klamath, Del Norte, Sacramento, Los Angeles, San Luis Obispo, Santa Clara, Monterey, Placer, Alpine and Modoc; provided further that the election as provided in this section, shall be submitted to the qualified electors of Sutter county, at the Presidential election to be held on the first Wednesday in November, in the year 1876.

Death of the State Controller.

Hon. James H. Mandeville, State Controller, who had been afflicted with an affection of the brain for some time past, died at 8 o,clock on the morning of the 4th instent at Sacramento, at his residence. The funeral was held on the 5th under the auspices of both Houses of the Legislature, which adjourned to Monday out of respect to his memory.

BENTON MATTERS.

We are in receipt of a communication from Mr. W. B. Harbin, writing from Benton, February 7, who takes occasion to give "Slap Jack" fits concerning an alleged attack or insult by the latter upon the fair sex and of having made other mistatements. As we are wholly unable to find, after referring to every communication that "Slap Jack" has ever written us that he has made even the most distant disrespectful allusion to the fair sex or any other sex to justify Mr. H's strictures, we omit that portion of Mr. H's otherwise excellent letter, in the hope that he will take the trouble to overhaul "Slap Jack's" articles and therein specifically point out the objectionable references. If such can be found, of the sort assumed by our present correspondent, we should feel it a duty, to subject their author to a proper "keelhauling," and also to accept a portion for ourselves for admitting such stuff. In conclusion we will state that "Slap Jack" has made references to certain things, which may have quite a different local bearing than the mere words and names used seem to indicate. But if such is the case, we, and the outside public generally are profoundly ignorant as to what their signification is, if it is improper in any respect. Here is what Mr. H. has to say about

OTHER MATTERS:

Have just returned from Hutch's Canyon and as regards the outlook there will say that no mining camp this side of the Sierra Nevada range can make a better showing for the amount of expenditures. The Indian Queen Mine and Milling Company, with a four stamp mill, have shipped in the past nine months one hundred and eighty bars of silver bullion, valued at $1,000 per bar; the mill is now undergoing repairs but will soon start up again with plenty of rich ore for a long run. There are two or three other mines which promise rich returns to their owners in the near future in this district. The Diana Mill and Mining Co., under the superintendence of J. A. Creaser, are extracting good ore from the mines and propose to start the mill within the next week, when bullion shipments will be the order of the day; in fact, I think that within the next year the property will be declaring their regular dividends. Mack having completed his hoisting works at the Comanche mine is now able to raise all the ore required to keep his ten stamp mill running and thereby add to the circulating medium of the Benton Bits, mord than one thousand dollars per day.

The seventh wonder of the world has appeared in our community in the shape of the Columbus Minstrels, who, after making their debut in Columbus, and being flattered there as an original native production have started on a starring expedition, to astonish the natives and to show what egotism and lack of the true essence of "burnt cork" can impose upon the public.

Respectfully, W. B. HARBIN.

The Bully, Wilcox, Indicted.

The Grand Jury of Sacramento yesterday indicted J. W. Wilcox, the ruffianly Assemblyman who sneaked behind the chair of the Chronicle reporter in the Senate Chamber and dealt him a murderous blow with a heavy cane. The indictment charges an assault to murder, and Wilcox is held in $5,000 bail. It has been secnred largely through the persistent efforts of Distrct Attorney Jones, who has been remarkably energetic in hunting up the evidence which convicted the cowardly ruffian in the eyes of the Grand Jury. To him, and to the intelligent men who compose the jury, the people of the State of California owe a debt of gratitude. Their action will go far to counteract the evil effects of the reports which have been spread broadcast throughout the East, that the Legislature of California is composed of bullies and cowards. Meantime, while waiting for the trial of the "Mariposa Blacksmith," we shall curiously watch the course of Speaker Carpenter in the Assembly. Will he dare to insult the people of this State again by delegating his powers to this indicted felon during his temporary absences from his seat?—[S. F. Chronicle. Feb. 5

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. C. P. Laird, Plaintiff, vs. Peter Laird, Defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The people of the State of California send Greeting to Peter Laird, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or if served out of this county but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between said Plaintiff and Defendant, and further that said Defendant be required to pay into Court a reasonable sum for counsel fee and costs of this suit, as does more fully appear from Plaintiff's complaint, to which reference is hereby made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required the said Plaintiff will apply to this Hon. Court for the relief prayed for in said Plaintiff's complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for, [SEAL] the said County of Inyo, this tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy six.

Thence, 4th course: N 41 deg E 8 24 chains set pine Post No 4, 5x4x6 inches, marked U S Survey No 37, mill site 37, P No 4, Nov 10th, 1875 set in the ground 15 inches, mound 18 inches high, made of earth. Thence, 5th course: S 49 deg E 6.06 chains to place of beginning—containing 5 acres.

That said mining claim is bounded on the east by the Tioga mine, claimed by said Syndicate Mining Company, and there are no other adjacent claims known to the applicant. The location of the aforesaid mining claim was duly recorded on the 13th day of September, 1875, in the Recorder's office of the Bodie Mining District, in Book "D," page 94 of the mining records of said district.

Any and all persons claiming adversely any portion of said Osceola mine, or said mining ground or mill site as hereinbefore described, are required to file their adverse claim with the Register of the United States Land Office at Independence, in the State of California, during the sixty days period of publication hereof, or they will be barred by virtue of the provisions of the Statute.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Board of Supervisors.

The Board of Supervisors have transacted a considerable amount of business since Monday. They only got through to-day, and as we could not obtain a full report of proceedings in time for this issue, we shall have to wait until next week, when we will give them complete. There were two actions taken we will mention, however, as of interest to the places respectively concerned. Those were the establishment of Panamint township and Darwin school district. The reason the original application for the former was not then acted upon was because the application was not made in accordance with the requirements of the Code. No apportionment of school moneys is made in favor of the new school district, as, under the law, it is not entitled to any, unless it, with the old district from which it was taken, have together maintained eight months of school within the year. At least that is the way the amended Political Code, page 110, sec. 61, reads, and we suppose that is why no apportionment in favor of Darwin was ordered for the present school year. It is altogether likly this school year's appointment for the old district has been exhausted anyway, as the sum total allowed to any distsict is barely sufficient for a four months' school anywhere in the county.

Personal.

V. A. Gregg, Esq., started last week for a business visit to the Bay....P. W. Bennett, Esq., and J. P. M. Perham have gone rantafousing up among the Bishop Creekers ....We note the presence of Geo. Stevens, one of our old timers who left us about a year ago for Panamint, but is now a resident of Darwin....John Alexander is attending the Supervisors meeting, but he says he has no axe to grind of any sort.... Jas. E. Parker arrived Monday last, and is making himself decidedly useful about this shop; his family are yet at Bishop....P. Reddy returned to Darwin last Saturday, and started up his furnace on Monday....A mining engineer, whose name, we believe, is Bauffman, arrived at the Eclipse last Saturday for the purpose of making a mineralogical examination and survey of the mine for the unfortunate of the English stockholders.

For the Centennial.

The only person or company, so far as we have heard, yet making any effort to have Inyo's productions represented at the Centennial is Judge Murphy and the Surprise Valley Company, of Panamint. Together they expect to ship not less than 2,000 pounds of mineral and other specimens. We are requested to notify all mine owners who would like to have specimens from their mines exhibited at the Centennial that the same will be forwarded free of all expense to them if they will send their specimens properly labeled to Judge Murphy at Panamint. The desire is to have this an exhibit of every portion of Inyo county, and in fact of all portions of this southern country from Nevada to Arizona. Printed labels can be had at this office on application.

School Report.

Mr. H. C. Rittgers, teacher, favors us with the following report of his school at Lone Pine—December, beginning on the 6th and ending on the 31st—days taught, 20; No. of scholars, 21; total days' attendance, 380; total day's absence, 40; average daily attendance, 19; daily absence, 2; per centage, 90.5. January, commencing on the 3d and ending on the 28th—days taught, 20; enrolled scholars, 30; total day's attendance, 520; absence, 60; daily attendance, 26; absence, 3; per centage of attendance, 89.00.

County Treasurer's Report.

We invite critical attention to County Treasurer H. M. Isaac's semi-annual report given in this issue. It is scarcely worth our while to recapitulate its facts in detail, but will state that it makes a much better showing, considering all the unfavorable conditions which have marked the past year, than was anticipated. Last year the total cash receipts, including cash on hand which was very nearly the same as now, amounted to $45,291 30; this year the total is not so much by $3,833 93, but the county debt has been reduced from $90,787 72 to $86,039 62.

On the Tapis.

Rumor says ye fair ones of this burg and vicinity are taking deep counsel together with the view of getting up a Leap Year ball, to take place say about the 29th instant. The young men here are so diffident and unsophisticated withal, the ladies will have to use their best persuasive powers to get them to attend. Still, its worth trying just to see the aforesaid diffidents simper and try to look modest when they are invited to dance etc.

School Libraries.

There is enough money apportioned to each of the old school districts for library purposes, to afford each a good many valuable books. Trustees are frequently negligent about investing this fund. They would be doing the school children a decided favor, if they would buy every appropriate book they have money to pay for at the earliest practicable moment. The money is doing no good to any body lying idle. See Treasurer's report.

Action for Libel.

T. J. Graves and his wife N. E. Graves, filed a complaint in the Clerk's office, this week, against Mrs. S. E. Martin and her husband J. W. Martin, alleging libel and claiming damages in the sum of $10,000. The cause will come up for trial in the May term of the District Court. Mrs. Graves, pursuant to a long contemplated intention, has gone to Tulare county to reside, but expects to return to look after this case.

The Sinking Fund Redemption.

Pursuant to advertisement bids for surrender of warrants on the Sinking Fund, there being $1,692. 13 on hand, were opened this week. The result was that J. P. M. Perham gobbled the cash, for which he surrendered warrants representing $1,814. 65, being at the rate of 89½ cents on the dollar.

Filling the Jury Box.

The Board of Supervisors and officers were engaged yesterday in filling the jury box for the ensuing year. Through a misunderstanding of our reporter last week in relation to this drawing of a jury, we got it that the Grand Jury was to meet this week, which was an error.

Reception Dance.

As Sheriff Moore "nuptiated" on Sunday, the next evening numerous friends tendered him and his bride their congratulations and a well attended, highly enjoyed welcoming dance, at the Masonic Hall.

Wire Fence.

Rothschild & Co. are the local agents of the new style of fencing wire. From all we have been able to learn about it that style of fencing is decidedly the cheapest and best obtainable in a country like this.

Money Orders.

The San Francisco Chronicle takes a specimen of a New Coso mining order as a text under which it pronounces that kind of money not only objectionable, but their issuance a misdemeanor. It quotes section 648 of the Criminal Code as follows:

Every person who makes, issues, or puts in circulation any bill, check, certificate, promissory note, or the paper of any bank, to circulate as money, except as authorized by the laws of the United States, for the first offense is guilty of a misdemeanor, and for each subsequent offense is guilty of felony.

The Chronicle further remarks as follows:

We would invite the attention of the District Attorney of Inyo county to this provision of the criminal law. Unless he can find something in the laws of the United States, which "authorize" mining companies to issue shinplaster fractional currency and force it into circulation, it may be his duty to take some steps in the premises. A shabby bit of paper, without any responsible signature, promising to pay the sum of twenty-five cents "by check for United States gold coin on San Francisco" is about the worst kind of "circulating medium" that has yet been invented, and can only be compared to the issue of Petroleum V. Nasby's bank at the "Confedrit Cross Roads!"

The question of the legality of "furnace orders" like the above was, about two years since, brought to the attention of one of our Grand Juries, which found some indictments, but they were quashed and of course were not adjudicated by trial. It was held by some that the peculiar wording of the order merely made it an evidence of indebtedness to the holder, precisely as a written due bill would do. The wording of orders referred to was simply "Good to ——," the same in every material point, as a saloon keeper's check, for instance, is "Good for one drink," merely substituting dollars for drinks. It may be drawing a fine point, but one is a money representative quite as much as the other, the difference being that money is supposed to be paid for the "drink" check before it is issued, whereas, the other is redeemable with money, when its issue ends. The style referred to by The Chronicle is differently worded, but in reality is nothing more in effect than would be a written promise to pay—note of hand or due bill, except that this New Coso bears no signature. In that particular it differs from others we have seen, among which we may instance the Defiance Company's orders. These are worded and signed as any other due bill, and in that important particular, obviates The Chronicle's leading objections that these evidences of indebtedness bear no signature to give them responsibility.

Of course if the District Attorney believes the issuance of these orders contrary to law it becomes his duty to put a stop to it. Though we are not able to present legal arguments further than what may be inferred from the foregoing to prove them good in law, yet we are inclined to think their issuance, as generally practiced here, is not in violation of law. So far as any loss to accrue to the public through the use of orders is concerned there is not necessarily a particle more risk than if the same companies were to promise to pay in gold coin. The reason is that all these companies have monthly pay days, and as a rule, incur all their obligations with that understanding. If the holder of an order chooses, he can, in accordance with the printed promises, demand coin checks, all that he, with exceptional cases, need expect were payments to be coin without the intervention of these due bills. Unless creditors choose to permit it, a month's debt and no more is jeopardized, however irresponsible the company. As the orders are issued at all times, the merchants and others receive them during the month, and by such means, greatly lessen the risk of loss through doubtful customers, many of whom are not allowed a month's credit, such as would be necessary, if paid in coin only at the end of each month. Let their legal statntes be what it may, this money order system has certainly proved advantageous to this section, and no advantage will follow if they are closed out as The Chronicle proposes.

To Those Interested.

Lieut. Wotherspoon has begun planting trees, sowing alfalfa and all other required work to put the Post Cemetery in the best possible order. This cemetery, as has been mentioned heretofore, is managed pursuant to army regulations. These require that every grave shall be marked with suitable and permanent head and foot-boards, bearing the name, age, etc., of the deceased, and recorded by number, name and location of lot on a prepared plat. This is intended to be done so accurately that if all traces of the grave were obliterated it would be a comparatively easy matter to find it by bearings of other established points. If the graves are not so marked the officer in charge is held personally responsible, and if necessary will have to mark them at his own expense. This being strictly a military cemetery, it was entirely optional with Capt. Macgowan, Post Commandant, whether it could be used by citizens. It was his desire, however, that it should be so used, the only condition being that each grave should be provided with proper head-boards. In some thirty cases this important requirement has not been complied with. It is a matter which should be attended to at once by those interested, otherwise Lieut. Wotherspoon, the officer in immediate charge, will have it to do at his own expense. We may state that the Post carpenter is prepared to furnish such boards, at a low cost, to those who may desire them.

Fun on the 22nd.

A private letter assures us that every arrangement is being perfected for a grand time at the Taboose on the 22nd of this month as advertised. A large pavilion is erected for the accommodation of the dancers and the best music that can be obtained is engaged. In addition to the purse race there will be a second trial of speed among the saddle horses for the prize of a new $60 saddle. Ball and supper tickets can be obtained of H. M. Isaacs or any of the principal stores in this town.

Frozen to Death.

During the late cold weather, a boy named Simon Galban perished in the deep snow and extreme cold, at Lida. He was out driving in cows, and upon his failure to return in a reasonable time a search was instituted and his remains found. When discovered the body was not entirely cold, but life was extinct. He formerly lived at Lone Pine.

Presentation.

A correspondent at Adobe Meadows forwards us information to the effect that Mr. Geo. W. Randles was recently made the "happy recipient" of an ancient pair of spectacles, at the hands of Frank Shaw. Perhaps the joke in connection therewith is discernible to ye wearer thereof.

Team for Sale.

Mr. J. A. Shoemaker, whose headquarters are for the present at this office, can be consulted by anyone wishing to purchase a good six-horse team and wagon. See his advertisement.

Exchange Hotel.

Attention is invited to the advertisement of S. G. Cobb, mine host of the Exchange Hotel, Aurora, to be found under the head of "New Advertisements."

Wrongly Accused.

Two or three weeks since our Benton correspondent expressed the belief that Mr. Murphy, of Panamint, had joined forces with certain parties for the purpose of changing the Mono and Inyo lines. We thought it remarkable, and so expressed ourselves, that Judge Murphy should want to make himself so peculiarly officious. We could not understand his particular object. We had the best of reasons for knowing that he but a few months previous, was not an office seeker, having then positively refused one of the best in the county, and yet unless he had something in view of that kind, it was not at all clear why he should take such an interest in the proposition as to devote his time and money to it, as he was accredited with doing. Not knowing but there might be a good deal more in view than we or the generality of people knew of, and as the allegation appeared to be well founded, so far as public report could give it foundation, we accepted the statement of his supposed connection with the business as probably true. We are really glad to know that he had nothing whatever to do with it in any manner whatever. He so assures us himself and we have not the least doubt but it is true in every particular. What give rise to the statement is more than we know or can understand, as when he left Sacramento it was to return direct to Panamint, where he has since remained. We suppose, however, it was an outgrowth of the southern division project, in which he had taken a leading part, but more with the view of its ultimate than immediate consummation. Going to Sacramento, though not for this especial purpose by any means, it took but a short time to ascertain just what he had fairly anticipated, to wit, that nothing could be done now more than to introduce the proposition to the attention of the Legislature, and also to the section interested, before which it yet remains for consideration till the meeting of another Legislature, when, if circumstances then warrant, as they bid fair to do, the matter will be pressed for final action. While there Mr. Griswold informed him of the receipt of this other petition. That, the Judge assures us, is the sum total of his knowledge or connection with that proposition either by conversation or correspondence with any person whomsoever. This, we hope, will set Judge Murphy right, in regard to that matter, and also this much further, that while he thinks the southern division will sooner or later be to the general advantage, (in which we agree with him), he does not desire or propose to advocate anything of the kind to involve the people of this county in a dollar of ill-advised or unnecessary expense. It may not be amiss to state that he is the local attorney, at a good round salary, of Panamint's heaviest mining company, and in that connection he went below, this other business being a mere incident.

Our Benton Correspondence.

BENTON, MONO CO., CAL., February 7th, 1876.

MESSRS. EDS:—Having arrived at the conclusion that "Slap Jack" has failed to connect in the line of his duty as correspondent, therefore I thought I would give you a few local items and some town talk.

We have had considerable snow in this section of this country this Winter and there was good sleighing from this place to Carson. Mr. Creaser had two large sleighs made for the purpose of sleighing his goods from Aurora down, as the snow was too deep to draw a wagon through. A large team arrived about a week ago which was two weeks coming from Aurora here, a distance of 45 miles.

MILLS AND MINES.

Both mills are shut down at the present. Mr. Mack's mill has not been running for some time for the want of ore, as erecting his hoisting works and laying new track prevented getting ore to the surface. The Diana mill has been undergoing a thorough repairing under the supervision of Mr. Julius Partz, and will start up to-morrow, and as the mines are looking well, the mills ready to start and pleasant weather coming, we may expect ere long to see a few "Benton bits" in circulation. Messrs. Thompson & Truman have about completed their arastra at Moore's Creek, when they expect to be able to work three tons of ore in 24 hours and as their ore is quite rich and free from base metals we do not see any thing to prevent them from realizing a handsome return for their labor. Mr. Kane, of Montgomery Canyon, has lately struck a vein of ore about one foot thick and said to assay up in the thousands, but we do know that if Mr. Kane has very much ore of the specimens he exhibited here a few days ago, he is fixed for the centennial.

PERSONAL.

Swamp John has been searching diligently for "Slap Jack" and is too dignified to acknowledge he is baffled, he plays that he has got him, also his communication of the 2d instant, but Swampy is not the only one who has censured "Slap Jack" for they think he did wrong in speaking of "Mr. Abbott going to Sacramento with his three mares," for Mr. Abbott had but two mares and his company was a most estimable young lady, both of whom are of more than ordinary respectability, and we cannot see why Mr. Slap Jack could be so personal. I think if he had read his letter the second time he would have seen the absurdity of his remark and made an amendment to it. Mr. Abbott has returned from Sacramento and methinks he thinks that "discretion is the better part of valor" and has treated the personality with silent contempt. Sheriff Welch was down on business in a suit of Crocker vs. Williams. Will Adams, of Hutch's Canyon has gone to the Bay for a little "time." Four births have occured in this vicinity within the last six weeks, and three of the little fellows will be voters in 21 years if they live.

Please give my compliments to Slap Jack. XXX

P. S. If I am correct in my conjecture in regard to the papa of that great petition, you are quite right in your little editorial last week. I don't think the mass of tax payers wish to raise the taxes from $2 10 to about $4 00 on the hundred for the sake of a court house here, but perhaps some one who has nothing but an old carpet bag and a few old Examiners and dirty handkerchiefs in it, might pray to the Legislature and try to make it appear that a great many others make the same prayer. But we propose to live here by mining, not by the emoluments of office. Neither do we think any body can make the fur trade pay at Benton, as what few fur bearing animals there are in this vicinity have but little fur on them and of a very poor quality at that. XXX

Not So Bad.

The suspension of Temple & Workman, bankers, of Los Angeles, threatened at one time to produce something of a panic in that town. The reassuring statement has been made that the assets of the firm exceed the liabilities by over a million of dollars. The creditors have unanimously decided not to throw the estate into bankruptcy, but to leave it in the hands of the assignees.

Dead.

It is now apparent that the press-persecuting libel bills are dead. It is reported upon excellent authority that Dan Gelwicks, McConnell, Carson, Harris, Hart, Maguire, Murphy of San Francisco, and numerous others are decidedly opposed to the legislation against the press. All the offensive bills will probably be indefinitely postponed.

Big Pine Items.

A carrespondent writing from Big Pine, February 10, says they had a dance at John Bodle's, the other evening, which, for excellence of music, good management and general social spirit has not been excelled in that region....The "boys anticipate a farewell dance at Steve Gregg's upon the eve of his departure to assume his official duties in Independence."....The writer pays an unintentional compliment to his Honor, Judge Hannah in this way: J. J. Moore and Miss Jane McMurry, were joined in the bonds of matrimony on Sunday last by the old fellow himself, Judge Hannah, and then comes some poetry applicable to the occasion....Bad weather nowithstanding, J. B. Steward's saw mill is running constantly....This correspondent further tells about a free fight the boys had up there, but we begin to look with suspicion upon accounts of free fights and such, especially when they occur to the northward. In that connection though, we will risk this item: "Many of the boys are fitting their horses for the races at the Taboose on the 22d." If he had said for the "races at San Francisco," out of deference to our Benton friends we should have felt impelled to have excluded that item.

Painful Rumor.

It is reported here that a rancher, who has been living near the Post, has perished in the mountains between here and Visalia, on the Hockett trail. We can learn nothing reliable concerning it, but understand that it was a man who started over some two months ago to see his family at Visalia, but never got through. Without being certain that it is correct, the name of the unfortunate man is given as Wm. Hathaway.

Another Inyo Incorporation.

On the 28th of last month the Swansea Mining Company, to operate in Swansea and Cerro Gordo, was incorporated, with the following Directors: Geo. S. Magn, M. A. Wheeler, H. W. Schmidt, Gustave Wiss and Thos. B. Valentine. Capital stock, $5,000,000.

Racing Weights.

As the question as to what constitutes the proper difference in weights to age for race horses has been raised here, and is still a question with some, we append the Pacific Jockey Club schedule as follows: Three-years old, 90 pounds; four, 104; five, 110; six, and upwards, 114. Mares and geldings are allowed three pounds less for corresponding age with full horses.

The Blockade Raised.

The railroad men have been having a time of it with cold and snow out there on Pequop range, on the Central Pacific. By using numerous monster snow plows, some of them with no less than twelve engines behind them, they succeeded a few days since in bucking through, so that trains at last accounts were again running on time.

Mexican Troubles.

Information received at San Antonio, Texas, on the 5th instant, is to the effect that the Mexican Revolution is gaining ground. The entire Western portion of Coamuila is in arms; also the Pacific States and Faganlitas, Nuevo Leon, San Luis and all Northern Mexico.

The Great Four-mile Race.

The following noted racers have been entered for the great $30,000-race, set for the 22d, to be run on the Bay District track: Rutherford, Revenue, Foster, Chance, Grinstead, Hockhocking, Katie Pease and Golden Gate.

Arizona.

A Major McDaniels informs the Los Angeles Herald that the prospects for Wallapai district, Arizona, were never better than at the present time.

A Silver Display.

Messrs. Foood & O'Brien, managers of the Virginia and California Mining Companies, announce their determination to represent the product of those mines for the month of May at the Centennial Exhibition. During that month there will be placed about these two mines a working force to take out an amount of ore sufficient to produce $10,000,000 worth of bullion. Arrangements have been made to employ the Sharon and other mills for its reduction, and in June it will be forwarded to Philadelphia. It will require fifteen cars bearing ten tons each. There will be 3,000 silver bars, making 150 tons of solid silver.

Patents.

Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following advance list of U. S. Patents, granted to Pacific Coast inventors, viz: J. A. Overend, S. F., feed water heaters and pumps; J. W. Cassidy, Petaluma, Cal., drying apparatus; C. C. Coleman, S. F., ramie machine; W. T. Keils, S. F., faucet; M. Lachman, S. F., machine for making window shades; A. J. Packard and G. P. Harris, Hill's Ferry, Cal., tire tighteners; A. J. Vandrake, S. F., suspender clasp and button; B. W. Taylor, Roseville, Cal., harrows.

Our Opinion Also

The Stockton Herald, speaking of the Pierson-Blaine press personality bill, says: "All denounce it as a blow aimed not more at the liberties of the press than at it's usefulness, and some even go so far, and with some show of reason, as to declare that it is only a preparatory step to arranging a 'big steal'". The circumstances, when carefully studied, justify the suspicion.

For Hendricks.

Speaker Kerr has announced himself in favor of Hendricks for the Democratic nomination for uhe Presidency.

—Some Sacramento correspondent says "the general temper of legislators is against newspapers as a whole." There is really no solid reason why a legislator should like newspapers—unless he is an honest man. And it does not stand upon the records that any entire edition was ever bought out by legislators.

—The Gazette says the Kern county delinquent tax list this year foots up $30,900 out of a total of $112,000. Last year the delinquent list amounted to about $24,000.

—The Democratic Investigating Committee will urge that two full cavalry regiments be raised and sent to patrol the Rio Grande.

—It is asserted that the $10,000,000 bridge over the Mississippi at St. Louis will not pay interest on cost during this generation.

Very Likely.

Let the Democratic House, representing the American people, put the currency at par; let it reduce the expenditures of the country $40,000,000 annually; let it restore the purely revenue tax on tea and coffee; let it use the knife freely by reducing the tariff from the parasite protection, and it will do more good in a single session to restore the country to healthful prosperity and permanent wealth than has been done by Congress since the war closed, ten years ago.—Chicago Tribune.

A Pardon.

The Pacific Mail Company have succeeded in obtaining a pardon from the Hawaiian Government for piracy of James I. Waddell as commander of the cruiser Shenandoah in the burning of the Hawaiian whaling bark in the Arctic seas. This act of the Hawaiian Government will compel it to protect Waddell in case he ever enters Hawaiian waters and is threatened with violence on account of that piratical proceeding.

—His only call.—A policeman was yesterday escorting a citizen with his head bound up to the Central Station, when a kind-hearted man asked;

"Prisoner, what did you do?"

"Made a new year's call," was the answer.

"But how—what—why, I don't understand," said the citizen.

"I do," replied the prisoner—"I called a man a liar!"—[Detroit Free Press.]

BISHOP CREEK

FLOURING MILLS,

Bishop Creek,

Inyo County, - - - Ca.

HAVING BEEN THOROUGHLY OVERHAULED and refitted with new machinery complete, the above popular institution is now as perfectly prepared to do the best of work as any mill in the State, and from GOOD WHEAT will turn out the ever produced in Inyo county.

Very Best Flour

☞We run all our feed through a windmill and over a sand screen, cleaning our feed thoroughly and making it worth from 50 to 75 cents more per one hundred pounds than feed not cleaned.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Duncan Campbell, Sr., plaintiff, vs. S. C. Halsey, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court. The People of the State of California send greeting to S. C. Halsey, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served on of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against said defendant, and in favor of said plaintiff, for the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and sixty-eight cents ($419 68), principal, and Thirty dollars and forty-six cents ($30 46), interest, alleged by said plaintiff to be due him from said defendant on a certain promissory note made by said defendant to said plaintiff, together with interest on said sum of $419 68 at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of commencement of this suit, and for costs of suit, and that the whole judgment be made payable in U. S. gold coin, as does more fully appear from plaintiff's complaint to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiff's complaint, filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of [SEAL] the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

Commencing at a post marked "P No. 1 Y M," on south boundary of mine from which corner common to Sections 3 and 4 on north boundary of T 17 S R 38 E, bears S 31 deg 1 min 7 W 415 chains 67 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 75 links to post marked "P No. 2 Y M," in a stone mound two feet high 10 links north of the Belshaw grade from which a pine stump 19 inches in diameter bears S 24 deg W 35 links distant, thence N 11 deg W 24 chains 24 links to post marked "P No. 4 Y M," in mound 50 links south of road, thence N 79 deg E 1 chain 51 links to post marked "P No. 5 Y M," in stone mound two feet high, a pine stump 8 inches in diameter, bears N 25 deg E 160 links distant, thence S 11 deg E 24 chains 24 links to post marked "P No. 7 Y M," a pine tree 7 inches in diameter bears south 20 deg E 140 links distant, thence S 79 deg W 76 links to post and mound on south boundary, the place of beginning, containing 3 66-100 acres.

This claim is bounded on all sides by mineral land and mining claims.

The Location of this mine is duly recorded in the Recorder's office of Inyo county, Cal., and in books of Cerro Gordo Mining District.

Any and all persons claiming adversely any portion of said Ygnacio mine or said mining ground as hereinbefore described, are required to file their adverse claim with the Register of the United States Land Office at Independence, in the State of California, during the sixty days period of publication hereof, or they will be barred by virtue of the provisions of the statute.

Bowen and Beecher.

[From The New York Dispatch, Feb. 11.]

At an adjourned annual meeting of Plymouth Church February 11, the Examining Committee was instructed to summon Bowen before them, after giving him ten days' notice, for trial. Then he will be asked to state all he knows in support of the charges made in his letter.

Mr. Beecher said he was far from feeling in a spirited humor. A controversy between a pastor and a member of a church was a very sad thing to have. A quarrel was to him in the nature of a funeral service. Mr. Bowen was one of the oldest members of the church, but he must not forget that Mr. Bowen's threshhold was the first he crossed on coming to Brooklyn. He could not think of anything more sad than to find a man with whom he had walked, arm in arm, and with whom he had taken sweet counsel, and in whose hospitality he had shared turned against him. Mr. Beecher had thus far spoken very quietly and sadly, but now he burst forth in thundering tones, throwing into his words all the vehemence possible to him. He said that if for the last fifteen years or more Mr. Bowen had been in possession of these facts and never brought them before him or any officer of the Church he was guilty of breaking his convenant with the Church, and ought to be expelled. If he (the speaker) was what he was alleged to be he should have been turned out of church long ago. He was not guilty, and the allegation made by Mr. Bowen were false. He would pronounce them so. He referred sarcastically to the fact that Mr. Bowen had not had time to prepare to answer questions, but said he had time to charge him with being a criminal, the badness of which the three epithets used by him could hardly compass. There should be no secrecy in the matter if he could help it. The matter ought and should be sifted to the very bottom. Beecher had now allowed his voice to die down to one in which were expressed mingled sadness and reproach, when suddenly busting forth with his loudest and most vehement tones, he said, "As for myself, I pronounce the allegations as false, and with Almighty God before me and the Judgment Day, I arraign him as a slanderer and a liar." Then, as he sat down, was enacted a scene which has never but twice before taken place in Plymouth Church lecture rooms. Clapping of hands, stamping of feet and men hallowing plaudits at their pastor, while his wife bowed her head upon her hands and wept bitterly for some moments. The meeting then adjourned at the call of the chair.

The Examining Committee met immediately after adjournment, and decided to summon Bowen to appear before them on the evening of the 23d instant, at the residence of Assistant pastor Halliday, there to give proof of the allegations contained in his communication of the 4th instant.

Privileges of Leap Year.

"Young ladies have the privilege of saying anything they please during leap-year," she said, eyeing him out of the corners of her eyes with a sweet look.

His heart gave a great bound, and, while he wondered if she was going to ask the question which he had so long desired and feared to do, he answered "Yes."

"And the young men must not refuse," said she.

"No, no! How could they?" sighed he.

"Well, then," said she, "will you—"

He fell on his knees and said: "Anything, anything you ask, darling"

"Wait till I get through. Will you take a walk, and not hang round our house so much?"

And he walked.—[Oil City Derrick.

Doughnuts.

Here is a recipe for making doughnuts: Take a half pint of sweet milk, half cup of butter (scanted), one cup of yeast, salt; flavor with nutmeg or cinnamon. Mix them at night. In the morning roll out and let them raise until very light, and drop in hot fat. They are very nice, after they are fried, to roll them in pulverized sugar.

Why People are Poor.

"Gail Hamilton" says that "in a country like this poverty is a presumption of defect." We copy from one of her articles in The Independent, as follows:

"What doth hinder any man from earning his own living? Illness may come; sudden calamity may fall. Against these even energy may be powerless; but apart from this, it is to be assumed that he who fails, fails because he lacks wisdom, and not opportunity. And the same weakness which prevented him from grasping the opportunity, prevents him from keeping hold of it after it is put into his hand. Once in awhile, once in a great while, a timely succor avails in a moment of temporary weakness or averts the consequence of a mistake, and the man starts ahead at a swinging pace. But oftener the results seem to indicate that it is of little use to help people who cannot help themselves. The very causes that make them poor keep them poor. It is not that society bears down hard upon them. It is that they are self-indulgent. If you see a widow and five children shivering over a few embers you pity them, and you must send them coal; but you cannot help feeling a wrathful contempt at knowing that they went to the photographer's yesterday and had their pictures taken, after buying a couple of twenty-five cent brooches on the way, to adorn themselves withal. The very things you yourself would hesitate to do, on account of the expense, people who are partially dependant on your charity will do without hesitation. Where you will practice a natural, cheerful, unthinking self-denial, they will practice an equally cheerful and unthinking self-indulgence. The remnants of bread that you dry in the oven and save for future use they throw away. The fragmentary vest-sleeve that you fashioned into a flat iron holder they put into the rag-bag, and buy new cloth for their holders. Where you rise at six, they lie till half-past seven. Where you walk, they ride. Where you pray and watch and strive to do your work thoroughly, they are content with anything that will answer. That is the reason why people are poor."

The Discovery of the Cross.

The festival called the "Invention of the Cross," instituted in honor of the finding of the cross, in 326 by the Empress Helena, Helena, the mother of Constantine, is celebrated on the 3d of May. The story of the discovery is related by Socrates, Sozomen, Rufinus, Theodoret, Paulinus, Sulpicius Severus, St. Cyril of Jerusalem, and Chrysostom; but Eusebius is silent regarding it. When Helena visited the scenes about Jerusalem, it is said that every trace of the great events had been obliterated by the heathen, and a temple of Venus stood upon Mount Calvary; but a Jew, who had treasured up what traditions he could gather, pointed out the probable place of Christ's sepulchre. The spot being excavated, three crosses were discovered, and the title which that of Jesus bore was found lying by itself. It is related that the cross of Christ was distinguished from the other two by miraculous cures wrought by touching it. A church was built over the spot, and a part of the sacred relic was deposited in it; a part was sent to Rome, and placed in the church of Santa Croce in Gerusalemme, built to receive it; and the rest was put by Constantine into the head of a statue of himself in Constantinople. The first was carried away by Chosroes, King of Persia, in 614, but was afterward recovered by the Emperor Heraclius, who restored it to its former place in 629 In the time of the Crusades it was borne to battle by the Christians, and was captured by Salodin in 1187, in his great victory near Tiberias. What is asserted to be a piece of the true cross is still shown at Rome; another was preserved in Poland till the seventeenth century, when it was presented by John Casimir to the Princess Palatine Anna Gonzaga, who bequeathed it to the monks of St. Germain, Paris; and innumerable small reputed fragments are held by Catholics throughout the world.

An Easy Time.

The officers and seamen of the Turkish Navy must have rather an easy time. Turkey has fifteen ships of war which cost nearly $20,000,000 apiece They lie idle in the Bosphorous all Summer, their only use being to fire salutes every Friday when the Sultan goes to the Mosque. They never go to sea, and if they did they would be likely to founder in the first gale, for they are very unwieldy, and the Turks are miserable sailors. The only voyages they make are when in the Spring they are taken out of the Golden Horn and anchored in the Bosphorus, a distance of about two miles; and when in the Fall they are taken back to their Winter quarters in the Golden Horn.

Alkali Jim.

The convict "Alkali Jim" who escaped from San Quentin prison, California, a some months ago in a shoe box was captured in St. Louis recently and was obliged to "go West" again. On the boat which conveyed him from the prison to San Francisco, the box was turned upside down, and the daring prisoner had to stand within it on his head for two hours and a half. When the boat arrived at the city, he was released by a fellow convict who had just been discharged.

Some Vain Advice.

Before the Maguire trial came on in St. Louis, Sylvester H. Laffin, a prominent citizen went to him and told him that if the charges against him were true, he ought to plead guilty. "If you do that," Laflin said, "I and five hundred others will do our utmost to get you out of the trouble. Don't for God's sake, let such a mass of damnable stuff come out on you as has in this McKee trial. If you don't plead guilty, and get caught, never come to me for help." Laflin is the president of the Laflin & Rand Powder Company, and a man of considerably influence. Maguire declared his innocence.

Indian Affairs.

Washington dates of the 15th say: The bill reported from the Committee on Military Affairs for the transfer of jurisdiction and control of the Indian Bureau from the Secretary of the Interior to the Secretary of War provides that the act shall take effect on the first of July next. The Secretary of War is required to detail an officer not below the rank of colonel to take charge of the office under such regulations as he may prescribe. Army officers are to act as superintendents, agents, sub-agents, etc., thus abolishing all present civil machinery of the bureau. Provision is made for the continuance of Indian supplies through army officers, and the Secretary of War is required to cause an enumeration of all Indians to be taken. The report of the Committee was unanimous.

The Press Convention.

Quite a gathering of newspaper publishers took place in San Francisco, pursuant to a widely published call, and on the 15th duly incorporated under the title of the "Associated Country Press of California" with a capital stock of $2,000 in shares of $20 each, with five trustees as follows: Thos. L Thompson, Santa Rosa; F. K. Krauth, Alameda; Theodore Glancey, Placer; Geo. W. Gift, Napa, and W. Schudder, Sonoma. It was agreed that when the convention adjourn, it adjourn to meet in San Francisco on Monday, March 2d, 1876, at which time it is expected that the by-laws will be adopted. It was understood also that the Press Association of Editors and Publishers of the entire State would be formed at that time. After some unimportant business the convention adjourned.

Lecturing.

J. M. Hutchings, whose visit here last Fall will be remembered, has delivered several lectures in the Assembly Chamber at Sacramento to large audiences. His lecture is illustrated with numerous dissolving views of our Inyo mountain scenery, among which figures our Fisherman's Peak, as the highest mountain in the United States is now called. The Record-Union says: "Admirable dioramic illustration constituted a very interesting feature of the entertainment, and made very clear the entertaining descriptions of the lecturer." As Mr. Hutchings will exhibit his pictures and lecture at the Centennial, this section will receive such an introduction to the world as will be of benefit to it in various ways.

A County Treasury Robbed.

On Thursday night of last week some robbers broke into the Treasury safe of Kern county and took therefrom the sum of $27,000, all county money except $5,000, the latter belonging in part to Wells, Fargo, the remainder to the Kern Valley Bank, where the county moneys were kept. Mr. S. J. Lansing, the Cashier of the Bank, was knocked senseless by a sand club and remained in that condition until the following morning, when the fact of the daring robbery became known. It seems there were two of the robbers and that they were experts.

The Plains Across.

A larger number of wagons crossed the plains last year than during any previous year since the completion of the Pacfic Railroad. They numbered several thousand, and on each there were from two to six emigrants. Most of them were farmers and quite a large proportion of them moved in the direction of Oregon.

Taxing Church Property.

The Rhode Island Assembly have passed a bill declaring that land occupied or possessed by churches, schools or colleges and charitable institutions shall be taxed the same as other real estate. This is a new departure for "Little Rhody," and a precedent worthy to be followed by other States.

Fishy.

The Nevada papers tell it as a fact that they find fish swimming in the hot waters of the Savage and Hale & Norcross mines. These fish are small, of a red color, and are without eyes. They have these hot-water, subterranean fish on exhibition at some of the Virginia saloons. Next.

Colorado.

The Constitutional Convention of Colorado, after two days of earnest discussion, adopted a chapter on the elective franchise which requires the first State Legislature to provide by enactment for the submission of the woman's suffrage question to a vote of the people.

THE LASSEN COUNTY LAW.

Subjoined is the law to provide for the sale of desert lands in Lassen county. It is the same to which we referred in connection with the proposed Owens Valley irrigating canal. We were in error respecting the amount of land a single purchaser might obtain; also, in this, that after proving up as provided in the act, the usual Government price of $1 25 per acre has to be paid, the land not being a grant for its mere reclamation. This is the first time we have seen the full text of the law. It is concise and perfectly fair, and one which we hope may be made applicable to this county. Under it this irrigating scheme will certainly tend to make this valley one of the most prosperous in the State. Neither the Government nor the general public can be losers if under this law any association or individual afterwards chooses to build this canal, and absorbs ever so much of that class of land, which is now worthless, but with water, is in good part, among the very best for alfalfa, and in fact, all kinds of crops. Here is the law as found in Copp's Land Laws, page 169:

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE SALE OF DESERT LANDS IN LASSEN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That it shall be lawful for any citizen of the United States, or any person of requisite age who may be entitled to become a citizen, and who has filed his declaration of intention to become such, to file a declaration with the register and receiver of the proper land district for the county of Lassen, California, in which any desert land is situated, that he intends to reclaim a tract of desert land situated in said county, not exceeding one section, by conducting water upon the same, so as to reclaim all of said land within the period of two years thereafter; and said declaration shall be under oath and shall describe particularly said section of land, if surveyed, and, if unsurveyed, shall describe the same as nearly as possible without a survey; which said declaration shall be supported by the affidavit of at least two credible witnesses, establishing to the satisfaction of the register or receiver the fact that said lands are of the character described in this act. And at any time within the period of two years after filing said declaration, and upon making satisfactory proof of the reclamation of said tract of land in the manner aforesaid, before the register and the receiver of said land office, such person shall be entitled to enter or locate the reclaimed section, or any part thereof, in the same manner as in cases where public lands of the United States are subject to entry, at a price not exceeding one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, and shall receive a patent therefor.

LAW IN CARSON.

Carson is a burg in Nevada where, on mere suspicion, they hang men like Burt without any bother about forms of law. It is also the same place where it is pronounced meritorious for two or three idiotic desperadoes to shoot into a stage loaded with women and children whenever they want to "interview" one of the passengers. Carson is highly consistent. It also has a paper called The Appeal (for gin), which will lie about things for hire and then take it back for fear. The Eureka Sentinel has this to say about Carson transactions:

We publish the following from the columns of The Carson Tribune, as an illustration of the truthfulness of the average Carson witness. It wouldn't astonish us if the State Prison Board find that Mollie Forshay forcibly violated the sanctity of Warden Hyman's private apartments; that the prisoners have swindled him out of several thousand dollars in the way of private stores, and that they recommend the passage of a relief bill for him by the next Legislature:

"In the District Court yesterday the trial of Alex. Perasich for an assault to commit murder upon Ashim, his brother's murderer, was had. District Attorney Patterson appeared for the prosecution and Gen. R. M. Clarke for the defense. Neither Ashim nor his mother were present, nor were other witnesses who had been expected by the prosecution. The testimony elicited went to prove that Perasich did not shoot at Ashim at all. All that shown was that defendant challenged Ashim to fight. All the shots fired in the melee were fired by Ashim, who was in the stage. The case went to the jury last evening shortly after 8 o'clock The very reasonable supposition is that a verdict of acquittal of the crime charged in the indictment would be rendered. Such was Mr Patterson's opinion when we interviewed him last night. Of course, if the prosecution fails to secure a conviction in this case the other indictment against Perasich will not be prosecuted.

[The jury arrived at a verdict of guilty of assault—a simple misdemeanor.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

San Fernando Oil Wells.

Dr. Gelcich, who has just made a visit to the oil wells of San Fernando, informs us that two gentlemen from Petrolia, Pennsylvania, named Pitcairn and Smith, were out there with him. These gentlemen are the most extensive oil well operators and owners in Pennsylvania, and they expressed themselves as greatly astonished at the apparent oil capacity of our region. They concluded, from what they had seen there, that we have the most promising oil section in the world outside of Pennsylvania, and so taken were they with what they saw that they made up their minds to return here and give our section a trial.—[Los Angeles Express.

Silver vs. Gold.

Representative Wigginton has introduced a bill to abolish the coinage of quarter eagles and of one and three dollar gold pieces, and to provide for the coinage of a fifty dollar piece. The object is to widen the field for silver coin,

THAT TULARE LAKE LAND STEAL.

The other day we made reference to the Tulare Lake land steal. We have now something more in reference to it. A San Francisco dispatch to The Union gives this account of it:

A case came up in the Twelfth District on the 10th which is supposed to have more behind it than would at first appear. In 1858, Thomas Baker and others received from the Legislature a grant of about 250,000 acres of land, known as the Tulare Canal grant, the consideration being the reclamation by Baker and his associates of a large tract of swamp land lying adjacent to Lake Tulare. The grant was amended in 1862, and in 1866 a patent was issued covering 90,000 acres, a compromise having been effected between the State and Baker and his associates for that reduced amount. The land was subsequently sold off in parcels by the original grantees, and purchased by the settlers who now occupy it. On the last day of his official life ex Attorney-General Love authorized H. H. Haight to bring a suit in the name of the State of California against the present occupants of the tract in question for the recovery by the State of the whole grant, on the alleged ground that the original conveyance had been voided by a failure on the part of the original grantees to fulfill the condition of the contract with regard to the reclamation. None of the present owners were designated in the complaint by name with the exception of John Center. There has been apparently no effort made to notify them of the commencement of the suit, and had it not been that Center accidentally heard of it, the State would have taken judgment by default. Learning of the facts, Center has filed an answer, and this will probably be followed by others. So far as at present understood, the suit looks very much like an attempt at snap judgment, and it is very generally considered by those cognizant of the facts that it is brought at the instigation of certain large land holders in that neighborhood, whose intention is to procure the transfer of the tract to the State and then immediately cover it by some floating land grant of their own. In consequence of the discovery of the game by Center it is likely that the attempt will be frustrated, or that at least a strong fight will be made by the settlers.

The original was a fraud and a steal without mitigation; this second, to rob innocent purchasers as is the clear intent of this suit, would be even meaner than the first. It's a pity, a great pity, there had not been, years ago, an available Andersonville for the perjured land pirates of California. Then it is possible so many of Uncle Sam's poorer children would not have been robbed of their rightful inheritance. But the robbing goes bravely on; these Tulare settlers were robbed of their right to free homes in the first place, and now, having purchased them, with hard earned money, the next move is to rob them of that also. Go it, pirates!

What Bowen Proposes.

Here is how Bowen proposes to get at H. W. B.:

I propose that three men, within the congregational body, distinguished for the wisdom and impartiality, such, for example, as President Woolsey, President Asa D. Smith, President Fairchild, Judge Lafayette S. Foster, Hon. A. Hoody or the Hon. Julius H. Seelye, men in whose decision the world will feel confidence, who shall be pledged to keep all such evidence secret, before whom only Mr. Beecher and myself shall appear, without witnesses, and before whom I will consent, without any reserve whatever, and as soon as they can meet, to give in full the evidence which has led me to say that I have no doubt Mr. Beecher is guilty of adultery, hypocrisy and perjury. I ask nothing more than they fully consider the questions which you seem to have before you, whether I deserve ecclesiastical censure for my previous silence in reference to Mr. Beecher, and whether I am now justified by the facts in my possession in making what you call my "infamous allegations" and insinuations made about him in response to your own demand for a reply to Mr. White's grievances. I am willing to abide by the censure or approval of such a body of men, if Mr. Beecher and Plymouth Church will also submit to their decision. I reaffirm everything that I have stated about Henry Ward Beecher in my previous communication to you, and I am ready to substantiate it before such a tribunal. Very respectfully, HENRY C. BOWEN.

The committee decided not to accept Bowen's proposition, because it was not a case between Beecher and Bowen, but between Plymouth Church and Bowen, and should not be withdrawn from the Church and taken before strangers. Bowen asked for ten days in which to consult his papers and documents, dates and memorandums referring to the case, after which he would answer any questions that might be proposed to him. The committee adopted resolutions in which they refused to accede to Bowen's request for further adjournment, and urged him to state any facts in support of his allegations against Beecher's character. Bowen then read a paper in which he declined to answer any questions, after which he withdrew.

The Los Angeles and Independence Railroad—Its Prospective Connections.

[From The Santa Monica Outlook, Feb. 16.]

The people of Southern California, who are familiar with its history for the past few years, must be highly gratified at the evidences of rapid advancement that confront them on all sides. The developments have been nothing less than a succession of agreeable surprises. One can nearly count the years on the fingers of one hand back to the time when this end of the State was disparagingly referred to as the "cow counties." But that time has past. Our agricultural developments are a wonder to every one, and there seems to be no limit to the productive capacity of the soil; the mineral resources of the back country are almost inexhaustible; and these facts, combined with the prospective facilities for extensive commercial relations, are inducing a rapid settlement of permanent residents.

Railroad building has already been very considerable; but what has been done are merely starting points to indicate the direction of extended lines that are rapidly becoming a commercial necessity. If anyone will consult the map he will readily see the superior geographical position of Los Angeles as a railroad center. All the important mountain gaps through which the lines of road approaching this southern coast must pass, open into this valley. The city is also upon the latitude to secure an unbroken line of travel and trade, free from the interruptions of snow that interfere so materially with the business of the only overland road in operation. It is also on the most direct route of shipment from the trans-Pacific countries.

In all these prospective extensions it is plainly to be seen that the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad will be a most important link. In fact it will be the most valuable of all the roads to Los Angeles, and we might say to a large portion of Southern California. Its first section of fifteen miles from the ocean at Santa Monica to Los Angeles has been of great benefit to the people, in the reduction of fares and freights and in rapid transportation. Its connections in the future will also be most important.

Leaving Los Angeles, the route will extend through a splendid agricultural region in this and San Bernardino counties, adding greatly to the value of the lands. Near Colton it will cross the Southern Pacific road, one end of which will soon be completed to San Francisco, the other to the Colorado river, and ultimately to a connection with some Texas road. The Los Angeles and Independence railroad goes on to San Bernardino, giving that people a cheap route to the ocean. Here San Diego will probably tap our road and unite with us in seeking a connection overland. Leaving San Bernardino, the route will continue through Cajon Pass on to Point of Rocks. At this point the road will divide, one branch seeking the mineral regions as far as Independence and the other continuing across the Mojave country to a meeting with the Utah Southern. It will also be seen by consulting the map that the Kansas Pacific, reaching out for Santa Fe, and the Atlantic and Pacific (35th parallel) would both find it the most feasible route to form a connection with the Los Angeles and Independence road in order to reach the Pacific ocean.

Viewing the whole field from a business stand point, we think all must admit that the Los Angeles and Independence railroad has a most flattering prospect ahead. Its ocean terminus is already established, where the largest ships may land at all times; much of its route is through valuable agricultural and mineral regions; the line of the overland connections are shorter than any other, and the grade easier; the route is free from snow-blockade, and the geographical position is such as to compel important connections from the East.

But to the people of Los Angeles county the Los Angeles and Independence railroad is especially important. Should the Southern Pacific succeed in foiling Col. Tom Scott in his application for "Government aid," the former will use all of its great power in behalf of San Francisco. Should Col. Scott succeed his ocean terminus will probably be at San Diego. But the Los Angeles and Independence railroad has its terminus at Santa Monica, within the limits of Los Angeles county. This is above all others a Los Angeles road, and all of its influence will be exerted in building up the great city of Southern California within our midst.

It seems to us that there should be but one sentiment among our people in behalf of the Los Angeles and Independence railroad, and that should be manifested in something more than words. Southern California is capable of being an empire within itself. Its soil, climate, mineral and agricultural resources, its geographical position and certain commercial connections, all point to it as a land capable of any and all things—a land whose brilliant destiny can only be marred by the shortsighted policy of its own people.

A Legislative Ex-Pounder.

Mr. John Morrissey has surprised the State Senate by making a speech. It was a good one—short, modest, pointed, and a hit. It was on the Gray Nuns Act. He said that he could not find that anybody asked for the bill. The Gray Nuns did not ask for it. The Catholics did not ask for it. The highest Catholic authority in the State desires its repeal. Mr. Morrissey says there are no rights this bill gives to the Gray Nuns he would not give to all other denominations, for he has no denominational prejudices. But he has a profound prejudice in favor of free schools, and would go further and do more than anybody to throw safeguards around them. Other men may know more of the worth of education than he, but no one knows the want of it any better. And, like a sensible man, he deplores the introduction of sectarian issues into politics.

News Items.

A dispatch from Washington says the Senate Committee on Public Lands devoted its entire session on the 15th in the consideration of Senator Booth's bill to subject railroad lands to local taxation as soon as they are earned by the companies. The Committee were unanimously in favor of the object of the bill, but there being some difference of opinion as to the best method of accomplishing it, the bill was referred, with one by Harvey on the same subject, to a sub-committee to report on details.

A terrible hurricane passed over Scott county, Indiana, on the 13th. It was three quarters of a mile wide and in direction rushed from the southeast to the northeast till it spent its fury at Newton. Through the region surrounding the latter place it gained its greatest violence and played wonderful freaks, raising cabins high in the air, shoving off roofs, tearing immense trees up by the roots and splintering them, but so far as heard from no lives were lost.

A London paper says rumors have been afloat the past few days to the effect that telegrams have been passing between President Grant and Minister Schenck concerning the latter's resignation. Some of these reports distinctly state that Schenck has been asked to resign, and others that the President telegraphed him that he intends standing by him

In Memoriam.

Having had the pleasure of an intimate acquaintance with the late Mrs. HULDAH LEVY during her brief, but alas! fatal sojourn in our midst, I cannot refrain from expressing extremest sorrow for her untimely loss, accompanied with the tender condolence of a sympathetic heart to her sorrowing husband and sisters here, as well as to the grief-stricken mother in a foreign land. Three short years ago, buoyant in health, reveling in joyous anticipations and bright hopes of meeting loving sisters from whom she had been separated from early childhood, the deceased bade adieu to her aged mother and the scenes of home and youth, and daring the dangers of the stormy Atlantic, wended her way across the boundless American continent, through desert and solitude, to where a California sun shed its cheerful rays upon a happy reunion in the peaceful homes of her loving sisters. Happy and cheerful in disposition, her intercourse with relatives and friends was ever of the most pleasant character, and her presence conveyed to all the peaceful content and charming hopefulness that dwelt within her. Her life exemplified her goodness of heart, and loved and cherished by all who knew her, she has winged her flight to that unknown land where sorrow ceases and the good are at rest, with the mournful requiem of a husband's grief and sisters' sighs waiting forever sadly and silently upward towards her.

Thy loving heart has ceased its beating,
Thy tired hands fold o'er thy breast;
And thy spirit calmly sleeping
Tells us of thy final rest.

PROPOSALS FOR TRANSPORTATION.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF CALIFORNIA, San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 21, 1876.

SEALED PROPOSALS, IN TRIPLICATE, WITH a copy of this advertisement attached to each, will be received at this office, and also at the office of the Post Quartermaster at the several posts named below, until noon of Wednesday, April 19, 1876, when bids will be opened in the presence of bidders, for the transportation of Government Stores during the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1876, and ending June 30, 1877, over the following routes:

Route No. 1.—From Reno, Nevada, to Camp Bidwell, California, 50 tons.

Route No. 2.—From San Francisco, Cal., to Camp Gaston, Cal., 50 tons. Stores to be taken from Storehouse in San Francisco.

Route No. 3.—From San Francisco, Cal., to Camp Independence, Cal., 60 tons. Stores to be taken from Storehouse in San Francisco.

Route No. 4.—From Winnemucca, Nevada, to Camp McDermit, Nevada, 75 tons

The above are the estimated quantities to be transported the Government reserving to itself the right to increase or diminish the same during the existence of the contract, or to use its own transportation. The price per pound will be stated, both in legal tender notes and coin. Bidders will give post office address, and if a firm the name of each member. In every case bidders will state the smallest number of days they are willing to contract to deliver the stores at their respective destination, after they are delivered to them for transportation, also rates at which stores will be transported during the Winter months, from November 1st to March 31st.

The usual conditions required from bidders. For further information, and for blank forms, which will be furnished bidders, apply at this office personally or by letter. Each proposal must be in a separate sealed envelope, and plainly indorsed on the outside, "Proposals for Route No. ——," and addressed to the undersigned.

No bids will be considered from irresponsible parties.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Post Lands.

Congressman Wigginton has introduced a bill to restore all lands within one mile of Camp Independence to pre-emption and homestead entry. The only specifications we have of its provisions beyond the main fact is that the Post is to retain the first water right. As a portion of this ground was orignally located by one McLaughlin as State land, it is quite likely the present holder of that right, J. Earl, will succeed in having it reinstated with other rights, and in that case, will get the first "say" on the grounds where the Post buildings stand. Of course Congress can reduce the limits of the reservation at will, and also, of course, whatever is so retained will eventually be sold as Government property without respect to State or other claimant, provided the act to so reduce it, and to restore that outside to entry, is so worded as to explicitly guard the Government title to the reduced area. It may be that there is no danger on that point, but that was the trouble with Hagar's bill of two years ago. Except for possible reasons of that kind the bill is one that ought to pass.

Leap Year Ball.

Elsewhere will be seen the announcement of a grand leap year ball and collation, to transpire at the Court House on the evening of Tuesday next, which our ladies here are preparing for. Every lady here and all around about is expected to bring her "feller" and to take care of him. This ball was not fully determined upon until day before yesterday, and is therefore rather an impromptu affair; but already a good many of our male innocents have been captured for the occasion, and most of the remainder are beginning to wear a languishing, faint-away but anxious look withal, highly appropriate to the new conditions. An ample supply of smelling (asafœtida) bottles should be at hand, supposin' any of the innocent orphans should want to faint. However, the management is in excellent hands, and we will not obtrude advice. All we have seen are taking hold with spirit, and we are sure this is going to be one of the best things we have had for many a day.

Inyo Notaries.

Following is a complete list of all the Notaries Public for Inyo in commission and now resident in the county: Panamint—W. C. Smith and J. M. Murphy (R. E. Arick is also Notary for Panamint, but is absent); Darwin—M. J. McManus and Wm. T. Grant; Lone Pine—R. A. Loomis and D. P. Macarter, both of whose commissions will expire in a month or two more: Independence—V. A. Gregg, Paul W. Bennett and A. R. Conklin; Bishop Creek, Geo. C. Alexander. As the county is allowed seventeen Notaries, there yet remain seven vacancies. A Notary is needed at Cerro Gordo quite as much as any other place, and it would be well for some one up there to apply for a commission. Big Pine also might find it once in a while to their interest to have one.

From San Francisco.

V. A. Gregg, Esq., got back from San Francisco a few days since. He found a number of well known Invoites down there, among whom we may mention: J. L. Porter who is something of an invalid, but is doing pretty well; and John Simpson, who has high hopes, that by April, if not sooner, he will have his Potosi tunnel enterprise in such shape as to insure its early completion. We believe he will do it, for we are confident it is really a most promising project and worthy the attention of capitalists. Mr. Gregg says that the Inyo region is attracting more attention from mining men than any other place on the coast, the Comstock alone excepted. Truly, the time will come when it will not be second even to hat.

Worthy of Note.

As one of the unusual events among secret organizations in this county, we have it to state that Honor Lodge No. 4, I. O. G. T., in force and full regalia, proposes to visit Busy Bee Lodge No. 250, at its regular meeting next Wednesday night. Honor Lodge is a strong one, and has probably the finest regalia of any in the State; but aside from that, we are requested to say that the presence of all members of Busy Bee is earnestly desired at this particular meeting.

From Bishop.

Dr. Middleton, of Bishop, made us a brief call this week. Also John Bourland, of the same locality; Jos. Inman, of the same, is here, invalided, under Dr. Blair's care. Dr. Middleton tells us that a number of little ones up the country are afflicted with the epizooty, from which they are in great danger of sudden death by suffocation; so far, however, no fatal cases are reported.

The Tax Sale.

Sheriff Moore, per Dad, auctioned off 118 parcels of real property at his delinquent tax sale on the 23d. Of this number 108 were knocked off to the State, the remaining 10 going to purchasers other than the original owners. Full seventy-five per cent of these parcels are Panamint town lots.

Another Inyo Incorporation.

Last week we noted the sale by the Nossano brothers of their Rose Spring mines. The purchasers have since incorporated, under the name of the Garibaldi Mining Company. Directors—A. J. Bowie, Jr., Arch. Borlands, Wm. M. Lent, N. B. Stone and John F. Boyd. Capital stock, $10,000,000.

Chance for Teamsters.

In this issue will be found Quartermaster General Eddy's advertisement for sealed proposals for the transportation of military stores to certain posts, this of Camp Independence among the rest. It will open a chance worth looking after for our bullion freighters to get back loads.

Welcome Addition.

Our town this week has some additions to its population, of the kind most welcome, to wit, Thos. Passmore, Sheriff elect, and his Under Sheriff, Steve Gregg, and Omie Mars, each with their families, the latter being the consideration, par excellance.

Will Start Up.

John Broder had to hang up work at his furnace at Log Springs owing to the snow, which at last accounts was about three feet deep. The weather continuing favorable, the furnace will start up next Monday.

Time at Hand.

A week from next Monday is when our new county officials assume their respective positions and the outgoers resume their normal private citizenship. We hardly know which set to sympathise with, which to congratulate.

The 17th of Ireland.

Preparations are being made for a grand ball in Lone Pine on St. Patrick's Day. That is all we know about it, however.

The Sporting at the Taboose.

Our junior was in attendance at the races at the Taboose on the 22d and forwarded a detailed report, but it has not arrived somehow. We learn, though, that in all respects this occasion, was the most exciting, yet good humored, and better attended than any similar occasion we have yet had. The ball was largely attended, there being something near forty couples present, and was a success. The first race was one-half mile, for which the following entries were made: John Gibbin named Sleeper, H. C. Wright, Molly Smith, Jerome Hoover, Honesty, and Jas. Smith, Johnny, and the winner of the purse race, by just one foot. The purse was $90. Full $5,000 changed hands on this race. The next race was three hundred yards for a $50 saddle. Jas. Jones entered the winner, Mary Hammond, Steve. Gregg, same, and Jack Horton, Putty Head. The winner was about 20 feet ahead at the outcome. The pools on this race amounted to $600, and the outside bets to about as much more. The half-mile race was run in 56 seconds.

How a Spider Managed It.

The other morning a gentleman of this place started a fire in a box stove, on top of which was a large spider. Soon the latter began to realize the truth of Pope's lines beginning "The Spider's touch, how exquisite fine," rather much, and after prancing about as the plate became hotter and hotter, with no apparent hope but to perish miserably, at last went to the overhanging corner, and spider fashion, dropped his own unpatented fire ladder to the floor, down which he made good his escape.

Bonds Filed.

Since the 11th the following several officers have filed their official bonds in the Clerk's office: J. F. Dillon, Assessor, new bond, made necessary by one of the original bondsmen, (Wapelhorst) having sold out his real property; A. J. Chelius, Constable, Lone Pine; W. C. Smith, Justice of the Peace, for Panamint; Joel H. Turner, same for Darwin, and A. R. Conklin, Notary Public at Independence.

Mountain Grazing Lands.

The Senate has indefinitely postponed the concurrent resolution by Ferral, memorializing Congress to permit the pre-emption and homestead of 320 acres of mountain grazing land. This is a subject which has been agitated for some time, seeing that there are large areas of country fit for nothing but grazing purposes, upon which it is impossible for a man to make a living on 160 acres. Senator Tinnin of Trinity, in moving the indefinite postponement of the resolution, stated that while he coincided with its objects it would be opening the door to all sorts of abuses. Everybody knew that there was little or no difficulty in obtaining a patent for land as agricultural which was really mineral, and to grant 320 acres of mineral land to any one citizen would be permitting a greater amount of injustice than existed at present. No Senator rose to speak in favor of the resolution, and it was killed for the session by a viva voce vote.—[S. F. Alta.

Beats 'em.

An Eastern writer says that the severest trial of the average English cockney is to be called upon to quote from "Kathleen Mavourneen:"

"The horn of the hunter is heard on the hill."

But he ought to try 'em on this:

"Hall 'ail to Hold Hengland, bright hisle hof the hocean."

Escaped and Recaptured.

A San Bernardino dispatch of the 19th says: As Mr. McFarland, President of the Ivanpai mine, and John Mayfield, Deputy Sheriff, were traveling south, near San Felipe in San Diego county, in pursuit of parties who perpetrated the robbery of Ivanpai bullion recently, they came upon John Mitchel and his brother—the former of whom murdered his wife a short time since and broke jail. They were camped at Oak Grove. Mitchel having escaped upon a stormy night, took cold from exposure and became too enfeebled to continue his flight, and is now again in the hands of officers. They say a citizen of this place was paid $1,000 to assist in his escape, so some further interesting news may be expected.

No Whitewash for H. W. B.

The Council met and immediately proceeded to business. The moderator said: It is proper to remark at the outside that we are not here to whitewash either this church or its pastor. If they need whitewashing they should have called others than us. Second—We are not called to revise and correct the judgment of any former council. Thirdly—Not to amuse the public by drawing of their attention to side issues. Fourth—Not to decide or try the main question which has agitated not only Brooklyn, but all the English speaking Christendom for three years. We have nothing to do with that question.

—The St. Louis Republican says that not less than 1,700 men and women in the United States, at the present time, professionally practice what are termed the arts of astrology as a means of livelihood.

—William M. Tweed, Jr., rose in his might and marched boldly out of church when his minister said, one Sunday recently, that a man who shared in plundering a city should be dealt with as a felon.

—John Fitzpatrick, one of the gallant six hundred, has died in Manchester of starvation. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was, "Died of starvation, and the case is a disgrace to the War Office."

—It is settled, for the Supreme Court of Tennessee has decided under the Insolvency Act that an ass is a horse, and Judge Guild follows by holding that a buckboard is a cart.

—The people of Kerhonkson, Ulster county, New York, are making arrangements to visit the Centennial celebration in a canal boat, which is to be fitted up in elegant style.

—There is a man in Douglas county, Oregon, who seems to enjoy good health, though having for a name "William Henry Harrison Andrew Jackson George Tilmor Nelson."

—Philadelphia wants a church in which men wearing old clothes will feel at home. Can one wearing old duds feel at home anywhere?

—It is estimated that 75,000 Israelites will visit the Centennial next summer. They're to have a restaurant of their own, too.

—Moody's church in Chicago received $30,000 from England recently, the royalty brought in by the sale of Moody & Sankey's song book.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS—What a grand display we are preparing for the thirty-nine heathen nations who are coming here to view our civilization this year. How the American eagle will scream with delight. There is the big show at Philadelphia; but that is only a small part of the entertainment we are preparing. Two national conventions are to be held. How the violent and ruffianly fellows who govern Europe and Asia will be astonished at the calm and dignified manner in which these conventions are conducted. How they will wonder, when they see by the educated and intellectual appearance of the delegates, that none but the very best—the most intelligent, refined, and orderly men—are selected by the people of the various States to choose candidates for the highest positions in the nation; and then, when the election comes off, with what wonder they will read the five thousand political newspapers, listen to the myriad of political orators, and find that in no single instance has either or any of them departed from the rules of courtesy, in discussing the merits of candidates and parties. That in no case is personal abuse, blackguardism, or any departure from the rules of politeness permitted. How strangely will appear our illustrated papers, which, instead of following the custom of these papers in the "effete" countries of Europe, and caricaturing their opponents, publish excellent likenesses, with complimentary biographical sketches! Then the grand mass meetings and political gatherings, the torchlight processions, etc.; what a revelation it will be to these denizens of the old world, to see the order and dignity displayed.

Congress will be in session, too, and the nations may enter the galleries by platoons and see our law-makers at work. They can see how fastidiously each one has dressed to please all; with what attention and courtesy each member is treated by all; what oppressive silence reigns, and in what listening attitudes all place themselves, when any member arises to address the body. Then they can see, after the House adjourns how earnestly and honestly every member devotes himself to the duties of his high position; how they feel the responsibilities and dignity of their places.

Then, too, since the Bowen letter, there are probabilities that we can show them the best of evidences of the purity of our spiritual shepherds, their devotion to the flocks entrusted to their care; the affection that invariable exists between pastor and people; how all the churches are free from any censorious members, or from bickerings among themselves. We can have a copy of the whisky ring trials printed, and the investigations that have been made for the past few years, to show how guileless and honest our public officials are.

All these and many other evidences of our progress as a nation, besides the display made at Philadelphia, can and will be shown to our visitors. Let the eagle scream his loudest and make his loftiest flights, for we are going to show before all the world.

I think in the above truthful and graphic (sic) description, I mentioned the word "letters." I have met several men in the last few days who are adjectively inclined because of letters. Some have gone so far as to wish that letters could not be written and I have heard one learned fellow d— Cadmus, for the invention of the alphabet. He said that its combinations had always been getting people into trouble and always would be, and cited several instances running through many centuries. I thought for a time that his wife had found a note in his pocket, but listening a little longer the cause of his anger came forth; the Bowen letter, he said, would crowd the newspapers so that they could not give enough attention to politics, and "the letter of Jeff D vis would raise—" I did not distinctly hear the last word, but thought it was "hell," it sounded like that, anyhow. And then I walked off reflecting that if it had not been for the alphabet, and letters, and printing presses, etc., your million of readers would not have the pleasure of reading what Saxon has to say, and that I might be engaged like Cincinnatus in plowing cabbages, or Grant in tanning leather, or some other useful occupation, preparatory to being called by the people over some great country. This train of thought so occupied my mind as I sauntered up the Avenue that I ran against a lamp post, and my dream of cabbages and the presidency was gone.

Speaking of the Presidency reminds me that we are to have an election this year. Had you heard of it? Possibly I may have mentioned it in some previous letter, and thus the fact has become known, but for fear that you may have forgotten it, I will state again that there is to be an election for President this year. Nervous, foolish people who want to have things their own way, are actually getting excited about it, as if there was anything in this world that could possibly justify a man in getting excited, and thereby injuring his digestion. One of these excitable individuals rushed into my office and casting himself into a chair said, "Saxon, who are you going to advocate for the nomination?" With that calm dignity which is so well known I asked him what he meant, and he answered "who is your favorite?" I told him my pointer dog "Rock" was the only favorite I had, and that man actually said I was a darned fool, and then left in disgust before I could argue the question with him. There ought to be a police regulation to protect innocent people from politicians and beggars; they are the two most annoying nuisances of Washington. I have invented and am applying for a patent for a button that I expect to make a fortune out of this Summer; it is a coat button, and is put on with a patent fastener, which immediately comes loose when the button is grasped between the thumb and finger. Think what a blessing it will be to have these buttons this Summer. When the ward politician seizes you by the button and commences to dilate upon the necessity of your voting for his candidate, you walk right off and leave him talking to the button. I expect to obtain the prize medal from the humane society for that invention. I am trying to perfect it by making it so powerfully electrical that it will paralyze the holder's tongue for at least twenty-four hours. Should I succeed, countless millions will bless the name of SAXON.

Our Benton Correspondence.

BENTON, MONO CO., CAL. February 16th, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS—As our letters generally find room in your valuable little paper we will therefore venture a few more items, and probably a hint or two, which to the wise is sufficient.

We are having beautiful weather at present and the snow is melting very fast, causing matters underfoot to be very much mixed.

Mr. Mack's mill has started up with full force and all the noise accompanying a ten stamp mill. The little donkey (engine) at the hoisting works on the mountain gives the miners three cheers every time the boys get hungry, and so business is brightening up a little.

"BETTER LATE THAN NEVER."

It is rather strange, but true, that Benton has supported a school for about ten years without a school house, but recently Mr. Summers, of Bridgeport, was here and made some very pointed comments upon the subject which caused the papas of the burg to circulate a subscription for the purpose of building a school house, which was liberally signed, and a contract awarded Mr. J. Lytord who is pushing the work on said schoolhouse with all due diligence.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

During all the past cold weather and deep snow, a herd of old work steers have bothered the people of the village shamefully, by huddling at nights on the side walks under shelter, thereby subjecting the proprietors of said sidewalks to a little exercise with a shovel before their places of business could be opened to customers. These were cattle that had been worked hard all Summer and turned out to starve to death, and we do think "the Act for the more effectual prevention of cruelty to animals" (approved March 20, 1874) is very much deficient, because of requiring a society to incorporate for the prevention of cruelty to animals before there can be an arrest made or an action sustained against such offenders.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Howell and family, of Hutch's Canyon, have gone to the Bay.... Mr. W. Ball, of Aurora, arrived a few days ago to take charge of the Diana mill .... Mr Peck passed through en route over the stage line paying off, and a party of sports started to Owens River yesterday for a share of the ducks and geese. XXX

—At a benefit for the Centennial fund in London, the proceeds amounted to $3,000.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday, February 26.....1876.

—When Abbas the Great was hunting in the valley he met one morning, as the day dawned, an uncommonly ugly man, at the sight of whom his horse started. Being nearly dismounted, and deeming it a bad omen, he called out in a rage to have his head struck off. The poor peasant, whom they had seized, and were on the point of executing, prayed that he might be informed of his crime. "Your crime," said the king, "is your unlucky countenance, which is the first object I saw this morning, and which had nearly caused me to fall from my horse." "Alas!" said the man, "by this reckoning, what term must I apply to your majesty's countenance, which was the first object my eyes met this morning, and which is to cause my death?" The king smiled at the wit of the reply, ordered the man to be released, and gave him a present instead of taking off his head.

—The Rev. Dr. Ritchie of Edinburgh, though a very clever man, has met with his match. When examining a student as to the classes he had attented, he srid: "And you attended the class for mathematics?" "Yes." "How many sides has a circle?" "Two," said the student. "What are they?" What a laugh in the class the student's answer produced when he said, "An inside and an outside." But this was nothing compared with what followed. The Doctor, having said to this student, "And you attended the philosophy class also?" "Yes." "Well, you would hear lectures on various subjects. Did you ever hear one on cause and effect?" "Yes." "Does an effect ever go before a cause?" "Yes, a man wheeling a barrow for instance." The Doctor then sat down, and proposed no more questions.

—A man residing on a farm in Illinois has a four-year-old daughter named Etta, who frequently amuses herself by placing the chairs in a row and calling them a train of cars. One evening, while thus engaged, Mr. B—, a friend of the family, called, and unthinkingly occupied one of the "cars." Miss Etta, not wishing to have her play disturbed, stepped up, and said, "Mister, dis is a train of tars."

"Oh!" said Mr. B——; "then I will be a passenger, and take a ride."

Little Etta was not at all satisfied. After hesitating a moment she said: "Where do 'ou want to dit off?"

Mr. B—— replied, "I'll get off at Bloomington."

"Well," said Etta demurely, "dis is de place."—[Harpers Magazine.

—The Centennial Commission have determined to close the Exhibition on the Sabbath—that is on Sunday, the Sabbath of the Christians. If they close it on the Sabbath of every nation represented there, it would always be closed, as the following will show: For the Greeks they will close it on Monday; for the Persians on Tuesday; for the Assyrians on Wednesday; for the Egyptians on Thursday; for the Turks, the Arabs and all Mohammedan nations on Friday; for the Jews and the Seventh-day Baptists on Saturday, and for us Christians they will close it on Sunday, and open the beer gardens for us.

—The Santa Clara Sentinel says: It is seldom that the people of this favored climate has the opportunity of standing in their doors, and looking out upon snow capped mountains, extending from Monterey to Felton, covered with a white coat of snow, which forms a beautiful contrast to the bright green hills below. Such an immense quantity of snow in the Santa Cruz mountains has not been seen for many years.

—A young woman in Chicago put her false teeth in a glass of water at night, and in the morning found them embedded in a solid chunk of ice. She was late at breakfast, the process of thawing out the teeth with a bonfire of matches having been slow.

—"My dear," said a Cincinnati packer to his daughter, "a regular Murillo painting has been discovered in our city." "Is it water color, pa?" "No, my dear, it is a real hog's—oil painting." And the young lady screamed, "Oh, Lard!"

—Paris eats 85,000,000 rabbits yearly. And just across the border is a people which eats Bologna sausages and Limberger cheese. No wonder that peace between those countries is "mighty onsartin."

—A gentleman saw an advertisement that a recipe for the cure of dyspepsia might be had by sending two postage stamps to the advertiser, and the answer was, "Dig in your garden and let whisky alone."

—At the funeral of a woman, a lady in attendance, feeling it necessary to say something sympathetic to the afflicted husband, kindly observed: "You've got a splendid day for the funeral."

—A huge petrifaction, formed almost entirely of serpents in various positions, but making a solid mass, has been found near the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

—A Chicago girl writes to the school authorities of that city to say that she "hed bin out of employment for a yeare and wud teech for $10 a month and bord around."

—A man in Kentucky was found dead with fourteen bullet-holes in his head, and a coroner's jury returned a verdict of "death from undue excitement."

—The Sandwich Islands are going to adopt a new flag, but they can't decide whether to take a gray horse-blanket with a hole in it, or an old vest with the back ripped out.

—The dogs of the Pawnee Indians refused to follow their masters to the new reservation in Indian Territory, so the old haunts are occupied by a legion of howling, starving creatures.

—Swindler is the suggestive name of the principal contractor for the great canal in Colorado.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

A Pleasant Episode.

On the opening of the Nineteenth District Court, San Francisco, February 21st, Judge E. D. Wheeler, Hon. John W. Dwinelle addressed the Court as follows:

May it please the Court: It becomes my duty, assigned to me by the members of the Bar now present, to announce to your Honor the death of George Washington, which took place at his residence at Mount Vernon, in the State of Virginia, in the 67th year of his age.

I need not enlarge upon his great military, political and civil service, rendered to the people of the United States in laying the foundation of our great National Republic. They were so great, and so universally conceded, that I have no doubt that future generations will name their children after him, and the progeny of George Washington Stubbs, George Washington Bolch, and George Washington Shreik, will perpetuate his name to all future generations. His merits have received a peculiar recognition in California. The 22d day of February, the anniversary of his birth, is declared by law to be a holiday, the same as the Christian Sunday. If our promissory notes become due on that day we need not pay them—even if we had the money—until the next day, the 23d, for which let us be devoutly thankful. The Courts cannot sit on that day; if your honor should pass sentence of death upon me for the murder of my mother-in-law, the sentence would be null and void; and if the Sheriff, contrary to my own expressed wishes, should carry that sentence into effect, and hang me by the neck until I was dead—dead—dead, I have no doubt that when your honor had studied up the case, and came to the conclusion that you had made a mistake, and had no authority to pass such sentence, you would weep tears of regret—and perhaps remorse—over my grave, and rush into California street and organize a dime subscription to erect a monument to my memory—silver to be taken at par with gold.

George Washington was a great military General, and he was the first President of the United States. I have the pleasure to submit to the Court a brief, that I have prepared upon those two points, which I have no doubt will be satisfactory to your Honor, and as I have not received any notice that counsel have been retained on the other side, I shall, for the purposes of the motion which I am about to make, assume them to be true.

He was also a successful agriculturist, and was the first great cultivator of the soil in America, of whom we have any record, who successfully practiced the rotation of crops.

From his earliest childhood he assisted his father, Lawrence Washington, as a horticulturist, particularly in the production of fine varieties of cherries, and the two divided the work equally between them; that is, his father planted the trees, and George cut them down.

He also possessed a great mechanical genius; taking the Indian tomahawk as a basis, he improved upon it, and adapted it to domestic use; the result being that convenient household utensil, generally called "Washington's hatchet."

He devoted a great deal of attention to the culture of that noblest of all the animals subordinate to the use of man, the horse. And in view of this last mentioned fact, I consider it very appropriate that the mass meeting which is to assemble to-morrow in honor of his memory, is to be held at the Race Course—that vast plain being the only place where the great concourse of citizens could find adequate accommodations.

It was the misfortune of General Washington that he was not a lawyer. That element was wanting to complete the perfect sphere of his greatness. But he yet sustained a peculiar relation to the Bar. Sometimes, in the latter days of his life, he was called to testify as a witness in Court. When he came into Court the judges, lawyers, clients, witnesses and spectators rose, and continued standing until he had given his testimony on his verbal statement—for neither party to the suit would permit him to be sworn—and until he had retired.

Inasmuch as this court cannot sit to-morrow, and as we all wish to be present at this great mass meeting, I now move the Court that it do adjourn until Wednesday, the 23d instant.

Gov. Haight—I would take pleasure in seconding the motion, but I think inasmuch as I had not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with the deceased, it would be more proper for Mr. Nourse or Judge Cowles.

Whereupon the Court followed with a few remarks in a similar strain, and accordingly adjourned.

Typographicals.

Some typographical errors are very funny. In a New York paper recently the words "This Port Said is" were rendered "This," Pat said, "is," and "Put out the flag" appeared as "Pat cut the hog." When B. F. Taylor's poem on Burns' Centennial was telegraphed from Chicago a few years ago the first line, "Heart of leal! can this being?" appeared in the papers coupled with the operator's warning—"Robert Burns is passing by heart of lead can this be lying?" Horace Greeley wrote at the head of an editorial "William H. Seward," and it came out "Richard the Third!" A New Haven editor wrote, "Is there balm in Gilead?" and was surprised at to be next morning to read, "Is there a barn in Guilford?" The sentence "Americans are generous and forgiving" was recently transformed into "Americans are Germans and foreigners!" But the worst, perhaps, is that quotation made by a distinguished literary reviewer, "'Tis true, 'tis pity, pity, 'tis, 'tis true," which came out in proof, "'Tis two, 'tis fifty, 'tis fifty, 'tis fifty two!"

Sermon By a Clown.

The following was preached by a clown in a circus that was exhibiting in one of our country towns in this State. There is a good deal of bitter truth in it: "My friends, we have taken in about six hundred dollars here to-day, more, I venture to say, than any minister of the gospel in this town will receive for a whole year's service. A large portion of this audience is composed of members of the church. And yet when your preacher asks you for money to aid in supporting the Gospel, you say you are too poor to give anything. Yet you come here to hear me talk nonsense. I am a fool because I am paid for it; I make my living by it. You profess to be wise, and yet you support me in my folly. But perhaps you say you did not come to see the circus, but the animals; why did you not look at them and go away? Why did you stay to hear my nonsense? Now is not this a pretty place for a Christian to be in! Do you not feel ashamed of yourselves? You ought to blush to be caught in such a place as this."

On Exhibition.

One of the little red eyeless fish, said by The Enterprise to have been found on the 2260 foot level of the Savage mine, was on exhibition in the Delta saloon, South C street, Virginia, yesterday. Hundreds of prominent citizens inspected the fish, which was of a variety well enough known to naturalists, the principal difference between the one on exhibition and others whose history and habits have been described by them, being in the color. The ordinary variety is of a lustreless grey color, while the one on exhibition at the Delta was of a bright red or vermillion. No eyes nor even the rudiments of them could be discovered by even the closest observers. The strange nature of the fish excited much comment on the streets of Virginia yesterday.—[Gold Hill News, Feb. 19.

Good.

Senator Sargent has introduced a bill to confirm the titles of pre emption settlers whose claims had been mortgaged prior to making final proofs and payments. This bill is made necessary by the recent decision of the Interior Department which declares that when a settler mortgages his claim before making final proof he shall forfeit all right thereto and his papers shall be canceled. There are large numbers of settlers in California who have mortgaged their claims to assist themselves in establishing their homes. Mr. Page has introduced the same bill in the House of Representatives.

A Wonderful Story.

The strangest case of insanity of late is that of a negro man in Pettis county. His past life has been very vicious, but lately he became much interested on the subject of religion. Not long since, while night-hunting, he saw, or thought he did, a ghost. He was so frightened that he has gone crazy, and among other things imagines himself the Savior. It is said he can quote scripture, page after page, correctly, and preach wonderful sermons, although he did not know a letter before the wonderful change came upon him—was entirely illiterate and uncommonly stupid.

"Cahoots."

Two white boys and a negro in Gerard went possum hunting, the negro furnishing the dogs. Next day the darkey was asked how they came out. "Kotch four possums." "Well, what did you get?" "Dunno, Massa, yer see we's gwine in cahoot, and kotcht four possums. Mars Jim tuck two, and Mars Mac two, and as we's gwine in cahoot, I recon I gits de cahoot."

Truth Stranger than Fiction.

A remarkable occurrence, recalling in some of its features the stories recounted in the Arabian Nights, took place last week on Wood street. A humble cottage on that street is tenanted by a young couple who last year made their bridal tour to California, Oregon and Washington Territory. While engaged in salmon fishing on one of the rivers the bridegroom was so unfortunate as to drop into its current a valuable diamond ring belonging to his wife. The loss of the gem was, of course, mourned, but after a while the incident was forgotten, nor was it recalled till the other evening, when the young husband returning late at night from taking stock, discovered that his wife had prepared a can of salmon. Taking it up he looked carelessly at the label and said: "Why, Marion, this salmon was put up at the very place where I lost your ring last Summer. Wouldn't it be odd if a salmon had swallowed it and been caught and canned at that very factory and put into this very can, and we should find the ring in it?" His wife answered him jestingly, but he said: "I don't know how to account for it, but I have a sort of presentiment that I shall find that ring yet in some such romantic manner." She had scarcely said, "Don't be a goose, Gus," when her eye caught the glitter of something metallic in the can and she fairly screamed, "Goodness, gracious me, what's that?" Her husband, who was scarcely less excited than herself, removed the foreign substance with a fork, when, what was his surprise to discover that it was indeed a big lump of solder, which in soldering the can had been permitted to fall into its contents.—Chicago Tribune.

A Foolish Bill.

Patterson, of Tulare and Kern, has introduced the following bill in the Legislature, which he entitles "An Act for the Protection of Drovers and Persons Driving Stock Upon the Public Highways." It provides: that it shall be lawful for the owners, and others having charge of horses, cattle, sheep, goats or hogs, to drive any number of such animals, in droves, over and along any of the public highways or usually traveled roads, from one place to another, in this State, or from the place of pasture of such animals to any of the public markets in this State, and the owner or owners of such animals shall not be liable for damages except in case of willful neglect, for any trespass committed by any of such animals, by trampling upon or injuring any growing crops or any vegetation which may be standing or growing along side of, and within thirty feet from, any of the public highways or usually traveled roads, which are not fenced on both sides with a substantial fence, while such owner may be traveling and driving such animals upon and along any such highway or usually traveled road, provided, that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed as granting concession to any such traveler or drover to pasture or herd his sheep upon the lands of another.

The $30,000 Fraud.

The long deferred, anxiously looked for "great race" came off according to programme as regards the entries, but not so much so with respect to the outcome. Foster, the Oregon horse, took the race and first money, the time being 7:38 and 7:53. This fast time frightened some of the Grangers present; so much so that they declare they won't allow any of even their fastest cows to get on the track ahead of the horses, for fear they might get run over. The Webbfooter distanced every horse except Rutherford, the latter being the favorite by immense odds. By having the other horses distanced the Jockey Club saved some $9,000, third and fourth money. so some people think the Pacific is really a jockey club and no mistake. Such a gathering of people was never seen at a race in this State before, nor was there ever a sicker lot when the final result was announced. No thieving quarter-mile country throw-off, in its proportion of swindled victims, ever produced so much of this sort of sickness as did this $30,000 fraud at San Francisco.

According to Rule.

The California Legislature (so called) is doing its dirty best to carry out the traditions of its leaders as regards "edication" of the masses. They believe a little learning is a dangerous thing (for their sort), and to obviate such danger certain of the leaders h .ve left no stone unturned to legislate against intelligence. The better sense of the majority voted down the foolish press bills, which come under the head of educational business, but stood bravely in on the bill to repeal the compulsory education law, simply because it has not been generally enforced. That certainly looks like a step backward. It would have been far more consistent with the spirit and requirements of progress had they made an effort to render the law operative, instead of repealing it entirely. The old law was a nonentity, without doubt; but by reason, however, of its careless framing.

That Kern Bank Robbery.

It turns out, as was pretty generally surmised, that Lansing, the Cashier of the Kern Bank, was the robber himself. The detectives scared him into a confession and all the money has been recovered. Lansing was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000, the which was no doubt a "put up job" to shield some chums in other affairs if not in this, for there is not the remotest probability that he will ever appear for trial. Lansing is but a young man, heretofore trusted and respected. At heart though he was a scoundrel, but without nerve, else this crime would never have been legally established against him.

Another Press-Gag Bill Defeated.

Laine's bill to repeal the $500 security clause in regard to suits for damages for libel has been defeated in the Assembly by an almost unanimous vote to postpone it indefinitely. This action of the Assembly foreshadows the fate of the other press bills, of which the one now referred to was the least objectionable. The bill was entirely indefensible, being clearly a part of a deep-laid and cunningly-devised scheme to embarrass and cripple the freedom of the press.

Babcock.

The jury in the Babcock case announced a verdict of not guilty, after but a very few minutes consideration. His friends claim it as a triumphant vindication, and that no other verdict could possibly have been justified by the evidence. Others don't see it so much in the same light. Politically the jury stood: six Republicans, five Democrats and one of no particular persuasion.

Good Advice.

If this railroad [Central Pacific] corporation would discharge its lobby, send its yelping pack of loud-baying hounds to their kennels, dismiss its foreign hireling editors, mind its own business, build railroads and trust itself to the sense of right and justice that governs an intelligent and generous community, it would be more secure in its rights, would become more popular than it is, and would array in its support thousands of friends who now dare not acknowledge their friendship lest they should be identified with the nasty mob of partisans that surround it. If the railroad magnates would retire from politics and allow our Legislature, our Courts and our political conventions to be filled with disinterested citizens, who could feel at liberty to do justice to them without being branded as their slaves, their rights would have a surer guarantee than now.—[S. F. Chronicle.

INDIAN AFFAIRS.

If logical deductions will not convince the the Military Committee of the House that Gen. Sherman is quite correct in his views regarding the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department, actual facts, plain, alarming facts must do so, as dispatches say the Sioux, Cheyennes and Arapahoe Indians are making extensive preparations for a general outbreak. Their best warriors have deserted the reservations and were gathering in the Big Horn, Powder river and Tongue countries, preparatory to active depredations. Sherman said before the Committee—and it is the opinion of other army officers—that the Indians could alone be controlled by the army. Besides ensuing peace, it will save to the Government, to be cut off of the army appropriation, $3,500,000, and fewer fights would occur on the frontier. Congressman Seelye says: "Under the present management it costs the Government annually $2,000 for every Indian, and those who came to Washington had to be paid for at the rate of $2 50 per day. It would not do to kill them off, as it would necessitate the paying of $1,000,000 per head—the average price." So in the end, he sarcastically added, he thought the cheapest way would be to bring them to Washington and board them. At any rate, according to the present aspect of things something must be done soon, as the anticipated attack upon frontier settlers will result in a general devastation and a cruel and wanton loss of many brave but unprotected settlers.

Political.

There is a rumor in political circles of a sharp passage of words recently between President Grant and Solicitor Wilson. The latter has had a good deal to do with the framing of the indictments in the whisky cases, and shortly after Babcock's indictment he called upon the President and as the story goes, made a remark that offended the President, when the latter in the course of the remarks is reported to have expressed himself as highly offended. This conversation was, it is asserted, reported to Secretary Bristow at once. Mr. Wilson added that under the circumstances he did not see how he could do otherwise than resign at once. Secretary Bristow, is is reported, requested Mr. Wilson not to be hasty and intimated that if he would wait until the whisky trials were over he would very likely have compay in his retirement from office.

"Religious."

Great excitement exists among the Protestants of Quebec over the fact that Father O'Connor, a Catholic priest, visited all the national schools and there vented a tirade against Protestantism. A formal letter was sent to the Bishop asking him whether the priest has done this on his own responsibility or if he was sent as an emissary of the church. The reply is looked for with great interest.

School Moneys.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction reports the total number of census children in the State, between the ages of 5 and 17 years, entitled to draw school money, to be 171,563, and there being in the State Treasury the sum of $1,108,523 43 subject to apportionment for the support of common schools, the per capita is $6 46.

Signed.

February 19th the President signed the Centennial Bill with a quill pen made from the wing of an American eagle.

We suppose the question now will be raised as to where the bird that produced the quill was hatched; whether in some of the old secesh States or among the illicit whisky peaks of Virginia or where?

Bounties.

A bill reported favorably from the Senate Military Committee provides that the time for filing claims for additional bounties under the act of July 28, 1866, shall be extended until January 30, 1877, and all such claims filed since January 30, 1875, shall be considered and decided without refiling.

Ashore.

The steamer Kalorama, of the Goodall, Nelson & Perkins line, went ashore near Ventura a few days since, and now lies water-logged. There is a chance that she may be saved, but the "G., N. & P. S. S. Co." seem to be out of luck.

The War in Spain.

The Carlist forces have got enough of it, and are surrendering to the Royalists by thousands. It is generally believed that a complete break up of the Carlist army is at hand.

After Mr. Bagge's Style.

Congressman Cook's proposed amendment to the Constitution provides that in no case shall Congress make appropriations exceeding the annual estimate.

That Petition.

[FOR THE INYO INDEPENDENT.]

ROUND VALLEY, Feb. 28th, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The attempt made by the northern and southern portions (both rich in mineral and agricultural resources) of Inyo county was hard on you. No wonder the Independence people "bucked" and its county buildings trembled! It was natural for you to denounce the "gang" up this way; but being Christians, we all take it in good part, and will "ever pray" that your sins (multitudinous as they are) be forgiven. We are glad that we have no bold, defiant blacksmiths, like the Mariposa bully, who "wid a shtick" severely punishes men of letters!

The following may have been some of the reasons "your petitioners" had: First, a portion of Round Valley is now in Mono county. Why not "reinstate" the whole, was the query, where taxes are only two per cent. Second, by the restoration of the original county line, Benton would inevitably become the county seat, and Benton being only 25 miles from Round Valley, the much-talked-of wagon road, through abundance of wood, would soon be built, whereas the now traveled road is 50 miles. Third, a more fraternal feeling exist between this section and Hot Springs, than south. Most of our surplus produce finds a good market north—Benton, Partzwick, Howell Camp, Columbus, and Belleville, which is a matter of dollars and cents, consequently it is not astonishing that our heads, as well as our teams, run (politically) northward. Another notion struck some, viz: that your remonstrance, in conjunction with the "Bucolic Petition" would so re-act as to effectually kill the Darwin petition—that the final result would be to let well enough alone—let county lines remain undisturbed for the present. Very few took the item of expense into consideration—in fact only a meager few ever engage in the serious business of thinking.

TEETHING EXTRAORDINARY.

Mr. Stoeckly, the dentist, has been operating here for some time. A few men, but most all the women in the valley, are or soon will be "fixed" and fully equipped—prepared for the toughest kind of beef. A severe test and trial of teeth will soon come off for a purse of $50. The one (male or female) who can grind and masticate the greatest number of shingle nails takes the money. We often pity the clever dentist when he stands, meditatively, in front of a pair of wide distended jaws (a ghastly opening) hesitating whether he had better stay outside and pull, or crawl inside the mouth and kick out the old "snags." Mr. S. declares that men, during an operation, are bigger cowards than women (himself a bachelor, recollect). An athletic, double-fisted man sits to have a troublesome molar extracted. As soon as the dentist firmly throws himself around the grinder, the big man moans terribly and finally yells like a fatally wounded Apache! Of course he faints, and nothing less than half a pint of crooked whisky restores him to consciousness! On the contrary, the women will patiently submit to have seven or eight teeth removed at one sitting, without any fuss or whisky required; and he further relates that a certain lady of this valley had as many as fifteen teeth extracted (no opiates administered) at one time and she never "whimpered!" The most difficult surgical operation is to take the "jaw" out of a woman. It is evident that Mr. Stoeckly can do it—will soon apply for a patent. Married men who are sorely snubbed and "jawed" (blessed are ye bachelors) should "ever pray" that he gets one.

MR. CHILDS,

of THE INYO INDEPENDENT, was here last Saturday. The prime object of his visit being to increase the circulation of THE INDEPENDENT, which the publishers truly deserve. The little veteran sheet has for years bravely worked for this interior country. Extracts from its columns weekly appear in widely circulated newspapers, thereby conducive to the growth and development of Inyo. Having struggled so long, under difficulties, it should be henceforth well patronized. HOPESO.

Buying Them at Usual Rates.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company has given its regular legislative excursion to Truckee, where a dance, sleigh ride, and other festivities crowned the occasion. But two of the Senators participated, but about thirty of the members of the lower house, with the entire clerical force of that body, were entertained. We did not observe the names of any of our delegation among them. It is to be presumed that this was simply an act of courtesy, but it would be in much better taste after the final adjournment. We are not prepared to believe that the Legislature is composed of such cheap material as to be influenced by a free ride and a free lunch, but it would have been better to have deferred the excursion till the end of the session, and thus given no room for criticism.—[Bakersfield Courier.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 16, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The old Greek mathematician shouted "Eureka" when he found the solution to a problem. I, who am neither a Greek nor a mathematician have the same right to cry "I have found it," when I make an important discovery. Found what? you may naturally inquire and expect an answer. Well, I will tell you. I have found the remedy for all existing evils of the day, and like a true philanthropist I am going to make it known without "hope of fee or reward." The name of Saxon shall go "down the corridors of time" embalmed in verse with the name of other great benefactors of the human race, and perhaps one hundred years from now an unfinished column like one I see every day, may mark for other generations the gratitude of a great nation. Don't get impatient now and say "hurry up," for to fully understand the force and beauty of the discovery I have made, you must be prepared gradually to hear the astounding facts, or I would not be willing to answer for the consequences. Coming from a darkened room into the broad sunlight dazes the sight and I shall not lift the silver vail from my discovery until I have gradually prepared you for the brilliancy it will display.

Like all other great discoveries or inventions, the one I have made is simple and easily understood, and I only wonder that some one has not made it sooner. I must acknowledge that I am indebted greatly to the leading political newspapers of the country for the idea. They have unconsciously been acting upon the idea but have not formulated it, leaving that for Saxon to do and thus gain imperishable renown. The exquisite simplicity of this discovery of mine is only equalled by the ease which characterises its application and this renders it the more valuable.

Not to keep you in suspense longer I will reveal the great secret, at the same time again rendering my acknowledgements to such papers as The New York World, Times, Sun and Tribune for having through their columns first made the discovery. Here it is, "all that is necessary to remove all the evils that exist anywhere, and to render every part of this country more happy than the fabled Utopia, is, to put out the people that are in office and put in those that are out." I found this out by discovering that all the men of both parties who are in office are either "thieves or fools." And herein lies my indebtedness to the papers. They denounce every man who is not of their party as a thief or a fool and as I suppose they know whereof they speak, I must naturally conclude that such are the facts, and I have merely reduced them them to an axiomatic form.

Truly I am thoroughly disgusted. I am no politician, only an American citizen, and I read newspapers of all shades of politics. I take up a leading newspaper—one that is supposed to be an educator of the people—a medium of instruction for the masses—an epitome of the world s news—a guide in political affairs, and what do I find? If it is a Democractic paper I see that all the Republican office holders are denounced as fools or scoundrels; if it is a Republican paper all the Democratic office-holders are either scoundrels or fools. The men not in office are not so noted. Is it not singular that both parties should select their knaves and fools for office holders? Yet it is the fact if we can take as true what each party says of the other.

Have I made a discovery in asserting this, or is all that I have said known to the people of the country? If so is it not about time for the people of the country to speak out and stop the disgrace that is being put upon them and the nation by the politicians? Ought they permit such things said any longer? Is there no way to stop this wholesale lying and slander? Cannot the stream of politics be cleansed and made less turbid? Cannot some of the filth be removed? If I could find the way to do this then would I be a benefactor indeed and entitled to rank high among discoverers. But I fear it is not to be, and that we must continue to have our fools and knaves in office.

Enough of this though, for the very mention of politics makes me have a sick feeling and I was only betrayed into writing so much because the dirty cess pool is being stirred with great vigor now, and soon the voice of the politician will be heard in every part of the land. So far as I am concerned sooner than to write politics, I would engage in the intellectual amusement of finding and writing about how many bushels of wheat, bales of cotton, plugs of tobacco and drinks of whisky, are made each year, and that would indicate a softening of the brain, or incipient idiocy and the possibility of a position on the editorial staff of The New York Herald.

Washington, in every department of the government from the White House through all the ramifications down to the stables where the messengers horses are kept, is being investigated. Without doubt some bad smells will be found by the committees, particularly about the stables, and then how these smells will be poked under the people's noses for them to sniff at. Faugh! I feel a strong inclination "to flee away to the mountains of Hepsedam," but for the coming jubilee at Philadelphia I would be off at once. And that reminds me that the big show having obtained its money is an assured success. It will be the biggest show the world ever saw and nearly all the world will be to see it. Barnum will have to hide his deminished head and Gen. Hawley will take rank as the grand showman. Wonder if he will dress as the ring master usually does when he enters the ring with the clown and the gentleman sweetly makes the usual remark, "here we are all of us." Let's go and see.

Perhaps you would like to hear what Congress is doing. If so I would advise that you read some daily papers. All I know of the doings of that body is that the members draw their pay with surprising regularity, and some of them do talking enough to earn it, if gas was selling only for one dollar the thousand feet. But the others who have to listen, the good Lord pity them. Speaker Kerr having no bowels of compassion has forbidden the sale of anything stronger than ale in the house restaurant, and to get a drink the members have to go out even in the worst weather. "A truant disposition, good my lord," carried me to the capital one day since my last letter. I had only been there five minutes when I found out what the Speaker had done and then I registered a vow and swore to it on a bottle of ale to return to that place no more until this ordinance of the Speaker's was repealed. It is cruelty to animals and should call Berghs attention to it at once. The managers of the Centennial have more correct ideas on this subject. They permit no "standing bars." Every man who wants to drink there has to sit down like a gentleman. The object of this rule is to pronrote temperance. it is well understood that there is not much danger of "repeating" when a party is comfortably seated, as if they were forced to stand up and drink.

I employed Jenkins to write up a splendid description of one of the society gatherings, intending to send it to you, so that your readers could know how we dress and amuse ourselves at the capital. He did his work in ornate and beautiful style. A young lady told me that his description of the dresses was "perfectly splendid." I was delighted and was about to send it to you, when one of those miserable fellows who always know so much, showed me an old newspaper, with precisely the same description word for word, except the names were changed. Jenkins had the impudence to say this was all right, the same description aswered for all the parties, the names being changed and the diamonds differently distributed. In my wrath I would have slain him but for the pleading of the young lady before mentioned, who wanted him spared to describe the dress she would wear at the President's reception on the 22d. You have missed your society letter and Jenkins still lives. If you do after reading this you are in good luck.

SUMMONS.

IN JUSTICE'S COURT OF SECOND TOWNSHIP, in the County of Inyo, State of California. Isaac Harris and Nathan Rhine, doing business under the firm name of Harris & Rhine, Plaintiffs, vs. Frank Gross, Defendant. Summons: The State of California sends greeting to Frank Gross, Defendant. You are hereby required to appear before me in my office in the Second Township, in the County of Inyo, in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiffs, and answer the complaint in said action, on file in my office, on or within five days from the service of this summons upon you.

The said action is brought to recover the sum of One Hundred and Sixty Dollars and Ninety-five Cents, on an account of goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the said Plaintiffs to the said Defendant at his special instance and request. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer said complaint as above required, said Plaintiffs will take judgment against you, together with costs of suit and accruing costs.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand at said Township, this 26th day of February, A. D. 1876.

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the Labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

Some Important Projects.

Col. Stevens, of Cottonwood, called on us a few days since, having just returned from a business visit to San Francisco. During that visit he received the assurance of all needed capital with which to build and equip a solid tramway from the Lake to Darwin. It is a grand enterprise, perfectly feasible and by no means costly, taking into consideration the Colonel's Cottonwood flume and saw mill, by means of which he can obtain all required timber at a nominal cost, comparatively speaking. Such a tramway, even now, would be put to near its capacity right from the start, in transporting ores, coal, timber and other freights to and from the Lake. It is likely, however, that work upon it will be deferred till some of the principal mines, both in Darwin and Lee district, which latter is near the line of the road, are prospected to a depth that will not leave any doubts as to their holding out qualities. This will not require but a few months. In the meantime the Colonel is pushing preparations to supply the Defiance company with about 1,000 bushels per day the Summer through of kiln-burned charcoal. The wood for this comes down the long flume, to be reduced to coal in kilns near the Lake, and then lightered across to a point nearest Darwin, sixteen miles distant, the transportation over that being by wagon. This will create an extensive business of itself, in addition to which will be the back freights of milling ore which the New Coso company are preparing to send to a contemplated mill at the Lake for reduction, the most of the ores from their mines being of that class and not of a character to require smelting—a circumstance, and the only one, that has so far militated against the perfect success of that company's operations. They have some of the richest and best mines of their class yet opened in Darwin, but the ores are "dry," and unfit for smelting except by close sorting or admixture with those from mines belonging to other parties. Their furnace at Darwin, however, will be kept running with such ores as are not suited for the stamps at the proposed mill on the Lake. Here, in brief, we have an outline of some very important and promising enterprises, and all quite certain to be fairly under way if not wholly completed in less than twelve months from date. The natural conditions for the consummation of each and all of these projects could not be better if they had been planned out for the special purpose.

Bishop and Round Valley.

A flying spin around the northern part of the county this week by our Lokleitems was a failure in some respects, owing principally to the inclemency of the weather, which effectually checked a contemplated visit to a host of patrons and friends of THE INDEPENDENT. However, we none the less appreciate the noted hospitality of the Bishopites and the lively interest manifested for the prosperity of THE INDEPENDENT. It is the champion agricultural district of our county, and in due time we are firm in the belief it will compete with our heavy mining camps south, in the way of precious mineral.

THE PROPOSED DITCH.

The proposed irrigating ditch, by which 40,000 acres of sage brush land may be reclaimed and brought under a high state of culture, will be from the river on T. K. Hutchison's ranch and run diagonally across the upper end of Bishop Creek valley. Thence almost in a direct line to Hessian's ranch, above Big Pine. Total length, 16 miles—4,000 acres of good land above Bishop creek and the remainder, 36,000 acres, between Bishop and Big Pine, it is calculated may be sufficiently watered to transform this desert tract of sage brush into waving fields of grain and grasses. The average size of the ditch will be 30 feet in width by about five feet in depth. Estimated cost, by the surveyor, $40,000. Of our local people who are interested in this project, we find the names of M. L. Cook, F. Ross, Wm. McBride and J. F. Hutchison. We offer no comments concerning this enterprise except in regard to the "right of way." This in fact is the only obstacle—and it is an expensive one too, for some of the farmers will hold the few acres that may be cut off by the canal at enormous figures, feeling perhaps, that the grasping gain of $400 for two or three acres of their land at present is better than to enhance the value of the whole valley a few years hence. They ought to run a newspaper for a while.

FEARFUL ENCOUNTER WITH A WILD BULL.

We interviewed some of the principals and learned the following facts concerning a ferocious combat with a wild bullock: The bull was an old veteran and had been the terror of the stock men for years; along the river about Owensville he was monarch of all he surveyed. Although his tough hide was absolutely filled with pistol balls, yet he hurled defiance at the vaqueros and would never permit himself to be rodeoed with the other cattle. A few days since, two stock men, John Givens and Bob. Russell, tackled the monster on the river bottom at Owensville, but as usual gave it up rather than risk the lives of their horses. At this moment their vaquero, named Russell Briggs, came up and scoffed at the idea of their being cleaned out by a single bull and offered to bet he could whip him single handed. Suiting his actions to his boast he jumped from his horse, drew his knife and made the daring attack. The brute charged, but the nimble Briggs was too quick and successfully dodged, giving the bull a slash across the face. First blood for Briggs. The combat lasted 20 minutes, during which the modern gladiator was brought to the ground but once, when the bull, cut and slashed till he could no longer stand, fell in his tracks and passed in his checks. The victorious vaquero offers now to bet $1,000 that he can, with no other weapon than a knife, whip any he bovine in the State of California.

A HYPOCRITE.

A genuine fraud, who rejoices in the name and title of Judge Charles Henry Walcott, a resident of Bishop Creek, and for a time a Justice of the Peace, absconded on the 8th of January, leaving numerous creditors and his bondsmen to mourn his premature migration. He started for Caliente after procuring a four-in-hand team, for which a friend became responsible—was intrusted with money to bring home, on his return, a young lady who had been attending school at Sacramento, the lady's father advancing the money—collected some $300 or $400 for other parties and, bidding his neighbors good bye, struck out on his ostensible journey to Caliente. At that place he met with a party, formerly from Bishop, to whom he rehearsed a pitiful story of being broke, etc. The said party kindly took charge of the young lady whom Judge Charles Henry was paid to protect, and brought her home to Bishop. The last that was heard from Charles he was en-route to the Black Hills. His bondsmen express themselves as willing to pay for his hypocrisy if he will only stay there. He owes everybody with whom he had dealings—was a Good Templar and church-member, but withal, his sheep's clothing would occasionally fall off. His imbecility as an officer was often remarked and it is a wonder that the people tolerated him so long.

ROUND VALLEY.

We only stopped in Round Valley long enough to enjoy the hospitalities of the enterprising and successful farmer, Mr. Thos. E. Jones. The great need felt in this valley is a road direct to Benton, where a good market is found for all kinds of produce. The only obstacle is the river, which has formed a gully from 200 to 1,000 feet in depth across the country from Long Valley to Bishop, but in places it is not over 100 feet in width. Could this be bridged the distance to Benton would be reduced from 50 to 25 miles, and a better road could be made at a small cost. It would also lead through a finely wooded country.

AGRICULTURAL.

The farmers are busy plowing and arranging their irrigating ditches. An abundance of snow has fallen in the mountains, consequently there will be no scarcity of water. The prospects for a large crop of both, corn and small grain, is very flattering. Most of the old crop has been disposed of.

PERSONAL.

The Rowan brothers have purchased T. D. Lewis' saw mill and will start up in the Spring....A. Spencer has bought and joined to his own, the Pinchower store. He intends filling it with a large new stock of general merchandise. In due time his ad. will appear. Mr. Mason, a young man of large experience in the commercial line, has present charge of the business.... J. B. Swearingen and lady, our old time residenters, are making a success of the Bishop Creek hotel, and set one of the best tables in the county, to which this deponent bears willing testimony.

Watch Repairing.

Mr. A. W. Pratt, lately from the East, more recently of Darwin, a practical jeweler and watchmaker, has opened a shop next door to the Inyo House, and is prepared to repair watches, clocks and do all other kinds of work in his line. We understand Mr. Pratt to be a thorough workman. He expects to remain with us permanently. His regular advertisement will appear next week.

Some Sport in Prospect.

By advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that preparations are being made for two day's racing and a grand ball at Big Pine, March 31st and April 1st. Here will be a splendid chance for those who chose the wrong horse at the late races to get their money back.

Weather.

The weather has been mean enough most of the time this week, to be worthy of notice. Yesterday afternoon it commenced to rain and blow from the south, much as the south-westers do at San Francisco.

A New P. M.

W. R. Johnson has been appointed Postmaster at Cerro Gordo. W. R. will fill the bill firstrate.

The Racing, Etc., at the Taboose.

TABOOSE, Feb. 23d.

"Birthington's Washday," at this place will long be remembered to the sorrow of a few, but with delight and pleasure by the majority who came for sport and only staked enough on the races to make it a little interesting, while in reality their attention was wholly taken up with a score of fashionably attired—we never use the term pretty—ladies, of whom married and single were about equally divided. The day was a charming one for out-door amusement and finer weather could not be desired. The track was not in as good condition as in the previous race, but the time recorded in the single dash of a half mile was not bad by any means for saddle horses; still, we believe, that the same horses, put in good trim, could make it over the same ground from four to six seconds less time. No one, however, thought that he had any "dead thing," and of course could not feel that keen disappointment in losing, nor could the paled face and the bulging eye balls of the unsophisticated greeney, or the three-card monte experience of the modest clergy excursionist on the U. P., be detected in the crowd of the generous California sports.

THE PURSE RACE.

Four horses were entered for the $50-purse race of a half mile, single dash. These represented the places and names as follows: Sleeper, from Big Pine, by Gibien: Mollie Smith, Taboose, by Wright; Chris. Engle's horse, Johnny, from Black Rocks, by Jim Smith; Old Honesty, from Bishop, by Jerome Hoover. Pool selling continued from the night previous and the bids were lively enough to nearly exhaust our old time pool auctioneer, John Givens, and the cashier and clerk, yours truly. Some of the pools ranged as high as $100 and $120. Over $800 was counted in the pool box when the horses were brought up and stripped for inspection. During these preparations, outside betting was indulged in and money changed hands among quite a number. We saw $1,000 staked in less than five minutes. There seemed to be no favorite and backers were about equally divided with Sleeper, Mollie Smith and Old Honesty; Johnny being the lowest and sold in the pools from $1 to $6 where the others brought from $10 to $60. Pursuant to announcement the racers were placed in position promptly at 2 o'clock P. M. A large concourse had gathered, carriages and buggies were placed in convenient positions for the ladies, and after two trials the horses were tapped off to the satisfaction of the starters. Amid the most intense excitement and astonishment of everybody, Johnny, the cheap horse, made a little spurt after passing the quarter pole and took the lead for about 200 yards and came flying in to the home stake in just 56 seconds, but so closely crowed by Old Honesty that it was a delicate piece of business for the Judges to decide which one's nose passed under the line first. Finally it was decided by the majority that Johnny was winner by two feet. Mollie Smith made a brilliant effort and took the lead for a distance, but seemed utterly wearied after passing the quarter pole. Pool tickets were paid off and it was a funny proceeding as the holder would hand in his ticket calling for $150 that cost him $2 50. In this race nearly $5,000 changed hands; had the race been delayed a little longer it would have been twice that amount. The time made was very good considering the condition of a portion of the track, although some of the same horses have a better record for previous contests.

SADDLE RACE.

Three horses were entered for the saddle race, as follows: Mary Hammond, Fish Springs, by James Jones; Putty Head, Bishop, by J. M. Horton; Sam, Big Pine, by Steve Gregg. This race was made for 300 yards, but accurate measurement proved it to be nearer 360. The heat was made in 20 seconds by the little Fish Springs mare, Mary Hammond, she winning by full 60 yards. It had to be run twice, as the first was a premature start on the part of the mare, and the backers of the others became somewhat excited. However, a second trial proved the little mare's metal, and her opponents were heard to declare their belief that she could beat anything in the State for 300 yards. But little time could be had for pool selling, and only $300 were counted, but as near as we could ascertain over $1,000 changed hands on the outside. This ended the day's racing. No jockeying was indulged in, and altogether it was quietly and honestly conducted throughout.

THE BALL.

The dance in the evening was attended by some thirty couples. We don't propose to Jenkinize the affair, for the Jenkins business has become stale, flat and unprofitable. The ladies present were dressed as best suited their own fancies; it would therefore seem to be nobody's business how much the material cost or how long it took the dear ones to make it up. Besides, it is a useless piece of extravagance, this cheeky business of overhauling a lady's toilet, for then, perforce, she must discard her written up toilet and conjure her fertile brains to invent something new. The music was of the best. Everybody caught the spirit of fun: the banners which lined the walls seemed to quiver with the excitement of pleasure, and the portrait of old George Washington appeared to wink and blink to Mrs. Martha on the opposite wall till, in the very ecstacy of delight, some of the Adonises would have sworn they saw old George dancing an "ole Virginney" hoe-down.

Another Change—Historical.

Friend P. Harrington, widely known as "Eph," was in town the other day, having sold his blacksmithing business in Darwin to his late partner, Mr. Drulinger. Eph has gone to Deep Spring, where he has a gold quartz ledge which we have every reason to believe is one of the most promising in the country. It is one of the original locations of the pioneer days, and was the scene of one of the bloody Indian onslaughts then so common. While working the windlass at its shaft, Wm. Matthews—now of Round Valley—received a shot through the jaws and other severe wounds. At the same time another of the same party, while working in the shaft with M. J. Byrnes—now residing at Los Angeles—received wounds from which he died while Byrnes and he yet remained at the bottom of the shaft, trying with only partial success to keep from being crushed by the rocks which the Indians continued for some hours to roll into it, shooting down between times. After an unspeakable amount of suffering, badly wounded as he was, Matthews succeeded in making his way to Big Pine to die, it was thought. Most miraculously, however, he recovered, except in the matter of speech, the power of which departed forever. But little has been done upon the mine since, although it was then proven to be very rich and a large one of the class. We do not recall the name of the mine at this moment, nor that of the unfortunate man who was killed in the shaft. Some day, though, we hope to record at length that and other similar bloody events in Inyo history.

Special to the Girls.

As an interesting bit of local news, we will state that this leap year has fifty-three Sundays in it. Girls, don't wait till the fifty-third Sunday—he may not come around that day at all.

The Leap Year Ball.

Tuesday evening there was some extensive rushing around for partners. This time it was the ladies who did the rushing, and in honest truth they did it well and promptly, too. The majority of them had divers strings to their bows, or rather a long string of beaux, to be more precise. Some had four or five or more of old incorrigibles. This was for the leap year ball, of course. It is a noticeable fact that these aforesaid incorrigibles—also the impressibles—were distressingly docile from the beginning to the end. They hadn't a word to say by way of objection to whatever position or place they were assigned. Those who were designed for wall-flowers, and there were several, fulfilled the requirement as demurely and contentedly as if they had now first realized that was just what nature intended them for. In fact there is no doubt that was nature's original intention as regards a great many, but such facts would never be discovered except for leap year balls. Some of the ladies, married and single, did their level best to cause each wall-flower to bloom into something of value; others saw at a glance that with such a disparity of numbers it was no use to try, and they didn't try a great deal or at least very successfully. But don't let anybody suppose that this was not really a most enjoyable and well arranged affair. The large Court room was almost crowded. Scarce a lady in the town or vicinity but what was there, and not one but fell into the true spirit of the occasion. They without doubt derived more enjoyment from this ball than would have fallen to their share under the ordinary system. The novelty of having to lead out, of the exclusive right of invitation (and of being refused now and then, mayhap) did very much to highten their fun, and right well they fulfilled their parts in these requirements. The Committee of Arrangements deserve a great deal of credit for the elegant and unexceptionably fine collation or supper, which they set out in style, and for the ice cream and other refreshments, which they served with their own hands to the throng of guests. Numbers of other ladies on the several committees are equally deserving for their liberal spirit in every way, as well as for their donation of finely prepared edibles. Such being the fact we don't feel safe in particularizing, although it is but right to say that the responsible manager was Mrs. N. Rhine, who as such never leaves any possible thing undone to insure success to such public spirited enterprises. The music was very good, and if there was anything lacking in the universal enjoyment of this notable occasion, being the first in kind for this section, it was wholly due to the fact that the excess of gentlemen present found it really less fun to play "second fiddle" than they first thought. Every lady there, so far as we are aware, seemed to make it a special point to see that her individual partner or partners was duly taken care of. If we felt so disposed we might tell how some of those partners behaved, were dressed, and all that, but we guess we'll let that part pass this time.

Mining Sale.

From a private letter from Darwin we learn that the Minneatta mine, Look Out district, has been sold for $30,000 cash. The late owners, if we understand the matter rightly, are going to the Black Hills, having received some encouraging news from an acquaintance in that section named Wm. McClane. That reminds us forcibly that if we had gone to Lookout district and had there found a Minneatta and had sold that Minneatta for $30,000 or even $30, and about that time if a friend named McClane or Smith or anything else was to write to us that we might do well to come to the Black Hills, just about that time we would not go one single step. It is all nonsense and an unnecessary waste of substance to travel so far to find a bilk of a country when there are plenty similar to be found so much nearer home—across the Colorado say, or over in Kern.

Burglary.

Saturday night last an enterprising young man named Ben —— broke into Sneden's store at Bishop Creek, and took therefrom $60 in cash, and some light goods he thought might come handy. While rumaging around in the dark the young man stuck his hand on a pen standing point up in the inkstand, causing the blood to flow and thereby his eventual identification, and recovery of the stolen property. We have not ascertained Ben's full name.

Theatricals.

The Darwinites of histrionic proclivities are making very complete preparations for an amateur theatrical exhibition, to occur on the evening of March 16th, with the expectation of repeating. It is intended for the benefit of the Darwin school. We are assured that the undertaking is in competent and experienced hands, and no doubt is entertained of a very complete success.

Dentistry.

W. H. Walker, Dentist, has established himself at the Blaney House, where he is ready to perform all kinds of dentistry. Dr. Walker is not a relation of Dr. Vinegar Walker, but is a brother-in-law of Sheriff Passmore, and a young man who will be quite an acquisition to our society, as he expects to remain permanently.

County Court.

Judge Hannah's Court meets in regular term next Monday, and will have several criminal charges to investigate; one of these is that of Merritt for the murder of Kimble at Cerro Gordo; another is that of Givens, under $500 bonds for an alleged assault upon Mr. Boley, of Bishop Creek.

New Hay Yard.

H. Levy, of the French Restaurant, has just enclosed and stocked with horse provender of all sorts, commodious stables and wagon yard, and is now prepared to entertain both man and beast, country hotel style.

More Snow.

Some eighteen inches of new snow fell this week at Log Springs, so that will put a quietus on furnace operations there for some time longer. About four feet, lacking a yard, fell at Bishop Creek.

The Swansea Furnace.

We are informed that the new Swansea mining corporation will soon—if they have not already done so—send up a force to start work on their Cerro Gordo mines and the furnace at Swansea, on Owens Lake.

Leave Us.

J. P. M. Perham and Miss A. Perham, his neice, bid this country a final adieu today. They will make a short stay at the Bay before proceeding to their old home in the East. Sorry to lose them.

Picked Up.

Mr. McKewin picked up, on the day after the ball, on the road to the Post, a child's water-proof cloak, which is at this office subject to call of owner.

Resumes Business.

Daneri & Briggs.

This pioneer mercantile firm of Darwin are closing up their business, intending to open in a new line.

New Law Firm.

W. T. (not Ulysses S.) Grant and H. W. Woods have formed a law partnership at Darwin.

Log Springs.

John Broder went over to Log Springs last week, to start up his furnace, but found the snow badly crusted at different depths, so that roads could only be opened by shoveling, involving a great deal of labor and expense. On this account it was deemed altogether best to wait a short time and let old Sol do the shoveling in effect by melting off the snow. It may take him till April to do that. As there is an abundance of ore already on the dump, and but little or no room to put more, no work is being done in the mine. There is any quantity of ore, and of the richest quality, in sight in the mine.

Stocks.

Darwin stocks sold on the San Francisco Board last Tuesday: Coso Consolidated—90@85 cts; in the afternoon, at 75. New Coso—62½@65 cts; no other local stocks quoted. Legal tenders 88 buying, 88¾ selling. Gold in New York 114¾.

Coach for the Hill.

The Northern Stage Company sent down this week, Dan Ashley, engineer, one of their Concord six-horse coaches, to run between Lone Pine and Cerro Gordo, or the "Hill."

No Third Term.

Col. Fred Grant says positively that his respected daddy don,t want nor won't have any third term in his. Fred further vouchsafes the information that Conkling is the coming man.

Fire at San Quentin.

On the 28th of February the workshops at the State Prison were totally destroyed by fire. The prisoners fought the fire like veterans, and as if they had a personal interest in the property.

—The new trial of Granice, the murderer of young Madden, will commence at Merced on March 13th.

Age and Object of the Pyramids.

M. A. Dufew, member of the Egyptian Institute and of the "Society of Historic Students of Paris," claims to have made some very valuable discoveries relative to the age and object of the four pyramids of Gizeh, principally of the great pyramid, containing chronologic and scientific data for establishing the date of their construction, for determining the era of the monarchy of the Pharaohs, and the degree of knowledge displayed by the ancient Egyptians in astronomy, geodesy, hydraulics, geography, geology, and in regulating the inundations of the Nile for the benefit of their agriculture. He has written a book about it, in which he claims that the methods by which he has been led to his discoveries are entirely new. According to his view Menes ascended the throne of Egypt 5,641 years before Christ; the great pyramid was founded 4,862 years before Christ; all the pyramids were designed simply as monuments of high science, and were the work of priests of the idolatrous religion of the Pharaohs. The mystery of these awful monuments of the past has been penetrated and reported upon so often and so differently, by different students of the subject, that one cannot help feeling as though fancy has as much to do with the interpretation of the pyramids as science or judgment. M. Dufew is sharply criticised by some of his own countrymen, probably with justice.

Pulmonary Consumption.

Professor Mosier, of Germany, is now successfully treating phthisis, or pulmonary consumption, by making an incision through the wall of the chest and drawing off the pus with a syringe, and afterwards washing out the ulcers with weak carbolic acid. No difficulty appears to have been experienced in the operation, and the condition of the patient was improved, the cough becoming less troublesome, and the febrile symptoms apparently moderated. One point, at least, is regarded as settled—and it is certainly one of great importance—so far as could be by a few experiments of this character, namely, that the local treatment of pulmonary cavities is undoubtedly practicable, and that the lung is really more tolerant of external interference than has been generally believed. The uses of carbolic acid are rapidly extending, and it bids fair to become one of the most valuable articles of the materia medica. It appears to be speedy death to disease germs and fungus growths.

—Sleep produced by narcotics or so-called sedatives, says The London Lancet, is poisoned. Their use gives the persons employing them an attack of cerebral congestion, only differing in amount, not in kind, from the condition which naturally issues in death. There is grave reason to fear that the real nature of the operation by which these deleterious drugs, one and all, bring about the unconsciousness that burlesques natural sleep, is lost sight of, or wholly misunderstood, by those who have free recourse to poisons on the most frivolous pretences, or with none save the exigency of morbid habit. Great responsibility rests on medical practitioners, and nothing can atone for the neglect of obvious duty.

—A venerable talker of twaddle, a society bore who has outlived his usefulness, but who always hovers around at receptions and parties and indulges in small-talk at which no one laughs but himself, sailed up to a couple engaged in conversation in a cozy corner, the other evening, and in the most winning tones said: "Judging from the color of her cheeks I should say you had been saying some very complimentary things to Miss——, my boy." "I never deal in compliments," said the "boy" rather gruffly. "Don't you believe it," put in the fair Miss——. "He has paid me a greater compliment than you have paid any one in all your life. He has been talking to me as though I knew something."

—A country gentleman was strolling out with a cockney—a genuine cockney—when they finally approached a meadow in which was standing a glorious crop of hay. The cockney gazed at it wonderingly. It wasn't grass, it wasn't wheat, it wasn't turnip tops. "Vy, vatever does you call this stuff?" said he to his companion. "That? why hay, to be sure," was the reply. "Hay!" exclaimed he, "Come, that's cutting it a little too thick. If that's hay, just show me the hay corn—comes now."

—A young husband in Little Falls, N. Y., planned to scare his wife, with whom he had quarreled. He went into the woodshed, fired off a gun, arranged himself on the ground as a bogus corpse, and waited for her to come out and faint at sight of him. She didn't come, however, and he was compelled to sneak into the house and hear her say, "I didn't scarce worth a cent, did I?"

—Professor Rudolph says that he has found out that the sun is a white, hot mass, 856,000 miles in diameter, having a surrounding ocean of burning gas 50,000 miles deep, with tongues of flame darting upward 50,000 miles; and volcanic forces that hurl luminous matter to the hight of 160,000 miles.

—The Democratic National Committee have fixed upon June 27th as the time for holding the National Democratic Convention. St. Louis is the place appointed for the gathering.

—A story is told of an Irishman who, bound over to keep the peace against all Her Majesty's subjects, exclaimed: "Then Heaven help the first foreigner I meet!"

—Salutatory of the editor of the Madisonville (Ky.), Southwest: "Good morning. We intend publishing a paper. If you don't like it you needn't read it."

—A gunmaker has to take into account over 6,000 different measurements in the manufacture of a double-barreled gun to order.

—Little girl to her mother in a party dress—"Why, mother, you look as fine as a hired girl!"

—Revivals among the colored people in the South have suspended during the 'possum season.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation.

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

Curious Phenomena.

[From The Carson Tribune.]

Our readers will remember that a man named William Solon was run over by a V. & T. locomotive at Virginia recently, and the bones of his foot and ankle were so badly crushed that it was found necessary to amputate the leg a few inches below the knee. The Enterprise is responsible for the following strange story connected with the amputation:

The operation was performed by Drs S. A. McMeans and E. B. Harris of this city. After the operation Dr McMeans took the foot, with a few inches of the leg attached, to his office for the purpose of dissecting it, and ascertaining the exact nature of the fractures. The doctor dissected the foot and was engaged in opening the ankle, when a boy arrived at his his office and said he had come for the foot—that Mr. Solon wanted it. The doctor hastily rolled the foot in a piece of cloth and gave it to the boy, who carried it to Mr. Solon's rooms, and by his directions placed it in the drawer of a bureau which stood at the foot of his bed.

It was not long before Mr Solon became very uneasy, and finally suffered so much pain that all the opiates the attendants dared to give him did no good. Thinking something was wrong at the point where the leg had been cut off, Mr. Solon's friends sent for Dr Harris. When the doctor arrived he examined the stump and found it in perfect order. He told Solon that the leg was in as good shape as it could possibly be made, and he could see no reason for its giving him so much pain.

Mr. Solon then entered into a more particular account of his sufferings He said that the feeling was as though his toes were doubled under his foot and he was standing with his whole weight on that foot; also that there seemed to be knife sticking in his leg, the pain from which was very severe.

Dr Harris then asked where the foot was, though he probably knew that Dr McMeans had taken it. He was told that Mr. Solon had taken a notion to have it and that it had been brought from the office of Dr. McMeans and placed in the bureau drawer. Dr. Harris went to the drawer, and unrolling the cloth found that the toes were doubled back under the foot, and further found sticking in the skin of the calf of the leg a tenaculum, which is an instrument in the shape of a hook, with a fine, sharp point, used in taking up arteries. In hastily wrapping up the foot to send it back Dr. McMeans had forgotten to remove this hook, which he had been using in holding back the skin while dissecting the crushed ankle.

Dr Harris removed the instrument and placed the foot in an easy position, when Mr. Solon declared that he was free from pain and felt quite easy; indeed, he fell asleep in a few minutes and slept well and soundly.

Dr Harris says he has heard of similar cases, but this is the first thing of the kind that he has ever met with in his practice. Neither Dr Harris nor Dr McMeans can offer any explanation of the phenomenon. Dr McMeans is of the opinion that it may be owing to the two parts of the limb being connected for a time by some subtle fluid, something like electricity, the exact nature of which remains to be discovered.

As it is a thing about which nothing is known each reader is at liberty to provide his own explanation.

Incipient Riots at Caliente.

March 5 being payday for the Western Development Company and a number of men having been discharged from the tunnels, drucken rows occurred almost every hour. L. A. Mullen, District Attorney, was assaulted by a gang of roughs and severely, though not dangerously injured.

Work is going on vigorously on the extension of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and the grade and tunnels make good headway. Good reports also come from the San Fernando tunnel near Los Angeles.

—Senator Sharon says he is opposed to Senator Jones' idea of making silver a standard of value instead of gold.

Where Tweed Can Go and be Safe.

It is very certain that William M. Tweed, if not captured before effecting his escape from the United States, in seeking a fresh resting spot will avoid countries with which we have extradition treaties. The crimes of forgery and embezzlement by public officers are included in most of such treaties now in force, and as a demand for him the rendition of the fugitive can be made on either of the grounds named, he would, if found, only enjoy a term of liberty. The United States has, altogether, extradition treaties with fifteen governments — eight European, two West Indian, and one each with a Central American, Southern American and South African. We have also similar international engagements with Mexico and the Sandwich Islands. The European governments are Great Britain (including its colonies and dependencies), France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Norway and Sweden, the Swiss Confederation and Belgium. Of course, all these countries are closed against Tweed, unless he is willing to assume great risk, but Portugal, Holland, Denmark, Russia, Spain, Greece and Turkey are open, besides the West Indian Islands of Cuba, Porto Rico, St. John and St Croix the two latter belonging to Denmark. We have no extradition treaty with the powers just enumerated, nor with Brazil, Chili, Honduras, Peru, Ecuador, Guatemala, Argentine Confederation, Costa Rica, the United States of Columbia (Isthmus of Panama) China or Japan. Therefore, there is a very wide field to select from, if Tweed once gets beyond the clutches of the law.

The Proposed Penalty Against Bogus Doctors.

Mr. McConnell has introduced a bill in the Assembly to regulate the practice of medicine in the State of California. The first section prescribes that "no person shall practice medicine or surgery, or any of the specialities connected therewith, in the State of California, without possessing a certificate from a Board of Examiners, as provided in this Act." The tenth section defines what shall be considered as "practicing medicine," etc., as follows: "Any person shall be considered as practicing medicine in the view of this Act who shall profess publicly to be a physician and to prescribe for the sick, or who shall affix the title of 'Doctor' to his name," etc. The thirteenth section of the bill provides that "any person practicing medicine or surgery in this State without complying with the provisions of this Act shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than $50, nor more than $500, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period not less than 30 days nor more than 365 days, or by both fine and imprisonment for each and every offense. And again, in section fourteen, it is made "the duty of the police, Sheriff, or any constable, to arrest all persons practicing medicine," etc., "who have not complied with the provisions of this Act."

Just So.

A North Carolina editor thus raves: "Look where you will, what a labyrinthine world of tangles and misfits. Everything jumbled, lopsided, ill assorted and muddlety flummixed. Here a President with a peanut peddler's soul; there a scavenger, beneath whose ragged waistcoat throbs a hero's heart. Here a Senator's or a Governor's wife, whose rich brocades and laces envelop a galvanized oyster wench, or worse; there a smutty phizzed charwoman, whose dingy tatters inclose the spirit of a martyr or a saint. Here, courage, gratitude, and affection wrapped in the hide of a dog; there, baseness and brutality swaddled in broadcloth and linen. Two legged donkeys braying in all our legislative halls and dining at our Delmonico's and their infinite superiors in every worthy quality and qualification munching coarse straw in a thousand country stables. Quadrupedal men and bipedal swine. Every fellow married to the wrong wife; the mole mated to the eagle, the hedge hog to the swan Pshaw! pshaw! It's all blind luck, the whimsies of fate's shaken dice."

Black Tongue.

The Indiana Farmer says: "This disease has appeared in a few places in the State among the cattle, and in parts of this county is proving quite fatal. The symptoms are inflammation of the mouth; swelling of the head and face; discharge of bloody saliva, and high fever marks the first stages. Ulcers soon appear under and on the side of the tongue. Then the throat and neck swell, and if the disease is not checked gangrene ensues and the animal dies. The disease is said to yield readily to early and proper treatment. The following has proved very successful: The animal should be bled from the neck vein. Give him castor oil, one pint, to be repeated in ten hours if it should not operate; then use the following: Powdered burnt alum, 4 ounces; chloride of lime, 2 ounces; corn meal, 2 quarts. Mix, and with this powder swab the mouth frequently."

Staging to the Black Hills.

F. D. Yates & Co., have put on a semi-weekly line of stages between Cheyene and Custer City. A United States mail will be carried. A daily line is to be in operation in twenty days, to accomodate the large parties who are looked for in a short time.

Wanted a Divorce.

A man with a bad looking nose and a melancholy appearance generally entered Justice Potter's office the other day, and slamming a paper down on the desk he exclaimed:

"I submit the docs and demand a divorce!"

The Court looked up at him in a puzzled way, and the stranger continued:

"Hump the papers together mighty quick, for she's out after a dray to move the furniture!"

"I can't give you a divorce," answered his honor.

"Here's the cash down, mister!" said the stranger, pulling out a small tin box full of shinplasters, "and here's charges that will make your blood run cold!"

He was instructed as to what steps he must take, and in his excitement and confusion he went away leaving the "docs" on the desk. The charges read as follows:

1. Pulling hair, jawing and kicked me
2. More pulling hair.
3. Kicked me Christmas day, and I can prove it.
4. Tried to pizen me, and then jawed around.
5. Sitting down cellar and reading dime novels, and then striking me when I talked to her like a father
6. Teasing me to take her to the circus, and then getting mad and ruining a mighty good dish pan.
7. Jawing, kicking, fighting, cussing, threatening, making up faces, and demanding money to buy ice cream for her darned old relashuns. And so forth, to wit, and a good many other things which I can prove straightner'n a string. Gentleman, grant me this divorce and I will vote for you if you ever run for Alderman.—[Ex.

—It is authentically stated that the owner of Hockhocking, one of the horses declared distanced in the four-mile race at San Francisco, will bring the matter before the Courts, claiming the amount of third and fourth money on contract with the Club, under which his horse was entered. If action will stand, the result will depend on a single point—whether the horse was actually distanced—and upon this point a number of witnesses have volunteered their testimony.

New License Law.

Section 3,385 of the Political Code relative to propagation licenses, has been amended so as to read as follows, the law now being in full force and effect:

SEC. 3385. Every person who keeps a stallion, jack, or bull, and who permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax Collector, and pay therefor as follows:

First—Horses that are hired for the purpose of propagation, by the season, at one hundred dollars or more, constitute the first class, and require a license of seventy-five dollars.

Second—At fifty dollars and less than one hundred dollars, constitute the second class, and require a license of sixty dollars.

Third—At fifty dollars and less than seventy-five dollars, constitute the third class, and require a license of forty dollars.

Fourth—At thirty dollars and less than fifty dollars, constitute the fourth class, and require a license of twenty five dollars.

Fifth—At fifteen dollars and less than thirty dollars, constitute the fifth class, and require a license of fifteen dollars.

Sixth—All at less than fifteen dollars, constitute the sixth class, and require a license of ten dollars.

Seventh—For each jack, ten dollars.

Eighth—For each bull, ten dollars.

A license so obtained from the Tax Collector under the provisions of this Act shall entitle the holder thereof the right to go into any county in this State for the purpose of propagation, without further license or expense.

Sec. 2. This Act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Assessor's Salary.

Following is the full text of the new law governing the compensation of the County Assessor, approved Feb. 28:

SEC. 1. The salary of the Assessor of Inyo county shall be twelve hundred dollars per annum.

Sec. 2. In case of any disability whatsoever of the Assessor whereby he is unable to personally perform the duties of his office, he shall be required, at his own expense and without additional cost to the county, to appoint a deputy to act in his stead.

Sec. 3. Whenever in the judgment of the Board of Supervisors it shall appear that the duties of the office of Assessor are greater than the Assessor himself, or his own deputy acting in his stead, can fully and properly perform within the time prescribed by law, the Board must allow the Assessor one or more deputies, to be appointed by him, at such compensation as the Board in its discretion may allow; provided, the said compensation shall not exceed five dollars per diem.

Sec. 4. All Acts or parts of Acts in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. This Act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The Umatilla Explosion.

Full particulars of the explosion at Umatilla rapids, which occurred March 1st, have been received and substantially confirmed. Thus far only one body, that of McCabe, has been recovered. The scow was blown into fragments and nothing was saved. The contractors' loss is in the vicinity of $3,500, in the way of tools, machinery, etc., besides a great loss of time. Of the seventeen men aboard only four escaped—McGinnis, Russell, Gray, and Finneton. At the inquest held over McCabe's body the jury exonorated the contractors from all the blame or responsibility in the matter. Those entrusted with the handling of the explosive material have had large experience in the business and observed every precaution. The precise cause of the explosion will probably always remain a mystery. Work has been indefinitely suspended owing to the dreadful disaster.

Acquitted.

J. Sevenoaks, Superintendent of the Jersey Mining and Smelting Company at Jersey district, who was recently arrested upon the complaint of a man named Le Fevre, who charged him with assault and battery, and obliged him to go to Golconda to stand his trial, was acquitted by the Justice who issued the warrant. A card is published signed by over a hundred citizens of Jersey City, denouncing the prosecution as malicious and censuring the Justice for issuing the warrant under the circumstances. —[Eureka Sentinel, March 8.

SHERIDAN ON INDIANS.

The opinions of Gen. Sheridan upon the Indian question are suggestive of "his views" concerning the proposition to turn the Indian Bureau over to the Army. For this purpose he was summoned before the Committee of the House of Representatives. It is the view of many of our ablest, wisest and most reliable military men, and not of them only, but of hosts of civilians who believe as does the General, that the military which has all the toil, and risk of correcting the results of the ignorance and rascality of the Indian Agents, should have the power of preventing them, by having entire charge of the Indians. Such are Gen. Sheridan's opinions, and he shows how a vast saving may be made by such an arrangement. Of course the Indian ring will oppose the proposed change. Gen. Sherman has also been requested to appear before the Committee, and we await his views with no little interest. In regard to the Black Hills diggings the General's letter reads as follows: "The head-waters of the Wind river are gold-bearing; the Owl Creek mountains are gold-bearing; the Big Horn valley is gold bearing; Powder River is gold-bearing; also, Clark's Fork of the Yellowstone." This would indicate a wide spread of the digging regions; and as the General has been in and over that country considerably, we may reasonably conclude that he knows whereof he speaks. And his letter also indicates that the attempts of the Government to prevent our gold-seekers from penetrating the Black Hills country has been given up as a hopeless task. If the gold-hunters believe there is gold in paying quantities there, they will go, treaty or no treaty.

OFFICIAL FRAUDS IN CALIFORNIA.

The following is a dispatch received in San Francisco from Chicago. It is very singular, not to say irregular, that a Government officer detailed for a secret and confidential service by the Department should stop at Chicago on his way to Washington and disclose the result of his investigations. However, if the reporters in Chicago are more successful in buzzing the Government's secret agents, we suppose it is owing to their usual possession of cheeky enterprise:

D. L. Phillips, a revenue collector of this State, who has been looking up the whisky crookedness in San Francisco, is here en route to Washington to present testimony to Congress. He reports the most astounding corruption. Distilleries and Government officials have been robbing the revenue for years, and the ring fought desperately to prevent any information being obtained by him. The distillers and officials were in complete harmony, and by bribing and packing juries succeeded in eluding the law for a time. He will present testimony to Congress by request of Secretary Bristow, showing the connection of United States Senator Sargent with the frauds and corruption in the revenue service on the coast. The San Francisco Custom-house is alleged to be rotten to the core, and not more than 50 per cent. of the revenue collected.

Phenomenal.

A curious phenomenon, frequently met with in the Indian ocean, the real cause of which has not yet been ascertained, is the existence off Malabar, and in certain spots along the Coromandel coast, of vast mud banks, and of tracts of mud suspended in the sea, wherein many kinds of fish find abundance of food, immunity from much disturbance in the surrounding element, and a locality in which to breed. The exact cause of the existence of these large tracts of sea wherein mud remains in solution is still a mystery; but at any rate the ocean is so smooth that, even during the hight of the southwest moonsoon, vessels can run for shelter into their midst, and once there are as safe as when inside a breakwater.

Trial of Wilcox.

The trial of J. W. Wilcox for an assault to murder F. M. Somers, a Chronicle reporter, in the Senate Chamber, commenced in Sacramento, March 13. Wilcox will be defended by Henry Edgerton and Senator Pierson of San Francisco, and the prosecution conducted by District Attorney C. T. Jones and Alexander Campbell, Jr. A special venire of jurors has been summoned to try the case.

Tuolumne Weather.

The Union Democrat growls and sputters at all the imaginary weather agents and its curses are loud and deep concerning an overdose of weather. In the delectable region about Sonora they enjoy a regular course daily of snow and rain, intermixed with a little thunder occasionally. For sympathy, we would refer The Democrat to The Reveille man and his Austin climate.

Death of an Actress.

NEW "MOON HOAX."

A Moon-Eyed Boy in San Francisco Examines the Moon and Tells All About It.

A reporter of The San Francisco Call has found a little nine year old boy, named John Palmer, residing with his parents in that city, whose eyes possesses the peculiar property of seeing only at immensely long distances. They are gauged, so to speak, to a focus of not less than 240,000 miles, therefore all objects nearer are commingled into one great blur. The boy has been considered to be blind, and therefore is kept in a darkened room, but a few nights ago he accidentally got a peep at the moon, and his exclamations of delight, as well as a description of what he saw, directly convinced his fond parents that he possessed powers of vision beyond ordinary humans. The attention of the California College of Sciences, whose members comprise some of the most scientific citizens of that section, being subsequently attracted to the phenomenon, the boy and his wonderful sight became a deeply interesting subject for investigation. The Call reporter also interviewed the boy, and in a long two column and a half article published in that paper of Sunday last, gives a full account of the scientific investigation of what the boy says he sees in the moon. We extract the following:

The Lunarians are not formed at all like ourselves. They are less in hight, and altogether of a different appearance. When fully grown, they resemble somewhat a chariot wheel, with four spokes, converging at the centre or axle. They have four eyes in the head, which is the axle so to speak, and all the limbs branch out directly from the centre, like some sea-forms known as "Radiates." They move by turning rapidly like a wheel, and travel as fast as a bird through the air. The children are undeveloped in form, and are perfectly round, like a pumpkin or orange. As they grow older they seem to crop or absorb the rotundity of the whole body, and finally assume the appearance of a chariot wheel.

They are of different colors or nationalities—bright red, orange and blue being the predominant hues. The reds are in a large majority. They do no work, but sleep every four or five hours. They have no houses and need none. They have no clothing and do not require it. There being no night on the side of the moon fronting the sun and no day on the opposite side, all the inhabitants apparently at a given signal of some kind, form into vast armies, and flock in myriads to the sleeping grounds on the shadow side of the planet. They do not appear to go very far over the dark rim, for they reappear in immense platoons in a few hours, and soon spread themselves over the illuminated surface. They sleep and wake about six times in one ordinary day of twenty four hours. Their occupations cannot be discerned—they must be totally different from anything upon the earth.

The surface of the moon is all hill and hollow. There are but few level spots, nor is there any water visible. The atmosphere is almost as refined and light as hydrogen gas. There is no fire visible, nor are there any volcanoes. Most of the time of the inhabitants seem to be spent in playing games of locomotion, spreading themselves into squares, circles, triangles and other mathematical figures. They move always in vast crowds. No one or two are ever seen separated from the main bodies. The children also flock in herds and seem to be all of one family. Individualism is unknown. They seem to spawn, like herring or shad, or to be propagated like bees, from the queen, in myraids. Motion is their normal condition. The moment after a mathematical figure is formed, it is dissolved, and fresh combinations take place, like the atoms in a kaleidoscope. No other species of animal, bird, or being exists upon the illuminated face of the moon.

The shrubbery and vegetation of the moon is all metallic. Vegetable life nowhere exists; but the forms of some of the shrubs and trees are exceedingly beautiful. The highest trees do not exceed twenty-five feet, and they appear to have all acquired their full growth. The ground is strewn with flowers, but they are all formed of metals—gold, silver, copper and tin predominating. But there is a new kind of metal seen everywhere, on tree, shrub and flowers, nowhere known on the earth. It is of a bright vermillion color, and is semi-transparent. The mountains are all of bare and burnt granite, and appear to have been melted with fire. The committee called the attention of the boy to the bright "sea of glass" lately observed near the northern rim of the moon, and inquired of what it is composed. He examined it carefully, and gave such minutes description of it that it became apparent at once to the committee that it was pure mercury or quicksilver. The reason why it has but very recently shown itself to astronomers is thus accounted for: It appears close up to the line of demarcation separating the light and shadow upon the moon's disc; and on closer inspection a distinct cataract of the fluid—in short, a metallic Niagara was clearly seen falling from the night side to the day side of the luminary. It has already filled up a vast plain—one of the four that exists on the moon's surface—and appears to be still emptying itself with very great rapidity and volume. It covers an area of five by seven hundred miles in extent, and may possibly deluge one half the entire surface of the moon. It does not seem to occasion much apprehension to the inhabitants, as they were seen skating, so to speak, in platoons and battalions, over and across it. In fact, it presents the appearance of an immense park, to which the Lunarians flock, and disport themselves with great gusto upon its polished face.

An Englishman predicted twenty years ago that if gutta-percha be used for submarine telegraphic purposes, an animal with a special appetite for that substance would be found or created. The frequent interruptions of cable communications are ascribed by the writer to the propensity of this diminutive creature to take his meals out of gutta-percha.

An Arsenic Proof Stomach.

[From The Troy (N. Y.) Times.]

A thirteen year old daughter of a Mr. Flagg, residing near Whitehall, is exciting the attention of the physicians and scientific men in that vicinity. Some time ago Mr. Flagg put arsenic on some bread and placed it in a portion of the house frequented by rats. The bread suddenly disappeared, and again and again other pieces were placed in the same locality, with the same result. He finally determined to watch and ascertain, if possible, what became of it. He had not long to wait before he was horror stricken to observe his little daughter walk away from the place, cramming her mouth with the poisoned bread. A physician was sent for, and before his arrival the sobbing child made known to her parents that she had eaten all the bread prepared for the rats, and that she liked it better than anything she had ever tasted. The physician was surprised, and thinking, possibly, that the drug might not be arsenic, he examined it and found it arsenic beyond a doubt. To still further test it he tried a small quantity of it on a cat, which quickly sent the animal into convulsions, causing its death very soon afterward. What seems remarkable, too, is the fact that ever since the child first tasted arsenic it has begged for the deadly drug time and time again. About a year ago the girl fell sick with fits. Nothing would bring her out of the convulsions. In her quiet moments she would beg incessantly for arsenic. The physician in attendance, believing that the girl could not possibly recover, ventured to give it to her. The child devoured it with avidity, and in less than three days was as well as usual. Since then she has been given the deadly poison at different times, the only effect it having upon her being to make her appear well, bright and cheerful. The case has been laid before several scientific men, all whom pronounce it one of the most remarkable phenomena of the age.

Gloomy.

The Eureka Sentinel draws a very gloomy picture of times in Eastern Nevada, particularly in Eureka, in which place it states that it is almost impossible to obtain money, and that business of every description is prostrated. The mines have reduced their working forces and the industries dependent on the production of wood and coal are paralyzed.

—The Salt Lake Tribune says the Black Hills excitement has died out in all the Utah mining camps.

A Celestial Shot.

[From The Eureka Sentinel, March 9.]

On Saturday evening last an affray occurred at Tucker's Station, on the Tybo road, resulting in the death of a Chinaman, employed as cook and known as "China Joe."

The trouble occurred over a game of cards. A young man named Theron Ham, the Chinaman and another party were playing poker, and Ham, losing a small amount, concluded to draw out of the game. In leaving his seat at the table he accidentally overturned it, and caused the money belonging to China Joe to scatter on the floor. This incensed the Chinaman to such an extent that he told Ham he would kill him for it, and immediately withdrew to his room muttering threats against his life. Shortly afterward young Ham went into the main room of the station where the Chinaman was, and the latter seeing him repeated his threats, saying "You g— d— —— ——, I going to kill you," making a movement as if about to carry his words into execution. Ham immediately drew his pistol and fired, the first shot taking effect and killing the Chinaman. He fired six shots, each bullet penetrating the body. After the killing Ham went to Tybo and surrendered himself to the authorities. Justice Harmer, accompanied by the prisoner, returned to Tucker's, where an examination was held resulting in the acquittal of Ham.

The body of the Chinaman was placed in the boot of the Tybo stage, and arrived in town last evening. The ghastly sight of the corpse lying curled up in the boot attracted a large crowd of curious spectators at the stable where the stage stopped. The Chinamen here disclaim any knowledge of the defunct Celestial. The facts above related are in consonance with the evidence at the examination before the Justice of the Peace.

Stock Gambling.

The Alta describes as follows the scene on California street during the heavy decline on the 8th instant:

The woe begone visages seen upon California street were as thick as flies in a barnyard in Summer time; but as elongated and sorrowful as they were, no commiseration was expressed for them by the more fortunate ones, but in its stead the taunts of the "I-told-you-so" ones were constantly dinned into their ears. Among the many that carried the painful expression upon their faces that they had not been kindly dealt with were a large number of women, who are classified among the most persistent of stock dabblers. Through the rain, without regard to their appearance or the clearing of their dresses from the mud, they rushed to their broker giving orders to either save something from the wreck or buy more, and in many cases to beg from inexorable brokers a few days' extension of time to raise the money to secure their stocks from being sacrificed. Crying babies, personal appearance and husbands' meals were a secondary consideration—could suffer or wait—for their pin money speculation must be attended to. Some of these women are remarkably shrewd operators, and many of them can count their wealth by thousands, all made through fortunate investments. Of this sex the proportion of the number of unlucky ones is about as great as of the masculine gender.

A Refreshing Witness.

In the $6,000,000 suit against Boss Tweed, which is now in progress in New York, Ingersoll, one of the ring convicts, who was pardoned out of the penitentiary that he might give testimony against his chief, testified that Tweed spent fully $1,000,000 of his ill gotten gains at Albany in corrupting legislators. He also testified that he (Ingersoll) received for himself and friends $3,500,000, and expressed the opinion, with unblushing confidence, that his thirty-five per cent. of the steal was justly retained. It seems almost a pity that to bring down even such big game as Tweed the penitentiary should be deprived of the presence of one so eminently entitled to its hospitalities as Ingersoll.

Explained.

The Austin Reveille makes this explanation: The Carson Tribune of the 4th instant states that it was reported that the cars containing Montgomery Queen's wild beasts had been all capsized near Emigrant Gap and the lions, tigers, rhinoceroses, elephants and other pet animals had taken charge of that part of the country; that they had attacked the passengers in the cars and eaten up several ladies and children. It now transpires that the report was occasioned by a man's wife's mother insisting on occupying the same berth with himself and wife, to which he objected, and then she howled worse than two menageries and an insane asylum.

Mining Fire.

March 11th the rope-house attached to the hoisting works of the Belcher mine, in Gold Hill, was destroyed by fire, which originated from a pot of boiling tar. At one time it was thought the Belcher works would all be lost, and the men were brought up out of the Crown Point and Belcher mines; but the Belcher has a regularly organized fire brigade of its own, and it and the Gold Hill fire companies soon had six powerful streams on the fire and drowned it out. Had there been any wind the Belcher works would certainly have gone.

The War in Sonora.

The Tucson Citizen, in its letter from Sonora of the 7th instant, says: Gen. Laroscal left Acapulco on the 15th ult. per steamer with 250 Federal troops for Guaymas. A Guaymas letter of the 24th ult. gives an account of an important engagement between the revolutionists and the State forces; also, an engagement near Agihampo on the 18th, with Castillo in command of 100 State troops, in which the latter was defeated, barely escaping with fourteen men. Castillo himself was wounded.

A Demolished Freight Train.

A passenger who was on his way over the Sierras at the recent crushing in of the snow-shed on the Central Pacific Railroad at a point two miles this side of Cisco, says the train that was in the shed at the moment was left a total wreck. It was a freight train, and consisted of 24 cars. Nearly the whole train was smashed to atoms. A car loaded with codfish scattered said fish in all directions for rods around. Another loaded with sugar in sacks was so smashed up that hardly a sack was left whole. One car was shot upward and stuck fast in the framework of the roof of a portion of the shed, leaving its trucks below on the track. Two engines were drawing the train, neither of which was much injured, owing to which lucky circumstance no one was killed, as all the men on the train were forward near the engines. One man was hurt, but not so badly but that he was able to be at work again in a day or two.—[Virginia Enterprise.

The Natives Astonished.

The Pacific Mail steamer, City of San Francisco, which has just arrived from Australia, astonished the natives of New Zealand. On her arrival at Auckland, the editor of The Daily Herald detailed a reporter to write her up. On boarding the vessel the reporter was so struck with admiration that he thought he could not do the subject justice. He rushed back to the office and brought down the chief editor, and the latter was so impressed with what he saw that he in turn brought down the whole corps of the paper. All hands quit work and celebrated the occasion by getting gloriously tight, and the paper being left to itself failed to appear that day.

—Squiggles is blessed, or otherwise, with a very stubborn wife. In his case he finds that when a woman will she will, you may depend on't, and when she won't she won't, and there's an end on't. This peculiarity of disposition in his wife is no secret among his associates, and one of them, meeting him the other day, asked: "Squiggles, do you know why you are like a donkey?" "Like a donkey," echoed Squiggles, opening his eyes wide; "No, I don't." "Do you give it up?" "I do." "Because your better half is stubbornness itself." "That's not bad. Ha! ha! I will give that to my wife when I get home." "Mrs. Squiggles," he asked, as he sat down to supper, "Do you know why I am like a donkey?" He waited a moment, expecting his wife to give it up, but she didn't; she looked at him somewhat commiseratingly as she answered: "I suppose because you were born so." Squiggles has abjured the habit of putting conundrums to his wife.

—A young woman having taken a course of chemistry, in an Eastern college, has been assisting her father in his drug store since her return home. The other day there was sent in a prescription for some simple medicine for a sick baby, and next day the baby's father went down town to buy a pony coffin. The chemist was requested to rise to a personal explanation. "Great Jehosaphat!" he said, looking at the powder, "why, there's arsenic in this! It ought to have been bicarbonate of soda! Eliza, how is this?" "Oh, pa," replied his unmoved assistant, "we had no soda, and arsenic was the nearest shade that matched."

—"There!" said a young man to his companion from abroad, as they were walking along Kearney street, San Francisco the other day, "see that feller there? Three months ago he came to this town without a cent, and now he is a capper for one of the biggest gambling hells in this city, and his face is good for chips at any faro bank. He'll be a Supervisor or an Assemblyman yet, if they don't send him to the penitentiary before his time."

—The running of a tunnel through Treasure Hill, White Pine county, is about to be commenced. A Burleigh drill and other machinery have arrived at Eureka for shipment to Hamilton; and the White Pine News says that the Company have on deposit in the White Pine County Bank a sufficient amount of funds to carry the work to completion.

—A young American lady who has enjoyed the rare privilege of taking a stroll with the poet Tennyson incidentally mentions in a letter to a friend that "it seriously affected the romance of the situation when he paused during the walk to scratch his back against a gate-post."

—Mr. Beecher says he "stood like a man walking at midnight in a menagerie of serpents who could not step on right because of an asp or an anaconda." Not an unusual trouble. Bromide of potassium or capsicum will quiet it down. Abstinence is imperative.

—Mrs. Partington is stopping at the Grand Central, Oakland, and although nearly 80 years of age objects to being called "an octagon." She thinks somewhat of attending the "Centurian Inquisition" at Philadelphia and will probably take "Ike" with her.

—The stages of the Arizona and New Mexico Stage Company now make the trip from Whitewater and Prescott in three days, and between Whitewater and Tucson in four days and three hours. This is a capital advance.

—Beecher said before the Plymouth Advisory Council, that his late trial had cost him $118,000, and that he did not care about going through many more such.

—The Sultan is very ill. Just think how sweet it must be to have the 2,400 tender hands of 1,200 loving wives smooth his pillow and bathe his throbbing brow.

—"New Orleans toes" is the latest style of gentlemen's shoes. They look like young aligators doubled up with the colic.

—A correspondent asks, "Where will Bowen go to?" We forget; but we heard the name mentioned once by a man who sat down on a carpet tack.

Inyo Independent.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday, March 18.....1876.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

COUNTY COURT.

. J. A. Hannah, Judge.

Court convened at the usual hour on Monday, March 9th, and received from the Grand Jury indictments as follows:

Against Loyal Merritt and Phillip Kline (alias Shorty alias Chapeau) for the crime of murder; against James Hines, for misdemeanor in maiming and wounding a cow; against James Hines and Peter McChann, for assault with deadly weapons; against Sarah E. Martin, for libel; against a number of parties here and elsewhere, for permitting gambling in their houses; against ten others, for gambling. Bench warrants, upon motion of District Attorney Bennett, were issued for the arrest of each person indicted, and it was ordered that the amount of bail in all of the cases except the first two be fixed at $1,000.

March 13.

In the case of the People vs. James Hines and Peter McChann, defendants appeared by their attorney, R. B. Snelling, and plead not guilty. Bonds given for appearance and the 15th instant set for further hearing.

People vs. Sarah E. Martin, for libel; R. B. Snelling for defendant; bail given for appearance and the case postponed until the 15th.

In the matter of the arraignments for gambling, A. Wapelhorst demanded a separate trial, by his attorney, R. M. Briggs, who presented a motion to set aside the indictment for the reason that one of the Grand Jurors finding the indictment—Thomas Williams—was not a citizen of the United States, and offered documentary evidence relating to the non-citizenship of said Grand Juror. Briggs was sworn to the evidence offered. District Attorney introduced the Great Register of Inyo county in proof of the citizenship of said Juror. Court took the matter under advisement until the 17th, when further testimony will be offered by the people.

March 14.

R. M. Briggs, counsel for defendants held for gambling, moved that they be allowed to go upon their own recognizance until the 17th, to which the District Attorney objected, and an argument followed. The Court ordered them admitted to bail, and reduced the amount to $500 each.

March 15.

A continuance was granted in the cases of Sarah E. Martin, Hines and McChann, and trials set for March 20th.

First White Men in Inyo.

We had the pleasure of meeting with Mr. J. H. Johnson, formerly from Tulare, but recently from Trinity county, where he has a large band of horses. Mr. Johnson was probably one of the first white men that ever crossed this part of the valley. In 1858, 18 years ago, he with a party comprising five others crossed the mountains by what is now known as the Kearsarge trail and up the valley to Mono county. Their principal object was to see the valley that had been so often described by the Indians. They were piloted by an Indian named Sampson, who is at present chief of the Diggers over the mountains about Tulare. It appears that the Piutes were jealous and hostile at the first appearance of the whites, and their demonstrations were such the party were obliged to kill two of the Indians to stop the interruption and avoid turning back over the rugged mountain trail. The natives were well armed with bows and arrows, and only those who had crossed over into Nevada knew anything of firearms or white men. This of course only refers to the tribe met with. Mr. Johnson recognizes old land marks, but his surprise at meeting with the many changes can be imagined.

A Matrimonial Candidate.

A "personal" appeared in The Chronicle recently to the effect that a well-to-do farmer north of this place was going into decline for the want of a helpmate to share his sorrows—to make pumpkin pies—to feed the pigs and to assist in reaping the golden corn. The personal was probably inserted by some indiscreet jokist, for the name of our worthy citizen was signed in full, the result of which he has received package after package of billet doux. Propositions from every direction, indited in every conceivable shape, are coming in. Some of the applicants are posessed of poodle dogs and canaries, and all think themslves passably good looking, but they might as well let up, for our Adonis himself is by no means plain looking—our surplus of local girls, ditto.

Reception Party.

The little social gotten up on Tuesday evening last in honor of the advent of some valuable society acquisitions, proved to be all that its projectors could have hoped for in the way of a success. A member of our reportorial force was detailed to get up an account thereof upon a gorgeous plan but for some time previous he had been laboriously scanning the papers of the day—and all night long he could only murmer

Dance, brother, dance with caire,
Dance into the graces of your pardnair,
Dance in time with the fiddlair,
And then put up a big dollair—
Dance in the presence of your pardnair.

Which ends the report and is likely to end him, unless some reader takes pity on humanity and kindly relieves him of the infection by acquiring it.

Night Watch.

Night before last P. P. Dow employed by the citizens generally, entered upon the duties of a night watchman. He should be appointed Constable or Deputy Sheriff and so empowered to make arrests. This institution has a pair of heavily charged six shooters, one of which is at his service. The other is kept to assist in filling our private burying ground.

No Use.

If it were worth while, we would this week proceed to read some of our former lectures upon the absolute necessity of speedily obtaining a fire aparatus for this town. Suppose somebody calls a meeting of citizens on the subject?

Moon's Eclipse.

We didn't chronicle the event of the moon's eclipse last week nor even consult the almanac. In fact so many of the boys have been Eclipsed lately we didn't hear of any one being very astronomically inclined.

March 17th.

Yesterday, prior to 12 M., was St. Patrick's Day in the morning. A dance and other festivities were announced to transpire at Lone Pine last evening, but we have not been honored with a report thereof.

At the Bay.

Treasurer Beaudry, of the Union Consolidated, Cerro Gordo, is reported among the arrivals at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, as V. Beandig.

"Scace."

Nary borns, dieds, marrieds or new ads to report this week. When found, our exchanges will please make a note on't.

Fire.

A little after 12 o'clock on Tuesday night there was a cry of "fire!" which put a sudden stop to the festivities then in full blast at the reception ball in the Masonic Hall, and aroused all others in town from their beds. The cause of the alarm was soon ascertained to be a pile of baled hay in Bennett's hay yard, situated between his law office and Rowley's store, in which is the Postoffice. For a while it looked pretty much as if friend Rowley was to be a victim the second time within the year to the "fire fiend." But a few yards intervened between the pile of hay, from which the flames were streaming high in the air, and occasionally, when a puff of wind came, lapping nearly over Rowley's building. As usual not a drop of water was to be had, except from the well or creek, neither nearer than a hundred yards. Ye festive chaps just from the ball, though somewhat retarded by broadcloth and marseilles vests, and everybody else sailed in with a will to roll out bales of hay, of which there were some forty tons in the yard, to carry water, to wet-blanket Rowley's building and whatever else seemed advisable to prevent the spread of the flames. Fortunately, there was scarce a breath of wind, else the Postoffice, May building and possibly the entire town would now be among the things that were. After awhile a stream of water was got through the ditch from the creek on to the ground, and in a couple of hours or so, by the active use of rakes, buckets of water, etc., the burning bales, piled five or six deep, were finally torn to pieces and the fire effectually squelched. There was about fifteen tons destroyed, all the property of Rothschild & Co., who were making temporary use of the yard. Bennett also had quite a lot in the yard, but lost none. The loss from the fire amounts to about $300. The general sentiment of the crowd gathered there was that all open, exposed hay-yards right in the middle of a town ought to be suppressed by law the same as any other nuisance. No doubt is entertained but this fire was the result of deliberate incendiarism, but whether in the hope of burning the town or certain of the hay only, is more of a question. This was the identical scene of the extensive fire of last Spring, but that was clearly an accident. The only reason for believing that this was not is that it occurred so late at night when no sparks were issuing from neighboring stove pipes, and also the additional fact that the hay was damp from the rains of a day or two previous, so much so that it would scarcely ignite from a burning match, much less a flying spark. The trouble is there is not the slightest clue to the perpetrator, which is a source of profound regret to numerous individuals, who are feverishly anxious to witness a tight rope exhibition, so much so, in fact, they would get one up on just a reasonable suspicion, without waiting for absolute proof in a case of this sort.

The Sunday Law.

For the first time in several years the Sunday law was universally observed (so far as closed front doors would indicate the fact) last Sunday in this place, Lone Pine, Big Pine and Bishop. How it was elsewhere in the county is more than we can say, "the returns not having come in." There are a great many tolerably good people in this world who incline to the belief that the Christians' Sunday is no more entitled to observance in the way of cessation of business than any other given day, though there are very few but who concede that at least one day in seven ought to be so set apart for rest and recuperation, if for no higher motives. There is not a doubt but by so doing both men and laboring animals can accomplish more in the end, and with less wear and tear upon brain and muscle. Notwithstanding this admitted fact, some men have come to think life too short in which to get rich unless full seven days in every week are habitually devoted to their regular callings. If none were affected but the comparative few who take that view of life's duties it would scarce afford grounds for civil legislation to check them; but their greed and example compels their employes, their servants, their animals and the whole community in fact to do likewise, and for the protection of these latter in what is deemed a conscientious and physical right, legislators had to pass laws for the better enforcement of God's laws, more particularly the Third Commandment. This being nominally a Christian government, the day selected could of course be no other than the Christian Sabbath, notwithstanding it is obnoxious to other beliefs, if such consider this Sunday law upon a mere sectarian or religious point of view. If so intended it would also be obnoxious to Constitutional rights upon which ground its repeal might be demanded. If the Courts were to sustain such an objection as that public morals could find no aid whatever in statutory law, and then we would be a free people indeed—free to do anything and everything we chose, without regard to any moral or religious obligations, or to the rights of our neighbors. If the Sunday law is unconstitutional, as interested parties claim it to be, then this "purest and best government the world ever saw" would also guarantee the widest road to utter barbarism, and itself be the most impotent in protecting the rights dearest to civilization. It is a law that ought to be enforced for the physical welfare, if not with the hope of the moral improvement of the present generation. And its enforcement will do no harm to the morals ot the rising generation. It was a total disregard of Sunday duties that produced the Paris Communists and their barbarous acts.

Big Pine Races.

The interest in horse racing, toward the north of us, has not abated in the least. As a means of legitimate sporting a wide field is open, and for promoting fine bloods the turf is resorted to by many other than those who take no part except to win a prize. The races advertised to come off at Big Pine, on the 31st instant and 1st proximo, are likely to prove a success in every way. Mr. McMurry is fitting up a track which he will warrant to be solid and free from loose sand, so that no fault can be found on that score. We have not learned what horses are being trained, but it is said that all of the favorites of the late race at the Taboose will be present. May's Sheep Driver is also to be put in condition, and will have a chance to redeem himself from the rather awkward position in which he was placed at the last race. Everybody intends going. Among other fun proposed is a "grand foot race"—distance not yet decided upon, and no one barred on account of his ugliness or the size of his feet. Perhaps his color and the kinks in his hair might disqualify him; we don't know how that is.

The War Goes On.

Faro dealers, betters and such are coming to grief out at Darwin also. We understand a number of arrests have been made this week. The law says distinctly the tiger must be caged; still, he has been running at large so long in this county without even a threat of molestation lots of people had forgot there was such a law. District Attorney Bennett and the Grand Jury considered it was of no use to have laws put in the books unless they were to be enforced, and if one is not enforced because it is not popular, or by all deemed expedient, it affords a fair excuse for the executive officers to ignore any, perhaps every other, that does not just happen to suit his or somebody else's present convenience to carry out. There are none any more explicit in their terms than are these in relation to gambling and the sunday law.

Stage Robbery.

News comes of a daring stage robbery last Thursday morning on the road between Teel's Marsh and Aurora. The Northern stage was stopped by four robbers, who with little or no ceremony, took Wells, Fargo & Co's. treasure box, which, however, contained nothing of value, and eight bars of Northern Belle fine bullion, valued in the aggregate at $8,000. They then took two of the stage horses and decamped. It does not appear that any passengers were aboard, or, if there were, that they were molested. The robbers consisted of two Mexicans, one Peruvian and one American. Wells-Fargo offer a reward of $2,500 for the capture of the robbers, and an equal amount, or a total reward of $5,000 for the recovery of the bullion. The chances are pretty fair for the capture and recovery both.

Indictments Quashed.

In our Court reports it will be seen that an exception was taken against certain indictments found by the late Grand Jury, on account of the alleged non-citizenship of Thomas Williams, one of the Jurors. Upon a hearing of the facts yesterday, the Court found Williams to be an alien, and decided the exception well taken and ordered the indictments quashed—which action relieves some twelve or fifteen parties under arrest and bonds for violation of the statute against gambling. This will not affect those cases where the right of exception to the legality of the indictment was waived by pleading to the charge, and where the day for trial was set—as was the causes of the People vs. Hines, McChann and Sarah E. Martin.

Murder in Darwin.

A man named Jim ——— was shot and instantly killed at the Centennial Saloon in Darwin, on Wednesday last, by J. R. Norton, one of the proprietors of the saloon. Norton is said to have drawn his revolver on several occasions, while the man killed is reported as a peaceable and quiet man. The full name of the latter our informant did not learn. Norton was arrested and will arrive here to-day in charge of officer Wales.

From Darwin.

Our latest reports from the Defiance at Darwin are to the effect that the furnace is running without interruption, and turning out 150 bars per day. They have considerable ore ahead, and have reduced the working force at the mine fifteen men, with the intention of making a still further reduction, as the mine is in such a shape that comparatively few men are required to more than supply the furnace with ore.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach in this place tomorrow at the usual time and place.

Personal.

Dr. S. A. Middleton, of Bishop, was among the visitors in town yesterday.

Sparring for a Drink.

[From The Nevada Tribune.]

Mrs Murphy kept a "sheebeen" outside of the city of Cork, Ireland, and Mike Carthy (not Mick Carthy of The Virginia Chronicle) was a hod carrier in the neighborhood. Mike wanted his bitters one morning, and walking into the sheebeen addressed the proprietress thus: "Good mornin' Mistress Murphy; it's a foine mornin', Mistress Murphy; and the saints make your bed in pace, madam. Would you plaze to give me a drap of the crather this mornin'?" "The divel a drap, Mike, till ye pay phat ye're owin' me," replied the dacent woman. "Shure, madam, I knew ye and y'r fader, and the noice gintleman he was, and the man that owned ye, the saints betwane us and harrum, but he was the handsome man, wid his gould watch and spurs, and the illigant horse he used to ride. Will ye let me have a little drap, av ye plaze, Mrs. Murphy?" "Sorra a drap, ye dirty spalpeen, till ye pay me the shillin' ye owe me." "Mrs. Murphy," said Mike, "I knew ye when ye rode in the illigant coach, wid y'r coachman and y'r footman in their foine dress and the phiz in their hats; and av you plaze, Mistress Murphy, let me have a drap of the comfort this morning." "The divel secure the drap ye'll get, ye dirthy blackguard ye; and so be aff wid y'rself." "Arrah, bad luck to ye, ye ould harridan," said Mike. "It was a wheelbarrow ye rode in, and y'r old man that's dead and gone was the coachman and footman, too; for the only ride ye ever took was when the poor old fellow that's dead and gone (God rest his soul) wheeled ye to the police station the time ye war drunk. To blazes wid ye, Mistress Murphy," said Mike, and shouldering his hod off he went to work.

Killed by a Mouse.

An extraordinary occurrence was brought to light at an inquest held a few days since on the body of a man in South London. It appears that in a work-room where many young girls were at work a mouse suddenly made its appearance on the table, causing, of course, considerable commotion and a general stampede. The intruder was seized, however, by a young man who happened to be present, but the mouse slipped out of his hand, and running up his sleeve, came out between his waistcoat and shirt at the neck. The unfortunate man had his mouth open, and the mouse, on looking for some place of concealment, entered his mouth, and he, in his fright and surprise, swallowed it. That a mouse can exist for a considerable time without much air has long been a popular belief, and was, unfortunately, proved to be a fact in the present instance, for the mouse began to tear and bite inside the man's throat and chest, and the result was that the unfortunate fellow died after a little time, in horrible agony. Several witnesses have corroborated the above facts, and medical testimony as to the cause of death having been given, a verdict of accidental death was returned.

—When "Spivins," now of Moundsville, W. Va., was city editor of The Wheeling Register, he wrote one evening: "To-day is the anniversary of the death of Louis Phillipp." When the proof came up the name read "Sam Phillips." "Spiv." thought a mere note of the mistake would be sufficient, and so he wrote on the margin: "Who the h—ll is Sam Phillips?" Next morning the item came out: "To-day is the anniversary of the death of Sam Phillips. Who the h—ll is Sam Phillips?" "Spiv." didn't say a word about it to anybody.

The Temperance Cause.

He stood on a chair in a saloon in the dusk of evening, and as a crowd gathered, he began:

"Wine is a mocker—strong drink is raging. The Lord made cold water—Satan made whisky!"

[Pausé.]

"Let me tell you what I saw. Last night I saw a white headed old man at the bar. I pleaded with him to come away, but he was deaf to my words. He filled a glass with deadly liquor, and as it went gurgling down his throat I said to him: 'Old man, thou art doomed.' He laughed a cynical laugh, and cursed me—aye, cursed the man who sought to save him!"

(Commotion in the crowd.)

"This morning," continued the man, "I was at the morgue, where the unknown dead rest on the cold marble slabs. I did not think that my words of the night before would come back to me with such awful significance."

(Crowd drew closer.)

"I looked through the glass door, and, my hearers, what do you think I saw on one of the cold slabs before me?"

"The old man!" shouted twenty voices in chorus.

"No, my friends," continued the old man, as he stepped down, "I didn't see a blasted thing."

Several men chased him, but he made good his escape.

—Joaquin Miller, in describing how he fell in love with a girl at a railroad accident, makes a strong dramatic point where he says:

"I see before me lie senseless and pale,
With her bustle ripped up on a ravenous rail."

—They were walking in the beautiful moonlight. His arm was fondly entwined about her wasp waist. She said, "What a delightful Summer evening! I would like to live always. How beautiful!" Just then his manly form fell kerchug, and he said, "D— such a sidewalk! I'd like to kill the man that made it!"

—Lunch, brothers, lunch with care,
Lunch in the presence of the barkeepaire,
And help yourself to the sassenjaire,
And touch lightly on the strong buttaire,
And pay your bit on the man's countaire.

—Business is dull—emphatically dull—says The Los Angeles Express.

Express Robberies.

During 1875 Wells, Fargo & Co. lost by stage robberies in California the sum of $87,000, and offered rewards for the arrest of the highwaymen amounting to $23,500. There were 36 robberies in all. Already this year there have been six stage robberies in this State.

A Brave Act.

A Tiverton correspondent of The Fall River (Mass) News sends the following: "Captain Joseph Monroe, with his wife and babe, started from Tiverton to cross the river to Rhode Island, last Wednesday, and in passing through Bridgeport, with a strong ebb tide, the keel of his boat came in contact with a line attached to the schooner Antelope, and the boat was capsized. The babe sank, and his wife became unconscious. Monroe dove down and rescued the babe, and, as he came to the surface, found his wife just under water and sinking. He seized her, and, unaided, swam ashore with babe and wife, and landed over 200 feet from where the boat capsized. The babe was apparantly dead, for it was under water from the time the boat capsized until its father landed it on the shore, but it soon revived. Monroe's achievement is spoken of in the highest terms, and when we consider the coldness of the water and the swiftness of the tide, it seems almost a miracle that he succeeded in saving himself, wife and child. Naturally enough when the mother came to herself she cried, 'Where is my baby?'"

Danbury Bailey.

You have seen pictures of shepherds with the proverbial crook in their hands. I didn't think a party could be a shepherd with a pair of pants. I was glad that the first man I saw tending sheep carried one of these crooks. I didn't know what a crook was for, but always believed it was a badge of the occupation, whose origin I could not fathom, handed down from century to century since the time when sheep were invented. Imagine my disgust when I saw this shepherd use the sacred crook to capture the straying animals by catching hold of one of their hind legs and tripping them up! The awful truth came upon me like a flash, and I sat down heavily a broken-hearted man. I had thought it a beautiful emblem, and it proves a hind-leg snatcher! Thus floated the wind from another sweet vision of youth. I must have more salary, or I'll die, I fear.—[Ex.

Unavoidably Absent.

A class of ragged boys in a school had learned to answer questions in the catechism by rote. One day a stranger entered to examine them; but, unfortunately, the boy who was always at the head of the class was absent. The stranger asked, "Who made you?" And the boy answered, "The dust of the earth." "Oh, no!" was the remonstration, "God made you." "No," was the response, "the boy that God made isn't here."

--A suit is at present pending in a Western town between two lovers. The girl was about to marry another young man, when her former lover replevined a sewing machine he had given her. She responded by suing him for the value of meals eaten at her house, and now he has sued her for the time occupied in courting her.

--The way Massachusetts folks turn up their noses and contemptuously whiff past James Parton since his marriage with his step-daughter has dashed the natural buoyancy of his spirits, and is believed to be making serious inroads upon his constitution.

--Treasurer New says he thinks Secretary Bristow intends to commence issuing silver in redemption of greenbacks within a few days.

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Number, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the Labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

President Grant's Statement.

A special dispatch from Washington, March 3d, to The Chicago Inter Ocean, says:

None feel so indignant over the Belknap disgrace as the President. To him Belknap owed all his advancement and prosperity, and so much more heinous was the betrayal. The President is more indignant from the fact that to the last moment Belknap deceived him, and their last communication was a deception. Belknap's part, as the President said to day to a friend: "I have heard it said frequently that if I had no other virtue, it could not be said of me that I did not stand by my friends. But my friends must not try my forbearance too far." Last evening the President sent for a distinguished member of the Illinois delegation and talked very freely with him for about an hour or more and told him the story of Belknap.

"On Thursday I had just finished my breakfast," said the President, "and was opening some letters in the drawing-room, when Secretary Bristow was announced. It was only a little after 9 o'clock, and I wondered why he came so early; but I invited him into the room, and we talked for a time over some matters referred to in my mail. After a time the Secretary said, 'Mr President, there are some very sad stories in circulation about one of your Cabinet.' I told him I had not heard anything. The Secretary said they were dreadful stories, almost too bad to be believed. I inquired what they were, and the Secretary began to tell me, when in came Belknap and Chandler. Chandler looked very sober and Belknap was changed so that you would hardly have known him. He looked as if he had not slept for a week. I got up and shook hands with him, and asked him what was the matter. He went on to tell me in an incoherent way, about the Congressional investigation; that it was going to damage him very much, and he said he had written his resignation and brought it with him. He took out the letter and I read it. I said to him that I would regret very much his leaving the Cabinet, for I had confidence in him. At that he burst into tears and took hold of my hand. I asked him the nature of the investigation, and his manner more than the words of his reply showed me that it was something of an unusual character. I understood that he was expecting an investigation that he could avoid by resigning; that the facts, if exposed, would not damage him so much as his wife. He spoke of his dead wife, too. I told him that he had a great many friends, and they would help him out, but he said it was impossible; that he had shouldered all the blame and would be ruined. He insisted that it would save me and the rest of the Government a great deal of trouble if his resignation was accepted. I tried again to induce him to wait awhile, but he said he must go before the Committee that morning, and wanted to tell them he was no longer an officer of the Government. So I wrote him letter accepting his resignation, and, after thanking me for that and for what he called my kindness to him in the past, he went away with Chandler. Then Edmunds and Morton came in, and they told me the whole story. I could not believe them, and sent a messenger for Bass, who, I understood, was a member of the Investigating Committee." The President said that if he had known the whole truth he would not have accepted the resignation as he did, but would have suspended Belknap till the investigation was over. He never was so astounded in his life. There was no member of his Cabinet in whom he had more confidence. The Illinois gentleman suggested that he felt like having Belknap tried by a drum-head Court-martial and shot, and the President replied that no one could feel worse than he did. After hearing the truth of the matter the President was so unsettled in mind that he was totally unfitted for business. His friends say they never saw him so completely unnerved. All the afternoon he spent with his son Ulysses, walking down on the bank of the river back of the White House. Talking seemed to relieve his mind, and he spoke very freely to several gentlemen who called upon him.

An Offended Elephant.

Everybody has heard of the sagacity of elephants; the writer, having been in India for years, had many opportunities of judging of it. One day two ladies were watching some elephants being fed near their camp in the jungles of the central provinces, when the elder of the two unfortunately took it into her head to offer one of the elephants a very hot chapatti, which is a cake made of flour and baked over the fire on a thin plate; and, consequently, when fresh made is very hot. Elephants are usually fed with these twice a day, but they are always allowed to cool before being given. This was still so hot that it hurt the beast's trunk, for he dropped it with the quickness of lightning, with a shout, at the same time striking a blow on the hand of the lady, whom he, of course, considered had meant to hurt him intentionally. Had she been a little nearer and the beast not at the full length of his chain, the same blow on the head would certainly have killed her on the spot; as it was her hand was in a most painful state for weeks afterwards. Next morning, when it was time to start for the next encampment, the same lady, who usually got up the ladder first and sat nearest the elephant's head, proceeded to do as usual; but as soon as she approached the elephant he began trumpeting loudly and throwing water over her. This he did several times; at last she had to give up trying to ascend, and another lady took her place. The elephant, however, permitted her to sit near his tail, but he remained cross all day, and subsequently showed that justice is not so invariably developed in the elephantine character as supposed.—[Essays on Every-day Life.

How He Wound His Watch.

A day or two since, Mr. Shaw, the time-keeper of the Consolidated Virginia mine, found a watch lying in the snow, where it had evidentally been dropped by some one working in or about the mine. Mr. Shaw wrote a note to that effect, posting it by the side of the window to which the men came to give in their names when going on or coming off their shifts. Several men called and described what was according to their ideas "a valuable watch," nearly all making it gold, with a fine chain of some metal. Some set a number of beautiful pieces of gold quartz into the links of the chain. At last a little Frenchman came to the window, and said:

"You find one vatch, Maister Shaw?"

"Yes, sir," said Shaw. "Have you lost a watch?"

"Yes, sare, me have lost one vatch."

"Can you describe it?"

"Oh, yes sare, me can describe him ver' perf'cly."

"Well, what was it like?"

"My vatch he was a silver vatch."

"Very good. What kind of cases?"

"Vell, he had his face wide open."

"What kind of chain."

"One leetle brass shain."

"What kind of key was on the chain?"

"Vell, no key be on ze sh in. He have no key at all. I wind by ze tail."

The watch was a stem winder, and the Frenchman had given a perfect description of it, even down to "ze tail."—[Enterprise.

A Parrot Story.

My father was an old gentleman who was very regular in his habits. Every evening it was his custom to take a stroll after tea to visit some friends by the name of Fate, who lived in the next street. Before leaving the house he would open the door of the dining-room where we used to sit, and would say aloud, "Only going down to Fate's." Now it happened one evening that Polly's cage door was left open. We sometimes let him walk about the room when he was very good, as a great treat. This evening we suddenly missed him from the room, and could not think where he had gone. We all set to work and searched the house high and low; no Polly could we find. So at last my father left, as usual, to pay his visit to our neighbor, leaving us still looking for our pet. What was his surprise upon turning the corner of the street to see Polly quietly waddling down the middle of the road. "Why, Polly," said he, "where are you going?" Upon which Master Poll cocked his impudent little head on one side, and looked up and said, "Only going down to Fate's."—[Liberal Christian.

The Value of a Seat.

The value of seats in the San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board has steadily appreciated since the first establishment of that institution, but we believe they have never commanded so high a figure as just at present. Quite recently $35,000 was offered for a seat. The price hitherto ruling, except during the financial panic, was $30,000. The action of the Board in paying a dividend this month at the rate of $200 per member, and the presumption that this dividend will be regularly continued, has probably something to do with the enhancement of value in seats. The foundations are already laid for the new Board Building, and when it is completed it is reasonable to presume that seats will be at a still further premium. The San Francisco Board has certainly prospered wonderfully since its inception, when the charter prices of seats was but $100, of which only $50 was demanded.—[S. F. Stock Report.

A Murderous Proclamation.

The following is a translation of a proclamation alleged to have been issued by the Wing Ye Tong Society, and presented in evidence by the Chinamen who stand accused of the murder of Woo Ah Moy in the late riot in Chinatown, San Francisco: "The members of the Wing Ye Tong Society offer a reward, on account of Cheuing Sam's shoe factory violating our rule. Consequently, our Society discontinued work. Unless they comply with our rules again we will not work. Some of our workmen secretly commenced work for them. We will offer $300 to any able man for taking the life of one of those men who secretly commenced work, and $500 in full for the killing of Sam Lee. Power of Giant Powder.

The explosive force of giant powder is shown in this statement: A mortar standing at an angle of 45 degrees with a quarter of an ounce of number one giant powder, will throw a shot weighing 24 pounds the distance of 625 feet. The same charge of number two powder will throw the same shot a distance of 475 feet. In an upright mortar one ounce of giant powder, number one, throws a shot weighing 42 pounds out of sight; and one ounce of number two powder will throw the same shot 1 000. The same amount of black blasting powder will not throw the shot out of the mortar.

A Gambling Item.

Those who buck at the tiger may be interested in the following statistics: There are fourteen faro tables running in Virginia City, each of which pays a license fee of $475 per quarter to the State, county and city. Each table has three dealers and three case keepers, who work 8 hour shifts—the former receiving $7 50 per day of eight hours, and the latter $5 each. Each game is estimated to pay to the bar the amount of $15 every eight hours. This is not counting the percentage on the game in favor of the proprietor, to say nothing of the "chances" either way.—[Ex.

The Press Convention.

Pursuant to adjournment the Press Convention met in San Francisco last week, and effected a permanent organization as follows: For President, George W. Gift; for Vice-President, Hon. C. B. Porter; for Secretary, F. W. Krauth; for Treasurer, Thomas L. Thompson. The Convention then adopted a number of resolutions, denouncing in the strongest terms the press gag bills now pending in the Legislature, pronouncing against "patent outsides," and returning the thanks of newspaper publishers generally to Superintendent Valentine, and the President and Board of Directors of Wells, Fargo & Co's Express for the courtesy extended the press in carrying exchange papers free of charge during the time the unjust law was in operation charging postage for exchange papers and magazines. THE INDEPENDENT seconds this last resolution very heartily, and will add, that though not able to participate by representation in the Convention, seconds its whole aim and object with no less heartiness, believing that this organization can be made of vast benefit to the interest of publishers as well as newspaper patrons.

Reorganization of the Judiciary.

A bill to reorganize the Federal Judiciary has passed the United States House of Representatives. It is based on the fact that the Supreme Court of the United States, organized as the Court of last resort for three millions of people, is not able to act in the same capacity for a population of forty-four millions. Under the bill in question the Supreme Judge is no longer to discharge the duties of Circuit Judge. But he, a new Circuit Judge, and the several District Judges in his circuit, are to form a Court of Appeals, which is to have final jurisdiction over all writs of error where the sum involved does not exceed $10,000. It will practically give us nine Supreme Courts of the United States for the great mass of the Federal litigation. The present Supreme Court will have nothing to attend to but the great cases involving constitutional construction.

Wilcox.

The bully from Merced and Mariposa, John Wilcox, had his trial last week in Sacramento on a charge of an assault to commit murder (on Somers, The Chronicle correspondent). After some very tall swearing on his own part, and a great amount of testimony from other witnesses, the latter apparently proving beyond dispute the truth of the allegation, the jury finally decided to bring in a verdict of "guilty of assault" simply Wilcox was subsequently sentenced to pay a fine of $500, or reside 250 days in jail. He planked down the cash, and walked forth a forth a proud and happy man to think he had come so well out of a scrape that ought to have sent him to the Penitentiary.

A Fifty Thousand Fee.

The investigation of the Emma mine scandal has developed the fact that Professor Siliman got $50,000 for his glowing report on that famous property. The fee was contingent on the sale, and of course he wrote strong in order that the Johnny Bulls might be induced to take hold. Prof. Siliman occupies a position quite as unenviable as any one connected with the Emma transaction.

A Faro Raid.

The law officers of San Francisco are going for faro and "tan," (a Chinese banking game), as the law directs. On the night of the 15th over twenty dens, including the most aristocratic, were besieged, among which all found in four of them were captured. The District Attorney of the City is bound to drive the tiger to his darkest jungles.

New Editor.

The Lyon County Times has a new editor in the person of Joe. Wasson, a forcible and ready writer of wide experience in journalism on this coast. Joe knows a heap of things, and he can tell what he knows as well as any Mark Twain.

Eclipse of the Sun.

The Reese River Reveille and the Centennial Almanac agree that there will be an annular eclipse of the sun to-day, which will be visible to North America and the Northern Pacific Ocean.

Will Expire.

The Legislature will expire on the 3d day of April by constitutional limitation, and then will come a season of great relief and peace.

POSTAL FRAUDS.

We observe that the Congressional Committee are doing some effective work in exposing frauds in the Postal Department, particularly in relation to the way straw bids are made available. The principal mail contractors set aside a regular sum from their earnings as a bribery fund. These sums are paid to thieves of various grades, from clerks up, at Washington. Such things are bad and scandalous enough, but after all, we don't believe the aggregate of money stolen by the Washington clerks in that way equals the sums of petty thieving by Postmasters and clerks at the different Postoffices. We know that some contemptible thieves have stolen money from letters despatched from this place not less than four times within the past two years, we personally being the loser in every instance but one. If others are equally unfortunate in Postoffice remittances, it would take many figures to represent the total yearly loss to take the country through. The most recent cases that have come t our knowledge was the theft of greenbacks from registered letters addressed to Eastern offices. The letters were duly received and receipted for by the parties to whom they were addressed, but the enclosures were non est. The other cases were coin enclosures; the letter in one case came duly to hand but minus the coin; the other was never heard of more. We dislike to make mention of such things, for the reason that it is impossible to point out the locality of the thief, and may cause suspicion to attach to the most honest. Every letter, registered or otherwise, passes through many offices and many hands, and one thief among the lot is enough to throw a shade of suspicion upon the whole. But facts are as they are, and of a kind we are getting tired of. We hope the Postal Agents will investigate this kind of frauds, too, while they are at it. But in any event we advise our readers not to register letters containing anything worth the attention of the postal sneak thief. It is only an invitation to him to break in and steal, and he will surely do it.

Settled.

The famous McGarraghan claim against the New Idria quicksilver mine has been settled on this basis: McGarraghan pays the owners of the Idria mine $400,000 in cash, and gives a lien upon the mine for the $500,000 or $600,000 additional, which amount is to be paid as soon as it can be taken out of the mine. In consideration of this agreement the mine has been turned over to McGarraghan, and it is understood that the work of taking out quicksilver is to be prosecuted with increased vigor and dispatch. It has been stated, also, that Benjamin F. Butler, the Massachusetts statesman, has agreed to furnish the money necessary for the development of the mine.

The Black List.

The California Senate passed that fool bill requiring the writer's signature to every newspaper article, and also the Retraction bill. The first was carried by a vote of 21 to 15. Among those voting aye was our Senator, Tipton Lindsey, of whom we expected better things. In the same list, of course, was Edgerton, Lewis the immaculate, Haymond and Laine. Though it may have no political importance, yet it is worthy of remark that every Independent (10) voted for it, one third of the Democrats and one-half the Republicans.

The Reason Why.

The reason, plausibly assigned why Tom Scott's railroad bill does not become a law this session is that Congressmen are afraid to vote for it just now when a Presidential election is so close at hand, although it is asserted but for that it would pass by a decisive vote of both parties. The subsidy clause is what the party leaders are afraid would ruin their respective chances before the people. Next Winter, though, they say they will not be afraid to vote their sentiments.

A Nomination.

The President has nominated John M. Coghlan, of Solano county, California, as Chief Justice of Utah. Coghlan served one term as Member of Congress; he was renominated for the succeeding election, but on account of his Mare Island voting operations, his district thought he had better not go again. He did the State some service, however, by that thieving business, as it resulted in the enaction of our present admirable election law.

Good.

The Signature bill went to the Assembly in due course after it passed the Senate. Then it was referred to the Judiciary Committee, which reported it back with the recommendation that it do not pass. As that settles the fate of the fool bill, that Committee has saved the Legislature more hard names, had the bill become a law, than was ever showered upon any of its predecessors for any one bad law.

Mining Law Amendment.

The bill now pending in Congress looking to the amendment of Section 2324 of the Revised Statutes, concerning mineral lands, provides that if the person who proposes to patent mineral lands shall in the first place have done his $500 worth of work, made his surveys, performed all the specifications necessary, and filed them in the land office in accordance with the statute, he can then stop doing his $100 worth of work a year until the patent is issued. As the law now stand it provides that before a person can make an entry on mining lands he must have done at least $500 worth of work on his claim. He must then take a surveyor and lay off the boundaries and comply with the other specifications demanded by the statute, after which he must continue to do $100 worth of work per year until his patent is issued. In many instances this works very great hardships. Controversies often arise about these patents, and even where there is no controversy, under the most favorable circumstances, where a man has made his application, has had his survey made and performed everything required of him under the statute, his application lies in the land office two long years before the patent can be issued.

Still Another.

And now comes ex-Surveyor-General Robert Gardner before a Legislative Committee to be investigated on a charge of malfeasance in office. And the more he is investigated the more truth there appears to be in the charges; and that fact does not surprise us in the least. After the aforesaid Robert got renominated for the same office last Fall the Republican State Central Committee were made acquainted with some of Robert's alleged rascalities, but while they were satisfied he was a bad egg, declined to take him off the ticket at that stage for fear of weakening it—which shows what peculiar things that Committee thought was an element of strength for their particular ticket—but their point was that voters would not suspicion anything if they kept right along carrying R. G. and his sins—otherwise the voters would get scared if changes were made at that late day.

Some Whisky Proposition.

In the California Senate on the 18th, Edgerton presented a petition signed by 8,000 persons asking for more stringent laws in relation to liquor licenses. He then presented two bills for carrying the prayer of the petition into effect. These bills constitute Boards of Supervisors a Board of Excise to grant licenses upon certificates of good moral character. An infringement of the law is liable to penalty of $1,000. Any person selling or giving away intoxicating drinks without holding a license is guilty of a misdemeanor. Howe then presented a bill to prevent adulterations of liquors. This creates Inspectors to inspect the liquors sold by dealers, to be appointed in San Francisco by the Mayor and in other counties by the Board of Supervisors. Penalties are exacted for any violation of the statute. These bills were referred to the Committee on Public Morals.

The Penalty.

We are told that the penalty for an offense like Gen. Belknap is charged with is three years imprisonment and a fine of twice the amount of the moneys corruptly received. That is the theoretical punishment for corrupt officials of high degree; practically, it is an expensive trial the people footing their own bills, the defendant's friends contributing, a la Babcock, the amount of his outlay, after the honest jury has duly considered the voluminous testimony and found it wanting as usual. "Don't let a single guilty understrapper get away."

The Financial Question.

The Democratic members of Congress have been holding caucuses to arrive at some satisfactory conclusion on the financial question. At the last meeting there was a long discussion. Senators Bayard, Eaton, Thurman, Bogy and Kiernan, and Representatives Randall, Reagan and Luttrell advocating hard money. The opinion was generally expressed that the entire national debt should be paid, according to the pledges of the government, in gold, and in consonance with the principles of the Democratic party.

State Convention.

At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, of California, March 15, it was determined to call a State Convention at Sacramento, on the 26th of April next, for the purpose of electing delegates to the National Convention at Cincinnati. The representation in the State Convention was fixed at 407 delegates.

Adjournment.

The California State Senate has resolved that no new bills should be introduced into that body after the 20th instant, unless by a two thirds vote.

Columbus Items.

[From The Borax Miner, March 11.]

The Metallic mine which is now being opened up under the supervision of Mr. George Storey, is attracting a considerable share of the attention of mining experts hereabout. The vein, as shown by the workings, presents some remarkable features. In sinking the incline to a depth of ninety-three feet the sharp pitch of the vein has not varied a particle, the walls being as true as a line, pitching easterly at an angle of about sixty degrees. There has been little or no waste rock hoisted, and there is now on the dump about eighty tons of ore which will mill over one hundred dollars per ton, all of which has come from the prospecting incline, without any breasting out or drifting whatever. Assays from this vein have gone as high as $1,314, and the lowest ever made from it was $32. The ledge averages four feet in width, and it is the opinion of experts that the Metallic will soon take a high position among the mines of Columbus district. They are sinking on the vein with all possible rapidity, having gained twenty feet during the week with three shifts of miners.

George Cook, an Englishman by birth, aged about 43 years, recently from Belmont, who had been in the employ of the General Thomas Company for about two months prior to his illness, was brought down from the mine last week having a severe attack of pneumonia, from the effects of which he died at about 6 o'clock on Sunday morning, the 5th instant. Prior to his death he made a will, bequeathing to Wm. Bailey, the miner who was so terribly mangled by the giant powder explosion, the sum of $500; also bequeathing the balance of his possessions, amounting to about $3,300, for the purpose of founding a hospital at Columbus. Messrs. Chas. W. Tozer and A. Hanke are the executors. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, Rev. Ira P. Hale officiating, the body being followed to the grave by the largest number of citizens ever gathered here on a like sad occasion. Many miners came in from the neighboring camps to follow the remains of their comrade to the last resting place.

We have the satisfaction of informing our readers that it is a settled fact that we are to have a well appointed iron foundry and machine shop in running order in Columbus within forty days, if no unforseen circumstance intervenes to retard the work. Sheriff Caldwell and Mr. Geo. Doree, who is associated with him in the business, have been here during most of the week, making the preliminary arrangements for the work. The foundry will be located on the lot south of Harrell & Richardson's stable, and the first buildings erected will be 54x40. The lumber has been been ordered from Truckee and the machinery will be ordered from San Francisco immediately. The intention is to manufacture all the parts of quartz mills which are liable to wear and tear, but not to compete with the San Francisco foundries in building new works.

Hunting for a Door.

Judge Waters on Wednesday last offered an Indian five dollars if he would find his office door on Main street. The Indian commenced shoveling away the snow and was down ten feet or more, when the storm set in again, which soon buried the Indian out of sight. He tunneled himself out, and finding the Judge said, "Heep no catch 'em door; maybe so three moons." The Judge regrets the failure, and thinks the Indian would have struck the door in going down fifteen feet deeper.—[White Pine News.

Won't Stand It.

The Austin Reveille says that Schoonover, confined in the county jail for petty larceny, protests against the action of the Supreme Court, in declaring the jury law unconstitutional, and says that that tribunal can go to the bad place, and that he hopes he may be transformed into a horned toad if any Supreme Court shall turn him out of jail in the dead of Winter.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, March 8.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Excuse me, will you? I don't want to write any more about it. I am tired and sick of the Belknap scandal. It is occupying the thoughts and minds of the public here, so that nothing else is talked of. Go to the hotels, Willard's or the National, where crowds do congregate, and every group is talking about the "Belknap case." Call on your Senator and Representative and you are greeted with something about the "Belknap case." Visit a private family and the ladies will either rejoice or bewail the fall of "Mrs Belknap." The "I told-you so" prophets are repeating to you what they said, a year, or two years, or six months ago. The correspondents are quoting things they did not but claim to have written months ago. The opposition papers are pointing to their vague assertions of corruption such as are always made by the "outs," and with an infinitely wise look tell how they pointed to this particular case long ago. I am sick of it. I wish we could have an earthquake, or a summons, or something else dreadful, to distract the attention of the news mongers. Anything for a change. "I even wish I were dead," or could get up enough courage to go and hear Hammond and Bentley, our imitators of Moody and Sankey. But I have always been principled against attending variety shows. Speaking of these men, I would like to inquire why it is that the newspapers make so much of them. They are doubtless good men and desire to do good, but so far as I can learn of their proceedings they are simply engaged in trying to frighten children and weak minded people with horrible stories about a lake of material fire, where those immaterial substances called souls are to be burned forever and aye. It may be all right, but Saxon doubts the utility of such work.

The weather is magnificent. Never in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant has there been such a Winter and such a Spring. The streets are crowded with gaily dressed ladies. Hundreds, yes thousands, passed up the avenue Monday and Tuesday to be present when the Senate as a high court of impeachment was expected to meet to sit in the trial of Belknap. It was a beautiful sight to see the fair dames and demoiselles hurrying to get seats where they could watch the trial which consigns a man and woman to infamy. I observed that each of the fair ones had provided herself with an extra pocket-handkerchief to wipe away the tears which she expected to shed. This case comes in very handy during Lent. We can't go to parties or eat meat, but we can fatten on scandal. Viva la bagatelle. They were disappointed on Monday, as the Judiciary Committee were not ready to report, and the walk was had for nothing. What a blessing.

There is a delightful row going on here about the finance question. It is really amusing to sit by and watch it. The by-play is delicious. Not from a political stand-point, for Saxon does not indulge in that luxury, but from his independent, don't-care-a-cuss position it is delightful to see how the babblers every Monday dodge every effort to bring up this much mooted question. And then on the street or at the hotels, to listen to the "feenance" doctors as they discourse learnedly (?) upon the evils under which the country labors, and the remedy that should be applied. Each one of them is like a corn-salve peddler, and has a sure cure—the only reliable remedy—the great prosperity restorer, warranted to cure at one application—none genuine without the owner's name written across the label or blown in the glass bottle. These "feenance" doctors generally know as much about the subject as the corn doctors do of anatomy, and are quacks of the basest sort. They, country politicians and lawyers, pretend to understand the principles of political economy which require a lifetime of study from men of real ability. They ought to be spanked for their impudence.

Rumors are flying round about other officials besides Belknap being guilty of as high crimes as he, but I make it a rule never to believe or retail these slanders. It is bad enough to have to tell of them when they are proven, without guessing at them before that time. The Democrats scored one in the House when they caught Belknap, and now they are looking for another case on which they can make a home run.

The Republicans in France have a clear majority of both houses of their Assembly. Though there are 100 determined and aggressive Bonapartists in the lower house, led by Cassagnac and Rouhier, they will make it lively for Gambetta and his followers, for it is pretty certain that he will snatch the reins of leadership from Thiers. The Turkish insurgents refuse to accept the terms offered by Turkey, and declare they "will fight it out on that line if it takes all Summer." Good luck to them and you, says

"Why didn't you stay there and get more?"

"Oh, the Injuns druv us out, but thar's slathers of gold in that country, you bet."

"Going back there?"

"No; thar's too much of the yaller thar'. Ye see thar's goin' to be a stampede, and they'll rush in thar' and take out so much gold that the demand won't be ekal to the supply, and the discount on gold will be so big that it won't pay a man to prospect fur it. LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Captured.

Deputy Sheriff James Wales came in early yesterday morning, having in charge the three Belleville stage robbers. It seems that there is no evidence of more than three highwaymen participating in the express and bullion robbery of the 14th instant—one American, a Peruvian and a Mexican. After leaving the bullion as stated elsewhere, the robbers passed through this county, bearing directly south, and arrived at Darwin some time on Wednesday last, leaving their tired mules in a corral. Upon noticing the latter, the suspicions of officer Wales were immediately aroused; he instituted a plan to detect them, and soon became aware of the fact that they were the parties wanted. The mules disappeared mysteriously, and Wales, getting the scent, mounted his horse and followed in the direction of Old Coso, near which place he struck a regular bonanza of cut-throats—for he bagged at one haul the three robbers and the perpetrator of the recent Cerro Gordo murder, Nahar Felis. Sheriff Passmore, who was south on the same business, accompanied the party back to this place. Felis was left at Lone Pine, until accommodations can be had in the county jail. Wales passed on no thward with the footpads. The American has made a clean breast of it, and has confessed the robbery of Wells, Fargo & Co. The Express Company's reward is $500 for each of the thieves. The Peruvian is an elderly man as well as an old offender. Ex-Sheriffs Elder and W. L Moore recognized him as one they had arrested for stealing bullion several years ago.

Who Will Do It?

The Centennial Commission, through its Secretary, Mr. Campbell, urges every county in the United States to take steps looking toward the preparation and delivery of a local Centennial Fourth of July oration, which shall contain a complete historical sketch of the county. These are to be printed after a certain style and forwarded to the Commission, to be bound in uniform volumes by States, and the grand whole placed with other National records. The practical carying out of this idea would be a most excellent plan for this county of Inyo—in fact, we can hardly afford not to do so. There is bound to be some sort of a Fourth of July celebration at one or more places in the county, and why not make it one grand Centennial effort? We have orators and we have the material to afford them such facts of historical interest as would attract more hearers and readers than forty abstract, spread-eagle Fourth of July essays, besides giving our county a proper place in the grand records. Take hold, somebody, and see what can be done about it; it is none too soon to begin now.

Attempted Housebreaking.

Some tramps camped near the Post, last Tuesday, thought they saw an opportunity to equip themselves with a supply sufficient to take them through to the Centennial. They looked with longing eyes at Uncle Sam's commissariat, and peeped in at numerous private houses; finally they found that at W. A. Cassidy's house there was no one to interfere, and proceeded to force an entrance. Cassidy happened along just in time to enter a protest, but they were timid creatures, and fled without even stopping to inquire why bullets were flying around so. They had a pack animal along, which was suspiciously loaded with a variety of clothes-line productions, from a gent's ruffled wrist-bands and —— to a lady's hose and paper collar.

Norton.

J. R. Norton, who was arrested and brought in last week by Deputy Sheriff Wales, for the killing of James Coyle in Darwin, as mentioned in our last issue, is very low. He persistently refuses to eat a mouthful of any sort; it is now ten days since his arrest, and the only nourishment he has taken all this time is three sugared whiskies and a little tea daily. We have twice visited him in his cell, but found him too weak and agitated to converse much. He declares he will die, and that when he is taken from the jail it will be as a corpse; that his family shall not be disgraced by his being hung.

Incident in Court.

The usual serenity of the bench and bar was somewhat disturbed last Thursday, during the McChann trial. The prosecuting witness had taken the stand and the usual oath was being administered to tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the"—when the witness suddenly interrupted with "Be ——, ——, I'd tell yez the hull truth, yer honor, if the divel stood before me wid his horns so long" and he illustrated with his arms outspread before his head how old Zamiel and his horns would appear.

Another Killing at Cerro Gordo.

A Mexican named Phillipe Castro was shot and almost instantly killed at Cerro Gordo by another Mexican named Nahar Felis, on the 19th instant. Felis fled, and was pursued by Sheriff Passmore and others. He is supposed to have started for Visalia, where his relatives reside or else, as rumored he is hid away in Cerro Gordo by his friends. Castro was a coalburner, and the killing occurred at his camp.

An Experiment.

C. F. Stoutenborough, at Harris & Rhine's store, has been trying a series of experiments with one of his new sewing machines. He has successfully sewed together pieces of a cigar box, tin and leather, etc., and only failed when he tried the check of an opposition agent, on which he destroyed a dozen needles, broke the needle-arm and smashed the treadle.

On the U. P.

V. A. Gregg, Esq., yesterday received a note from his wife stating that she had only got as far as some point east of Carlin, where they experienced a first-class railroad accident. The train collided with some cattle, throwing the engine, tender and baggage car from the track. No one was seriously injured.

Placer Diggings.

A party came in last week from Peavine Canyon, near Sylvania, and reported the recent discovery of some promising placer diggings there. It is gold quartz principally, specimens exhibited assaying as high as $20,000 per ton.

Stocks.

March 20th Northern Belle was quoted at $39; General Thomas, $5 50@$5 25; Coso Con., 37½@40c.; Metalic (Columbus district), $4; New Coso, 80c.

Starting Up.

John Broder starts over to Log Springs to-day, with the intention of starting up the furnace on the earliest possible date.

Business Agent.

Harvey Russell, of the Bishop Creek Flouring Mill, gives notice of the appointment of John Blair as general financial agent of the concern.

Recovered.

Dennis Thompson, Charles and William Conover and John Irvin, of Aurora, went immediately to the scene of the stage robbery, mentioned last week, and soon recovered seven of the eight stolen bars of bullion. They also got track of the robbers, and through private letters we learn that the prospect of capturing them is considered good. Jose Garcia, or "Spanish Joe," formerly of Cerro Gordo, robbed another Mexican in Jefferson Canyon a short time previous to this occurrence, and no doubt is entertained but that he is one of the robbers in the Belleville affair. On the first occasion Joe proposed to his partner to kill the Mexican packer, which met with an objection; so, after exacting an oath of secrecy from the robbed man, they let him go, with the assurance that if he ever came to Cerro Gordo they would give him four animals for the one which they were then taking from him. This we learn from The Borax Miner of the 18th, which further says that all the robbers are quite well known to the officers and that this stage robbery was anticipated by them, they having given warning to the stage company to that effect.

Fire at Black Rocks.

J. W. Smith's boarding House, at the Black Rock saw mill, was entirely destroyed by fire Monday last. The men left in charge of the place had gone up on the mountain when it occurred, and the building must have caught from the cooking stove. The house was a large one, about 40x80 feet; no insurance. The office-books, business papers, etc., were consumed with the rest. Had any wind prevailed at the time the mill and everything connected would have shared the fate of the Black Rock caravansary.

County Court.

Nothing was done in the County Court this week worthy of note except in the case of Peter McChann, who was indicted for assault with a deadly weapon. His trial came off on Thursday, and as the testimony adduced showed that he acted rather as a peacemaker than as a participant in the fracas, the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty. The trial of Mrs. Sarah E. Martin, under indictment for slander, is set for the 30th, to which time the Court adjourned.

Prevented in Time.

A fire broke out in the Commissary department of Camp Independence, last week, but was promptly extinguished. No damage worthy of mention. Had it not been for their conveniently arranged water works an extensive conflagration would have resulted.

A Chance.

The attention of M. D.'s generally is invited to the advertisement of Dr. Middleton of Bishop Creek. The Doctor intends a visit to and possibly a permanent residence at the Sandwich Islands.

Sheriff's Deputy.

Sheriff Passmore has appointed James Wales as Deputy Sheriff at Darwin—a most excellent appointment. Law-breakers will have something to Wale about whem Jim gets after 'em.

Departed.

Mrs. V. A. Gregg and family started early last week for a visit to their old home in Iowa. Mr. Gregg accompanied them to the railroad, arriving home on Thursday last.

Personal.

Superintendent P. Reddy and John Wilson of the Defiance, and Deputy Sheriff Wales were here this week on a rusticating tour. They are all very enthusiastic over the good prospects of Darwin.

Change of Office.

V. A. Gregg, has removed his law office to his residence, directly opposite Bennett's office, where he has hitherto held forth. He is very neatly fitted up for business.

Will Meet.

The Board of Supervisors meet in adjourned session on Monday next, for the transaction of general business.

The Initial Point.

Council Bluffs has been made happy. The Supreme Court has decided that the initial point of the Union Pacific Railroad is at that point, instead of Omaha, just across the river. This decision makes the great bridge a part of the Union Pacific Railroad, and leaves Omaha a way station on the road from Council Bluffs to San Francisco. The litigation on this subject has lasted for years. When it began Omaha was a far larger town than Council Bluffs, with metropolitan airs, big hotels, great expectations, and George Francis Train to advertise it. Now its glory has departed, and the decision will do little except administer a coup de grace to a moribund city.

The Banditti Concentrating.

A dispatch from Campo, San Diego county, of the 15th says: Numbers of Sonorans are again collecting along the border. Several have been hanging around this station of late, their suspicious actions causing some alarm. It is the general belief that only a favorable opportunity is awaited for the banditti below the line to resume operations. Some of these Mexicans recently from Sonora report that Cruz Lopez has joined Serna's revolutionary forces in Sonora; also that Chavez was not killed but is now alive in this State. Over one hundred strange Mexicans have passed here within the three past days, going to Lower California.

Ready for Business.

A Washington dispatch of March 19 says the Congressional Democratic Committee have announced that they are now fully organized for the Presidential campaign, and request Democratic organizations in all the States and Territories to send in the names of the regular committees immediately. Applications for documents, speeches and other political matter, and all communications relating to the business of the committee, should be addressed to the Secretary, at 1324 F street, Washington city.

Rainfall.

Up to the 8th of March the total fall of rain in California for the season is given at 23 and 74 100 of an inch, against 16 and 71-100 of an inch for the same time in 1875.

As Specimens.

The Belmont [Nev.] Courier says that "Pierson of the Senate, and Wilcox of the Assembly, are to be sent to the Centennial exhibition as specimen copies of California Democracy."

Benton Correspondence.

BENTON, Cal., March 22.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Still it snows, and a full grown hurricane has been blowing for the past few days.

AN ITEM SPOILED.

Day before yesterday morning Mr. Creaser's blacksmith shop was discovered to be on fire, but water was so handy and men so plenty that they soon extinguished the flames—thereby spoiling an item, as well as saving the shop and a hotel and dwelling house, which would evidently have been burned had not the fire been so promptly subdued.

MILLS AND MINES.

Mrs. Rumor says that A. Mack has sold his mill and entire mining interest at this place to the Northern Belle Mill and Mining Company, but the consideration is not reported. Mr. Mack's property is well worthy the attention of capitalists, and is receiving its complement thereof, for lately there have been several parties examining it with a view of purchasing.

The Diana mill and mine are doing very well, considering the disadvantages under which they labor. The assessment which was levied is causing considerable many transfers of stock. The mill, under the superintendency of Mr Ball, is doing very well; last week they shipped two bars of bullion valued at $2 000, from a run of twelve days. A B. Williams, the former proprietor of the Diana, has bid Benton adieu and located in Reno, Nev. Mr. Williams' business transactions were not very pleasant, and 'tis generally believed that he has considerable money on deposit some place. However, he had a pleasant family, and their loss to our society is felt.

THE NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

Is about completed. It was dedicated the evening of the 17th of Ireland by a ball, which assayed $147 50, and the net coin proceeds was $112 50. This goes towards fitting the house for occupation. The affair was attended by nearly every one, especially the Dutch and Yankees, who conducted themselves pretty well considering. There are several

DELINQUENT

On the subscription list, which was so liberally signed for the purpose of building the house, and one lengthy gentleman refuses to pay the amount for which he signed because they have not obtained a title to the land where the building is erected, and I guess he can get out of paying it, for he is an eminent lawyer of this place. Another gent refuses to pay his subscription because the school house was not built in Partzwick, instead of a locality convenient to both places—so either of these excuses might be considered better than none.

NEW ENTERPRISE.

Mr. McFadden of this place talks of starting a country newspaper at Benton, but whether this county can support a paper or not I am not prepared to say. Mr McFadden is a practical printer, and without doubt has the ability, but it takes money to go to Philadelphia.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Crittenden, Superintendent of the Northern Belle, was in town this week. Also, Mr J. Miller, of the General Thomas. Mr Howell, Superintendent of the Indian Queen, has returned from San Jose, where he has been visiting his family. Mr Yaney, of Bishop, is going into the lumber business here.

XXX.

New Patents.

Cox & Cox, solicitors of patents, Washington, furnish us the following list of Pacific Coast patents for the week ending March 4: H Adams, overall; C. Ladd, fire arms; F. Langmack, zithims; A Paul, amalgamating pans and settlers; J. Unna feather duster; W Dietrich, curing meat, and A Loryea, bath, all to San Francisco inventors. A. Davis, windmill, Brighton; L. Legouge, propeller, Wheatland; F. Babbe, propeller, Antioch.

The New Secretary.

Judge Alfonzo Taft, of Cincinnati, is the new Secretary of War, vice Belknap, retired. Taft is said to be a man of wealth, so it is hoped he won't begin stealing for some little time, unless it would be to please his wife, should he happen to have one. He was sworn in on the 11th, and at once proceeded to business.

"When Thieves Fall Out," Etc.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company has lately entered suit to recover $100,000 or more from A. A. Cohen, their late attorney, which amount they say he stole from them. And now comes Cohen and says they lie, and 'twas they who did the stealing. This is the same Cohen who figured in the Adams' Express swindle in 1854.

Marriage and Divorce.

The Law Journal suggests that there ought to be a uniform law of marriage and divorce throughout the United States. The Courts, it says, are powerless to remedy the discrepancy and diversion of decisions in the various States, and it is indeed becoming more and more an important question, "Who is married and who is not?"

Thinks He Can.

Colonel Crawford of the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad, has telegraphed to Senator Laine that he can operate his road under the Archer bill and make money for the owners.

—The six principal Western cities slaughtered 3,200,000 hogs this season, against 3,500,000 last year.

The Amended School Law.

The following Act has passed both houses of the Legislature and been signed by the Governor:

Section 1. Section 1768 of the Political Code is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 1768. Each County Board of Examination is composed of the County School Superintendent of such county, except as provided in Section 1769, and not less than three teachers who follow the profession of teaching at the time they are chosen, and holding a certificate of fitness for teaching, not less than a first grade county certificate, appointed by the County School Superintendent.

Sec. 2. Section 1769, is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 1769 When the County School Superintendent is the holder of a certificate equal to a first grade county certificate in full force and effect, he shall be the Chairman of the County Board of Examination, and in case the County Superintendent is not the holder of a certificate in full force and effect, the County Superintendent of the county shall designate and appoint the Principal of the school having the greatest number of pupils therein, as the Chairman of said Board of Examination, to serve as such Chairman not more than one year and not less than one term of said Board, in the discretion of such Superintendent.

Sec. 3. Section 1772 is hereby amended so as to read as follows: Section 1772 Certificates must be granted only to those who have passed a satisfactory examination in all the studies required for a State certificate of corresponding grade, and upon the questions prepared by the State Board of Examination, and reached the percentage prescribed by the State Board of Education; provided, that applicants for second grade county certificates shall be required to pass an examination only in arithmetic, grammar, geography, composition history of the United States, orthography, defining, penmanship, reading and method of teaching, and providing further, that applicants for third grade county certificates shall be required to pass an examination only in arithmetic, grammar, geography, orthography, defining, reading and method of teaching.

Sec. 4. Section 1775 is amended so as to read as follows: Section 1775. The Board may without examination, renew second grade county certificates upon the application of the persons who have held them for two years, and also third grade county certificates upon the application of the person who have held them for one year, to remain in full force and effect so long as such persons follow the occupation of teaching; provided that the Board may revoke any county certificate for immoral or unprofessional conduct, profanity, intemperance, or evident unfitness for teaching.

Sec. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Exempt.

A Virginia paper contains the following statement of a very interesting decision: An interesting point of law, which has never before been brought up on this coast, was decided yesterday in the District Court by Judge Rising. The suit was by Weinrich against Porteus. Before the October fire Porteus owned a homestead house, furniture, etc., which was of course exempt from execution. The fire destroyed it, but the property was insured and the companies paid the amounts called for by the policies. Parteus was indebted to Weinrich, who attached the insurance money, which was paid into Court. Yesterday J. A. Stephens, for Porteus, argued that as the insurance companies had in their policies reserved the right either to rebuild the house, etc., or to pay in cash the amount for which it was insured, the money in dispute could not be considered other than an equivalent for the homestead itself, since the insurance companies could, if they choose, devote it all to replacing the homestead. Judge Rising took Mr. Stephens' view of the case and ordered the money to be paid to Porteus.

Look Out for Your Horses.

Eugene Smith, a noted horse thief, is reported on his way here from Pioche. Some months since he stole five horses in Lincoln county, for which he was arrested and lodged in jail, but owing to the financial condition of that county he was turned loose—the Sheriff being unable to procure sustenance for prisoners on the credit of the county. Smith is said to have a great weakness for other men's horses, so it may be well to keep an eye on him when he turns up in this neighborhood.—[Eureka Sentinel.

Passed the Senate.

The Act reducing the salary of the President to the old standard of $25,000 per annum passed the Senate, March 14, by a vote of 26 to 20. Both of Nevada's Senators voted against the reduction. The bill will doubtless pass the House by a large majority, but should it be vetoed by the President it will not be apt to receive in the Senate the majority requisite to make it a law.

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday, March 25..... 1876.

Tough.

There is a man living in Tauton, Massachusetts, who has had rather a checkered career. He has been twice shipwrecked; was nearly baked in a railroad accident; has been run away with times without number; was shot in the neck at Gettysburg; was a prisoner in Libby prison; fell overboard from a whaler and had two fingers bitten off by a shark; was drafted twice; had his right arm broken in two places in the first New York riot; stood on a barrel with a rope around his neck from sunrise to sunset in an Alabama town at the outbreak of the rebellion; was crushed by a falling building during an earthquake in California, and was without food or drink nearly fifty hours; and when going home from the White Pine mines narrowly escaped lynching. Still he doesn't complain.

Pets.

A family named Pero, living in Green Bay, Wisconsin, have two tame crows which are a novelty in their way. They accompany the children on their way to school every day, flying ahead of them a little way, taking post on the fences or trees until the children come up, when they will start on again. They see the children safely to the school house, and then they return home. These crows are the last of five young ones found by some of the men employed at Mr. Pero's yard two years ago. One of them is quite talkative; calls nearly all the family by name and repeats several words. They spend their nights in the dove house with the doves, making themselves quite at home with all the members of the family. One child, a deaf mute, is the particular pet of the birds; they will sit on her head or shoulder by the hour.

Legalizing It.

A dejected man, with a very red face, walked into a Notary's office the other day, and asked if he administered oaths. The Notary said he did, and the dejected man taking out a stove lid trade dollar, said: "I want to swear that," handing the Notary a legal document of about sixty sheets. "What is it all about?" asked the Notary. "A feller stole my dog," replied he, "and I have just cussed him up hill and down dale, in and out and over, double and twist through fifty-seven pages of foolscap, and as I don't wan't to be hauled up for libel, I thought I'd get you to swear me and make the oaths legal and hunkidori." The oath was not administered.

Soft Breakfast Waffles.

One quart of milk, one pound of flour, half pound of butter, five eggs, two tablespoons of yeast. Mix them over night and bake in the morning.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. C. P. Laird, Plaintiff, vs. Peter Laird, Defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send Greeting to Peter Laird, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between said Plaintiff and Defendant, and further that said Defendant be required to pay into Court a reasonable sum for counsel fee and costs of this suit, as does more fully appear from Plaintiff's complaint, to which reference is hereby made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required the said Plaintiff will apply to this Hon. Court for the relief prayed for in said Plaintiff's complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy six.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Duncan Campbell, Sr., plaintiff, vs. S. C. Halsey, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court. The People of the State of California send greeting to S. C. Halsey, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against said defendant, and in favor of said plaintiff, for the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and sixty-eight cents ($419 68), principal, and Thirty dollars and forty-six cents ($30 46), interest, alleged by said plaintiff to be due him from said defendant on a certain promissory note made by said defendant to said plaintiff, together with interest on said sum of $419 68 at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of commencement of this suit, and for costs of suit, and that the whole judgment be made payable in U. S. gold coin, as does more fully appear from plaintiff's complaint to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiff's complaint, filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

LITERARY

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Numberf, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

How to be Cheery.

[From The St. Nicholas for April.]

I said if there were only a recipe—a sure and certain recipe—for making a cheery person, we would all be glad to try it. There is no such recipe, and perhaps if there were, it is not quite certain that we would all try it. It would take time and trouble. Cheeriness cannot be taught like writing "in twenty lessons;" nor analyzed and classified and set forth in a manual, such as "The Art of Polite Conversation," or "Etiquette Made Easy for Ladies and Gentlemen." It lies so deep that no surface rules of behavior, no description ever so minute of what it is or is not, does or does not do, can ever enable a person to "take it up" and "master" it, like a trade or a study. I believe that it is, in the outset, a good gift from God at one's birth, very much dependent on one's body, and a thing to be more profoundly grateful for than all that genius ever inspired, or talent ever accomplished. This is natural, spontaneous, inevitable cheeriness. This, if we were not born with it, we cannot have. But next best to this is deliberate, intended, and persistent cheeriness, which we can create, can cultivate, and can so foster and cherish, that after a few years the world will never suspect that it was not a hereditary gift handed down to us from generations. To do this we have only to watch the cheeriest people we know, and follow their example. We shall see, first, that the cheery person never minds—or if he minds, never says a word about—small worries, vexations, perplexities. Second, that he is brimful of sympathy in other people's gladness; he is heartily, genuinely glad of every bit of good luck or joy which comes to other people. Thirdly, he has a keen sense of humor, and never lets any droll thing escape him; he thinks it worth while to laugh, and to make everybody about him laugh; at every amusing thing, no matter how small, he has his laugh, and a good hearty laugh too, and tries to make everybody share it. Patience, sympathy and humor—these are the three most manifest traits in the cheery person. But there is something else, which is more an emotion than a trait, more a state of feeling than a quality of mind. This is lovingness. This is the secret, so far as there is a secret; this is the real point of difference between the mirth of the witty and sarcastic person, which does us no good, and the mirth of the cheery person, which 'doeth good like a medicine."

Somebody once asked a great painter, whose pictures were remarkable for their exquisite and beautiful coloring: "Pray, Mr. ——, how do you mix your colors?"

"With brains, madam—with brains," growled the painter. His ill-nature spoke a truth. All men had or might have the colors he used; but no man produced the colors he produced.

So I would say of cheeriness, patience, sympathy and humor are the colors; but patience may be doggedness and reticence, sympathy may be wordy and shallow and selfish, and humor may be only a sharp perception of the ridiculous. Only when they are mixed with love—love, three times love—do we have the true good cheer of genuine cheery people.

A Beautiful Allegory.

Mr. Crittenden, of Kentucky, was once engaged in defending a man who had been indicted for a capital offense. After an elaborate and powerful argument, he closed his effort with the following beautiful and striking allegory:

When God in his eternal council conceived the thought of man's creation, he called to him the three ministers who wait constantly upon the throne—Justice, Truth and Mercy—and addressed them: "Shall we make man?" Then said Justice, "O, God, make him not, for he will trample upon thy laws." Truth answered also, "O, God, make him not, for he will pollute thy sanctuaries." But Mercy dropped upon her knees, looking up through her tears, and exclaimed, "O, God, make him—I will watch over him through all the dark paths which he may have to tread." Then God made man and said to him, "O, man, thou art the child of mercy; go and deal with thy brother."

Drunkenness in the United States—Startling Statistics.

A pamphlet by Dr. McKingley of Chicago gives some interesting statistics in reference to intoxication in the United States. The author claims to have used extraordinary exertions to obtain accuracy, having visited nearly all the States in the Union, 26 penitentiaries, 300 jails, 40 almshouses and hospitals, the haunts of the vicious and the palaces of the refined to obtain data. Out of every 300 men, we are told that 122 never drink ardent spirits at all; and of 700 women 600 never taste alcoholics of any kind. Of the 178 men who drink, 78 do so to intoxication. Of these 78, we are told that 3 are confirmed inebriates, 25 are periodical drinkers, 50 are ephemeral drinkers. In other words, one out of every four men in the country drinks to intoxication. As would be naturally expected, the effect upon women is more deleterious than upon men; fewer women drink, but those who do, go on the downward path far more swiftly than men. The statistics for the whole population of the country show that out of 5,000,000 there are 50,000 habitual drunkards; in a nation of 40,000,000 there are 400,000 habitual drunkards.

This evil becomes more appalling when we are told that a large proportion of excessive drinkers are men of culture and refinement—lawyers, physicians, legislators and ministers of the Gospel. Out of 11 Congressmen, 1 is a perpetual drinker, 1 an occasional drinker, 5 drink periodically, and 4 only are sober at all times. We are told that "a period of eight years' inquiry has developed the statistical fact that 75 per cent. of the crimes committed in this country were caused by drunkenness or vices which liquor drinking engendered."

The Tragical Leap Year.

They stood together in the entry beneath the hall lamp. "Then, Henry," she said, in a low voice, wherein were blended determination, melancholy and love, "you refuse my suit?" "Yes, Ella," he replied, in accents that were firm, though the speaker's voice trembled, "I admire you; I will be a brother to you, and watch with pride your course through life, and if ever trouble should befall you, there will at least be one friend to whom you may come for succor; but I can never, never be your husband." "It is not because I am poor, Henry? For oh, if that were all, I could toil gladly from morn till night for you, and strive to win a home for you, humble it might be, but our own." "It is useless to attempt to induce me to change my determination. Though I am but a poor, weak man, I can never, never change my mind." "Then, cruel young man, so fair and yet so false, farewell. To-morrow you will see my mangled remains on the lecture platform, and know that it has been your work. But it will be too late," and clasping him to her bosom in a wild embrace, she fled into the outer darkness.

Something Very Grand.

The pyrotechnic display at the Centennial promises to be grander than has ever been witnessed in this country. It is asserted by The Philadelphia Record that the Mayor of that city has received a letter from an English manufacturing house, noted for the superiority of its fire-works, soliciting a contract for an exhibition of their skill at the Centennial in this department. The programme suggested is, an illumination extending over an area of two square miles, a series of very loud reports high in the air, the ascension of a fleet of magnesium balloons, the scattering of myriads of stars, grand special designs, eagles flying to and fro, cascades of fire, and a bouquet of 20,000 large colored rockets, form part of the proposed display. The proposition is being favorably considered, and if the terms are satisfactory, will be accepted.

Third Parties

There is some twaddle about starting a third party for the Presidential election. It can't be done, and won't be tried. In a short time the main issue will be joined between the two existing parties, and into them will be whirled all the political forces of the country. In the campaign of this year, no third party could do anything but guerilla skirmishing and blackmailing, and no such business can be tolerated under any present circumstances. One of the twaddlers about a third party says "the people are mad enough" just now to rush into it. There are some people often mad enough and silly enough to make fools of themselves; but even these will keep clear of the folly of a third party this year. Two parties are sufficient for the present.—[N. Y. Sun.

—Hartford has a city coat of arms. Why can't we have one, too? A design representing a citizen mortgaging his house to pay a gas bill would please the people.—Norwich Bulletin.

—"You're a brilliant and versatile bouquet of lovliness," he said, with a voice that was low and soft, and in return she warbled, "Dry up, George; you've said enough."

—You can't expect a man to stand corrected when he has been knocked down for making an erroneous statement.

—Senator Matt. Carpenter says that this government must be run more economically, and so has given up wearing suspenders.

Insisted on an Order.

A traveling agent for a San Francisco liquor house entered a mercantile establishment on Main street in this city, this forenoon, and approaching one of the proprietors, who was busily engaged in writing a letter, tapped him on the shoulder and said:

"Say, I'm agent for the San Francisco house of Blank, Blank & Co., and I want an order for a few barrels of our celebrated Sunflower, hand-made, back-action, copper-toed whisky."

"Oh, go to blazes, you and your whisky; I am just tired to death of drummers," remarked the merchant.

"How many barrels shall it be?"

"Nary dog goned barrel."

"But I insist."

Struck into a heap by the agent's persistency, the merchant now, for the first time during the conversation, looked up from his writing, when he saw that the agent had him covered with a cocked six shooter. Quick as thought he dodged under the desk and seeking shelter behind the waste basket, screamed out: "Send me four hundred barrels of your rot-gut, if you like, but point that thing the other way."

"You're the kind of a man I like to do business with," said the agent, as he noted down the order.—[Austin Reveille.

The Diamond Saw.

Diamonds are likely to become as useful as they are ornamental. The Diamond drill is the only drill that can bore its way through certain rocks whose hardness soon dulls the best steel drills. And now a diamond saw has been invented which promises to do with stone what the finest steel saw does with wood. It consists of a thin metal disk, the teeth of which are nothing more than minute black diamonds embedded in the metalic edge of the sheet. When revolving at a high speed, this disk cuts into the sides of a stone slab as though it was a piece of timber, and not only can straight cuttings be made, but by an ingenious mechanical device, bevels and rounded edges are cut. As a labor-saving machine the inventor judges that one of them can do the work of fourteen stone cutters.

AS USUAL.

All the grand and seductive promises made by aspiring parties and wheedling candidates to fetch the great anaconda, the Central Pacific gouge, to time this Legislature, have ended as usual in smoke or its equivalent, the O'Connor Railroad Commission bill. These Commissioners are duly authorized by the Senate and House of Representatives, and the signature of the Governor of the State of California to do what? Why, to suggest to the anaconda that it really ought not to hog things; that it it does keep on doing so, they will be bound to report the matter to the next Legislature! That's about what it amounts to, all that freight and fare legislation our Legislators so lavishly promised the people. The Assembly did take the risk of passing the Archer bill, and that premature action astonished the anaconda very much, so much so indeed, he resolved to swallow something right away—and it wasn't long till he had the whole California Senate stowed away, helpless as a little nigger in the maw of an alligator. People console themselves for the loss by saying it (the huge railroad fight) turned out just as they said it would True. they had made a pretense of believing that the State was superior in rights of legislation than was Stanford, but they only pretended to believe it, and to vote for candidates on that basis as a mere matter of policy and politeness and a desire to please the children. They knew all the time, and do not in the least hesitate to concede, that Stanford and his anaconda are a law unto themselves, always have been and always will be—while their money holds out; and that will be just so long as the people have any for them to extort.

It is perhaps not a matter of regret that the Archer bill did not become a law itself so much as its defeat is another discouraging acknowledgement that the great corporation is wholly beyond the reach of existing laws or any law, National or State, that can be made. If it wasn't for that manifest fact, it would only be amusing to people to watch Stanford play "Simon" with a Legislature now and then. But when it is a universal rule for them to "thumbs up or thumbs down," when he says thumbs up or thumbs down, things begin to have a hopeless aspect to everybody but the merchants who like an excuse to double prices and profits, all on account of the high freights, you know.

Marsh on the Stand.

Marsh has returned from Montreal and appeared on the witness stand, and his testimony thus far implicates Belknap more directly than anything that has been made public. The witness is evidently desirous of screening the Secretary at the expense of Mrs. Belknap, his endeavor being to show that she received the money, and not the General. But the fact was elicited that on one occasion Belknap had personally receipted to the Express Company for a remittance, and though Marsh pretended to be very much surprised at this, it is probable that he is not altogether ignorant of the facts. The attempt to make Mrs. Belknap the scapegoat to carry the sins of her husband into the wilderness may already be said to have broken down. Evidently each will have to bear his or her share of the responsibility, and though the lady cannot be impeached, her punishment will probably not be the least heavy.

Not Surprised.

The developments connected with the Belknap scandal seem to create no surprise at Fort Sill. They have been expecting this for some time, as it was well known at the Post that traders had been required to send heavy monthly contributions East, and they urged, in order to enforce the monthly collections from their patrons, the necessity of making these remittances, explaining that they were required to pay for the privileges that they enjoyed. Lee & Reynolds, post-traders at Camp Supply, make no secret of the fact that they hold their franchise as a thing purchased and at large figures.

Won't Do.

Luttrell has introduced a bill to prevent coolie labor in the United States by making it a felony to make or enforce contracts for servile labor, and prescribing a penalty of forfeiture for all vessels engaged in the transportation of coolies without consular certificates showing that their emigration is voluntary. This will be very easy to get over, as the coolies can be made to say that they are emigrating voluntarily.

HOSPITAL MATTERS.

We infer that the Supervisors decided not to accept Dr. White's offer to sell to the county his hospital buildings at the Post. The matter, we suppose, is definitely settled, since bids for the care of the county sick are advertised for as heretofore. As no locality therein is specified, it will remain a matter of uncertainty as to where the County Hospital for the next year will be located, until the name and will of the successful bidder is announced, which will be during the May term. Now, it strikes us that, no matter how many branch hospitals may be allowed, the County Hospital proper ought to have a permanent location, just as much so as the County Jail, or seat of Justice. This thing of a possible move and expense of refitting a new hospital every twelve months is the poorest kind of economy, and is bound to work hardships in various other ways. These things considered, together with the excellent location in a sanitary point of view, and the especial fitness and low price of the buildings offered by Dr. White, constrain us to still believe that it would have been far better and cheaper in the end had this purchase been made. We know that there are and were many to object to the purchase and consequent method of conducting hospital matters, but we do not know of a single good, substantial reason for this opposition, unless we except the necessity for so much outlay all at once, and the additional claim that the hospital ought to be located as near as possible to the principal mining camps, whence comes the greater demands for its benefits. And yet, in regard to the first we think it extremely probable bids by very suitable contractors would have been submitted, if the county was to furnish buildings and all necessary appliances, at rates so much lower than bidders can otherwise afford, as to go a long way towards paying back the outlay this first and every succeeding year. In regard to the second, if our mining camps expand according to reasonable anticipations, it will be but a short time until there will come imperative demands for branch establishments, which, when allowed, will leave the cost of conducting the main one just the same as before.

The Silver Contract.

The following is announced as the basis of the contract between the Government and Flood & O'Brien: The Consolidated Virginia and California Mining Companies propose to sell $20,000,000 worth of Dore bars, to be supplied at the Carson mint, and to take in payment the amount of gold contained therein, and five or four and a half per cent bonds at market rates. The price of the silver is to be governed by the London rate, less transportation from New York, plus the premium on exchange; deliveries to be completed by the Fourth of July.

Fined.

The publisher of The Silver State has been fined $100 for violating the United States laws against the publication of obscene articles. The fine was only nominal, and the prosecution seems to have been a malicious one, as with but few exceptions all the newspapers on the coast have been equally guilty in running the same class of abominable stuff—the advertisements of San Francisco quack doctors. When THE INDEPENDENT inserts one of them our readers may calculate that its course has been run.

More of It.

It has been discovered that the Carson mint has been coining trade dollars worth from one to two cents less of silver than the law requires.—[Exchange.

Whenever it shall appear that any one branch of Government service is conducted honestly now-days we shall be happy to mention it, as a sort of relief, you know. Anyhow, let Centennial orators spout.

Dead.

The Senate bill to establish a State Detective Force has been killed in the Assembly.

The Chinese Question in San Francisco.

[From The Record Union, March 25.]

Upon the suggestion of Mayor Bryant, the citizens of San Francisco are about to take such steps as are in their power to procure Congressional action regarding the Chinese nuisance, which, as the Mayor rightly observes, is becoming intolerable A committee has been appointed, a mass meeting is to be held, and the Legislature is to be asked to defray the expenses of a deputation to Washington. There is unquestionably abundant cause for complaint on this score. The Chinese in San Francisco already form a separate and powerful colony, governed by their own laws, defying the police, practicing and abetting crime and profligacy, and at the same time cutting down white labor in every direction below living rates. A faithful and graphic narrative of the effects of Chinese labor upon trade and industry on this coast would, perhaps, go far to convince even the average Congressman, that the evils the new competition is establishing never can be compensated by the benefits of trade with China, and that it would be better for the Pacific coast, and ultimately for the whole Union, if every treaty arrangement between the two countries should be abrogated, than that the present condition should be allowed to exist and to expand. For it is here that the great question of the future labor of the United States will have to be determined, and it is here that an issue to the full as important and far reaching as that of slavery will have to be settled. It is necessary to face the situation as it is. If the importation of Chinese proceeds steadily, there must come a time when they will have monopolized manufacturing industry on this coast; when no white man, or white woman, or white boy, can procure employment at any trade; when the sewing girl will be driven from her machine, the mechanic from his lathe, the carpenter from his tools, the cobbler from his last, the weaver from his loom, the mason from his trowel, the laborer from his work; when Chinese cheap labor, pursuing the invariable rule which governs all labor throughout the world, shall have acquired the entire field of California industry.

Constitutional Amendment.

Senator Edmunds has introduced a resolution to amend the Constitution in a substitute for Article XII, as follows:

Electors are to ballot in their respective States for President and Vice-President, as at present, but the list of votes must be sent to the presiding Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and at a time and place to be fixed by law, he is to publicly open all the certificates and count the votes, and the person having the greatest number of votes for President, considered by the Court to have been lawfully given and certified, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole electors lawfully appointed. If no person has such a majority, the state of the votes shall be at once certified to the House of Representatives, which, from the person having the largest number, not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, shall choose a President at once by a viva voce vote; the representation from each State to have one vote, if a majority of the delegates agree on one candidate; but otherwise if such State shall not be contented. A quorum is to consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the States, and a majority of the States shall be necessary to a choice. The voting must continue until the President is elected. In case the House fails to elect before the 4th of March following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or constitutional disability of the President The person having the greatest number of electoral votes for Vice-President, to be counted and determined as above provided, shall be Vice President, if such number be a majority of the whole whole number of electors; if no person is thus elected, the Senate is to choose a Vice-President by a majority of the whole membership. Finally it is provided that no Justice of the Supreme Court shall be eligible for election as President or Vice-President until the expiration of two years after he shall cease to hold office.

A Good Bill.

A measure of importance to preemptors has just passed the House of Representatives, as follows:

That proof of residence, occupation, or cultivation, the affidavit of non-alienation, and the oath of allegiance required, may be made before the Judge of any Court of record of the county and State in which the lands are situated, or, in his absence, before the Clerk, and the said proof, affidavit, and oath, when so made and duly subscribed, shall have the same force and effect as if made at the proper land district; and the same shall be transmitted by such Judge or Clerk of his Court to the Register and Receiver, with the fee and charges allowed by law to him That said proof, affidavits, and oaths shall be properly filed in the land office by the Register, and copies thereof certified to by the Register with his official seal attached shall be evidence of their contents in the Courts of any State or of the United States. That if any witness making such proof or the said applicant making such affidavit or oath swears falsely as to any material matter contained in said proof, affidavits or oaths, the said false swearing being willful and corrupt, shall be deemed guilty of perjury and shall be liable to the same pains and penalties as if he had sworn falsely before the Register.

Should the foregoing become a law it will inure to the benefit and convenience of those in this district residing near Bridgeport, in Mono, and portions of the adjoining southern counties.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, March 15.

MESSRS. EDITORS: "Conservative" is a word you hear often used now-a-days. Most men who use it know nothing of its meaning. Saxon has his own views on that word and they do not coincide with those of "the generality of mankind in general." Men talk about being "Conservative" and think they have arrogated to themselves something grand when they do this. When in fact they mean to say that "they have no decided opinion" on any subject they may be discussing. Conservative, according to Webster, means "one who wishes to maintain an institution or form of government in its present state." According to this it is fair to suppose that all the citizens of the United States are "conservative" in regard to our form of government and wish to retain it in its present form But in politics as in medicine and everything else these quacks who seize upon a particular word or idea and endeavor to make capital out of it—use it for clap trap. Now I assert that the Radical (I do not use the word in its restricted sense as commonly applied to extreme Republicans, but in its broadest sense as the opposite of Conservative), is your only true man and true reformer. There was not a single Conservative in the Continental Congress which on the Fourth of July, 1776, declared that the people of these American colonies, "are and of right ought to be free," and that all men are born free and equal. If there had been a Conservative in that body he would have moved to strike out the words "ought to be," and would have made the declaration of independence a batch of unmeaning platitudes. But they were all Radicals of the deepest die in that body and pledged "their lives, fortunes and sacred honors" to sustain their radical ideas. All reforms of every kind come from just such Radicals, men who are willing to risk their all to carry out their opinions. Nothing disgusts me quicker than to hear a man prate of his Conservatism Such a man is wrong about ninety-nine times out of every hundred One, or the other, of the men who are Radical and differ, are always right. I will illustrate: Two men are disputing, one says "two and two make four," the other says "two and two make six;" the Conservative steps between these parties of the juste milieu, the golden mean says he is a Conservative, declares that both are wrong and with the wise look of an owl, declares that "two and two make five." Such is your Conservative. Out upon them, they disgust every man that has ideas or principles. Yet just now the word is a most popular catch word. A bait to catch fools, and it catches a great many, because there are more of that class than there are of sensible men.

There, I have moralized enough over the word conservative. That and Belknap are all the talk now. If all the lies that have been telegraphed from here about the Belknap matter could be collected and written on gossamer paper, the weight of the paper would sink the Great Eastern, and the ink needed to write them out would make a pond large and deep enough to float her. How the scandal mongers have gloated over the fall of the Secretary and his fashionable wife. Everything about her and him that a prurient imagination could conceive has been said. The size of her foot and hand and the fineness of the lace on her chemisette have been made the subject of dispatches to "the great dailies" and yet the scandal mongers "are not happy." It is said that other men will be dragged down in the fall of the Secretary, and that a prominent Democratic candidate for president will be scorched, and that Mrs. Belknap will have to testify before the committee to the facts that will implicate him. Robbins, of North Carolina, one of the committee, has obtained a prominent and unpleasant notoriety from his connection with the matter. His acknowledgement to having received a twenty dollar bribe, while a State Senator, has been published, and Blackburn, another member of the committee has had to hear himself denounced as a Confederate guerrilla and his brother as worse than Wilkes Booth All of which proves, if true, that the committee are like some preachers are said to be, "finger boards to point the way they do not travel," and does not relieve Belknap from the odium he has so justly merited.

The New Hampshire election has astonished every one Since the returns came in I have had my lightning calculator at work on a problem He reports that there are 27 investigations now going on and that one Cabinet officer has been cornered and confessed, and that the Republicans have gained 2,500 votes in New Hampshire on this. He has arrived at the conclusion, after using up all the logarithm's in Bowditch's Navigator, that if there was as many more committees at work, and they could prove, of which there is no doubt, that Grant eats a broiled Democratic baby every morning for breakfast and washes it down with a gallon of crooked whisky, and that Secretary Fish dances the bolero to the music of dulcimers, every day at precisely high noon, then the Republicans would carry the Connecticut election. Gambetta in his Lyons speech is beginning to shed the Conservative skin and a red Republican of the "bonnet rouge" order of sans culottes. SAXON.

Can't Bar Them.

The United States Supreme Court has decided that California has no right to legislate against the importation of Chinese, not even that of women for purposes of prostitution. The Chinese are now swarming into California like the locusts came down on Egypt or the grasshoppers on Missouri, and San Francisco is mad and proposes to mass meet about it.

Removal of the State Capital.

Mr. Griswold, March 22d, introduced a resolution "to regulate proposals for the removal of the seat of government of this State, and moved to refer it to San Francisco, Sacramento, Santa Clara and Alameda counties." It was finally, after some discussion, referred to the Committee on Internal Improvements. The bill provides that San Francisco, Oakland and San Jose may, within one year, submit proposals to the State Board of Examiners, of the terms on which they will consent to be made the seat of government of the State, to be reported with their conclusions thereon to the next Legislature.

The Franchise in Utah.

The Committee on Territories, March 23, heard Mr. Baskin, of Salt Lake City, contestant for Delegate Cannon's seat in the House, in advocacy of Senator Christiancy's bill to regulate the elective franchise in Utah. He quoted from the sermon of Brigham Young to show that the latter authorized and apologized for murder, in the interest of the Church of Latter Day Saints This brought Cannon to his feet, and a lively colloquy ensued between them, which was checked by order of the Chairman. Cannon subsequently made a closing argument against the bill, and the committee will consider and report upon it at an early day.

Nevada Democratic Convention.

The Democratic State Central Committee met in Virginia, March 25, for the purpose of calling a State Convention to nominate delegates to the National Convention, to be held at St. Louis next June. The Convention will be held in Carson, May 15. It was also decided to hold a State Convention at Virginia, August 28, for the purpose of nominating Presidential Electors, members of Congress and a Supreme Judge.

In his testimony before the Investigating Committee, Marsh said that he had called Gen. Belknap's attention, in 1872, to the article in The New York Tribune, to the effect that Evens paid him (Marsh) 12,000 a year for the post tradership, and asked who could have written or inspired the article. Gen. Belknap said he supposed it was the work of Gen. Hazen.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday, April 1.....1876.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Our Centennial Fourth.

We have the assurance of a large number of the leading spirits, both of Lone Pine, George's Creek and this place and vicinity, that they are decidedly in favor of getting up a grand Inyo county "international" centennial Fourth of July celebration. It is generally considered that a very suitable locality for the gathering would be at George's Creek. While nothing is further from the design to make it in any sense a specially local affair, yet in the nature of the case this selection of locality will throw the larger share of the responsibilities of the management upon the citizens of George's Creek and the two nearest towns, Lone Pine and Independence. Such being the case it becomes the first duty of each place to name one or more public spirited and energetic persons to meet and arrange a general programme, select the various officials of the day—President, Orator, Reader and Poet—appoint committees for special and ground work, agree on a place, etc., after which it will be easy sailing. This preliminary work should be attended to immediately, and that it may be done we would suggest that the citizens of each locality select one or two representatives, empowered to do all necessary preliminary and general work—they to notify say Mr. Rhine, of this place, of their readiness to proceed. Then it will be an easy matter to arrange a conference of the representatives at whatever point may be deemed most advisable. This meeting ought to take place certainly not later than the 12th of this month. As for the matter of accommodations at George's Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Keppler of the Half-Way House will undertake the responsibility of preparing a pavilion large enough to accommodate the whole assemblage for the oration and accompanying exercises, subsequently to be used as a ball room. Also, bowers, tables, a full band of music, and last but not least an abundance of "something to eat—and drink." Several able George's Creekers have assured them of all necessary facilities in preparing these structures. Of course it will require money to do these things, and it is a matter of the first importance that this essential be seen to as soon as it can be done. It is desirable to introduce every suitable amusement that can be devised in addition to the usual stated exercises. If no agreement of plans is reached by the time above stated, it will scarcely be worth while to talk a celebration on this basis further, as other modes more local will soon after be undertaken.

Hospital Matters.

We understand that Dr. Gelcich is not getting ruinously rich on the profits of his county hospital contract, notwithstanding the talk about the big thing he has in the salary. Leastways, he has had an average of about seven chronic cases to attend to during the greater part of the Winter. On the 22d of March there were six cases on hand. Among them was Nicolas Silvas, who was dragged nearly to death by a bronco horse in Darwin last January. He will soon be discharged. Also John Mackey of Panamint, fracture of lower jaw, received from a kick of a mule. He is in a fair way of recovery. Some say the hospital is well managed; some say it is not. We know nothing about that, but nevertheless, we will say that we believe that Dr Gelcich will do all that he can for the comfort and welfare every way of the unfortunates requiring hospital accommodations. But whether such is the fact or otherwise makes no difference at this period, as regards the future of the hospital, for as will be seen, proposals for its re-letting are now advertised for, and the bid of the lowest and best bidder will be accepted. And it is the full determination of the Board of Supervisors to determine the italicised qualification as the law directs, whether it suits this one, that one, or the other.

Dismissed.

The case of the People vs. S. E. Martin, indicted by the late Grand Jury for libel, came up in the County Court on Thursday. A venire for twenty-four jurors to try the case was then returnable; twenty-two of these answered to their names, but were not empaneled for the following reasons: His Honor, Judge Hannah, was an important witness in the case, and had testified before the Grand Jury. In response to a query, District Attorney Bennett informed the Court that he had no other witness to prove the facts testified to by His Honor, and should require his testimony in the trial. As the law in such cases leaves it optional whether a Judge will testify in his own Court or not, Judge Hannah declined, furthermore as it would be incumbent to obtain another Judge to try the case, either with or without his His Honor's testimony, and as that would involve a large expense, the District Attorney decided to enter a nolle prosequi, so the case was dismissed, and if brought to an issue must be through the action of the aggrieved parties.

New Road Law.

A bill has passed both Houses of the Legislature to amend our road law to this effect: The entire county is constituted one road district, to be under the supervision of one Road Commissioner, said Commissioner to be appointed by the Board of Supervisors, and to receive $5 per diem for actual service. It is his business and right to use the road fund at whatever points or places he may deem to best subserve the general welfare. This power however, is under certain restrictions intended to insure an equitable amount of work in the several sections of the county. The road tax is reduced from $4 to $2, and is to be collected at the same time and manner as other taxes. As soon as we can obtain a copy of the bill we will publish it in full.

A Terrible Fall.

Crisanto Gamez, an old resident of Lone Pine lately removed to Cerro Gordo, fell into a disused shaft at the latter place on the night of March 22d, while helping to put out the fire imperiling property of the Union Consolidated company. He fell a distance of about sixty feet, landing upon rocks, but notwithstanding his injuries had the nerve to fasten a rope about himself, by means of which he was hoisted out. His right arm, left leg and a rib were broken besides sustaining serious internal injuries. The company, through John T. Belshaw, placed him under the care of Drs. Hehner and White, and we are informed by the latter that the injured man is likely to finally recover.

Supplies.

The Government, through the proper army officer, invites proposals for the furnishing of subsistence stores. Full instructions to bidders, with blanks, etc., can be obtained by application to the A. C. S., Camp Independence.

Internal Revenue.

Business men liable to the payment of the Government special tax will do well to consult Commissioner Pratt's official advertisement, given elsewhere.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach to-morrow at the usual time and place.

Proceedings of the Board of Supervisors.

Board met on Monday, March 27th, pursuant to adjournment at the February meeting. Present—C. Meysan, D. B. Curtis and J. L. Garrettson, President.

ON THE ROAD FUND.

G. H. Palmer, Roadmaster	128 00

Bill of R. L. Peterson, election office rent was rejected.

Petition from Waucoba Toll Road Co. asking an allowance for an increased rate of tolls, passed to May term.

Communication from Assessor Dillon asking the appointment of three Deputy Assessors, passed to May term.

Ordered that the County Clerk be authorized to negotiate the purchase of certain books, specified, needed in his office.

Tuesday, March 28.

It appearing that no bids had been received for the redemption of Inyo 1872-92 bonds, as advertised, ordered that the County Treasurer redeem same as in case of other county warrants.

Ordered, that notice for prosopals for the care of county indigent sick for the fiscal year beginning in May next, at which time the present contract expires, be duly advertised in THE INYO INDEPENDENT.

It appearing that the County Treasurer in estimating interest due on certain warrants payable, had, by misapprehension of facts, placed the interest at 10 per cent. per annum instead of 7 per cent. as allowed by law, and it clearly being an error, ordered that no action be taken to recover the said difference.

Ordered, that the Treasurer be authorized to refuse to pay all demands from Tulare county for balances of taxes on migrating stock claimed by said Tulare county.

Ordered, that the Clerk, so soon as he may be legally notified of the approval of the new Road Law for this county, be authorized to notify the Assessor and furnish him all required blanks for the assessment and collection of the new road tax.

Adjourned for the term.

That Fire Alarm.

CAMP INDEPENDENCE, March 26.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In your issue of the 25th instant it is stated that a fire broke out in the Commissary department at this Post. As the building is under my charge and the statement impugns my watchfulness, will you please make a correction.

The only foundation for the report is the fact that a joint of stove pipe opened, and there being some green wood in the stove, considerable smoke escaped into the building, and thence through holes in the roof it passed outside and was observed by the sentinel. I was unluckily absent with the key, but an entrance was effected by breaking open the door; the wood was taken from the stove and thrown outside, the pipe was connected and—that's all. A pail of water supplied by our excellent system of water works was thrown on the wood taken from the stove, but the method adopted by Gulliver at Liliputia would have been as effectual. Yours, truly,

CHAS. E. BATES,
Com'sy Sergt. U. S. A.

Discharged.

On Saturday last District Attorney Bennett, accompanied by Sheriff Passmore, attended the preliminary examination, in Justice Peterson's court, Lone Pine, of N. Felis, under arrest for the murder of Castro at Cerro Gordo. When the prosecuting witness was put on the stand he swore that he knew nothing of the murder of his own knowledge, except that he heard the shots. In swearing out the warrant of arrest this witness (whose name we do not know) then swore that he saw the entire transaction, and that Felis did kill deceased. But now he knew nothing whatever about it, further than above stated. Other witnesses were examined, but that was the sum of their knowledge also. As it was entirely insufficient to convict, there was naught to do but discharge the prisoner. Justice Peterson, however, ordered the arrest of the forgetful witness, intending to hold him for the action of a Grand Jury on a charge of perjury, and we believe Sheriff Passmore did have him in irons for a while. He was, however, turned loose for the present, no formal complaint having been then sworn out.

Eclipse.

We mean by this caption the eclipse of the sun last Saturday, not the Eclipse across the river. It was a success most every way, this effort of Luna to blacken Old Sol's face. She managed to put a good dark shade on fully one-third his visage. Chickens didn't go to roost or anything of that sort; still there was quite a perceptible toning down of the usual brightness of day. Full half the exhibition toward the latter part was lost to observation owing to clouds, nor did we see the opening, so that in regard to astronomical exactness our observations wouldn't be worth recording. But we think the show begun at very nearly 11:30 and closed shortly before 3, and that everybody was well satisfied with the manner in which it was conducted in all save the frequent interposition of the cloud curtain, and an occasional black nose (principally on small boys), occasioned by contact with the wrong side of the eclipse opera glass.

As to the Responsibilities.

Attorney-General Jo Hamiliton writes Supervisor Curtis in relation to the responsibilities of Boards of Supervisors regarding county property to this effect: "The Boards of Supervisors of the several counties have charge and control of the property and finances of the county, and it is their duty to control and protect the same. The Sheriff of the county is a ministerial officer, charged with the performance of certain duties; amongst them, it is his duty to wait upon and attend the various Courts, and to discharge the other duties required of him by law. It follows, as a matter of law, therefore, that the Board of Supervisors, and not the Sheriff, has charge of and control of the court house of the county.

Respectfully, JO HAMILTON,
Att'y-Gen."

The Standing Topic.

The weather of the past few days has been, according to the recollection of our oldest Piute, the severest "spell" since a year ago this time. There was war among the elements, when suddenly a compromise seems to have been effected, which resulted in a combination of Tulare rain, San Bernardino wind and the frigid breath of the Humboldt region—and as one it swooped down the mountains in its cork-screw course hard enough to utterly discourage budding fruit, early sprouting vegetables and nice young men's hats.

School Exhibition.

Mr. H. C. Rittgers, teacher of the Lone Pine school, informs us that his school is preparing for a public exhibition, to take place at the school house in Lone Pine on Friday evening, April 7. The exercises will consist of vocal and instrumental music, comic songs, jig dances, declamations, dialogues, pantommines, charades, the "Deaf and Dumb Family Through its Various Stages," the Pawn Brokers and the Ghosts—all of which shows a pretty extensive and well varied programme for a school exhibition. The entertainment is free, though an opportunity will be given at the close for all to contribute something toward defraying the necessarily rather heavy expense of such an exhibition. We are told that this effort is receiving the hearty approbation of the citizens generally, and we are satisfied Mr. Rittgers and his school will do all in their power to fulfill expectation. A general invitation is extended to all far and near to attend.

Quiet.

The fourth anniversary (Sunday last, March 26th) of the great earthquake passed off without special mention. In this connection, however, there is a fact worthy of note in this—that since that memorable time the months of February have been remarkably warm and pleasant, only to be followed by a cold snap during the closing days of March and the first quarter of April. For four years this arrangement of the weather clerk has proved disastrous to fruit trees. The lesson taught seems to be that peach and other trees should be kept back as long as possible in the early Spring, by means of abundant, cold irrigation.

Committee Meeting

A meeting of the Republican Central Committee is called for the 12th instant, for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State Convention, and for the transaction of general business. The Committee is composed as follows: N. Rhine, Chairman, and T. F. A Connelly, Secretary, Independence; W. B. Daugherty and T. F. Hanley, Panamint; A. C. Hanson, Darwin; Thomas Passmore, Olanche; R. A. Loomis, Lone Pine; W. R. Johnson, Cerro Gordo; T. J. Goodale, Big Pine and Fish Springs; James Shaw, Bishop Creek; Richard Hilton, Round Valley.

San Carlos Mill.

The engine and other machinery of the old San Carlos mill, across the river, has been hauled over and is now for sale in the store yard of Harris & Rhine. Though the San Carlos was one of the pioneer quartz mills of the country, the machinery is about as good as new, never having been used but little Changed.

As will be seen by the changed notice, the regular monthly communication of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M. will be held on the Saturday on or next preceding the full moon of each month, instead of the third Saturday as heretofore. Hence the next stated meeting will occur on Saturday next.

Hawn's Station.

In the competent hands of our old friend C. H. Hawn, late of Bishop, the Orne station, on the Lone Pine and Darwin road, will be found to be all that could be asked for in the way of a road stopping place. See his advertisement.

New.

The latest novelty at Harris & Rhine's is an invoice of paper water buckets, and a lot of "champignons," or rather hermetically sealed toad-stools—otherwise designated as mushrooms.

Property Transfer.

Louey Munzinger has sold his building in Lone Pine, formerly the Union Hotel, to C. & M. Cohn, near whose store it stands and is to be used in connection therewith.

Come to Stay Awhile.

John Heckel, carpentero, and Lafe. Gill, both residents for some time past of Darwin, have come in here with the view of staying a few months more or less.

Assessment.

The Silver Sprout mining company have levied an assessment of ten cents per share, payable immediately; delinquent May 15th.

Cautionary.

Beware of tricks that are vain on this, the 1st instant—All-Fool's Day.

Rejoicing.

Tuolumne county is excessively rejoiced just now on account of the passage of the Tuolumne railroad bill. The road will be built, and no doubt is entertained but it will work almost a revolution in the decaying fortunes of "old Tuolumne." It is a universally popular move there, for all had arrived at the conclusion it must be either a railroad or ruin; now they feel happy in the certainty of one, possibly of both.

Floral Guide.

No. 2 of Vick's Floral Guide for 1876 is at hand. Its hints and suggestions relative to planting are invaluable. Rochester, N. Y., 25c. per annum Send for it.

The Centennial Programme.

The following special events are to occur during the Exposition: Centennial ceremonial May 10th; grand ceremonies on the Fourth of July; harvesting display in Bucks county in June and July; trials of steam plows and tillage implements in the same place, in September and October; exhibition of horses, mules and asses, September 1st to the 15th; exhibition of horned cattle, September 20th to October 5th; exhibition of sheep, swine, goats and dogs, October 10th to the 25th; exhibition of poultry, October 28th to November 10th; gathering of the order of Good Templars, June 13th; international regatta in New York, June 23d; yacht regatta on the Delaware, June; special gathering of the Sons of Temperance, June; international series of cricket matches, June and September; Congress of authors in Independence Hall, July 2d; parade of Catholic societies and dedication of the T. A. B. Fountain, July 4th; parade of military organizations, July 4th; parade of the Knights of Pythias, August 22d; international rowing regatta, August 20th to September 15th; international rifle matches, September; international Medicine Congress, September 4th; and on September 20th, the parade of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows.

—That was a dreadful threat of an excited pugilist: "I'll twist you around your own throat until there's nothing left of you but the ends of your shirt collar sticking out of your eyes!"

A Prize Fight in Nevada.

The long talked of prize fight for $500 between Sullivan, champion of Australia and Trevillian of Virginia, came off March 21st on the Carson river. A special train left the depot at 8 o'clock with the combatants and about 250 of the fancy ostensibly for the Mound House, but on nearing that station it was discovered that the Sheriffs of Ormsby, Storey and Lyon counties were on hand to prevent the meeting and the engineer was instructed to run past, which he did, leaving the officers standing on the platform. They stopped a few miles beyond and pitched the ring near the county line. At half past 11 o'clock the men entered the ring, both apparently in fine condition. Trevillian was the heaviest by about twenty pounds, but Sullivan's reputation for science and staying qualities made him the favorite. Time being called both men stepped to the scratch and the fight began, both were cautious and some good sparring followed, when suddenly Trevillian got in a tremendous blow, knocking Sullivan completely off his feet. He fell flat on his back, and when his seconds reached him he was bleeding profusely from the mouth and nose. This virtually settled the fight. On time being called for the next five rounds, Sullivan staggered to the centre only to be knocked down without making any resistance. On time being called for the 7th round Trevillian came up smiling, but it was all Sullivan could do to walk to the scratch. Trevillian struck Sullivan a heavy blow on the cheek knocking him down and ending the fight.

Good Reading.

The St. Nicholas for April opens with an interesting article on Sir Joshua Reynolds' painting of the "Strawberry Girl," illustrated by an admirable reproduction of the painting itself, which forms the frontispiece of the number.

Among the other contributions, the most prominent, perhaps, are Charles L. Brace's article on "The Poor Boy's Astor House," which gives many amusing and pathetic scenes from a New York newsboy's life, and is capitally illustrated by M. Woolf; and Frank R. Stockton's paper on the coming Centennial Exhibition, or "America's Birthday Party," with pictures of the principal buildings

As for stories, "How a grizzly treed Obed Rollins" is a narrative which with its excellent illustrations, is both exciting and amusing; "A Lake on Fire" describes an incident which could only have happened among the dwellers by the great inland lakes; and the fortunes of a little street waif are feelingly given in Lucy G. Morse's story of "The Ash Girl." "The Boy Emigrants," too, continue their adventurous journey, and reach this month, the "divide" of the continent, from which they begin enthusiastically their down hill journey toward the gold mines.

Mrs. Rebecca Harding Davis furnishes a capital biographical sketch of the famed painter "Gilbert Stuart," with a picture of the stable-studio, where he painted his portrait of Washington; and the "Talk with Girls" is a very sensible one, by H. H., on the subject of "Cheery People."

The pleasant rhymes, "The Queen of the Orkney Islands" and "The Frog, the Crab, and the Limpsy Eel," will cause a round of laughter; and "Eyebrights" and "An Easter Carol" are charming bits of Spring time verse.

The departments are crowded with good things, and there is wedged in among them, this month, a fine music page by F. Boott.

—A McGeary paper gives the following instructions in waltzing: "Young man, if you will waltz, and wish to do it in the highest style of art, do it thusly: Place your right arm around her waist, about two inches above her pin back, throw your left arm under her right fin; then stick your nose in her left ear, and whirl. Do this, and you have got the thing down to a fineness."

"I'm on deck," as the author of "Two Years Before the Mast" remarked when the President nominated him to the Court of St. James.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser. "Let us change the deck" was the remark just previously made by his poker playing predecessor, as he responded to the "last call."—Richmond Whig.

—Some of the papers advance the theory that the Kentucky "carnipluvia," or flesh shower, consisted of the Bremerhaven victims' bodies in small pieces, or possibly of poor Donaldson, the æronaut. We had thought ourselves of offering some such explanations, only we didn't consider them meet.

—Scene, a butcher's stand. Butcher: "Come, John, be lively now; break the bones in Mr. Williams' chops and put Mr. Smith's ribs in the basket for him." John (briskly): "All right, sir; just as soon as I've sawed off Mrs. Murphy's leg."

—During 1875, Wells, Fargo & Co., lost by stage robberies in California the sum of $87,000, and offered rewards for the arrest of highwaymen amounting to $23,500. There were 36 robberies in all. Already this year there have been six stage robberies in this State.

—When Mr. Beecher first took charge of Plymouth Church he was spoken of by jealous ministers as a young Biblical Boanerges; and now Bowen urges him to to evacuate his pulpit.

—At the oil region hotels when a stranger is inclined to talk loud, blow his own trumpet and monopolize the conversation at table, a plate of cheese is sent to him, as a delicate hint to "cheese it."

—To dance well a man should know as little as possible of everything else. He can balance partners better if his hair is parted in the middle.

Busy.

About four ten and twelve mule teams, with three wagons each, pass out of town daily loaded with lumber. A great many smaller teams are engaged in the same way. Farms begin to look as if the population was becoming settled. Every week we hear of some of the old settlers selling out, and their claims soon grow out of the old squatter look of neglect.—[Bakersfield Californian.

The Schools.

The school question is logically compassed by the declaration—that the public schools are and must be sustained by the State to maintain and save the State. If any church wishes to maintain schools for its own benefit the right is not denied, but its communicants owe duties as citizens, and the maintenance of public schools is one of them.—[Carson Tribune.

Robberies in San Bernardino.

News came in town to-night that the five bars of bullion stolen from McFarland Bros. some time since were yesterday dug up from where the robbers buried them and taken off. A man by the name of Chambers was yesterday robbed of $600, near Point of Rocks, on his way to this place from New York District.—[San Bernardino Dispatch, March 28.

At a Discount.

The Railroad Company has issued orders to its agents to charge a discount of six per cent. on all amounts in excess of ten dollars, paid in silver for freight or fare. The company make a good thing by this arrangement, as it pays its workmen in silver at its face.—[Bakersfield Californian.

A Bull, But Not Irish.

Tom Fitch is not an Irishman, but he ought to be. He commenced his Saint Patrick's Day oration in Carson, by saying that every Irishman loved his native land whether born there or not.—[Reveille.

READ AND CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING FACTS. THE MOST IMPORTANT INVENTION OF THE AGE.

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the Labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fire will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

Marvelous Coincidence.

A few years ago there resided at the Mission San Jose, in Alameda county, two young ladies between whom, although not of kin, a strong friendship existed. They married at the same time and by the same service. They then took up their residences, one at Haywards and the other at Alvarado. In the course of time they gave birth to children on the same day, the birth of one preceding that of the other by about two hours. Three weeks later both children died on the same day, the eldest dying just two hours before the other. Three weeks after the death of the children, both mothers died on the same day. This statement seems almost too incredulous to believe but we are assured that it is absolutely true.—[San Jose Mercury.

—Sophocles' tragedy of "Antigone" was recently produced at the Theater Royal, in Dublin, with Mendelssohn's music, and the gallery gods were so well pleased that, according to their custom, they demanded a sight of the author. "Bring out Sophercliaze," they yelled. The manager explained that Sophocles had been dead two thousand years or more, and couldn't well come. Thereat a gamin shouted, "Then chuck us out his mummy."

—One day last week some negro children were playing near a creek in Quitman county, when an alligator crawled out and swallowed one of the children. Next day a party caught the alligator, cut him open, and took the little negro out alive. This is no newspaper lie, but was reported to us by a lawyer (and they never lie), who substantiates the statement by two negroes who saw the child.—[Georgia Messenger.

—Red Cloud says: "Many moons have gone since the palefaces promised food and blankets to the red men. The prairie rose has bloomed and faded, the snow has whitened the lofty pine tops, the violet almost buds again, and still the whiteman tells us to hunt the infrequent buffalo or arouse from his lair the vicious chipmunk. Brothers, the red man has suffered much, and I'll be hanged if it isn't time to raise a few scalps."

—Prof. Tyndall is on his bridal tour—gone glimmering amid the romantic delights of the first quarter of his honeymoon. It is an awful strain upon the imagination to think of the man who has successfully grappled some of the grandest problems of nature wildly pawing around under the seat of a railroad carriage for his bride's little nicknacks.

—She waltzed like Juno at the hop; I vowed the question I would pop; and as her partner tendered her a seat, my throbbing heart with anxious pang did beat. I tripped beside my lovely charm; I bowed and gently touched her arm. "Engaged for next?" I said. "My darling Kate?" "Go 'way," said she; "You hit my vaccinate."

—A Southern bookbinder bound up eighteen dime novels between Bible covers, and a preacher carried the book seven miles under his arm to read some consoling passages to a dying woman.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. C. P. Laird, Plaintiff, vs. Peter Laird, Defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send Greeting to Peter Laird, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or if served out of this county but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between said Plaintiff and Defendant, and further that said Defendant be required to pay into Court a reasonable sum for counsel fee and costs of this suit, as does more fully appear from Plaintiff's complaint, to which reference is hereby made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required the said Plaintiff will apply to this Hon. Court for the relief prayed for in said Plaintiff's complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for [SEAL] the said County of Inyo, this tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-six.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Duncan Campbell, Sr., plaintiff, vs. S. C. Halsey, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court. The People of the State of California send greeting to S. C. Halsey, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against said defendant, and in favor of said plaintiff, for the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and sixty-eight cents ($419 68), principal, and Thirty dollars and forty-six cents ($30 46), interest, alleged by said plaintiff to be due him from said defendant on a certain promissory note made by said defendant to said plaintiff, together with interest on said sum of $419 68 at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of commencement of this suit, and for costs of suit, and that the whole judgment be made payable in U. S. gold coin, as does more fully appear from plaintiff's complaint to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiff's complaint, filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of [SEAL] the state of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

LITERARY.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

Christina G. Rossetti will contribute to the new volume.

Louisa M. Alcott will write "Majorie's Birthday Gifts," and other short stories.

Some articles on Astronomy for young people have been promised by the popular English Astronomer, Richard Proctor.

There will be a continued story of Life in Iceland by Bayard Taylor.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Numberf, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable in an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation.

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

The Story of the Pillow Mules.

Gen. Gideon J. Pillow rises to a personal explanation about his recent going into bankruptcy. In May, 1861, he took command of the army of Tennessee. The troops were unarmed, there were no munitions of war in the State, hence he was compelled to establish "cannon foundries, a factory to manufacture and alter guns, and to fabricate sabres." These foundries had to be fed with coal. The agents of a Pittsburg firm had a large stock of coal in Memphis. He paid for it so long as he had money at command, and then, apprehending that the supply would soon be exhausted, he made a virtue of necessity and seized what was left as the property of public enemies of the State During the following Summer the Federal troops took possession of General Pillow's four plantations near Helena, Arkansas, and drove off his mules to St. Louis. There were 235 of them, able-bodied and well-trained. Indeed "the teams were so fine as to attract public attention and were known in St. Louis and to the officers of the Quartermaster's Department as the Pillow mules." After the close of the war suits were brought for the coal which he had seized in Memphis. He pleaded the rights of a belligerent, but the courts decided against him, and the Legislature declined to sustain the defense. His Arkansas estate, which had once been worth $2,000,000, had been forfeited during the war, and with the judgments in these coal cases hanging over him he was driven into bankruptcy. He is reduced to beggary in his old age. "Gaunt poverty stares me in the face, and the conviction is forced upon me that I have lived too long." In his extremity he appeals to Congress to pay him for his mules, enforcing the appeal by a reference to the fact that he is the oldest living officer of the regular army who served in the Mexican war who still survives, that he "was not a willing belligerent in the late unhappy civil war," and that he "so loved the National Government—to whose service I had devoted the prime of my life—that I would I had fallen in the service and died while I was honored with its confidence and with its commission" Finally, "If the natural father could forgive his prodigal son and kill the fatted calf, upon the return of his son from his debauches, cannot a paternal government, in pardoning the offending soldier, restore to him that which is his by natural right? Though by the harsh laws of war the rights were forfeited, can the Government afford to be unjust to the old soldier, the prime of whose life was spent in its service, and the strength of whose body was broken by its enemy."

How to Get Along.

Pay as you go.

Never fool in business matters.

Do not kick every one in your path.

Learn to think and act for yourself.

Keep ahead rather than behind the times.

Don't stop to tell stories in business hours.

Have order, system, regularity and also promptness.

Do not meddle with business you know nothing of.

Use your own brains rather than those of others.

A man of honor respects his word as he does his bond.

No man can get rich by sitting around stores and saloons.

If you have a place of business be found there when wanted.

Help others when you can, but never give what you cannot afford because it is fashionable.

Learn to say "No." No necessity of snapping it out dog fashion, but say it firmly and respectfully.

—The Southern negroes are mystified over the recent visits of cyclones and hurricanes, and an aged Savannah darkey remarks: "If dese yere winds can't be toned down a little, what's de use of buying mules and 'cumulating a family?"

—Why didn't the last dove return to the ark? Because she had sufficient grounds for remaining away.

—Why is the letter "s" like a lamb? Because it is the beginning of "sheep."

The End of the World.

[From The New York Sun.]

A meeting of Second Adventists was held on Sunday in Cooper Union to discuss the prophecy of a coming of Christ in 1876. About seventy five persons, most of whom were gray haired and thoughtful looking men, gathered in a little room. The meeting was opened by singing the hymn—

O, shout for joy, let songs arise,
The lamb that once was slain
Will come in glory from the skies
Upon the earth to reign.
We will stand the storm,
It will not be very long,
We will anchor by and by.

Mr. Jerrie, who had written on a blackboard some figures to show that the end of the world, or "the time of the end," will come this year, spoke about the fulfilment of the prophecy in the twelfth chapter of Daniel. He illustrated his interpretation of the prophecy by historical references.

"It says in that day the wicked shall do wickedly," he said. "Now did you ever see such a time of corruption and rottenness as this? I have never known, and I cannot find any one who has ever known such a time of corruption in Church and State and everywhere. Look at this Belknap case. But this is only one. Suppose you go to Washington and unearth all the elements of corruption there, what would become of it?"

He next argued that the prophecies foretold the end 1,335 years from a given time, that is, from "the time when the daily sacrificed shall be taken away and the abomination that maketh desolate be set up." This abomination, he said, was the Church of Rome, and its setting up occurred in 541, when the Emperor Justinian placed it on the pinnacle of its power, and in order to do so overthrew the Goths. Then followed the period of 1,290 years spoken of in the prophecy, bringing the time up to 1831, when the allied powers of Europe, to prevent a continental war, took away from the Pope just as much power as Justinian had given him. To this 1,290 years the prophecy added a month and a half, meaning 45 years, thus fixing the time of the end in 1876 In this view, Mr. Jerrie said, science and revelation agreed. He did not attempt to fix the day or the month of the end, which is to come "like a thief in the night."

Two or three other persons spoke, and one old man criticised the churches for not preaching the coming of Christ

Confidence with Wives.

In connection with the reported remark of a gentleman, who said that he didn't believe the ladies he met in Washington street knew that the times are dull, and that their husbands are having a hard time to keep their heads above water, The Boston Journal relates the following: "All husbands do not make their financial affairs a topic of conversation at home, and some better halves know less of their own husbands' affairs than they do of their neighbors'. Some weeks since a lady was first informed of her husband's suspension by reading an announcement in a paper which she accidentally took up in a store while waiting to have an order filled. Whether it was pride or fear that prompted the secrecy cannot be stated, but what can be expected from wives in the way of true economy if they are only silent partners in the matrimonial copartnership? In 1857 a large jewelery firm sold a costly set of jewels to a lady. The firm knew that her husband was in a failing condition, but the lady had been a long and profitable customer. When the partner ordered his clerk not to charge the set which had been delivered, but to make a memorandum on the blotter, he paid the lady's integrity a high compliment. When her husband failed the jewelry came back with a note couched in such terms that the dealer only regretted that a gift of the set would be construed as an insult." A good wife is to a man wisdom, strength and courage; a bad one is confusion, weakness and despair. No condition is hopeless to a man where the wife possesses firmness, decision and economy. There is no outward propriety which can counteract indolence, extravagance and folly at home. No spirit can long endure bad influence. Man is strong; but the heart is not adamant. He needs a tranquil home, and especially if he is an intelligent man, with a whole head, he needs its moral force in the conflict of life. To recover his composure home must be a place of peace and comfort. There his soul renews its strength and goes forth with renewed vigor to encounter the labor and troubles of life. But if at home he finds no rest and there is met with bad temper, jealousy and gloom, or assailed with complaints and censure, hope vanishes and he sinks into despair.

A Rat and Alligator Row.

The Toledo Commercial relates that O. D. Benjamin, of that place, recently came into possession of two healthy young alligators, which he placed in a tank in his billiard hall. The other evening one of them crawled over on the floor, and was attacked by a huge rat. The alligator showed fight, and the combat raged fast and furious for several minutes, both contestants being severely bitten. The rat finally turned tail, and left his antagonist in full possession of the field. The victor, however, had received his death wound in the fray, and throughout the night its piteous cry, much resembling that of a kitten, could be heard at intervals. In the morning it breathed its last.

How Certain Clergymen Failed to Become Martyrs.

General Kilpatrick writes as follows of Sherman's stay in Savannah after his march through Georgia:

Shortly after our army had entered Savannah a number of clergymen called upon General Sherman, and, among other questions, inquired if they could hold divine service as usual in the churches.

"Certainly," said the General. "Why not? We are especially directed by the Army Regulations to pay due attention to divine service on the Lord's day. My soldiers are all Christians. Certainly, open your churches. We will all go."

"But," said a dignified, saintly-looking individual, "some of us are Episcopalians."

"Well, that is a good religion. No objection to your religion; none whatever," answered Sherman.

"But, sir," said the clergyman, "we are in the habit of praying for the President and Congress."

"That's right; pray for them; no objection on that score."

"Yes, sir—but we pray for President Davis and the Confederate Congress."

"Oh!" said Sherman; "you wan't to pray for Jeff Davis, do you?"

"Yes, sir!" emphatically replied the clergyman.

"All right," said Sherman, his brows lowering, "pray for him, pray for the devil—pray for both of them—the one needs it as much as the other. Is that all, gentlemen?"

That was all—that was enough. They had failed to induce General Sherman to make martyrs of them.

Every day the negroes came in great numbers to see "Captain Sherman," as they called him; some with one request, some with another. The General never refused to see them, and they always left his presence with their hearts all aglow with love and gratitude for him and "Massa Lincum."

Strange Revelation by the Microscope.

There is a story that an eminent microscopist had a bit of substance submitted to him to decide what it was. To an unaided eye it might be a morsel of skin which a baggage smasher had knocked off the corner of a smoothly worn hair trunk. The savant appealed to his microscope. Entirely ignorant of this tiny bit of matter, except as he had taken counsel with his instrument, the wise man declared that it was the skin of a human being, and that, judging by the fine hair on it, it was from the so-called naked portion of the body, and further, that it once belonged to a fair complexioned person. The strange facts now made known to the man of science were these: That a thousand years before, a Danish marauder had robbed an English church. In the spirit of the old fashioned piety the robber was flayed (let us hope he was killed first), and the skin was nailed to the church door. Except as tradition or archæological lore had it, the affair had been forgotten for hundreds of years. Time, the great eroden, had long ago, utterly removed the offensive thing. Still, however, the church door held to its marks of the great shame, for the broad-headed nails remained. Somebody extracted one, and underneath its flat head was this atomic remnant of that ancient Scandinavian malefactor's pelt—that fair skinned robber from the north.

The Boy of the Period.

"Mother," said a promising boy, as he came in whistling from school the other day, slung his satchel full of books down on the stair landing, and elicited a howl of agony from his infant sister by giving her a sly punch in the ribs: "Mother, I hear 'em saying at school to-day that this Belknap business is all a 'stall;" is it?"

"A what, my son?" inquired the doting mother.

"A 'snide,' you know. A first-class 'bilk' on the community."

"I don't understand you, Willy, dear; what horrid words those are; explain yourself."

"Ah, mother, pull down your vest. I mean isn't it a fraud, a put up job, you know, to get Bel' to give himself away, and then have Cale Marsh light out for Canada, so's he can't swear it on 'im. Can't you twig? Where's the old man?"

Whack! bang! came an application of slipper suddenly from the rear—the "old man" having just entered in season to wind up the dialogue.

Why Don Carlos Gave Up the Contest.

The general inference in regard to the retirement of Don Carlos from his contest for the crown of Spain is that he was sick of getting whipped. It appears, however, that there was another reason. The Paris correspondence of The London Times states that a story is in circulation to the effect that the late Duke of Modena ordered in his will that the legacy therein left to the wife of Don Carlos should not be paid until a definite peace had been established with Don Carlos either on the throne of Spain or in exile. Having lost all hopes of ascending the throne, Don Carlos thought it wise to get into a position where he could take and enjoy the fortune coming to him through his wife.

The Bullion Tax in Nevada

A San Francisco dispatch of March 20th says the Consolidated Virginia Mining Company has decided after a discussion of the matter by counsel, to refuse to pay the Storey county tax on the net yield of the mine. As soon as an attempt is made to collect the tax which was due April 1st, proceedings will be instituted by the company, an injunction obtained, and the question of the constitutionality of the tax law argued upon injunction. Judge Heydenfeldt, attorney for the company, claims that the taxing of bullion is in effect a double taxation, inasmuch as a very large portion of the yield is expended upon materials for buildings and machinery which are also subject to county taxation. The authorities of Storey county have employed assistant counsel, and it is expected that the matter will not end until the Supreme Court of the United States has passed upon it. In the meantime, it will slightly disarrange the revenues of said county.

The Law in Relation to Assessing.

The Code makes it incumbent in all cases for the party being assessed by the County Assessor to make oath, before filling out his list, that it shall contain a full and true statement of all his assessable property. If the person being assessed makes any statement of the value of his property, or any portion thereof, whether under oath or not, the Assessor may consider the same but is not bound thereby, being required to charge it at its "full cash value" according to his own judgment. Persons having money, and failing to return it for assessment, cannot recover such money by law if they subsequently loan it out.

In Eruption.

A New York dispatch of April 2d says that the present eruption of Vesuvius is said to be exceedingly grand. At first the lava began to overflow in a long stream toward Pompeii. All the day following a tremendous column of white vapor hung over the abyss. The fires in the mountain cast upon the clouds a splendid crimson tint, which mingled with the delicate pink. Large quantities of cinders were ejected. It is expected that the eruption will be protracted for weeks.

Likely to Last.

Appearances at Washington indicate that the present session of Congress will be one of seven or eight month's duration, and that it is not likely to adjourn before July or August. While the Democratic House is wrestling around for political capital, the Republican Senate ought to force the House into a disagreement as to the time of final adjournment—leaving the President an opportunity to bust out the whole institution.

Republican Convention.

The apportionment of delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Sacramento on the 26th instant, is based on the vote for Phelps and Bidwell, which entitles Tulare to five, Kern to three, Fresno to two, and this county to three delegates. The State Central Committee have recommended the following test: "Opposition to the restoration to power of the Democratic party, and intention to act in good faith with the Republican party."

Elections.

A general election was held in Connecticut last Monday, the full result of which has not yet reached us. The Democrats, however, gain the Legislature by an increased majority. On the other hand the popular vote of the State shows a small Republican gain. The same day a municipal election was held in Cincinnati resulting in a clean sweep for the Democrats.

Sensible

The six Chinese Companies of San Francisco have sent a cable dispatch to Hong Kong, directing their agents there to caution the Chinese not to come to this country, and to advertise the fact that the lives of Chinese immigrants were in danger, and laws were to be passed here forbidding them to land.

Monopoly Broken.

The present Congress has conferred an incalculable benefit upon the people by its action in refusing to further protect, by extension of their patents, the great monopolists engaged in the manufacture of sewing machines. A reduction of fully one half in prices will follow.

OF COURSE.

The Assembly, without a vote in opposition, passed the O'Connor Railroad Commissioner bill, and with an amendment to limit the charges of railroads in this State to 95 per cent. of their schedule of rates on the 1st of January last. This amendment, though of little moment of itself simply, was in the principle involved of more value than the whole of the remainder of the bill. It was a declaration of the right of Legislatures to legislate upon the management of railroads; that, in short, railroads are really amenable to law. So far, so good. The bill in due course went to the Senate. That body, true to its assumed duty to its master, the railroad, defeated the amendment by the same vote that disposed of the Archer bill. So ends the illusion that the people of the State of California through their law making power, have any power whatever to say what is right and just between the great corporation and the people. The issue was that the Legislature of this State had the power to regulate the rates of fares and freights and to prevent discriminations in such charges. Our recreant Senators by their votes on the Archer bill and more particularly on this amendment, admit that the Legislature has no such right, or what is the same thing, no such power. Viewed as a matter of party policy, this Democratic Senate, through its press gag and pool selling bills, and its breach of promise and trust in respect to railroad legislation, has given its party a load it can hardly live under.

LEGISLATIVE.

The California Legislature closed its labors at 12 P. M., last Monday, the term having ended by constitutional limitation. We shall not undertake a review of what this Legislature has accomplished either for good or evil, but on the whole, we do not see that much of good has been effected in any way although a great many new laws will now find a place in the statutes. Nothing of moment has been done by our Representative for Inyo or Mono. The fence law remains in statu quo. A special road law is now in force for Inyo, and concerning which we will say that we think there will be a pretty unanimous desire for its repeal by the next Legislature. Besides that we have a satisfactory law affecting the Assessor's salary, and a law concerning stallions, which through some error, as it appears, was made to apply to this county. We believe that is the sum of what has been done. Among the propositions that did not become laws, and for which Dr. Griswold is entitled to thanks, is Alphabetical Sherwin's grand county division scheme. He did well too, in not urging the adoption of some other propositions that were placed in his hands. If he has not achieved much of good, he is certainly to be credited for effecting nothing harmful. In point of fact there was but little legislation needed for this district, this time, anyway.

Unearthing Bounty Land Frauds

The House Committee on Public Lands will begin an investigation into the California land frauds. The Commissioner of the Land Office has written to the Committee that he is unable to prevent frauds which have arisen under the soldiers' bounty land grants, and recommends special legislation thereon. Speculators have by fraud and otherwise procured the assignment and transfer to themselves of lands allowed to Union soldiers by Acts of Congress of March 8, 1872, and March 3, 1873. The first Act gave soldiers who had pre-empted homesteads powers to locate an additional one hundred and sixty acres contiguous to the homesteads where practicable. The Act of 1873 gave soldiers power to locate 160 acres on any portion of the unoccupied public domain. Certificates of entry were sold at a nominal figure by the beneficiaries of the Act and purchased by thousands by speculators, who located them on the most valuable public territory, especially near mineral repositories in California and other parts of the west.

A Good Move.

Senator Roach introduced a bill in the Legislature to provide an appropriation of $5,000 to defray the expenses of a delegation to Washington to urge a modification of the Burlingame treaty in reference to Chinese immigration. We are not advised at this writing what action was taken upon the resolution, but it is to be hoped it was adopted.

Military.

Major General Schofield, for six years Commanding General of the Pacific Division, has been appointed Superintendent of West Point, and will leave for that place soon. Major General W. T. Hancock will probably succeed Schofield here.

A MANIFESTO.

The Six Chinese Companies in San Francisco, becoming alarmed at the recent demonstrations against China immigration, publish a manifesto or address to the American public explaining their position and desires. They say they have heretofore done all they could by letters home to discourage their countrymen from coming to this country, but their efforts in that direction have availed but little; that there is a demand here for cheap labor, and as that country is in a position to supply that demand, no mere words of warning from head Chinamen here, or regard for the abuse and hardships they are assured in advance they must encounter once here, will deter those Chinamen who can command the means from coming any more than dangers and hardships will prevent prospectors from rushing after gold wherever it may be said to be. These rich campanies forget to state the undoubted fact that not one of those impecunious coolies, or Celestials probably of any degree, could ever have reached these shores except under the auspices and pecuniary aid of those very companies. The address further says it will not be a difficult matter to put a stop to the obnoxious immigration. It can be done by abrogating the existing treaty between the two countries. They advise that that be done. They say:

Now let the Government of the United States propose to the Government of China a repeal or change of the treaty prohibiting the people of either country from crossing the ocean, then shall we Chinese forever remain at home and enjoy the happiness of fathers, mothers, wives and children, and no longer remain strangers in a strange land. Then the white laborers of this country shall no longer be troubled by the competition of the Chinese, and our Chinese people no longer be subjected to the abuses and indignities now daily heaped upon them in the open streets of this so-called Christian land. If this can be done we Chinese will continually offer to the virtue of this honorable country our deepest gratitude and thanks.

There is no doubt but the six John Presidents are eminently sound on the main question. The only possible way to peaceably put a stop to the influx of the Mongolian hordes lies in a radical modification, or total abrogation of that Burlingame treaty. And yet that is a solution not easily attained. The whole Union has a direct interest in maintaining the free commercial relations secured by that treaty with the great Celestial empire, whereas, on the other hand, there is but one State to complain of injuries suffered. And even in that one (which is our own, of course), there exists that very demand for "cheap labor," as well as other powerful interests which, when the question of abrogation comes before Congress, will not loan a very decided influence in its favor, if it does not openly oppose it. With such odds against it we see but little to hope for in the way of a release from the over shadowing curse through a total abrogation of the treaty. And it will be no easy thing to effect just such changes in its terms as we might desire, the principal one of which would be to bar further Chinese immigration. That would hardly be a practicable thing between independent powers, even though one was the effete and obnoxious Chinese. It is a problem to exercise the statesman, but most likely of solution through the hoodlum.

A Challenge.

Gen. Batterman of Virginia City, Nevada, offers to put thirty men of the National Guard of that city, against any thirty men belonging to the Militia in California for a shooting match, 500 or 1,000 yards, Springfield rifles, stake anywhere from $500 to $1,000. The match, if made, will come off at some point midway between San Francisco and Virginia. The General also offers to match five men of the Nationals against any five men belonging to the Second Brigade, on the same terms.

Surrendered.

The Secretary of the Republican State Central Committee has received from the Secretary of the Independent State Central Committee several boxes, purporting to be the papers, documents and archives of that committee. If this be so it is a surrender of all the political assets of the third party of California to the Republican Committee, and a virtual pledge to act in good faith with the Republican party in the future.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, March 23, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS—The experience of ages has demonstrated the fact that certain periods of time demand a special or peculiar cognomen to distinguish them; governed in its selection by some trait or feature which renders them remarkable. Thus we have the Age of Iron, the Age of Bronze, the Age of Brass, and many other ages equally deserving of distinctive appellation. So also there are shorter periods marked by the prevalence of certain events which renders them observable. Disastrous floods, frightful conflagrations and direful epidemics have their periods of obtrusion. And now among them with almost defiant air stalks in unbridled knavery clearly making this as the predominant age of Dishonesty. The student of history in coming generations will pause in astonishment when he reaches the page that records the story of to-day. He will stop to marvel at the multitude of cases envolving base degradation in private life, unmitigated dishonesty in high official position and proved hypocrisy in religion. Now while admitting with deep regret our inability to wholly prevent the recurrence of many of the events alluded to as imparting their peculiar characteristics and giving their names to certain periods, still it would appear that to some of them at least a corrective influence might be applied sufficiently powerful to prevent their frequent repetition.

In view of this state of facts the question presents itself whether or not a complete remodeling and reconstruction of the administration of our criminal laws is not only urgently needed but imperatively demanded? The result of numerous criminal trials of paramount importance within the past few years clearly demonstrate the fact that for even handed justice the verdict of a jury is not to be relied upon. A variety of causes may be assigned for the existence of such fact but a recital of some of the most prominent may suffice for the present.

As chief among the manner in which juries are drawn and impaneled involving in very many cases the summoning of talesmen affords fearful opportunities for flagrant wrongs to public justice by open and apparent partiality to the party accused; for it is a fact which no one will deny that recently numerous verdicts have been rendered whose foundation rested more upon the plethoric purse of the accused than upon any justification he could offer for a violated law. The manner in which such results may be readily accomplished may be easily explained but would require more space than the present article can demand. A few thousand dollars placed in the hands of a Sheriff or his deputy authorized to summon talesmen has often been known to have a magical and omnipotent effect in the formation of a verdict. The existence of a doubt, however remote, is a powerful weapon in the hands of an astute lawyer. Juries instead of confining themselves to a reasonably rational doubt such as would govern one in the transaction of business of high importance to himself but too frequently fly off into wild speculation and adopt theories to screen a criminal that would do no discredit to the imagination of the most accomplished novelist. Again the tender sympathies of jury men is frequently but too success-fully appealed to when unmindful of the remorseless brutality of the prisoner at the bar, oblivious of the deep and irremediable wrongs of his victim and totally ignoring the majesty of the law he has dared to violate the simple justice of their verdict (sometimes tardily arrived at) is frequently tampered by a recommendation to mercy. But how are these wrongs to be remedied? May it not be by the entire abolishment of the jury system? Or at least not requiring their verdict to be unanimous but let it be formed by the opinion of the majority. 'Tis true that our Constitution founded upon Magna Charta which provides that every one accused of crime shall be tried by a jury of his peers. To this it may be answered that the Constitution has been more than once altered or amended for purposes of far more questionable propriety; and as for the air of antiquity so urgently claimed for the jury system we may with equal propriety refuse to patronize a railroad, to burn gas or use matches because our forefathers were happy in the use of stage coaches, tallow candles and tinder boxes.

Another prolific source of evil and one that is clearly remediable by legislative action is the fine drawn distinctions in the rules of evidence used more frequently by the crafty advocate to shield the guilty than to protect the innocent.

It will not be denied that in both civil and criminal trials evidence is frequently offered which standing as an independent fact has nevertheless so near a relation to the case at bar that its introduction would clear up everything and enable a jury to arrive unereingly at a just and correct conclusion: but the rules of evidence must be obeyed and the facts offered not being a part of the res gestae cannot be admited. Now it must seem clear to every candid enquirer that where it is desired to arrive at the truth that all the circumstances and surroundings of the case, however remote would simply assist in the accomplishment of such desiaable result.

Time and experience has demonstrated the necessity for frequent modifications of the rules of evidence and the works upon these now in use emanating as they do from such eruditd jurists demand the highest respect. But the difficulty seems to be that they have only striven to simplify and refine what their predecessors had established as indisputable rules of law, and the old legal maxim debele fundamentum fal lit opus. In conclusion it seems to be a self-evident proposition that if by a judicious reorganization of our judiciary system punishment sure and speedy must follow the commission of crime and the ruffian and bravo be taught to know that neither time nor opportunity will be afforded him to call in the aid of friends or accomplicds to aid him in evading the consequences of his acts that legal quabbles are among the things of the past. That juries must and will render a just and concientious verdict and that new trial upon new trial is no longer heard of he will be much less likely than at present to commit an act that is almost certain to consign him to condign punishment either by long incarceration or the hands of the executioner. Congress is now at work upon a bill intended to reform some of the evils spoken of, but the States should also move in this matter.

SAXON.

Taking the Back Track.

Scarcely a day passes now that our town is not graced by the presence of from one to a dozen or more persons who have been to the Black Hills to see the elephant. Of course they are all flat broke, and are "beating" their way on the railroad. These now coming are but the advance guard of a large army of impecunious gold seekers which will be straggling along during the whole season. The Black Hills bubble burst full soon to suit the speculators who have been engaged in working up the excitement.—[Elko Independent.

Significant.

A San Francisco paper says: It is a significant fact that since the passage of Roach's bill to punish wife beaters with the lash, not a single case of wife beating has been brought before the Police Court. Heretofore the average has been about four to five a week.

The Grand Opportunity.

The Los Angeles Express, in the following article briefly sums up the advantages of a speedy connection with the Union Pacific Railroad by extending the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad to a connection with the Utah Southern road:

The finest railroad opportunity in the United States at the present writing is the route between Los Angeles and the Utah Southern. The business that can be developed on that route would give the most profitable employment of any railroad in this country. It would open to life and activity some forty or fifty mining districts that are lying dormant simply because they cannot be successfully worked as long as they are isolated from the outside world. It would create a market for the products of Southern California that would insure a very large freight tariff. It would inaugurate an overland trade by way of the Union Pacific which would in time become almost as important as that by the Central Pacific. It would develop a lateral trade which would supply one half of the territory lying between the line of the new railroad and the Central Pacific, and nearly all of the territory of Northern Arizona. It would benefit the people of San Francisco and those who live along the line of the Central Pacific by a competition that would force down the tariff on the only road now in operation through that region, and it would be a corrective of the freights and fares generally exacted by the great corporation. It is impossible that a route possessing the manifold advantages which are conceded to the Los Angeles and Independence road can long remain unutilized. It needs but that the capitalists at the East should be made conversant with the possibilities of the route to render the scheme of its construction one of the most popular investments ever placed upon the market. The proper parties are now promoting the enterprise in New York, and we shall expect shortly to hear good news from them.

The Emma Mine.

Much scandal has arisen from the connection of public men with the Emma mine; and the question arises how much fraud has been connected with it. A statement of The Salt Lake Tribune shows that at the time of striking the big "horse" in 1870 the mine had yielded forty three millions of dollars, and was esteemed the richest silver mine in the world. Upon striking the "horse" the English engineer, in defiance of the teachings of all the mineralogists, drifted horizontally into the lime formation in search of a continuation of the silver lead, a thing that is never found between two lime walls. While the engineer has thus drawn the company into an abandonment of its lead, another company has tapped the ledge a hundred feet below the original Emma, and is now taking out ore that assays seven hundred ounces in silver to the ton. Now comes the question, has Gen. Schenck been properly abused or have the American stockholders been sold out by an English engineer?

Just Saved His Distance.

The Grass Valley Union of March 26th has this record on the wife-whipping practices: Governor Irwin, last Thursday morning, approved the bill which made flogging on the bare back the penalty for wife beating. We understand that Thursday night a Colfax man just went in and gave his wife an unmerciful beating. He indulged in the luxury at so late an hour that he is entitled to the reward that the law imposes. Had he indulged his playfulness a few hours before he would have been all right and would have been let off, so far as the law is concerned, with a light fine. By delaying he has made himself liable to a good licking. Delays are dangerous, says the old maxim.

Probable Capture of the McFarland Brothers.

A San Bernardino dispatch of March 29th, says: It is reported here that the two men who started out a few days ago in search of the McFarland brothers, bullion robbers, had discovered where they had dug it up, and were only three hours behind the robbers. It is thought by this time they have captured them.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Notice.

A Success.

Two years ago, at the instance of citizens of this place, a number of Kern river trout were placed in Little Pine and other creeks debouching into Owens River, as well as into a number of small lakes at the head of Little Pine, high up on this side the mountains. A fews days since some children discovered a number of these trout in the creek near Judge Schalten's house, and caught one, which we saw. From a minnow of about two inches in length this fish had grown to be a fine, fat fellow fully one foot long—being indubitable proof that such fish will live and flourish in our creeks quite as well as in their native waters. The only drawback to their well being is the probable fact that they will sooner or later drift down toward the river, but before reaching it find themselves hopelessly stranded in some irrigating ditch. This was in part the case with the ones here referred to. The captive fish was put back in the stream, but unless he heads upward he and the others will soon become food for ravens. It is quite likely, though, that those placed in the lakes will in due course do well enough to keep these creeks well stocked.

The Captured Robbers.

Jim Fitzgerald, who left Aurora early this week, informs us that two of the three captured bullion robbers confessed their guilt and were to receive their sentence the day he left. The younger of the Mexicans plead not guilty, claiming that he can prove an alibi by a number of witnesses. His trial is set for the 19th instant. Wallace and the other Mexican will probably be furnished free board and lodging at Carson for the next ten years. Deputy Sheriff Wales, who captured these fellows, was at Aurora when our informant left.

Mack's Mill Sold

It is now definitely understood that Albert Mack has sold his mill and fine mining property at Benton, and to a responsible company whose operations will infuse new life into the business affairs of that locality. Mr. Mack left for San Francisco early this week to make the transfer. If we are rightly informed in the matter John Howell of the Indian Queen company is to be Superintendent of the mill and mine. The figure for which the property sold is said to be about $150,000.

Furnace for the Kearsarge.

According to his promises last Fall, Mr. L. C. Gray, of the Kearsarge mine, will soon be here with a furnace with which to roast the richer but more rebellious ores from the Kearsarge. It is a "Buckner" furnace, and was shipped from Cincinnati, its place of manufacture, on the 17th of last month. We feel assured that old Kearsarge mountain will yet occupy as prominent a place in the world's commercial eyes as its imposing loftiness does in our physical vision.

Complimentary.

The Supervisors of San Luis Obispo county have presented this county with a very well executed Pacific Coast map. It shows prominently the advantageous position of San Luis as a natural railroad and business center for this lower country. Our Board of Supervisors directed County Clerk Daugherty to make a suitable acknowledgement of the present.

More Eclipses.

Those parties who were not satified with what they saw of the late eclipse will be pleased to know that arrangements have been made for two others to take place in September. Pursuant to advertisement the first will be a partial eclipse of the moon on September 3d, and on the 17th of the same month the show will consist of a total eclipse of the sun.

Too Bad.

On Saturday last old "Jack," the intelligent and most respectable black bull dog belonging to B. L. Brown, came to an ignominious end by poisoning. Poor Jack was the remaining one of a pair of pioneer canines of this country, and was so universally liked for his noble qualities that it is hardly possible to believe that he was intentionally poisoned.

C. & M. Cohn.

This popular firm at Lone Pine are now receiving their stock of new Spring and Summer goods, and we are assured that it is very complete and well selected. We can furthermore state that C. & M. Cohn have the reputation of selling full as cheap if not cheaper than any other firm in this county. See their advertisement.

Not Flattering.

From Assessor Dillon's experience up the country in his line of duty, the prospects for a materially increased tax return over last year are by no means flattering. This is owing to the loss in live stock, and the poor condition and consequent low value of that remaining, and also, that mortgages, notes, etc., are not assessable.

Assessing.

Assessor Dillon finished his work of assessing all the upper end of the county down to Independence district this week. From this income he will in addition have the new $2 poll road tax to assess and collect, the new law not having gone into effect soon enough for the first of his work.

Defiance Matters.

P. Reddy, Esq., Superintendent of the Defiance Mining Co., left Darwin a few days since on a business trip to the Bay. The Defiance furnace, we understand is running right along week after week, turning out on an average 125 bars a day.

For the East.

Abraham Parker, better known as "Uncle Abe," our pioneer blacksmith took his departure Monday last for an extended visit among the people away down in Main and Massachusetts and the Centennial.

Paid Off.

Major Nelson, Paymaster, and brother, his clerk, arrived at the Post last Saturday, and after settling a couple of months' arearages or so with Co. D., started the same evening on his return below.

Sent Up

Y. C. Benites got to disturbing the peace down at Lone Pine the other day, so by Justice Peterson's advice, he comes up here to sojourn ten days in the Hotel de Passmore.

Sale.

Lieut. Wotherspoon gives notice of a sale at public auction of pork, stoves, tools, etc., at Camp Independence, May 4th.

Returned

Dr. A. Marrotte has returned to Columbus, Nevada, to resume the practice of his profession.

Races at Big Pine.

The races advertised to come off at McMurry's course, Big Pine, on the 31st of March and 1st of April were postponed to the Monday following, on account of the high winds and cold weather; and pursuant to an invitation to witness the sport ye item-harvester borrowed a clean handkerchief and a paper collar—took passage behind May's famous and intelligent old trotter, "Eb.," and hied away to "take in" the races. Our route lay through delightful scenery, such as dead-level flats, precipitous undulations, magnificent forests of sage brush, and vast areas of fertile sand, in which was to be seen the first appearance of the frisky little horned toad—the harbinger of Spring—and the graceful flitting to and fro of the quick-eyed, zebra-striped, crocodile lizard, and the jaunty cocked-to-one-side tail of the kangaroo squirrel, as he galloped away through the green bowers. Is it a wonder that we went into ecstacies; that we sang praises to the God of nature and thanked the Sheriff and our creditors for permitting us to live and have our being where all Nature has so extravagantly lavished her embellishments?

AT BIG PINE.

Another such a gathering at this place was never before witnessed—the largest delegation being from Bishop; but we noticed representatives from Darwin, Independence and other foreign and domestic ports south. The sporting fraternity were on hand, but it did not appear that their pockets were so plethoric of coin as upon former occasions, which was due, perhaps, to the fear of a little punica fides. However that may be, enough lucre was visible to make it interesting, and withal the best feeling prevailed throughout.

POOL SELLING AND "SCRUB" RACING

Commenced on the day first set for the regular races, and in spite of the weather the fun continued lively up to the day of the postponement. The so-called "scrub" races were too numerous to report, but the whole was a very fair exhibition of speeding. For the regular

RACES

There were four entries for the half-mile heat for the $100 purse, the entrance fees of $20 each being added, as follows: Black Prince by H. C. Wright; Sheep Driver, by J. W. Smith; Champion (the Kingsley horse), by J. B. Hoover; Pinto, by W. P. George. In this race seventy-two pools were sold, aggregating $592, and considerable betting was indulged in on the outside. At 11 o'clock everybody, including quite a number of ladies, assembled on the track and anxiously waited the tapping off. This was the worst feature in the whole proceedings, for it was precisely two hours from the time the riders were first up before the horses got a fair start. It was fatiguing business, especially for the lady spectators, besides so completely using up at least one of the horses that when he was finally allowed to go through he made an ignominious failure. It is to be hoped that upon future occasions of this sort competent judges will be elected and placed at the starting point; then let the laws of racing as laid down by the rules of the Jockey Club be rigidly enforced, even to the peremptory excluding of any horse whose trainer attempts any petty advantages. After all the time occupied in getting a start the race had to be run twice on account of a trainer who gave the word to "go" when the tapper didn't say anything of the kind. The first horse in was Champion, Bishop Creek thus bearing off the coin and honors. Second came Pinto, third Back Prince and Sheep Driver last. Pinto made it warm work for Champion, and was ahead both times at the quarter pole. Time recorded, 54½ seconds.

A QUARTER MILE RACE

Was made in the afternoon of the same day, Mary Hammond and Putty Head being entered. The little mare's former successes had been such that Putty Head's friends deserted him, and no bets were offered. However, Mary got frightened at a dog or something—flew the track, stopped out in the sage brush somewhere and forgot what she was there for.

We tarried not to take part in the dance; hear that it passed off pleasantly, although there was a comparative scarcity of ladies.

Right.

A. H. Johnson, who was one of the three original discovers or explorers of "Fisherman's Peak," intends to have a piece of rock from its pinnacle sent to the Centennial Exhibition, subsequently to the Smithsonian Institute. This piece of granite will have the distinction of a higher extraction than any other in Uncle Sam's broad domain, Alaska possibly excepted. At all events it is quite certain that that specimen of Inyo geology will, to be in accord with the peak from which it was taken, take precedence over anything else at the great exhibition. Al. with his family, proposes himself to visit the big show.

For Europe.

Johnny Novacovich, the popular stage agent of Aurora, was here this week in connection with stage matters. Johnny has stuck to Aurora for many years, and now thinks he is entitled to a little respite; therefore he will in a few weeks start on a visit to the "folks at home," away back in Herzegovinia, where the Turks are making such bloody work, but mostly to their own sorrow and discomfort. He still remains a citizen of Aurora, however, and will return as soon as may be, taking a view of the Philadelphia show en route.

From Cottonwood.

Col. Stevens, of Cottonwood, informs us that he is now at work extending his wood and lumber flume to the lake shore, some three miles from the present terminus of the flume. That done he will erect a number of coal furnaces quite near the lake, and thus save a considerable item of expense in transportation. The snow at the head of Cottonwood creek yet lies too deep to start up his saw mill, but that obstacle will soon be removed this warm weather.

Cerro Gordo.

Both Union Consolidated furnaces are now in full blast turning out an average of over 300 bars per day. It requires but a light force in the Union mine, we are told, to keep both furnaces abundantly supplied with ore. There is but little else being done on the Hill as yet, however, the outside mine owners having no inducement to work their mines, finding no paying market for their ores, consequently times are not so lively as they might be.

The Centennial.

A Bishop Creek correspondent writes: "Your suggestions in regard to the Centennial Fourth of July oration are very good; and if the proposition is carried out, much statistical information of value will thereby find permanent record." It is much to be desired that this record may be so made.

"Peeping Tom."

There is a "Peeping Tom" in this region who is in a fair way to have his hide spoiled for all practical purposes, unless it would be as an open receptacle for shucks or something of that kind.

A Warning.

Certain of our saloon men are reminded that the Code makes it a misdemeanor, with the same penalties as for selling liquor to Indians, to sell or give whisky to a common or confirmed drunkard.

Lodge Night.

The regular communication for the present month of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., transpires to-night.

Physiological Phenomena.

BISHOP CREEK, April 1.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In your issue of March 16 you mention as a strange story the experiences of one Wm. Solon, of Virginia City—his sufferings in his foot after it had been amputated, and all, apparently, caused by the rough handling the severed member received in the doctor's hands.

Such circumstances are remarkable and beyond explanation, perhaps, but still are by no means rare, several falling under my own observation.

About the year 1850 a young man (a relative of mine, by the way) had a foot amputated and buried a mile and a half from his home. A week or more after he was taken home he begun and continued for some days to complain of a great pain in the amputated foot—telling me that it seemed to him that the great toe of that foot was being mashed by a board down upon the others. His continued complaints finally caused his father and others to go and examine the buried foot. They found it in the exact condition described by the sufferer! The father, immediately after his return, and before giving an intimation of what he had done with the foot, asked his crippled son how he felt. The reply was: "I am perfectly easy; about three quarters of an hour ago it stopped hurting all at once, and has not hurt me any since." He never after complained of a pain from that source.

A short time previous to the above occurrence my little cousin, some six or seven years of age, accidently chopped off one of his fingers, which was put into a bottle of spirits. One day, after the stump had so far healed the child could be out at play, his sister had the curiosity to take the little finger from the bottle, and while doing so gave it quite a squeeze. Just after, greatly to her surprise, the child came running in from his play, and earnestly wanted to know: "Who is hurting my finger?" His mother, from this and other subsequent observations, was convinced that there will remain a sense of pain as if in the severed limb until the stump becomes entirely healed. H.

Chinese Riot.

While Virginia City, Carson, San Jose and other points are heralding their Celestial misdoings, Columbus is not left behind in that mark of progressive civilization. On last Monday afternoon Chinatown was the scene of one of the liveliest little scrimmages ever known in this neighborhood. She, the cause, rejoices in the cognomenial of China Mary, and she has passed through all the romantic and other stages of courtship, matrimony, divorce and the attendant etcetras. His name is Sam Lee, a cook by occupation. He commenced talking loud, and the opposing heathen faction commenced firing their revolvers from all directions. Twenty-five or thirty shots were fired at the form of the fleeing Sam, who, in turn, delivered the contents of his Colt at his pursuers. Officers Reed and Davis rushed in and gobbled up nine of the belligerents and captured five revolvers, two hatchets and a knife. We regret to be shorn of the gratification it would have caused us to announce the killing of a dozen or so of them, but the true fact is that only one was hurt—cut in the leg. Dr. Orton's Court was occupied during most of the week in trying the moon-eyed sons of—Josh. Two were bound over in the sum of $200 to appear before the Grand Jury, and seven were bound over in the sum of $100 each to keep the peace.—[Columbus Miner, April 1.

The Educational Bills.

[From The S. F. Chronicle.]

It seems to have suddenly dawned upon the legislative mind at Sacramento that since the beginning of the session a large array of educational measures of one sort or another has accumulated, and that if they are to be disposed of at all there now remains little time to lose. Accordingly some attention has recently been given to the subject, and though there is no prospect that any comprehensive measure of reform will be passed, we have exceeding cause to be grateful that some pernicious projects have received their quietus, and at least one bill which seems to promise good results has been adopted.

In the first place, all true and intelligent friends of education throughout the State will feel like uniting in a grand Te Deum, or, if not religiously inclined, in some less solemn form of jubilation over the defeat of the Carpenter bill. That scheme would have wrought a revolution in our school system, and put the politicians in immediate control of its entire machinery. One of the features it contained, namely, that of doing away with uniformity in text books, is embodied in the Hopkins bill, which has passed the Senate, and now awaits the action of the House.

Of more immediate and pressing importance than all is Senator Howe's bill providing for the support of the public schools of San Francisco, which has passed both Houses, and now only awaits the signature of the Governor to become a law. It authorizes our Board of Supervisors to appropriate a sum not to exceed $100,000, from the fund of 1876-77 to meet the deficiency of the present fiscal year.

Mr. Tuttle's cumbrous scheme to establish a State Publishing House to compete with the private book publishers of the country was killed in the Senate by a vote of indefinite postponement. Wetherill's bill, to provide free books and stationery to the public school children of San Francisco, passed the Assembly, but was defeated in the Senate. Upon the whole it may be said that nothing positively mischievous has been accomplished or seems likely to be accomplished, while all the legislation affecting educational matters that has been thus far carried through, or appears to have any chance of succeeding, promises good rather than evil. This, under all the circumstances, is a more cheerful condition of things than there seemed any reason to hope a few weeks ago.

Terrible Accident.

By a private dispatch to the editor of The Herald, received late last evening, we learn that a man had just reached Tehachapai station in search of a doctor, who said that tunnel No 7 in the Tehachapai Pass had caved and buried the whole shift of workmen. Ten or twelve men are supposed to be killed. We have no further particulars.—[Los Angeles Herald, March 30.

News Items.

The Consolidated Virginia mills are turning out $100,000 daily.

Virginia City numbers among its population 33 persons who have served terms in the Carson penitentiary, and over 250 ex convicts from other States.

A mining prospector recently returned to San Bernardino with 1,500 pounds of very rich free gold quartz which he obtained 150 miles southeast of San Bernardino. He said there was an immense ledge of the same kind not more than seventy miles from the railroad terminus.

There is not at this time a single iron furnace in the State, and but one on the coast, the one at Portland, Oregon.

San Jose Chinamen have been lately enjoying a riot among themselves, in which two were killed and several more wounded.

Accounts from all the northern counties report great losses of stock by storms and cold weather, combined with the want of feed. The Indians living three miles north of Lower Soda Springs, in Shasta county, have lost all their horses, and in the Little Shasta section cattle have died in large numbers, some men having lost as many as 50 head apiece.

Yellow fever is raging violently in Rio Janerio. There were 536 deaths in the first half of March.

Marsh's testimony before the Judiciary Committee is said by both the Republicans and Democrats to be stronger than that given before the War Expenditure Committee.

Charges of adultery have been drawn up against Beecher, and will be presented to the Clerical Committee of Brooklyn and New York on the 10th instant.

The loss by the breaking of the dam at Worcester, Mass., is estimated at about $400,000. One man and two boys are missing, supposed to have been drowned.

Cincinnati proposes to vote 6,000,000 for the Southern (?) Pacific rail road. There is a strong opposition to the scheme, but it is thought it will be carried by a considerable majority.

Dana's Offense.

[From The S. F. Bulletin.]

It does not appear that Dana committed any very great outrage on property rights after all. He edited an edition of Wheaton's Law of Nations for the benefit of the family of the deceased author. Ex Governor Lawrence had previously done the same thing. But as he had put in a considerable leaven of secession notes, the edition did not sell, although Lawrence edited it for the benefit of the family. It appears that both men were working for the same end—neither deriving any personal benefit for himself. But Dana struck out all the objectionable notes of Lawrence and added others of his own. This edition sold very well. Lawrence had his revenge by getting out an injunction on the Dana edition.

The real offense of Dana was running against Butler in the Essex District. It was a warm canvass, and some rough things were said on both sides. Dana was beaten, but Butler never forgave his adversary. So when the latter was nominated ambassador to England Butler found his opportunity. He will probably defeat Dana. But the plagiarism charged upon the latter is really a trivial offense, seeing that at least no profit could come to the offender, the whole benefit, whatever it might have been, going to the family of the deceased author. Butler has a wonderful talent for getting even with his enemies. Grant, the hero of many a battle, was obliged to patch up a peace with Butler. Dana may not be the best man which could have been selected, but he is a great improvement on Schenck.

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

A Question.

In one of the union schools the other day a teacher departed for half an hour from the usual programme and asked her scholars such questions as might interest them. After she had asked "What makes the wind blow?" "What causes rain?" "Who invented the locomotive?" and so forth, and helped to explain them, she said:

"Now, children, any of you who so desire can ask me questions."

No one seemed to think of anything, except a freckled-faced boy about fourteen years old. He raised his hand and the teacher said:

"Well, Robert, have you a question?"

"Yes, mum. I'd like to know what they mean when they say to a feller: 'Oh, pull down your vest!'"

The teacher had to admit that she was behind the age.—[Free Press.

—A little fellow was once being dressed up in feminine masquerade costume by his sister and some of her young lady friends. As he took off his jacket, she handed him back his handkerchief, which he stuffed in his pantaloons-pocket. The waist and long skirts were put on, the latter properly pinned back, and the boy was flirting around in grand style, when, of a sudden a shade of solemn depression settled upon his countenance. He seemed much agitated, stooped down as if to take hold of the bottom of his skirts, let them drop again, hesitated a moment, and finally blurted out: "I say, Mollie! how the deuce does a woman get at her handkerchief when she's got all this toggery on?" And he couldn't understand what the girls were giggling about all the evening.

—A proposition to abolish Lent will probably be regarded by many, even of those who do not observe the fast very strictly, as a startling one; but that is the proposition which is to be made in the Reformed Episcopal Church. At a conference held in Philadelphia, a few days since, by clergymen of that denomination, it was decided to recommend the policy of abandoning the observance to the General Standing Committee, on the ground that the indulgence in worldly pleasures before and after Lent, is increased by way of compensation for enforced abstention during the season of fasting, and upon the further ground that uniform moderation of life is the church's great need, and that this may be better secured without Lenton observances than with them.

—More bears have been seen in Idaho during the past Winter than ever before, and as the heavy snows have driven them into the valleys in search of food, they are a great annoyance to farmers and stock-raisers, whose hogs and young calves they slaughter in large numbers. A species of bear rarely seen, which is called by old hunters "the bald-faced bear," and which grows to a tremendous size, has also been seen in larger numbers than usual. The track of one, recently seen about the Payette lakes, measured sixteen inches across.

—At a collection made at a charity fair, a lady offered the plate to a rich man who was well known for his stinginess. "I have nothing," was the curt reply. "Then take something, sir," said the lady. "You know I am begging for the poor."

—A Chicago man has not been bothered by his wife to get worsted for her since the morning he appeared pleased to do such an errand, and incidentally spoke of the engaging young lady who tended the worsted counter.

—Mr. Marrowfat threw out a fine thought at the table last evening. He remarked that a man with much honesty about him these times must feel a good deal like tying it up in a rag for safety.

—Never break off a match while there is a chance of getting fire.

SUMMONS.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. C. P. Laird, Plaintiff, vs. Peter Laird, Defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send Greeting to Peter Laird, Defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff, in the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or if served out of this county but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between said Plaintiff and Defendant, and further that said Defendant be required to pay into Court a reasonable sum for counsel fee and costs of this suit, as does more fully appear from Plaintiff's complaint, to which reference is hereby made.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required the said Plaintiff will apply to this Hon. Court for the relief prayed for in said Plaintiff's complaint filed herein.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the District Court of the Sixteenth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the [SEAL] said County of Inyo, this tenth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy six.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTEENTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo. Duncan Campbell, Sr., plaintiff, vs. S. C. Halsey, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the said County of Inyo, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court. The People of the State of California send greeting to S. C. Halsey, defendant: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise, within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against said defendant, and in favor of said plaintiff, for the sum of Four Hundred and Nineteen dollars and sixty-eight cents ($419 68), principal, and Thirty dollars and forty six cents ($30 46), interest, alleged by said plaintiff to be due him from said defendant on a certain promissory note made by said defendant to said plaintiff, together with interest on said sum of $419 68 at the rate of one per cent. per month from the date of commencement of this suit, and for costs of suit, and that the whole judgment be made payable in U. S. gold coin, as does more fully appear from plaintiff's complaint to which reference is hereby made. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment against you as prayed for in said plaintiff's complaint, filed herein.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the 16th Judicial District of [SEAL] the State of California, in and for the County of Inyo, this 21st day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five.

PROPOSALS FOR TRANSPORTATION.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF CALIFORNIA, San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 21, 1876.

SEALED PROPOSALS, IN TRIPLICATE, WITH a copy of this advertisement attached to each, will be received at this office, and also at the office of the Post Quartermaster at the several posts named below, until noon of Wednesday, April 19, 1876, when bids will be opened in the presence of bidders, for the transportation of Government Stores during the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1876, and ending June 30, 1877, over the following routes:

Route No. 1.—From Reno, Nevada, to Camp Bidwell, California, 50 tons.

Route No 2.—From San Francisco, Cal., to Camp Gaston, Cal., 50 tons. Stores to be taken from Storehouse in San Francisco.

Route No. 3.—From San Francisco, Cal., to Camp Independence, Cal., 60 tons. Stores to be taken from Storehouse in San Francisco.

Route No. 4.—From Winnemucca, Nevada, to Camp McDermit, Nevada, 75 tons.

The above are the estimated quantities to be transported the Government reserving to itself the right to increase or diminish the same during the existence of the contract, or to use its own transportation. The price per pound will be stated, both in legal tender notes and coin. Bidders will give postoffice address, and if a firm the name of each member. In every case bidders will state the smallest number of days they are willing to contract to deliver the stores at their respective destination, after they are delivered to them for transportation, also rates at which stores will be transported during the Winter months, from November 1st to March 31st.

The usual conditions required from bidders. For further information, and for blank forms, which will be furnished bidders, apply at this office personally or by letter. Each proposal must be in a separate sealed envelope, and plainly indorsed on the outside, "Proposals for Route No. ——," and addressed to the undersigned.

No bids will be considered from irresponsible parties.

PROPOSALS FOR MILITARY SUPPLIES.

OFFICE CHIEF QUARTERMASTER, San Francisco, Cal., March 8, 1876.

SEALED PROPOSALS, IN TRIPLICATE, UNDER the usual conditions, will be received at this office, and also at the offices of the Post Quartermasters at the several posts, until 12 o'clock noon of Wednesday, April 12, 1876, at which places and time they will be opened in the presence of bidders, for the delivery of Military Supplies during the fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1876, and ending June 30, 1877, as follows: Wood, Oats, Barley, Bran, Hay and Straw, or such of said supplies as may be required at the following named posts:

Benicia Barracks, Cal.	Camp Bidwell, Cal.
Camp Gaston, Cal.	Camp Independence, Cal.
Camp Halleck, Nev.	Camp McDermit, Nev.

A preference will be given to articles of domestic production.

Bids for any portion of the supplies will be entertained.

The Government reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Blank proposals and printed circulars, showing the kind and estimated quantities required at each post, and full instruction as to the manner of bidding, conditions to be observed by the bidders, and terms of contract, can be obtained by personal or written application to the Quartermasters at the various posts, or to this office.

The price for supplies, both in legal tender notes and coin, must be expressed in writing as well as in figures, and all bids for Straw, Hay and Wood must state the kind proposed to be delivered, and if for "Oat Hay" it must be cut in the milk.

Separate proposals will be made for each post, and bidders must state their postoffice address.

Envelopes must be endorsed, "Proposals for furnishing ———— at Post ————," and addressed to the undersigned. No bids received except from dealers in the articles.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation.

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. Another Railroad Project.

[From The Borax Miner.]

Since the success of Columbus mining district has become an established fact, many projects have been canvassed with the view of shortening the time of communication with the Central Pacific Railroad. We are informed that Judge Harris and others who presented the bill to the last Legislature asking for a franchise to construct a railroad from Carson to the Colorado River, intend to revive the matter at the next session. It is to be hoped that the glaring defect of the old bill will be remedied—that names of responsible men be given as incorporators, and that the line traversed be properly set forth. In short, that the matter be put in such shape that the Legislature and the citizens may know what they are doing. Some rumors are afloat concerning a narrow-gauge from Wadsworth, and the preliminary arrangements are completed for a wagon road from Dayton to Mason Valley. But in these various enterprises no reference is made to the navigation of Walker Lake. Here is a magnificent tranquil sheet of water, navigable at all seasons of the year for a distance of thirty five miles, and which by its direct course would save at least ten miles more, equal to forty five miles of railroad. A narrow gauge from any point on the railroad to the lake would bring railroad and steamboat communication to within about thirty-five miles of Columbus, and at the same time entirely avoid the Gillis Mountain grade. It is true that the lake is a part of the Piute Reservation, but in view of the important position this splendid body of water occupies in relation to the great future traffic of the country, all the Indians could hope to gain by its exclusive use would not amount to enough in a score of centuries to weigh against its usefulness in the opening up of this vast mineral section. Nor do we believe that it would require a very strong effort to obtain the right of way from the Government.

A Fatal Locality.

Accidents resulting in the loss of life have been so frequent on the railroad work in Tehachapai Pass that they no longer attract attention, and are looked upon as a matter of course. Last week we chronicled one that occurred on Wednesday, which resulted in the death of four Chinamen, but this was a mere casualty in comparison with one that occurred three days later on the same line of work, in which nine lives were sacrificed outright, and it is probable that a number of others have since died from the injuries received. It appears that Thomas Cassin, who was a foreman on the road, and T. J. Byrnes were engaged preparing a blast in a cut near camp 5. The hole was a large one, and was charged with a large quantity of black powder, which exploded while Cassin and Byrnes were at work preparing the blast. Cassin was blown into fragments, two hundred feet into the air. Such of his remains as could be found were interred. Byrnes was so badly injured as to preclude any hope of his recovery, and is probably dead by this time. The cut was filled with Chinamen at the time of the explosion, all of whom were more or less injured by the falling rocks, and many of them killed. A large number of the Chinese laborers became alarmed at the wholesale slaughter and abandoned their work.—[Bakersfield Courier.

—A Detroit widow owns and occupies a cottage under the shadow of a church steeple which is supposed to be in danger of falling when a high wind blows. At midnight, a few nights ago, when the wind blew fiercely, she got up and dressed, called the children up and then dressed them and folded her arms, with the remark: "Now, then, if that steeple falls and kills us, people will know that we were a respectable family anyhow. George, you brush up your hair a little more, and Sarah, you take your feet off the stove hearth and pin your collar more to the left."

—A doctor and a military officer became enamored of the same lady. A friend asked her which of the two suitors she intended to favor. She replied that "it was difficult for her to determine, as they were both such killing creatures."

Correct.

Here is in part how The Eureka Sentinel, the leading Democratic paper of Nevada, replies to a correspondent who thinks a party paper must be a party paper without regard to facts, sense or justice:

We received yesterday from an old friend, a communication taking us to task for the appearance in our columns of certain articles which, as he expressed it, "seemed entirely out of place in a Democratic paper." Our friend appeared more particularly to demur to our comments upon the action of the Democratic State Senate of California; our denunciations of Wilcox; our entertaining for a moment the idea of the possibility that George H. Pendleton could be guilty of the offenses with which he is charged; and last, but not least, that a Democratic paper should devote two columns of its space to the publication of the full proceedings of the Republican State Central Committee. We are sorry our correspondent does not approve of our course, but candor compels us to add that we do not regret that our course has not been such as to meet the approval of our correspondent who is evidently too bitter a partisan to appreciate the merits of independent journalism, or to realize that any good can result from striking at an evil wherever it exists, whether it be found in the ranks or among the leaders of either the Republican or Democratic parties. The writer could not possibly avoid falling into error in his comments upon The Sentinel's course, from the fact that they are all based upon mistaken premises. It is true we profess to publish a Democratic paper; that is in the lexographic, but not in the partisan sense of the word. We endeavor to be a sustainer of "a form of government in which the supreme power is in the hands of the people," and we know of no better method of sustaining such a form of government than by doing all in our power to effect the removal of all sources of corruption which would tend to the prostitution of that principle instead of its promotion. It has been, is, and ever will be our purpose to comment honestly and fearlessly upon all matters of public interest, local and national; but in doing so, we wish it distinctly understood that we are under no obligations, nor do we owe any allegiance, in the publication of this paper, to any political party, faction or clique.

The Kentucky Railroad Claim.

A Washington dispatch to The New York Evening Post says: "Evidence has been discovered showing conclusively that $30,000 of the money received by Pendleton for getting the Kentucky Central Railroad claim allowed went into the hands of Mrs Bower, now Mrs. Belknap, but was not paid to her directly. The evidence already taken shows that Pendleton had the amount of the claim divided into three Treasury warrants, one of which, amounting to $30,000, was indorsed by him and made payable to the National Park Bank of New York. In tracing the last named draft a clue was obtained which, being followed, resulted in finding what is considered conclusive proof that the money, after passing through the hands of two persons, was paid over to Mrs. Bower in person in the city of New York. In his testimony Mr Pendleton swore that he had not paid to the Secretary of War or any member of his family, or any other person for him, directly or indirectly, any consideration for his action, but he did not testify that he had not paid to Mrs. Bower, directly or indirectly, money for herself for her assistance. The money was not, as will be shown, paid directly to Mrs. Bower, but to other persons, who paid it to her. Mrs. Marsh is supposed to know something about this."

Influence of Different Potations.

A police officer relates the following as his experience: Whenever an officer hears a woman on the street creating a disturbance, and in a drunken condition, he knows at once that she has been drinking whisky. A drunken woman who has nothing to say has been drinking ale or beer. If she has imbibed too freely of sour wine and eaten too much sweet cake she will be sick—very sick. If she is sparkling and not vicious or disorderly, but would rather sing and be merry than tear the hair out of the head of that other girl, why, she has taken too much sherry and egg; and if she commences to cry while under the influence, it may safely be inferred that she has been taking too much of a throat bath of brandy and water. From the palace to the hovel, from the luxurious bed chamber to the hard bottom of the street gutter, women are to be found under the influence of drugs or rum every day in a large city. It is only the more unfortunate, or those who are on the lowest rounds of humanity's ladder that ever come to the public notice, or that are ever brought before a tribunal of justice.

—A clergyman last Summer visited the celebrated Hoosac tunnel and encountered a sprightly Irishman, who, in reply to the question, "Do you think this work will pay?" promptly replied, "Faith, no! but thin it'll be a great ornament to society."

—An old Dutchman froze his nose. While thawing the frost out he said: "I haf carry dat nose fordy year, unt he nefer freeze hisself before. I no understan dis ting."

Mrs. Belknap with Her Baby Pleading Before Her Old Friend Mrs. Blackburn.

The dry report of the committee does but feeble justice to the passionate scene when the wretched Mrs. Belknap, clinging to the hope of girlish friendship for Mrs. Blackburn, visited her, and, throwing herself upon her knees, refused to move until security for her husband is promised. She is a woman of fine presence. She dressed with something like grandeur. Her costumes were noted for extreme decollete. The staid element of Washington society held her a little in reproof for this foreign taste, when they remarked of her that they preferred to have other men's wives display their charms so liberally rather than their own. Mrs. Belknap, as Miss Tomlinson, was a bosom friend of Congressman Blackburn's wife. To her, Wednesday night, she betook herself, when her husband, coming home from the committee, declared that all was lost. To work more effectively upon Mrs. Blackburn, the wretched wife brought her baby to plead for her. It was one of the few cold, stormy nights experienced in Washington. The ground was covered with an inch of slush, the snow melting as it fell. As she appeared at Mrs. Blackburn's it was almost impossible to recognize her. A plain cloak was thrown over her, and her babe was pressed in her arms. She had barely reached the inside door when she fell in a faint. Recovering she fell upon Mrs. Blackburn's neck. She raved piteously about her husband and child. She would bear all the blame. She alone was guilty. They might hang or imprison her, but spare her babe and her husband. During the scene Mr. Blackburn came in, and the two women clung to him, his wife almost as much moved as the wretched wife mother. Blackburn says he was never so moved in his life by any appeal, and he was powerless, if he had been willing, to shield Belknap. He told the unfortunate woman gently but firmly, that justice must be done, and that he was powerless.

Anecdote of Talleyrand's Wife.

Talleyrand's wife was more remarkable for her beauty than her intelligence, though it is probable that some of the stories told of her excessive naivete may have been invented for her benefit, and others may have been given to her which originated in other quarters. There are skeptics, for example—and M. Amedee Pichot is one of them—who doubt whether the Robinson Crusoe story, which is the best one told of her, ought to be given to Madame De Talleyrand. As a stray reader here and there may not know this anecdote, it would be a pity to omit it; it is this: Talleyrand was going to entertain at a dinner M. Denon, a savant, who had been to Egypt with the army of the First Consul. Talleyrand on the day of the dinner, informed his wife that she would have at her right at table a learned man and a traveler, and that she would do well before he arrived to glance at his volume which she would find on his library table. Madame de Talleyrand at dinner, by way of compliment to the author, spoke of the immense pleasure which she had found in the narrative of his adventures.

"But you must have found it very tiresome being alone on a desert island," she said.

"Madame, I do not understand," said M. Denon.

"Oh, but you must," she said; "and you must have peen very happy when your man Friday arrived."

Madame de Talleyrand had by mistake been reading the "Adventures of Robinson Crusoe."

M. de Talleyrand, it is said, remarked on one occasion when she had committed some such mistake: "A witty wife can compromise her husband, but a foolish wife can only compromise herself."—[Belgravia.

Young Bennett's Extravagance.

Probably your readers have already been favored with the news that young Bennett is now arranging another of his lightning-train excursions—this time to San Francisco. It is designed to be a special the whole distance, and to be run through as swiftly as the road will admit. The idea is to make the quickest time on record between the Atlantic and Pacific, and to astonish the Californians by showing them what a live New Yorker, and not a Bonanzo Prince either, can do in the way of unnecessary extravagance. The "true inwardness" of this notion is a desire to do something to gratify (strange creature she must be) his lady love by novel experiences very much in the same way an ordinary mortal would ask his intended to take a buggy ride to Central Park. Even since young Bennett became spoony on the idol of his present affections, he has sought to distinguish himself by providing her stunning amusements. Riding games (horse-back croquet, the boys call it), parlor skating parties, coaching, yatching, theatre parties, Canadian railway picnics, night visits to newspaper offices and club parties—all these have been tried, and still new conquests in the line of stunning events have been sought for. A young lady friend of Mr. Bennet's fiancee lately asked her what would remain in the way of novelty for a bridal tour after all these ingenious devices to amuse had been exhausted. She answered, "You trust Mr. B. for that."—[Cor. Chicago Tribune.

REFUSED TO APPROPRIATE.

We do think our late Legislature did a very small and unwise thing in refusing to appropriate anything whatever to have our State represented as a State at the great Exhibition. But, while condemning their picayunishness, want of patriotism or whatever it was that actuated this refusal, we commend them just as much for refusing that for the proposed San Francisco Centennial side show. This is not the year for the State to pay $50,000 as asked for or any other sum for such side shows, but it is the year, the first in the past hundred years, the only chance in kind to occur in the next hundred, for each and every member of this great Union to make a little extra effort to show the extent of its sympathy with National sisterhood and pride of country, and first of all this great State of Califoruia ought to have been there in all her glory, claiming as she does to be a head and shoulders above any other in all natural excellencies, and in the enterprise and generous natures of her people. But so far from being the first to step forward, she is absolutely alone in her refusal to do so at all. Even "away down South," where the patriotic heart is said to beat but slowly, every State, we believe, claims a place as such in the great re-union.

Well, economy in both public and private affairs is a good and most commendable thing, an excellent system as a rule, but now and then comes an effort at economy, which is but false economy and mere niggardliness, effecting a present small saving only to be followed by extensive loss eventually. The refusal of our late Legislature to appropriate a paltry $25,000 from our boasted illimitable resources for such an occasion and opportunity as this, is exexactly of this last kind of economy. It will serve one good purpose, though: That is, as a basis of comparison between the littleness of our Legislators and the size of our squashes, Big Trees, and such. These latter will all appear that much larger—in the burlesque caricatures of the eastern illustrated periodicals and newspaper squibs about California's greatness, as seen from different stand points. The pumpkins and such will appear bigger than our Capitol building with its Legislature in full blast.

There is a good promise, however, that private enterprise will amend this error in all essential points, save the name. The Central Pacific Railroad Company is doing a big thing for the credit of our State in the exhibition of our productions that company is going to make. Then comes the San Francisco bonanza kings, and others, who, though at the expense of a sister State, will make a grand showing to the credit of California. Then, right here in Inyo county comes at least one of our mining companies, (The Surprise Valley, of Panamint) to make a mineralogical display, that will equal anything in kind ever seen from such limited territory.

But notwithstanding all these private efforts fine and effective as they may be, thanks to Legislative "economy," California as a State don't invest a cent for the big show, and must feel ashamed accordingly.

The State Tax.

The State tax is levied in porportion to the amounts of money appropriated by the Legislature to meet the current expenses of the State government The amount necessary for that purpose for the ensuing year is $7,031,000, and the tax necessary to raise this sum will be seventy-two cents on each one hundred dollars' worth of taxable property; eleven and a half cents more than the last levy. For the year 1878 it will be seventy-four cents—a still further excess. The increase is mainly chargeable to the additional expenditure for the Branch Insane Asylum at Napa, and the losses to be made up occasioned by the burning of the Deaf and Dumb Asylum and the work shops at the State Prison.

Strongly Represented.

Booth, Sargent, Jones and Sharon are now all in their seats. This is two more Senators than States are usually allowed, but California is a grand and noble commonwealth, and the nation can afford to give her a few extra privileges.

Resigned.

Governor Ames, of Mississippi, has resigned, and the President pro tem. of the Senate, has been invested with the executive functions. The impeachment case against Ames has been dismissed.

A GLOBE FOR FISHERMAN'S PEAK—JUST THE THING.

Capt. Macgowan and his command, Co. D, 12th Infantry, of Camp Independence, proposes an interprise by which to celebrate and appropriately commemorate our Centennial Fourth, and which, if properly understood and appreciated by our people, must meet the hearty approbation and cooperation of every Inyoite and many others besides, particularly as it will in no degree interfere with any other plans for the day. Company D, alone if necessary but preferably in conjunction with citizens, intends to deck the extreme pinnacle of Fisherman's Peak with a bright shining silvered globe, to stand as a guiding star, a beacon light for sojourners and wandering prospectors East, West, North and South for a hundred miles and more around. But, before speaking further of this project, which when executed, will do infinite and lasting credit to its projectors and executors, we will say a word or two in reference to this towering peak, which is admited to be the most heavenward reaching pile of granite in the United States, the Aleutian country not considered.

Being part of our county territory, though quite near our southwestern limits, its actual predominance and first exploration having been first established and accomplished both by Inyo citizens, Fisherman's Peak is essentially an Inyo institution, and as now proposed, can be utilized to Inyo's advantage, as we shall presently briefly point out. But lofty as is this most rugged captain of mountain Titans he is so closely surrounded by other rocky tight'uns so tall, as seen from our plane of view in the valley plain on either side the great range, as to render his identity if not his unquestioned predominance a matter of the greatest uncertainty if not impossible to all not well acquainted with his position and most notable features. For this reason the inquiries of visitors to this region as to "which is your big mountain?" are rarely satisfied, though it towers half a thousand feet above its tallest neighbor.

The summit of this peak is visible from nearly every portion of Owens river valley, from the vicinity of our every mining camp, and in short, from all the mountain summits within a radius of say two hundred miles eastward probably as far as Pioche; while on the west it can be seen in a suitable condition of atmosphere from any part of the San Joaquin valley, from the Coast Range, from San Francisco south; it is plainly visible right from the dome of the State Capitol. But, owing to its tall surroundings, Fisherman's Peak, the dome of such a vast expanse, is not easily distinguishable. Hence it is of no value for distant scientific observations, as of the Coast Survey for instance. Neither does it by reason of the above fact, localize and distinguish the conuty in which it, stands, as it can be made to do to our county's advantage, all through this little silvery globe. When that shines from that elevation it will be as discernable as far as a fire light of equal magnitude. Thus the mountain becomes an object commanding notice (by aid of instruments at least) even from the heights around the Bay, and all that region thence southward. It will serve to exactly locate Inyo to the knowledge of people far away, and in that and various other ways we need not stop to mention, will subserve valuable purposes to the public, and at the same time prove a "way up" standing advertisement for our county.

If the project has a coin or any other kind of value in peoples' eyes let some responsible person in each locality take it upon himself to see what sum he can raise to be applied in the purchase of the globe and iron work with which to anchor it for all time on that pinnacle. If anything can be done to procure citizen aid in that way (about which we have not the slightest doubt if tried), Capt. Macgowan should be notified of the fact soon, as there is but little time to spare. This is the more necessary as the size of the globe and consequent effectiveness above a certain standard depends altogether upon the amount of citizen aid. Whether this aid amounts to much or little the Captain and his men will put the ball up there, and that will involve probably two weeks' labor in preparation on top of the mountain itself—no trifling matter, working at that great altitude. If about $500 can be raised for the purchase the shiner will be like the one mounted on Shasta Butte by the Coast Survey. If Co. D has it all to do it will be a silver plated globe three feet in diameter. Upon it will be engraved date, occasion, names of the two Centennial Presidents, of the General of the Army and Department Commander, officers and men of the company erecting it, of citizens who may help, and of the original explorers.

Eastern Elections.

The World says the Greenback Reformers polled about 22,000 votes in Connecticut. Ingersoll's majority over all is 3,000.

A Chicago dispatch of April 4 speaking of the election in that city says: The town elections passed off to day without unusal disturbances. It is conceded by the Democrats that South and West towns have elected the Republican nominees, and North towns is believed to be closely contested. No votes will be counted till to-morrow.

The election in Kansas, says an Atchison dispatch of April 4, resulted in the election of the entire Republican ticket, and three out of four councilmen. Last year the Democrats elected the entire ticket, except Mayor. There is great rejoicing among the Republicans, as this is the first time for several years that they elected their entire ticket.

In the Municipal election at St. Joseph, Missouri, the Democrats elected the Mayor and most of their ticket, with three out of five councilmen.

Cleveland, Ohio, dates say: The general Republican ticket is elected by 2,500 majority On an average, the council will stand 22 Republicans to 14 Democrats. The Republicans elected 15 out of 18 councilmen. The vote was about a medium. The reserve towns generally show Republican gains, although politics were ignored in many cases.

A New Phase.

The question concerning the immigration to our shores is more complicated than many imagine. Ex-Governor Low of California, remarks The Sacramento Bee, who was American Minister to China, says the people of California are wrong in the means they propose to adopt to remedy the Chinese evil—1st, because public meetings, such as are proposed, may end in riot, and thus retard the consummation; 2d, because the Chinese that come here don't emigrate from territory over which the Chinese Government has any control, but from the island of Hongkong, which is purely British territory as much as Canada is. The repeal of the Burlingame treaty would not affect the case one iota. It is with Great Britain we have to deal and not with China. This is certainly a new phase in the question, and it may be an important one.

Fine Music.

We are indebted to W. L. Thompson, East Liverpool, Ohio, for two new pieces of music, one of which at least is now all the rage in the East. It is entitled "Gathering Shells from the Sea Shore." The other is a sacred song and chorus entitled "They Say There's a Land o'er the Ocean." The Chicago Journal referring to the first mentioned says: "The most popular song of the day, is 'Gathering Shells from the Sea Shore,' composed by Will. L. Thompson. Such is the extraordinary popularity of this most exquisite song that it is scarcely possible to keep it in print. Messrs. Lion & Healy of this city have just given an order for 5,000 copies, and other dealers are ordering it by the thousand."

Little Emma Looming Up.

Washington dispatches of the 11th say: The testimony of Mr. Day before the Committee on Foreign Affairs today is considered of great importance to General Schenck, Mr. Park and others interested at one time or another in the Emma mine, and who have claimed that they acted in good faith in all they did in connection with the mine. Day was one of the original owners and sold his interest to Park. He testified all through to his faith and importance of the mine. His reason for selling was that he could not control it. Park will not be examined until more members can be got together. The coming testimony is expected to be very important.

Developments in Prospect.

The New York Sun has a Washington special which says it is reported on indisputable authority that in a few days, evidence will be furnished that the Government has employed notorious blackmailers, who are notoriously known as thieves, and that such are now in the employ of the Government in important confidential positions.

Statistician.

The March number of the Statistician comes to us replete with an unusual amount of statistical lore arranged in a most convenient form. It is a very reliable and useful work, and one we can heartily commend to every business man. Compiled by John P. Mains, published by L. P. McCarty, San Francisco.

Pressing On.

The Real Estate Circular says the Southern Pacific Railroad will be completed from San Francisco to Fort Yuma, on the Colorado river, via Los Angeles, during the present year.

Land Office Decisions.

The Generat Land Office has decided as follows:

Where a patent issues for a lode which crosses a lode already patented, the surface ground in conflict is excepted from the second patent, and the ore at the space of intersection of two lodes belongs to the first location, whether dated first or second. The second location carries the right of way through the intersection. It is also decided that a selection of land by a State, under the Swamp Acts, establishes a prima facie case in favor of the State, which may be contraverted at a hearing before local land officers. A party who has received a patent for a certain tract of land so selected by a State, may relinquish the same and receive his money back upon presenting his affidavit, corroborated by two witnesses, showing the swampy character of such tract. The Department also holds that a party who went upon land reserved under a railroad grant, with assurances from the company that he could purchase it of them, was not wrongfully upon such land when the Department decided that it was not included within the reservation to the company, and has ordered the same to be restored to settlement. Where the pre-emptor is living upon and cultivating such tract of land no specific act is necessary to constitute new settlement and the restoration thereof to the market.

General Forwardings.

By the overland train to-day J. R. Scupham goes to Philadelphia as agent for the Central Pacific Railroad, to superintend the company's display of Pacific Coast products at the Centennial Exhibition. Two car loads of minerals and woods have already gone, and one more the agent takes with him. The collection embraces samples of wood, rough and polished, from all the forests of the Pacific, from Alaska to Mexico. The mineral specimens include silver, gold, lead and copper ore, together with coal and marble, and fairly represent the mineral wealth of the coast. The samples of cereals and other products of the soil are numerous, but the collection will not be completed until this season's crop shall have been harvested. Arrangements have been made with agents in every agricultural district of the State to forward samples from this year's harvest to Mr. Redding, of the Railroad Land Department. Space has been reserved for the collection in Agricultural Hall and the main exhibition building.—[Sacramento Record Union, April 1.

The Silver Coin Bill.

The bill by which silver coin is substituted for the fractional currency passed the House of Representatives, March 31. Section 3 is as follows:

That silver coins of the United States of the denomination of $1 shall be a legal tender at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding $50 in any one payment, and silver coins of the United States of the denominations of less than $1 shall be a legal tender at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding $25 in any one payment.

California Boasting.

The boasted generosity of California is going begging. In these Centennial days of that State's greatest prosperity, only $2,300 have been raised for building a little house of Pacific coast woods on the Centennial grounds, and Mr. McCoy of Nevada turned over $1,000 of that amount, and William S. O'Brien $500 of the balance. The Legislature of California refused to appropriate a cent for the patriotic purpose in question, but was ready to squander millions for private plunder—[Lyon County, (Nev) Times.

What Clymer Says.

In a special from St. Joseph, Missouri, a correspondent says: "I met this afternoon a prominent gentleman from Washington, who is in the confidence of Mr. Clymer. He said: 'It makes me shudder to think that witnesses subpenaed this week connect the President directly with some of the many corruptions that we are investigating. Clymer said the evidence will show the President to be one of the five who constituted the Washington real estate pool.'"

A Military Absconder.

An Arizona dispatch of April 4 says: D. D. Chandler, clerk of Major Maynadier, paymaster, absconded last Sunday. It was thought at first that he had taken a large amount of money, but investigation of his accounts show that he took but one hundred and ten dollars belonging to the Major. Candler has been connected with the pay department in Washington, Chicago and Santa Fe, and was considered thoroughly reliable. There is no clue to his whereabouts, but is supposed he has gone toward Sonora.

The Sonora Revolution.

Referring to the revolution, The Sonora Citizen says: The war in that State is virtually at an end. The intervention of the supreme government in sending General Maniscal, supported by federal troops, to restore order; the flight of Pesquerra, the subsequent demoralization of the State party, and the disposition shown by Serna's adherents to aid in the restoration of peace have combined to secure this. The result is that trade from Sonora is improving.

Candidates Elected.

There were three candidates elected last evening for initiation in the Damphool Infirmary, viz: The man who sold out his business establishment, including $450 in the drawer; the young gentleman who parts his hair in the middle; had young lady who pronounces depot "dep o."—[Eureka Sentinel

To Modify the Treaty with China.

In view of the increasing influx of Chinese servile laborers, Page of California will offer a resolution to request the President to take action for a modification of the treaty with China, so as to make it strictly for commercial purposes.

The School Exhibition at Lone Pine.

One of the younger pupils (at least we so infer), tries his hand as a reporter to the following effect, his production being given verbatim, etc:

EXHIBITION AT THE LONE PINE SCHOOL HOUSE

of the Pupils of the well known Teacher, Mr. H. C. Rittgers, aided and assisted by two well known Citizens of the town came off Last evening to an overflowing House.

A few apt and pertinent remarks by the Teacher in relation to the school, and then Miss Tynan was introduced to the audience who read an address, the rendition of which was excellent.

Song—Miss Tynan's musician; by the Misses Mason, Miss Ball, Annie Adams, Miss Lasky, Miss Lilly Holland and others, would have done credit to schools of a much higher grade.

Declamation—by Miss Mamy Ball.

"Lazy Ned," by Master Rock, brought down the House.

"The Violets," by Annie Adams was full of beauty and carefully rendered.

A. C. Harvey as "farmer Outcake," and Mike Lasky as would be Lawyer, not only shows the eccentricities of the Law, but develops the fact that with careful study and skillful training would make them Star Actors.

"The Pantomie," By the Misses Blanch & Rosa, Mr. Rittgers & Mr. Modie, Mike & Reyes, was one of the best features of the evening.

The Harmonica, as played by the teacher, develops a musical ability of a high Order.

"The Boy Stood on the Burning deck," By Charles Hamilton, a mere lad of some 8 years, shows much study and careful elocution.

Song, By the Misses Modie, was so warmly applauded and so enthusiastically encored that they were recalled, who rendered that beautiful little song, "Hum Hah."

Miss Blanche in Hoyden as the Heiress, shows rare ability and careful training, and deserves especial mention.

Also Miss Tynan as Musician and Organist, but 13 years old, shows rare ability and by ample training will make one of the best musicians in the State.

"The Train to Manso," by Miss Tynan & Mike & Sam'l Lasky, was well acted.

As the everlasting talker, Minnie Lasky beats the world.

"The Curious Tale," as shown by Mr. Rittgers, not only convulsed the ardience, but placed them in the best possible good humor.

"Sheridan's Ride from Winchester," By Mike Lasky, a piece which requires the most skillful training in elocution, was well spoken.

The Teacher as "Capt. Shmit," excited the risibilities of the audience.

The Burlesque Actors, Consisting of Mr. Rittgers as Dr. Poppinjack, Mike Lasky as Snicklefritz and Mr. Modie as the Colored Boy in search of employment was decidedly the most amusing feature of the evening.

The exercises continued until a late hour in the evening and the enthusiastic applause and cheerful countenances of the audience showed how highly it was appreciated by those present.

There were 63 different acts or performances.

And hoping that at the close of the school will be again treated to so pleasing an entertainment, and that Independence and the upper end of the county will come to join with us to congratulate the school children upon their proficiency, and to continued exertions; and we will now add, what the parients and Publis in general are pleased to admit: That the teacher, Mr. H. C. Rittgers, who so recently has come amongst us, has stamped himself by his disipline and skill in the management of the school under his charge as the best teacher who has ever come amongst us, and as an elocutionist has no superior in any county in the State. May his Shadow be never the less.

Yours truly, P. H. G. RIVERSIDE.

General News Items.

What a Mother will Do.

A touching story of maternal affection and the devotion of a mother to her children is telegraphed from St. Louis. A woman and her two children were lost in a snow storm on the prairie, and when their dead bodies were found, it was seen that the mother had taken the clothes from her own person and put them on her children to protect them from the cold, and was herself in an almost naked condition. There is little in real life that surpasses in pathos the circumstances of this affecting story.

Some Snow.

The Alpine Chronicle reports the snow sixty feet deep in many places on the Big Trees route, and says it is from forty to sixty feet deep on it all. No such deep snow as is there now was ever known before by the oldest inhabitants.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Notice.

JAS. E. PARKER is authorized to transact any and all business pertaining to THE INYO INDEPENDENT, on behalf of the publishers.

The Centennial Fourth.

The proposition to join in a grand celebration seems to have been brought to a point by the action of a meeting of the citizens of Lone Pine, held at the school house at that place on Thursday evening last. The meeting, which was really a large one and to an outsider would appear most creditable as an exhibition of public spirit, was called to order by John Alexander, who nominated Dr. P. G. Gelcich for Chairman. The doctor stated the object of the gathering in general terms, and called for the selection of a Secretary, to which post H. C. Rittgers was choosen.

We should not forget to mention that several young ladies enlivened the proceedings by some really excellent singing, with organ accompaniment.

A general and free consultation as to the proposed celebration followed, the conclusion being that a grand united "international" Centennial "celebrate," should be had. The town of Lone Pine was chosen as the place of the gathering of the good people of our county, and the general arrangements, with details, are in the hands of the Committee of Arrangement as follows: G. H. Palmer, J. Alexander, C. Meysan, S. Zaun, H. C. Rittgers, W. J. Phillipay, and Jos. Seeley—to which was added Dr. Gelcich by courtesy.

The above facts coming to our knowledge at a very late hour, after other articles on the subject were in type, we can only add, that the proposition suits our ideas of what is best to secure a good Centennial celebration. Lone Pine from its location will command a larger attendance than any other place in the county. It has workers who will see that everything needful is attended to. They organized for the purpose, and we may consider it an established thing.

Concerning a Row.

R. L. Peterson, of Lone Pine, on Sunday last appeared before Justice C. Keppler of Georges Creek and plead guilty to a violation of the provisions laid down in the Code in regard to assaults, and paid a fine of $5 therefor. He also admitted the soft impeachment of having disturbed the peace, for which he contributed the sum of $1 to the county treasury. In the same matter and on the same day, R. Bilderrain put in an appearance before Justice Schalten of this place, and plead guilty to assault (which it seems, from the facts, he didn't commit), on Mr. Peterson, for which he was kindly permitted to donate $5 to the good people. Afterward, on complaint of John Allison, of Lone Pine, Mr. Bilderrain was arrested by Constable Chelius on charge of disturbing the quiet and peace of that bailiwick, upon which charge he was mulcted in the additional sum of $5 and costs, by Justice Keppler. This is the long and short of a considerable story, the details of which we do not propose to go into, nor is it necessary to pass any judgment now.

Juvenile Happiness.

Two events have fallen under our notice this week by which we observe that a considerable number of our budding population have experienced something of a sensation. On Wednesday evening Sophie Rhine celebrated her eighth birth-day with much eclat, and plenty of goodies of various kinds, among which was 'lasses candy which as usual excited a great deal of vociferous enjoyment, energetic pulling and extremely floury faces. The other circumstance was their visit in great force to this office (during working hours too!) to see the extreme juvenile member of this concern work one of those neat and effective little "Caxton" printing presses, just received, of which he, the exhibitor, is the sole and proud proprietor. Such events as this last is what delights (?) compositors, especially just on the eve of "closing up" the paper as on this occassion.

No Go.

It looks like that proposed joint stock Centennial celebration at Georges Creek can't amount to much, nothing like a business demonstration toward it having yet been made to our knowledge. As stated heretofore unless a decisive move was made at the earliest practicable date as then mentioned for this particular joint stock effort, other propositions would likely come up having a tendency to mar its prospects very materially. Though not intended in that way, yet, as will be seen elsewhere in this issue, two other Fourth celebrations are already proposed in definite shape, and will come off.

Log Springs.

Broder started up his furnace early last week and for about fifteen hours it ran successfully. Then from some reason peculiar to the ore, it "banked." Another start was made this week, as we learn from Mr. Connelly who left there on Wednesday, and this time with every prospect of a perfect success. Up to the time of Mr. Connelly's departure it had been running eighteen hours, turning out bars at about the rate of 100 per day. The value of the bullion is not less than $500 per ton. Connelly has sent teams over to load.

On the Sick List.

Jo. Fernbach, of the Pioneer Brewery, has been suffering from an attack of erysipelas in the face.—but Jo. is in no hurry to furnish the Pioneers with an obituary, and is improving.

Our Round Valley Letter.

ROUND VALLEY, April 10, 1876.

MESSRS EDS—We have had all sorts of weather lately—wind, rain, frost, snow, and sunshine. An old sinner remarked that our fickle, changeable climate resembles a coquettish young lady—one day exceeding lovely, next day "out of sorts," poutish. Ditto climate—smiling morn, delightfully warm noon, but suddenly, whew! wind howling, tin pans flying, women swearing and children laughing! Next day same caper repeated. Still we survive, and the farmers are lustily

PUSHING THE PLOW.

Bodine, Ensign & Co., have in already quite a crop; Goodridge & Gunter are ripping and tearing (heedless of the hereafter) breaking sod furiously; Horton & Parsons are making big black patches. In spite of earthquakes Evans & Brother have built a long line of excellent stone fence. The Piutes are also up and doing. Sam and Joe have their lumber houses completed, still they continue to "campo" outside in the sagebrush, with the jack rabbits. El Capitan & Co., have bought Matthew's little farm—the latter having left for Los Angeles. Mr. Daniels and family have left the valley—will be for two years, more or less, "mine host" at Whisky Flat.

A young stranger, weighing ten pounds and a fraction, is sojourning at Laird's—calculates to stay with pap a few years, and will demand his board, lodging and washing free! Another warning for bachelors. A new comer (girl, usual weight) arrived at F. Gunter's lately.

FAMILIAR FACES

have returned—Mr. Hilton and his son, Frank; also Mr. Jas. Shaw of Bishop Creek, with an intelligent companion for life, from the East.

April 7th was the last day of school here. Dance in the evening at Olds'. Good time.

THE ASSESSOR

has made his periodical visit. We all know what we are worth, and a little more. He is hard on pumpkins, and not even a squash can be concealed without Frank ascertaining its "cash value." To assess poultry is O. K. but after interrogating widows and putting this question, "Madam, how many young chicks?" you should not be at all surprised to find him return to Independence entirely bald headed and beardless! He has corralled some Piutes this trip, and they take pride in exhibiting their tax receipts, ejaculating "Me got em bapah (paper), me all same white man now." We think Dillon has performed his duty well up this way, and will "ever pray" that he gets sufficient courage to "go" for wealthy merchants and rich bonanza owners elsewhere.

"WHO WILL DO IT?"

It is suggested that one of the editorial staff—Chalfant, Childs or Parker—"do it." [We will do our part—EDS.] Probably none others are so conversant with the history of the county, and they alone, possess a complete file of THE INYO INDEPENDENT, consultations of which would be essentially necessary to produce a complete historical sketch of Inyo. The rough experience, habits and customs of ye ancient taboose eaters, prior to the publication of THE INDEPENDENT, would very likely be kindly furnished by said ancients. Select one or more in each locality through Owens Valley, to collect and forward to the compiler or "orator" interesting facts and figures. The author may suitably abridge. After the Fourth, if deemed advisable enlarge and publish it in book form thus making it a convenient, interesting and valuable record. PUMKIN.

Very Fair.

Harry Wright, of the Taboose station, and others propose to get up a Centennial celebration to come off at the Taboose on such terms and scope as must certainly be perfectly satisfactory to all not especially bent on some other plan. He proposes, and without doubt will do it, to provide every requisite facility, including a perfectly commodious pavilion, the best obtainable orator, music and all the etceteras without demanding a cent of contribution for any of the expenses. As a matter of course, however, as may be understood Harry does not propose to undertake all this great expense and trouble without some prospect of remuneration. That is to come chiefly through admittance fees to the race course, over which the best horses of the county will contend for the lead and the cash, the purse alone to be not less than $1,000. This is a mere outline of the plan; hereafter, as things take shape, we shall make further mention of them in detail.

Panamint.

Harris & Rhine have recently become the owners by purchase of Dave Nagle's saloon building and other town property in Panamint. Isaacs Harris, of the firm came in from there last week, and also T. J. Graves, both of whom say Panamint is to-day on a better basis as a paying mining camp than at any previous time in its his. The Surprise Valley Company are undoubtedly making a good margin of profits every month, and will continue to do so right along. In the way of general business and population, however, the town is less flourishing than ever before, there being but very few business houses of any sort in operation. Those that remain, of which Harris & Rhine's is the principal, if we except the Company store, are doing well.

County Jail.

Only three guests are being entertained by the county. Col. Norton is now able to eat regular meals, and is recovering his wasted strength.

Our Benton Letter.

BENTON, April 12, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS: King Sol has again asserted his supremacy, and dispelled the gloominess from this terrestial corner as well as from the firmament above. His genial influence is felt by all—particularly so by the dusky Aborigines of our community. The poor Lo's may now be seen congregated upon our street corners or in some wind sheltered nook, basking in the sunshine, or intently engaged in their cherished game of monte. They are now arrayed in holiday attire; wrapped in their blankets of brilliant colors, with new hats, boots, feathers, etc., and filled to overflowing with all the pompousness becoming to Piute dignity.

INDIAN SUPPLIES.

Mr. Wetherill, of this place, while on a visit to San Francisco, purchased an extensive assortment of Indian supplies to be distributed gratuitously among the Piutes of this district. He appointed Mr. Mitchell his agent, who performed the onerous duties of the office satisfactorily to all concerned. This accounts for poor Lo being arrayed in holiday attire.

DEATH.

Death has visited us, and removed from our midst, our friend, W. T. Cross, familiarly known as "Sandy." He died after a brief illness of a week's duration, on the night of the 3rd. He was of a very genial temperament, and leaves a host of friends to mourn his loss. His mortal remains were followed to the grave by a very large delegation of miners and residents of this district who there paid their last tribute of respect to his memory. There being no clergyman present, the funeral services were conducted by Mr. Wm. McFadden.

RAFFLE.

Mr. Albert Mack offered at raffle his grand piano. The chances were speedly taken, and the night of the 4th was set apart for the trial of luck to determine who should become the owner of this coveted musical instrument. Mr. Henry Myers was the fortunate winner; and he now proposes to remove its musical mechanism and to convert it into a hightoned, overstrung bedstead. [He ought to practice for a duet.—EDS.]

SALE.

Mr. Albert Mack has effected a sale of his milling, mining and real estate property to a joint stock company. To outsiders, there is no certainty of the amount paid; but it is safe to presume that Mack received between $125,000 and $175,000 for his property—he has gone to San Francisco to consumate the final settlement.

DIANA MILL.

This mill under its present management is working splendidly. When it is remembered under what great disadvantages it resumed operations last December; the heavy debt which was entailed upon it; the dilapidated condition of its machinery, and the lack of chemical supplies; the low grade quality of the ore to commence upon, and the unworkmanlike appearance of its mine—the mining improvements being nothing but a succession of coyote excavations, all reasonable persons interested must feel satisfied with the result. The mine is now locking well and is yielding a good quality of ore. The Company's affairs are under the direct supervision of J. A. Creaser, who possesses all the business qualifications to make the Company a financial success. Wm. Ball, of Aurora, a thorough and practical mill-man, is the foreman of the mill. Sunday, April 9, was the general pay-day of the employes of the Diana Company.

PARTNERSHIP.

Yaney & Hightower is the name of a new firm established for the purpose of carrying on the lumber business; and they have the best wishes of the community for their business prosperity. The latter member of the firm has gone on a visit to the Eastern States, leaving the business in the hands of the former.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

The County Superintendent has been informed of the vacancies existing in our Board of Trustees, and we may expect speedy action to be taken on this information. The school affairs are now in such condition as require a full Board of Trustees; and filled by men who take a deep interest in the educational welfare of the District. A new and commodious school house has been erected, and is almost completed. Mr. Lyford, the builder, is entitled to credit for the dispatch, economy, and architectural taste which he displayed in its erection. We have had a new departure from the school laws of California; in this, that in the place of having but five school days in a week, we have six. Every one conversant with educational affairs knows this is detrimental to the progressive scholastic welfare of the pupils. But on school matters more anon.

UNPLEASANTNESS.

Two well known gentlemen of our village had a misunderstanding, which resulted in an exchange of shots, on the night of the 6th. Fortunately both missed the mark, and before they had an opportunity for another exchange—through the kind endeavors of mutual friends the difficulty was amicably settled.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES.

I. P. Yaney's family, Jessie Somers, of Bridgeport, and Louis Sammand are registered at Kelty's hotel; J. A. Creaser has gone to Aurora on business; Mr. Johnson has left for Bridgeport.

PROSPECTS.

The prospects were never more flattering. The present owners of the Mack property are gentlemen of means, who will work matters to their utmost capacity. It is expected they will shortly employ double the number of men that are now engaged. MINION.

On Their Travels.

Paul Bennett, Esq., and Under Sheriff Steve Gregg, have gone northward on professional business, the first named with the view, we believe, of visiting Bridgeport, Mono county, before returning. N. Rhine, of Harris & Rhine, is off for the Bay. Jas. E. Parker is visiting the lower part of the county in the interest of THE INDEPENDENT and let us hope of its readers as well.

Theatricals in Prospect.

Through a private letter to Mr. M. Levin, we learn that the McGinley Sister's troupe of variety performers will soon pay this place and county generally a professional visit. This troupe is very favorably mentioned by our Nevada exchanges, in which State they have recently been playing.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will hold services at the Milton school house, near Camp Independence, at 2 P. M., and in this place at 7:15 P. M. to-morrow.

Discontinued.

The Postoffice at Fish Springs has been discontinued by order of the Department.

A Boy's Composition on Moonlight.

The following is said to have been read in a city school: "'Twas a calm still night, the moon's pale light shone soft o'er hill and dale. Not a breeze stirred; not a leave stirred; not a dog stirred; not a horse stirred; not a cow stirred; not a man stirred; not an owl stirred; not a hog stirred; not a sheep stirred; not a cat stirred; not a mouse stirred; not a hen stirred; not even a goose stirred." Here the teacher interrupted with the observation that the composition appeared to relate more to agriculture than moonlight.

Connecticut Election Returns.

The entire vote of the State, every town heard from, is as follows: Ingersoll (Dem.), 51,202; Robinson (Rep.), 43,610; Atwood (Inflationist), 2,004; Smith (Temperance), 1,929; Ingersoll's plurality, 7,583; Ingersoll's majority over all 5,650. The Legislature has 88 Democratic majority on joint ballot—15 in the Senate and 81 in the House. There is one Independent in the latter body. The total vote of the State is 98,752, against 100,956 last year.

Closed Down.

The Richmond furnaces closed down last evening. They will all be thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and probably will be ready to resume operations in three or four weeks, although we are informed it will depend on circumstances when they will start up again. There is not now a single furnace running in the district.—[Eureka Sentinel.

—"Minnie has been to see me today," said little five-year old, "and she behaved like a little lady." "I hope you did, too," said her mother. "Yes, indeed, I did; I turned somersaults for her on the bed."

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the Labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Beccause two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Irish stew is a dish never seen in Ireland.

Cat-gut is not the gut of cats, but of sheep.

Kid gloves are not kid, but are made of lamb skin or sheep skin.

Arabic figures were not invented by the Arabs, but by the Indians.

Tube-rose is no rose, but the tuberous palianth (Palianthes tuberosa).

Salad oil is not oil for salads, but oil for cleaning callets or salades—i. e., helmets.

Slave means noble, illustrious; but the term is now applied to the most ignoble and debased.

Black lead does not contain a single particle of lead, but is composed of carbon and iron.

Turkish baths are not of Turkish origin; nor are they baths at all. They are hot air rooms.

Salt is not salt at all, and has long been wholly excluded from the class of bodies denominated salts.

Cleopatra's Needle was not erected by Cleopatra nor in honor of that queen, but by Rameses the Great.

Prussian blue does not come from Prussia, but is the precipitate of the salt of prosoxide of iron with prussiate of potassa.

Brazilian grass does not come from Brazil or even grow in Brazil; nor is it grass at all It consists of strips of palm leaf, and is chiefly imported from Cuba.

Whale-bone is no bone at all; nor does it possess any properties of bone. It is a substance attached to the lower jaw of the whale, and seems to strain the water, which the creatures takes up in large mouthfuls.

Sealing wax is not wax at all; nor does it contain a single particle of wax It is made of shellac, venice turpentine, and cinnabar. Cinnabar gives it the deep red color, turpentine renders the shellac soft and less brittle.

Burgundy pitch is not pitch, nor is it manufactured or exported from Burgundy. The best is a resinous substance, prepared from common frankincense, and brought from Hamburg; but by far the largest quantity is a mixture of rosin and palm oil.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

Will Young Men Take Warning?

[From The Nevada Tribune, April 13.]

We have repeatedly warned the young men of Carson City to eschew bad company, strong drinks and gambling. The case now before them should act as a warning and we earnestly trust that it may be productive of good. A bright young fellow, the son of a most estimable mother, the child of many hopes and prayers, has fallen—lost his status in society and nearly broken a mother's loving heart and sadly disappointed his many friends, and why? Because, instead of following the example of an estimable brother, he has associated with hoodlums, frequented the saloons and gambling houses and lived far beyond his means.

Young men of Carson, we charge you to steer clear of the rock on which one one bright boy has struck Recollect that you are Americans; recollect that your future is in your own hands, either to mar or make honorable; recollect that as you sow, so must you reap; recollect that loving friends are anxiously watching your early manhood Pause before entering dens of iniquity "Stop and think, before you further go, nor linger trembling on the brink of everlasting woe" We shall not be dubbed "Good Deacon" for nothing We have an abiding interest in the rising generation of this town. In no city or town can more capable young men and boys be found, but we tremble when we see them standing on the verge of destruction.

To this end we have so persistently advocated the establishment of a reading room, debating club, theatrical association and other places of amusement and recreation for the growing youth of our town. For the present we conclude this sermon by requesting our good citizens to do all their means will permit to aid in the support of the society now forming. Nothing will do so much towards saving the youth of our town from shame and disgrace as the organization of a club that shall induce them to study and improve their minds. To save the youth from destruction should be the determination of every parent and good citizen.

Good Habits.

Remember, boys, before you are 21 you must establish a character that will serve you through all your life. As habits grow stronger every year, any turning into a new path is more and more difficult; therefore it is often harder to unlearn than to learn, and on this account a famous flute player used to charge double price to those pupils who had been taught before by a poor master. Try and reform a lazy, unthrifty or drunken person, and in most cases you fail; for the bad habit, whatever it is, has so wound itself into life that it cannot be uprooted. The best habit of all is the habit of care in the formation of good habits.

Hard to Decide.

A very knotty question has been raised at Toulouse, France. An oyster opener of that place, in filling a small order for immediate consumption, found in one of the oysters a magnificent pearl worth several thousand dollars She promptly put the pearl in her pocket, but the person who ordered the oysters insisted that it was his. The claim he makes is that shells, juice, oyster and everything in the shells belonged to him when he bought the oyters, and he has asked the law courts so to decide.

—Foreigners do not appear to understand our people. This was particularly the case with an Englishman in a Missouri town car the other day, when a female passenger with a market basket in her lap suddenly jumped up, shrieked "O, Heavens," and plunging her head full tilt against his shirt front, begged him to "jab" his hand down her back and "yank that bug out."

—One friend to another, who has just returned from a trip abroad: "Did you enjoy your European tour?" "Very much, indeed." "Did you call on any of the big ones?" "Yes; I called on two queens one evening." "Called on two queens? Was it a pleasant affair?" "No, not very; for after I called I found the other chap had three kings"

Amateur Mechanics.

[From The American Builder.]

A good thing to give a boy is a chest of tools They should be of the best quality, just as good as the market affords. It is surprising what progress he will make in a little time in learning how to use them, what amusement they will afford him, and the possible benefit the knowledge he acquires may be to him in after-life. Just now it is quite the fashion to work in wood. In city homes, even, delicate ladies are learning the art of wood-carving, and thousands of beautiful ornaments are made with the fret-saw. There is fair prospect of a genuine revival of the art of wood-carving, and it is not improbable that, long ere the century closes, we may rival the works of the old masters of this noble art; and the best work may be done, too, by those who were born to a life of leisure, who took it up and pursued it from sheer love of it.

But mechanical tools furnish a delightful means of recreation for adults, for people whose brains are overtaxed, and a well-equipped workshop is something worth having. A friend of ours, an ex judge and a lawyer of note, surprised us, not long since, while on a visit at his house, by an exhibition of this kind. With the exception of a forge, the shop was very complete. There were lathes for turning wood and iron, drills, chisels, and almost every kind of tool for working in wood, all in fine order, and systematically arranged And the judge had made good use of them. Every room in his house bore testimony to his industry and mechanical skill. There were picture frames, easels, and tables that could be folded up—we wish we had made a drawing of one of the most ingeniously constructed—and scores of articles useful and ornamental; and all this the result of play not of work.

The celebrated Dr. John Todd, a sketch of whose life has just been issued by the Harpers, was quite a noted example of the amateur mechanic, although there is no evidence that he achieved very much skill; he was rather more of a tinker than workman, at least so we judge from the account given in his life. His shop, however, was a very elaborate affair, and contained a wonderful variety of appliances for executing mechanical work. He was a clergyman, and fine tools were his hobby, and his parishioners knew his weak point, and so contributed to his collection; besides, he did not spare time or money, himself, in securing them. These amateurs sometimes go to great lengths when once they are thoroughly in earnest. Dr. Todd, it is said, would spend days, and travel many blocks, when in New York, in search of some new tool for his shop. And he was very methodical, kept all in perfect order, and could place his hand on any article he wanted, even in the dark. It is a very entertaining picture given of this hard working clergyman going from his sermon to his shop, and from his shop back to his sermon; the one work, and the other play; and the play of the shop entered into in order that he might make the better sermon.

Tools can be collected just as we collect books and pictures; it is not necessary to purchase all we require at once. The first thing required is to find some place for them—some room where they can be kept under lock and key; for, let it be understood, when they become public property of the household they lose edge and place. The room should be large enough for a work-bench, one or two lathes, and a portable forge; the latter is by no means an unimportant item if the shop is to be well equipped, and it takes up but little room. An amateur can soon learn many tricks of smithing by careful observation, and the art is a very handy one; for it is not convenient to go in search of a smith when a cold chisel or a drill requires tempering. There is no mystery whatever about working steel, if one is careful to never heat it beyond a cherry red; and any boy can learn how to temper a tool. The modern portable forge is well worthy of the consideration of all who work with edge-tools, and should be considered indispensable to the wood-working mechanic where he has not ready access to the smith.

The brain worker will find health of body, as well as amusement, in turning his attention to mechanical work; and if he is possessed of any degree of ingenuity, it will soon have a fascination for him. It will give him rest from the distracting cares of professional life. On the other, the mechanic finds recreation in books and the mental activity they inspire. Work and play are but relative terms after all, as it is well if we can obtain recreation in some way that will be of practical use to us.

—Brown came home late the other night, says Hobokus, and Mrs. Brown, looking out of the bed room window, observed, "So you've been tipping the glass again, have you?" "Glass," said Brown, "(hic) 'ts a funny word; take off the 'G' and it's you, my dear." "Yes," answered Mrs. B., "and then take off the 'L' and it's you, you wretch," and she slammed the window down with a bounce.

—There is a bird in Peru to which the natives have given the beautiful name of alma perdida (the lost soul), whose cry is exceedingly melancholy; the first note is shrill and long, and is followed by three more of the same length, but gradually deepening in tone. The Peruvians say it is bewailing the dead.

To Take the Rust off a Plowshare.

Take a quart of water and pour slowly into a half a pint of sulphuric acid. The mixture will become warm from chemical action; put it on the iron and let it remain there until it evaporates. Then wash it again. The object of this is to give the acid time to dissolve the rust. Now wash with water, and you will see where the worst spots are. Apply some more acid, and rub on those spots with a brick. The acid and scouring will remove most of the rust. Then wash the mold board thoroughly with water to remove the acid, and rub it dry. Brush it over with petroleum or other oil till used.

Glass Cement.

A cement to stop cracks in glass vessels, to resist moisture and heat, is made by dissolving casein in a cold saturated solution of borax. With this solution paste strips of hog's or bullock's bladder, softened in water, on the cracks in the glass, and dry at a gentle heat. If the vessel is to be heated, coat the bladder on the outside, just before it has become quite dry, with a paste of rather concentrated solution of soda and quicklime or plaster of paris.

Had Two of Them.

A young fellow whose wife had just presented him with a bouncing pair of twins, attended church on Sunday. During the discourse, the clergyman looked at our innocent friend directly, and said in a tone of thrilling eloquence, "Young man, you have an important responsibility thrust upon you." The newly fledged father, supposing the preacher referred to his peculiar home event, considerably startled the audience by exclaiming, "Yes, sir; I have two of them."

Official Composition.

The following was found tacked to a tree in Tulare City: "Notice is here given to Eny person or persons wanting to tie horsis or anemals of eny kind to this tree that it is a violation of the town laws, and J D Trainer the martiel will if found tied here to this tree take it away and put the same in the town pound this May 25, 1875."

Natural Reasoning.

Three or four Detroit girls were the other day discussing the character and standing of a certain young man, and an old lady was a close listener. One of the girls finally remarked:

"Wel, I guess he is rich, for I saw him coming out of a bank the other day."

"And I guess he drives a street-car," put in the old lady, "for I saw him jump off a car one day last week."

—He used to cramp his feet up in little boots, and limp painfully to her residence every Saturday evening; but the morning after he was married he went into a shoemaker's, drew a chalk line around his big foot, about an inch distant from it on both sides and at the heel and toe, and ordered the man to make him a pair of boots after that pattern. Oh, there's sweet liberty, there's balmy and boundless freedom in the marriage state, of which sore heeled and distorted bachelors have no conception.

—The dentists will have more fun now. As an adjunct to the whirring machine which bores into the tooth and fills the patient with a sensation as of being swiftly ground up, one of them in Philadelphia has invented an instrument that works with a battery and does the plugging. It delivers several hundred blows a minute, and the feeling of the poor wretch in the chair may well be imagined.

—A lawyer interrogating a rough witness in a Court said: "Do you believe in the existence of God?" "I don't know," was the reply. "Do you admit the divinity of Christ?" "No o," was the hesitating response; "I don't know nothing about Christ." "Do you mean to say," said the lawyer, seriously, "that you never heard of Jesus Christ?" "Wal," said the witness, "the fac' is, pard, that I jest cum up from Lower California, and I hain't had no chance to meet any of the people in these parts."

—A pretty little Ohio schoolmarm tried to whip one of her pupils, a boy of fifteen, the other day, but when she commenced operations he coolly threw his arms around her neck and gave her a hearty kiss. She went straight back to her desk, and her face was "just as red."

—The good Mr. Dana is not jealous; and yet he remarked somewhat maliciously last Sunday, after a visit to Plymouth Church: "I am better posted in one minute on the atmosphere of the soul than Hank Beecher is in twenty years, and I'll bet money on it"

—Bret Harte's story of "The Fool of Five Forks" has been translated into Russian under the title of "The Foolski of Five ff Forkovitch." This must make Bretoff Harteski feeloff proudovitch.

—The Golden Era tells this: "Now, Spriggins, my dear," said Mrs. Spriggins at the theater during the first intermission, "you needn't go out to get any coffee, for I have half a pound in my pocket."

—John Morrissey says that Schenck will have to retire to private life, and adds, "But I would rather play Bob's game of poker than to be President of the United States for three terms."

—"How cross you look whenever you sigh," said a querulous lover to his sweetheart. She burst into tears and said that was the first time she'd ever been called a cross sighed girl.

Pacific Coasters.

F. F. Session has been appointed Gauger for the First District of California.

The Virginia Chronicle says that "Doc" Shaw, a sport well known in Virginia and Gold Hill, and this country generally has been sentenced to imprisonment for life in England. The nature of the offence is not mentioned.

The Carson Tribune learns that a coal deposit has been discovered near Verdi, Washoe county, that bids fair to surpass all coal discoveries heretofore made on the Pacific Coast.

A scouting party of 44 mounted men, under Capt. Whiteside, left Camp Lowell, Arizona, a few days since, with 20 days rations to protect settlers in Santa Cruz Valley and Chircahua mountains.

The British ship Lotus, carrying over $600,000 in treasure, principally silver, sailed from San Francisco for China on the 12th.

Statutes representing Peter, Paul and the four evangelists are to be erected in the new Catholic Church at Los Angeles.

The San Francisco dentist have resolved not to receive trade-dollars at more than ninety per cent. of their face value.

James Crawford, Superintendent of the Carson Mint, has received a dispatch from Mint Director Linderman, stating that the necessary appropriation for the support of that institution has been agreed on.

A shipment of 150 boxes of Messina, Sicily, oranges has just arrived in San Francisco overland. It is the first shipment of the kind which has ever reached here. The fruit is in excellent condition. It bears a very close resemblance to the Los Angeles orange—so close that it would be difficult for an expert to detect any difference.

C. A. Pine, Postmaster at Rio Vista, has absconded leaving folks to wonder and get excited.

The Chinese firms of San Francisco, April 10, made up a purse of $500 for the Pacific Coast Centennial fund and gave it to W. S. O'Brien, the President, who returned an appropriate letter of thanks.

D. D. Chandler, the absconding clerk of the paymaster at Prescott, was captured at Cottonwood by Under Sheriff Mayfield, of San Bernardino, on the 8th. He has been turned over to deputy U. S. Marshal J. D. Dunlap, who will proceed with him to Ehrenberg where he will be met by U. S. Marshal F. B. Parker, of Arizona. Ghandler takes the situation coolly.

Two station-keepers, Rogers and Spence, have been murdered by Indians at Sulphur Springs, twenty-six miles from Camp Bowie, Arizona.

The $10,000,000 in silver bullion which Flood & O'Brien intend to exhibit at the Centennial would make a solid block ten feet long, ten feet thick, and eight and one-tenth feet high, containing 810 cubic feet. and would weigh nearly 294½ tons.

The World of Fashion.

We have received "Burdett Smith's Monthly World of Fashion, Fine Arts and Polite Literature." It is valuable not only for its informantion respecting the fashions of which it is a complete mirror, but for the variety and excellence of its literary contents. Great inducements are offered in the way of coin premiums to persons getting up clubs. The subscription price is $3 00 per year. Send to 914 Broadway, New York.

Not Regarded with Favor.

The Central Pacific railroad proposition of compromise is not generally regarded with favor in Congress. Pacific Coast members especially criticise the feature which provides that the Government shall buy back all the worthless lands in Nevada and Utah at $2 50 an acre. This offer does not extend to lands in California.

The Cause of Dana's Rejection.

The cause of Dana's rejection was not the charge of literary piarcy or resentment of his Boutwell letter. He would have been confirmed despite these, except for the conviction that the letter under the circumstances, indicated the want of good temper essential to a successful diplomat.

Referred.

The bill to extend the Lassen county desert land law to this and other counties was discussed in Congress, the other day, and on motion of Page, was recommitted to the Land Committee, to be modified in some particular. The the chances are good for the bill to become a law.

Satirical.

Dana, of The New York Sun, is a satirical cuss. He says in reference to Dana's rejection as Minister to England: "It is an honor to be rejected by the same Senate which confirmed Billings as District Judge of Louisiana."

The First.

The first white child born in Virginia city—Virginia Tilton—reached her sixteenth birthday on the 1st of the present month, having been born in 1860. —[Gold Hill News, April 7th.

Look out for that girl. She'll fool somebody.

TO BE VOTED UPON.

Two bills were passed by the last Legislature not requiring Executive approval. These have reference to the Constitution. The first is Farley's bill providing for submitting to the people at the next election for members to the Legislature, the question of calling a Constitutional Convention. The second is Haymond's bill, as amended by the Senate Judiciary Committee, providing for the submission of two articles amending the Constitution. These two articles relate to elections and the Judiciary. The latter is by far the most important, as under it the whole judicial system is changed. The Supreme Court is increased to seven members, County Courts are abolished, and District Courts substituted therefor, with jurisdiction in probate, civil and criminal business, one for each county in the State, except in counties above 20,000 population, when courts are established on the basis of one to each 20,000 inhabitants. The two amendments embodied in Haymond's amended bill, having now passed two Legislatures, requires only to be voted upon by the people for ratification. The other propositions introduced during the last session for amending the Constitution were not acted upon and consequently dropped through.

Bristow and Grant.

A St. Louis dispatch says: It is stated by a well-informed party that during the Babcock trial Bristow suspected Grant of an intention of shielding Babcock at all hazards. When, in November, Grant and Babcock visited St. Louis ostensibly to look after Grant's farm, half a dozen whisky indictments were then waiting trial, and Bristow confidentially informed Henderson that his (Grant's) visit was a mere excuse to bring Babcock, Joyce and McDonald together without exciting suspicion, in order that Babcock might be protected. Bristow informed the Government prosecutors freely as to his suspicions, and spies were actually placed on the President's tracks Bristow knew Babcock was guilty and that Grant would go all lengths to shield him. The spectacle of a Cabinet officer dogging the President is without precedent and ought to involve one or the other in indelible disgrace.

The Commandments.

In speaking of monumental honors which were to be represented on the grand Lincoln-Emancipation Monument in Washington City, The Baltimore Gazette suggested that Grant be represented as "Honoring his father and mother, and his brothers and his wife's relations and his father-in-law unto the third and fourth generation, that his term may be four years longer in the land which he considers the Lord has given him." Mr. Dan. Sickles shall represent, "Thou shalt not do murder." Mr. Beecher, "Thou shall not commit adultery." It says, "Almost any prominent Republican will do for 'thou shall not steal.'"

Army Officer's Pay and Indians.

A Washington special says that if the three bills regulating the pay of army officers, reducing the force, and transferring the Indian service to the army, become laws, a saving of nearly seven million dollars will be effected in the army estimates, besides over one million in the appropriations for the Interior Department. There will be a strong opposition in both Houses to all these bills, but particularly to the transfer of the Indians, because in this matter Senators must sacrifice patronage, and politicians and lobbyists must lose one of the greatest sources, of corruption, extravagance and favoritism.

Something Else to Worry About.

Lots of people in San Francisco, both small traders and workers, say that the silver question is a greater evil now than the Chinese question. It is disarranging all calculations, affecting all values, and creating confusion generally. San Francisco wouldn't be happy if she didn't have something to worry about. For awhile it looked as if she had something that would last in the China question, but gives way to the silver discount, and soon they will have something in the place of that.

About Jeopardizing.

The San Francisco Chronicle decides thus: "Trade dollars are as good as gold for all debts or demands not exceeding five dollars; and any person refusing to receive them at par for such debts or demands simply jeopardizes any claim for the payment of which they may be tendered." If any one thinks THE INDEPENDENT will "jeopardize" we would advise them by all means to test the matter right now.

The San Luis Gazette.

We are in receipt of the first number of a paper just started at San Luis Obispo, T. R. Garnier, publisher and proprietor. It is above average in general get up—quite artistic in fact.

News Items.

April 14, the anniversary of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, being a legal holiday in the District of Columbia, was celebrated by the unveiling of the Lincoln Statue and a parade by the colored population. The statue is of bronze, twelve feet high, and resting on a pedestal ten feet high.

The charge publised in some papers that Charles O'Conor, while pretending to serve Mrs. Forrest gratuitously in the infamous Forrest divorce suit, actually exacted from her a very large sum for his services, is indignantly denied by O'Conor, who asks an investigation by the Bar Association.

The Secretaries of War and State and the Naval Corps have gone to New York to await the arrival of Dom Pedro, Emperor of Brazil. United States steamers Minnesota and Alert have been detailed to receive him. Big Pete will be all the rage in New York.

W. O. Avery, the whisky fraud, was sentenced to two years in the Missouri State Prison and $1,000 fine. Gen. John McDonald has been sentenced by Judge Treat in the U. S. District Court to three years in the Penitentiary and $5,000 fine.

A bill has been introduced in the Senate providing for a new dollar, half-dollar and quarter, to be made of forty per cent gold and sixty per cent silver.

Kansas is greatly rejoiced over the decision of the Osage cede land case in favor of the settlers.

A. T. Stewart, the great New York merchant, died, a few days ago, at his residence in the City of New York.

The Emma mine investigation goes on day by day, the witnesses contradicting each other with great industry.

The bill reducing the President's salary is about to be vetoed by Grant.

The Washington Committee on Elections has determined to oust two sitting Republicans and give their seats to Democrats.

General Dix is to be nominated for the English mission,

Floods equal to the inundations of 1851 and 1858 are feared in Iowa and through the Mississippi and Missouri States.

It now seems that Mrs. Roddy's testimony does not connect Robeson in any manner with the ship ventilating apparatus.

The late census of Philadelphia shows a population of 814,480.

The New York Sunday Citizen has a report that Wm. M. Tweed has bought a house in Havana and is living there.

The Herald's Washington correspondent thinks Babcock's connection with the safe burglary case has taken a favorable turn for him.

Steamboat.

We are informed by Mr. D. Higgins, of Mason Valley, that parties have been inspecting Walker Lake with a view of putting on a steamer. The utilizing of that splendid body of water would supply one of Esmeralda's greatest needs—it would connect the county by means of the traffic. Under the present management the mails run partly in California and partly in Nevada, leaving all the northern part of the county to the east and all mail matter for Mason Valley must go around by Wadsworth to be carried back to that point. The freight teams hence to Wadsworth leave Mason Valley to the west, and so—the northern part of the county being agricultural, and the southern portion depending almost entirely on its mineral resources—there is very little community of interest now existing between the two sections of Esmeralda county. No enterprise yet spoken of would do so much toward uniting the interests of the county as this steamboat project. Once let the business of the county be carried through the county, and a better feeling will soon prevail.—[Borax Miner.

War Indications.

The news from the Mexican border published in our dispatches yesterday morning created a vast amount of comment in this city. The belief appeared to be quite general that a war would before long break out between the United States and Mexico, and that perhaps it would not be the worst thing for the former that could happen. Should such an event occur, an army of quite respectable dimensions could doubtless be raised in California and Nevada in short order from the class of residents at present anxious for something to turn up, and who would be willing to take a trip to Mexico in the hope of securing something desirable in the shape of mining claims, with a prospect of receiving in the future, to be handed down to their children, a bronze medal as big as a mud turtle.—[Sacramento Union, April 12.

A New Route.

The Silver City Mining Reporter, in an article on a proposed new route from Dayton to Columbus, Esmeralda county says: Mr. Cluggage, well known as a mail contractor at Belmont, and on different Nevada and California routes, is very favorably impressed with the enterprise, and has sent word to the Dayton people that, if everything goes ahead speedily, he will at once perfect arrangements to place a line of stages through from Columbus to Dayton as soon as the route is passable. The telegraph line is considered as certain, and will probably be commenced so soon as the surveys are agreed upon.

Brainard's Musical World.

The April number of this popular musical magazine is received, and is better than ever. Forty pages of elegant new music and interesting reading matter are given in each number of The Musical World and it is furnished to subscribers at the low price of $1 50 per annum. The Publishers also offer to send The World on trial, four months for fifty cents, containing at least $10 worth of music. Take our advice and send for it, if you are a lover of music. D. Brainard's Sons, Cleveland, Ohio.

One Slander Silenced.

We are glad to silence one slander against General Schenck. It is this story that he came away from England without waiting upon the Queen and making his official adieus. He met her Majesty as he was streaking it down to the ship. "By-by Vicky," he said cheerily, "I'm o-p-h." "Well, so long, Bobby," the dear old girl replied, and they parted friends. — [Burlington Hawkeye.

—Wishing to pay his friend a compliment, a gentleman remarked: "I hear you have a very industrious wife." "Yes," replied the friend, with a melancholy smile, "she's never idle. She is always finding something for me to do."

Our Benton Letter.

BENTON, April 18, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Providence is smiling upon our people, and is bestowing upon us, with a lavish hand, extremely fine weather—a happy mean between heat and cold, but still our chronic grumblers (for we have such animals.) manifest a spirit of discontent, and denounce the weather as being too warm to suit their delicate organizations.

TRAVEL.

Within the past two weeks there has been quite a rush to this town; the arrivals being principally from the southern country. This rush has been induced by the news of the sale of Albert Mack's mining property to the present company. The management of the affairs of the present company is known to be in the hands of men who will bring a vast amount of experience and capital to assist them in the prosecution and development of their mining interests; and it is naturally supposed that they will give employment to at least twice the number of workmen formerly engaged. In consequence of this rush, our hotels are doing a lively business. Anticipating an increase of permanent and transient custom, they had the business sagacity to increase their hotel accomodations accordingly.

COMANCHE.

This new company has incorporated with a capital stock of $200,000. The officers of the company are as follows: Gen. Dodge, President; John A. Howell, Superintendent; Heydenfeldt, Boyd and Wm. Wetherill, Directors.

DIANA.

This company is still doing well, and is adding materially to the prosperity of the town. The mill has been shut down for a few days for repairs, and is now waiting the arrival of a supply of chemicals preparatory to re-commencing operations. The mine is looking well and yielding a superior quality of ore in paying quantities.

SAD AFFAIR.

On the night of the 15th instant, an altercation took place between Robert Commons and E. P. Robinson, both residents of this town, by which A. W. Abbott, an innocent and highly respected citizen, lost his life. It appears that an old feud existed between Commons and Robinson on account of a severe chastisement the former received at the hands of the latter some time since. Last Saturday, the belligerent parties appear to have been considerably under the influence of the "crooked," and meeting about midnight the altercation took place, during which Commons was beaten on the head with a six-shooter, by Robinson. Commons then went off, armed himself, and returned; when from the evidence it appears that Robinson fired the first shot. Abbott, who was present, attempted to separate them—and while in the act of leading Robinson off, was shot and instantly killed. The ball entered the left side and passed through the body—lodging in the coat pocket. A Coroner's inquest was held and a verdict rendered to the effect that the deceased came to his death by a pistol shot wound, at the hands of a person unknown, but supposed to be Robert Commons. The deceased was a man of a peculiar temperament—of a rather hasty disposition, and of reserved manners; but generous and honorable—to borrow the expression of a friend, "an every day gentleman." His remains were taken charge of by Jas. Shaw—deceased's cousin—and will be interred at Bishop Creek. No better eulogy need be pronounced upon him than that he lost his life while trying to prevent bloodshed. Commons is in jail awaiting a hearing and suffering greatly from the wounds on his head.

DRUNKEN INDIANS.

Formerly it was quite a rarity to witness a drunken Indian, but now it is becoming a frequent occurence and quite a nuisance. In this connection I will state as a postive fact, that there is not a saloon keeper in Benton who would knowingly furnish liquor to Indians, either directly or indirectly. It is the work of some miserable scrub who, devoid of all feeling, would sacrifice all principle of manhood in this nefarious business. Efforts are being made to discover the guilty parties, and if caught will receive just deserts.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS.

The prospects for our prosperity are indeed encouraging. Mrs. Clausen, of Partzwick, is about to open a new hotel in this town. Wm. Harbin is erecting a dwelling house on Centre street. He has also purchased the Latham property on the same street—said property consisting of a commodious blacksmith and wheelright shop.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES.

Sheriff Patterson, of Bridgeport, was in town....J. M. Meredith, of Aurora, has returned to Benton....T. K. Hutchison and Birchim, of Bishop were in town on business....W. P. George has arrived and is employed to defend Commons....J. C. Mitchell and J. A. Creaser have gone to Bridgeport to attend the District Court.... P. W. Bennett, of Independence, made us a flying visit last week....Time and space forbid any complimentary notice of the McGinley variety troupe which played here four nights. MINION.

Conkling and Blaine.

The personal dispute between Mr. Conkling and Mr. Blaine, which is of old standing, has been envenomed by the success of Blaine's friends in wounding Conkling in the very heart of his own convention. Mr. Conkling now gives out that he will not consent to a reconciliation with Blaine until Blaine gets up in the House and publicly declares that in calling Conkling a "turkey-cock" he meant no disrespect to either party—none to Conkling, because the turkey cock was recommended by Franklin as our national symbol, and none to the turkey-cock, because it is agreed on all hands that Conkling is the beauty of the Senate.—[N. Y. World.

The Northern Belle.

A dividend of $1 per share, making the eleventh of the series, and aggregating $50,000 has been declared by the Northern Belle Mill and Mining Company, payable on Saturday, April 15th. With the payment of the present dividend, Northern Belle will have disbursed $550,000—an exhibit which speaks volumes for the Columbus District. This District includes among its prominent and promising mines the Northern Belle, General Thomas, Metallic, Belleville and Monte Diablo.—[Stock Report, April 11th.

One Drop at a Time.

Have you ever watched an icicle as it formed? You noticed how it froze, one drop at a time, until it was a foot long or more. If the water was clear, the icicle remained clear and sparkling brightly in the sun; but if the water was but slightly muddy, the icicle looked foul, and its beauty was spoiled. Just so our characters are forming; one little thought or feeling at a time adds its influence. If each thought be pure and right, the soul will be lovely and sparkle with happiness; but if impure and wrong, there will be wretchedness.

Washington Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 6, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS: What a day will bring forth no one can tell and this is most particularly true of Washington and of the Tower of Babble. New investigations are being ordered every day and the prayer of the newspaper men is now "give us this day our daily investigation," bread and meat and food of the finest from Welckers are included in that prayer. The last proposition of this kind comes from Blackburn, of Kentucky, who proposes to investigate where President Grant does his official business. I suppose the object is to prevent Grant from going to Long Branch in the Summer. They ought to go back and investigate the bones of Washington, Adams and Jefferson who each spent the Summers at their homes—or of Jackson who spent his at the Rip Raps which by the then modes of conveyance was further from Washington than New Orlean is now. This investigation business is getting to be a farce of the broadest kind. One of the clerks of a house committee has been accused of doing something while an agent of the Freedman's Bureau in Texas—it was some time before the flood I believe, and now that clerk is being investigated. Who the devil cares what that clerk, his name is Boughton, did? The people are tired of this thing and the Democrats need no more hope to make a platform and a canvass upon "investigations" than the Republicans can upon waving the ensanguined under garment that Morton has adopted as his banner. The people know that there has been corruption in office—they know that laws have been violated, but they do not believe that every official in the Government is a thief, nor will they regard success in thief taking as the only qualification for office.

The brilliant light that shines like a new star from the dome of the tower, announced that the babblers, or at least part of them were assembled. I concluded to see them by gas light and calling my carriage, (it runs on rails in the centre of the street and charges a nickle to transport any one), I went up to the tower. A few of the babblers were collected in one wing of the tower and they said for the purpose of discussing an appropriation bill. I sat down expecting to hear great chunks of financial wisdow thrown out for the delectation of the members, but instead I heard, repeated some of the old hackneyed political speeches—"we are the salt of the earth," said the Republicans; "we are a city set upon a hill" responded the Democrats. And so it went. A calm survey of the surroundings, from a strictly don't-care-a—stand point in politics convinced me that if the lights of both parties were "hidden under a bushel measure," the country would be no loser. Wisdom about finance, appropriation or anything else put before that body would have been "casting pearls before swine." I left disgusted more than ever with the babblers.

The long haired Custar, the gentleman of the army who has made a great reputation for fighting Indians and who played toady to the Russian Grand Duke Alexis when he was here, has been quite prominent for some days past in the city. He testified before a committee and stated some facts as to one General E. W. Rice. The next day Rice published a card, over his full name, in The National Republican denouncing Custar's testimony as false and calling him a liar. Custar has acquired great prominence by promptly letting Rice alone. His prudence is generally commended.

Hallet Kilbourne is still in jail. He had an order on Freund, the house caterer for his food while confined and he has been living in style. In fact he has played an expensive joke on the House. His breakfast and dinner last Sunday cost $21 20, exclusive of wines. His bill has averaged $18 per day during his confinement and the House kicks against paying it and propose to confine Kilbourne hereafter to prison fare.

Mr. Lyde, of Wisconsin, was so lost to all ideas of sight and decency as to intimate in a resolution offered by him, that newspaper correspondents and editors could be bribed. He inquired of Secretary Bristow through his resolution to know how much, if any money, had been paid out of the treasury to editors and correspondents. Bristow promptly answered "nary red" and Lynde is squelched. He must have an idea that correspondents and editors are like ordinary Congressmen of his calibre, and can be bought to do somebody's dirty work.

The political situation in Europe is threatened with convulsions. The Emperor of Russia is about to give way to his son who is a bitter hater of Bismarck and the wise acres say that if he does, it will not be long before Russia and France will be allied to curb the German empire and enlarge both Russia and France. SAXON.

The Escape of Ames.

Governor Ames of Mississippi (son-in-law of Ben. Butler) recently went out of the rear door in a very humiliating sort of a way. Articles of impeachment had been presented and he was about to be tried. To avoid this trial there was an understanding that if he resigned all proceedings should be dropped. So Ames, and the Lieutenant-Governor, who was in the same dilemma, resigned, and the impeachment came to an end.

A Lucky Find.

A whitewash mine has been discovered in Missouri. The discovery is deemed most opportune and it is expected that the lucky finder will realize a handsome fortune by selling the product of this mine for political purposes.

A Competing Overland Road.

The San Bernardino Argus laments over the unpleasant situation of that city being "left out in the cold" in so far as railroad communication is concerned. As a remedy, that paper earnestly favors meeting San Diego "half-way" in forming a rail connection between the two cities. By the time (and even before) this road could be completed, the Los Angeles and Independence Railroad could be extended as far as San Bernardino. Then the three counties of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego would be equally interested in combining to push the road on to an overland connection. As the enterprise advanced Inyo county would also become greatly interested. And then Utah and the Union Pacific Railroad would lend material aid in hastening the junction. In fact, as soon as the demonstrations are such as to give confidence in a speedy success, aid would flow in from sources not now thought of. We hope the papers "all along the line" will keep this matter constantly before the people, for it is the only chance at present for Southern California to get an Eastern rail connection that is both competitive in its character and the special friend of this end of the State.—[Santa Monica Outlook, April 12th.

Arizona News.

Advices from Camp Bowie, up to Tuesday, say that Lieut. Henry, who went in pursuit of the Indians who murdered the station keepers at Sulphur Springs, overtook them at the San Pedro mountain, one hundred miles from Bowie, on the Sonora line, and after a sharp fight, owing to the exhaused condition of his command, was unable to dislodge the Indians, and retired with the loss of one man killed. Later reports state that the Indians have been reinforced and now number about sixty. No further depredations are reported. It is expected a large scouting party will soon start from Camp Grant and put an end to this trouble.—[Los Angeles Herald, April 15.

Soldiers' Homesteads.

This Land Office has received orders not to accept filings for additions to soldiers' homesteads as allowed heretofore to make up a full 160 acres after having been limited by a previous law to 80 acres of maximum lands (railroad even sections). The reason for the new order is that speculators were doing too much swindling as usual, getting all the $2 50 additional land, the soldiers little or none.

The L that is Conceded to Him.

The name of the President's brother is misprinted by some newspapers. The New York Times calls him Orville H. Grant; The Troy Times, Orville E.; The Utica Herald, Orville M. His name is Orvil L. Grant. Let no injustice be done to the man. Give him L. He deserves it.—[Utica Observer.

—Strange, Moore and Wright, three notorious punsters, met and dined together one day. After dinner Moore said, "There's one fool among us three and that's strange." "Oh," cried Wright, "there's one more." "Ah," said Strange, "that's right."

—"Some infernal idiot has put that pen where I can't find it!" growled old Asperity the other day, as he rooted about his desk. "Ah, um, yes; I thought so," he continued in a lower key, as he pulled the article from behind his ear.

—Los Angeles has a forest company organized for the cultivation of the Eucalyptus.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many friends who kindly gave their assistance to me and my family, during my late affliction and bereavement, I desire to return my heartfelt thanks. I accept their gentle ministrations as acts of kindness inspired by genuine feelings of sorrow, that, while it does not allay my grief, will leave its impress upon my heart throughout the remainder of my life. And to my many friends from a distance, who manifested their sympathy by attending at the last sad ceremonies, I offer my grateful acknowledgements—not forgetful of the debt of gratitude due to the living, while I mourn for the dead.

JAS. E. PARKER is authorized to transact any and all business pertaining to THE INYO INDEPENDENT, on behalf of the publishers.

A Railroad Land Case.

Col. Edwards, as attorney for the Southern Pacific Railroad Company, was here last week, in response to notification to parties from this Land Office to show cause why Dozier, a contestant for a certain homestead claim within railroad limits in Tehachapai valley should not be confirmed, therein. Dozier, with his witnesses, also appeared. The land officers were under instructions from the Commissioner to take testimony as to the contestant's (Dozier) qualifications as a pre-emptor, although he had never filed a pre-emption. He had lived upon the land since 1857, which was prior to the withdrawal from sale and setting off to the railroad. Subsequent to the withdrawal Dozier filed his homestead, which, unlike a pre-emption, gives no rights anterior to the date of filing. In that view of the case Dozier's long previous occupation of the land goes for naught, and the chances are the big monopoly will gather in his little home, like all others similarly circumstanced. No judgment was rendered, as Edwards asked twenty days in which to file a brief.

Man Shot at Benton.

"Veritas," writing from Benton on the 18th, gives us these particulars of a fatal occurrence there: "Last evening about 11 o'clock, E. P. Robinson and Robert Commons got to shooting at each other at the door of Dan Ashley's saloon, but without hitting each other. Unfortunately, a bystander, A. W. Abbott, was, however, struck by one of the balls near the heart, falling and dying without speaking a word. Deceased was 36 years of age, and a native of Barnet, Vermont. His killing was unintentional. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that deceased came to his death by a shot fired by Commons."

Going All Right.

At last accounts Broder's furnace, at Log Springs, continued to run very satisfactorily. Beck's team took on 80 bars at Big Pine last Tuesday, and returned here to finish loading with hides and wool. Connelly's team had to wait the arrival of more bullion, which has to be hauled across the mountain to that point in light teams, causing the delay. The furnace was turning out three or four bars an hour steadly. This is not rapid, but will do very well for a starter.

At Cerro Gordo.

John Simpson has got back to Cerro Gordo, and we believe, certainly very much hope, prepared to resume permanent work on that most promising enterprise, his Potosi tunnel. If any fellow deserves success for indomitable energy and pluck, that fellow is John Simpson. He is accompanied by some prominent mining man or other whose name we have not learned.

To Meet.

The District and County Courts and Board of Supervisors meet in regular terms a week from next Monday. A grand jury is being summoned, and will have several things to look after. There are about forty cases on the District Court calendar, a number of the Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce or continued, order; likely to be two or three murder and one or two slander suits to try.

Incorporated.

Col. Stevens' Cottonwood fluming property has been made the basis, as he told us a short time since it would be, of an incorporation with the title of the Inyo Lumber and Coal Company. The Directors are James B. Bond, H. M. Hale, E. J. Shipman, Gilbert J. Keyes and J. P. Moore. Capital stock, $500,000; principal place of business, San Francisco.

Got Back.

Paul Bennett got back early this week. He went no further north than Benton, the parties to the suit which was to require his presence at Bridgeport having very sensibly concluded to settle it without further recourse to the law. He speaks favorably of the outlook at Benton, for further particulars of which see our letter from that place.

For Road Commissioner.

A petition is being generally signed asking the Supervisors to appoint T. F. A. Connelly Road Commissioner under the new law. Connelly is engaged in general teaming, has no particular local interest to subserve, is energetic, knows what ought to be done and how to do it, and is the very best man we know of for the place.

In Respect.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Passmore took place last Sunday at the Post Cemetery. As evincing the high esteem in which she was held wherever known, the attendance was by far the largest we have witnessed in this place. Many friends from Lone Pine, Georges Creek and Olanche were present.

Patents.

Land patents for the following named parties have just come to hand at the Land Office, and are ready for delivery: M. L. Cook, Thos. Kirkwood, James Hines, Henry Merrick, S. C. Coltrin, W. T. Wiswall and Bernard Arambula.

Who Wants a Buggy and Team?

Dr. White offers a very desirable buggy outfit. See his advertisement.

Fisherman's Peak.

Last week, in speaking about the proposed reflecting globe for Fisherman's Peak we assumed that it would be in sight from the dome of the capitol at Sacramento. This assumption was from the fact that when in that city we have frequently noted a pile of jagged mountains far off to the southeastward which we supposed was this identical gronp. As the distance is much greater than we then thought it is obvious that we were wrong in both conclusions, as is clearly demonstrated in the following, for which we are indebted to Captain Macgowan, Post commandant, and the chief spirit in the commendable project. We quote:

The curvature of the earth is eight inches per mile. The altitude of Fisherman's Peak is 15,008.

The rule by which to determine the maximum distance at which it is possible (with powerful glasses) to distinguish an object is:

Reduce the altitude to inches, divide the product by 8, then find square root of that product. This will give the exact and extreme distance the summit of any given elevation may be seen, or brought in the plane of sight over the intervening upward curve of the earth, from sea level. When looking from an elevation to another, reduce altitude of both by same rule, and add final results together to obtain distance required. For example:

Fisherman's Peak has an altitude in round numbers of 15,000 feet, which multiplied by 12 and that product divided by 8 gives 22,500, the square root of which is 150, representing miles. Assuming the dome of the Capitol to be 600 feet [it is only about one-third that] by the same rule we obtain a final of 900, the square of which, representing miles, being 30. Add this to the 150 and we have the total distance, 180 miles.

Now, allowing the dome of the capitol to be as high as stated, it is still impossible to see from it the summit of this peak, the distance in an air line between the two being no less than 225 miles.

Fisherman's Peak can be seen from the following surroundings, taking sea level as the base, and over a wider area according to altidudes: All of Mono and Tuolumne counties, southeast corner of Stanislaus, west half of Merced, all of Fresno, southeast corner of Monterey, east third of San Luis Obispo, northeast corner of Santa Barbara, north corner of Ventura and north third each of Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, all in this State. In Nevada it is visible (elevation not considered) from southwest half of Nye, and south three quarters of Esmeralda counties.

With a reflecting globe, as proposed, it will be easily distinguishable from all these places and of course all the territory within that radius.

A Hurricane.

Last Tuesday about noon this place was almost completely shut out from the sunlight by clouds of dust and sand which swept in masses down the valley before the wind. Here in this particular locality the blow, though squally in character, never at any time got as violent as some northers we have had in former times; in fact but for the unusual clouds of dust it would scarce have been remarked. But up at the Post only two and a half miles distant one brief squall at least conveyed a fair idea of how one of those frequent tornadoes of the Mississippi valley can make things unpleasant. It blew down the flagstaff, all the fences, part of the corral, moved the large building used for quarters south about six inches besides snapping the inside braces like pipestems, tore up trees by the roots, picked up a heavy butter box and deposited it with force and precision squarely on top of the Captain's house, capping the climax by lifting bodily a heavy cart, an army wagon and ambulance, the latter clean over some posts six feet high, landing them bottom up and badly smashed in the corral. No one was hurt but it was the most stirring times the boys have enjoyed for a good while. Three years ago the mens' quarters was started two or three feet by a gale similar to this, in consequence of which extra braces were put in, and it was these which snapped this time.

Noted Lecturer to Visit Us.

A short time ago Honor Military Lodge, No. 4, I. O. G. T., invited Jabez Walker, Grand Worthy C. T. for the State of California, to pay the Lodges of this county another visit. He has just signified his acceptance, and expects to be here about the 17th of May. Let every Lodge and member of the order in the county be ready to receive and aid the G. W. C. T. as befits both his rank and personal worth, and also in the certainty that his labors are always for good.

Lieut. Clague.

The many friends of 1st Lieut. J. J. Clague, Co. D, 12th Infantry, will be pleased to know that he has been ordered to rejoin his company at this post, and, with his family, will be here in a few days. He has been on duty at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, since his departure from here, nearly a year ago.

Arrived.

Passmore & Co's artesian well boring machinery reached Lone Pine last week. The artesian well problem will now soon be in process of solution under the supervision of Jo. Seeley.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach in this place to-morrow evening, usual time and place. A general invitation is extended.

Sawmilling.

Jim Smith is making preparations to start up the Black Rock sawmill, and will probably be running by the 1st.

The Thief Caught.

We have the gratifying news that the postal thief, about whose operations we had occasion to refer to a few weeks ago has been caught. His name is Edgar Pierce, a young man of some 20 years, and for some time past clerk in the Carson Postoffice. U. S. Postal Agent Alexander, who passed through this place looking up the matter a few weeks ago, laid the trap which caught him. We are pleased at his success in detecting the thief, for the reason that by bringing the crime to the right door, it relieves any such suspicion as may have attached to other Postmasters against whom no previous wrong doing had ever been alleged or suspected. It is only a Postmaster here and there on the route who can possibly have any chance to rob registered letters. This fact only limits the number against whom suspicion may attach; but of itself furnishes no reliable clue to the real robber, leaving, so far as the public may know, all of these few equally liable to suspicion. The interesting young hoodlum clerk at Carson counted on this, and the consequent improbability of his own detection, and got very bold and reckless in consequence. It seems as though he never allowed any registered or other letter supposed to contain money to pass through his hands without appropriating its contents, and through the practice he got hold of some peculiar pieces of money and at such a juncture as will cause him a fine opportunity to repent of inside prison walls. It seems now that this particular young man has been an object of special interest to Postoffice detectives for some time past. Mr. Alexander, without giving us any intimation where the real culprit was, assured us of his conviction that it was at no office anywhere in this region—of which assurance, or even of his visit, we, for obvious reasons could then make no mention, notwithstanding it would have been a satisfaction to have done so. This Carson clerk, when arrested, took the matter very coolly, flippantly saying, "Well, let them prove that I got the money." Referring to this matter, Deacon Parkinson, of The Nevada Tribune preaches a short sermon to young men which we reproduce on the outside of this issue, believing its sentiments to be well worth the attention of many young men, and old ones, too, for the matter of that. But recurring to the main question, young Pierce got something near a hundred dollars from letters registered in this Postoffice during the week following the 20th of February, and, at other times, much more in the aggregate from other officers in this county. This is a money order office, but for about ten days or so at that time in February was, through negligence of Department clerks, or delay by mail, without an order book, hence it was that registered letters were reverted to. We hear, but not very reliably, that most of the money recently stolen by the Carson clerk will be recovered.

The Celebration.

We have heard nothing further as to what the Lone Pine Fourth Committee propose to do, although we could not expect anything very definite as yet in the brief time since the organization. We suggest, however, decisive action as soon as may be upon that point. H. C. Wright and others up the country who proposed to get up a celebration at the Taboose, as mentioned last week, will willingly forego all that, provided Lone Pine will make it a point to include horse racing as a part of the day's programme. To do this the offer of a liberal purse will be necessary. In that event every person from Round Valley southward specially interested in that class of of amusements, and very many others so interested in a general sense will be on hand. Without the offer of said purse the races and celebration will be put on elsewhere which circumstance will materially interfere in making that at Lone Pine as successful as it would otherwise be. The Fisherman's Peak enterprise goes in any event, and meets the approbation of every one we have heard express an opinion—and that was a good many.

McGinley's.

The McGinley troupe played in the Masonic Hall at this place Thursday and Friday nights to fair houses. They came in from the north, playing at Columbus and Benton en-route. Their advent here was not advertised in time to collect as large an audience as they really deserved, for they acquitted themselves very creditably and every one seemed well pleased with the entertainment. Master Bobby was a mere bub when they visited this place some six years since, and he has now become so skilled in the use of the violin that we doubt if he has a superior on the coast. Ethiopean comedy is his speciality. They will play in Lone Pine Sunday night and go thence to Darwin. Traveling in this country is so expensive and it is so seldom we are visited by a good company, that the McGinley troupe deserve success, which they will undoubtedly meet with south.

An April Snow-shoe Ride.

Very few, who have never crossed the Sierra Nevadas bordering on Inyo, can form an adequate conception of the perilous undertaking at any time before the bulk of the snow and ice has melted. This daring trip was made, however, a few days since, by Dan Cathy, who, starting from Merced on snow shoes—provided with blanket and lunch—dropped into Round Valley, this county, as if on the wings of love, or electricty. He made the dangerous ride in three days.

Raining.

Yesterday it rained here steadily pretty much all day. If it would do so about every two days all Summer it would possibly cause some less prospective trouble about water.

Expected.

Dr. Edwin Bentley, U. S. A., from San Francisco was expected here ere this to take the place of Dr. C. B. White, promoted some time since time since, and ordered to Columbus, Ohio. Dr. Bentley has the reputation of being the most thorough anatomist in the United States Army, and in other respects, will prove a most desirable acquisition for Inyo. Dr. White, and family, expect to start east about the 1st of May, possibly sooner....Superintendent Gray of the Kearsarge was to have been here some days ago to inaugurate operations at the mine, but probably on account of delays on the railroad to his furnace machinery from Cincinnati, has not arrived yet....Superintendent Reddy of the Defiance, is expected at Darwin from San Francisco now in a day or two.... Since the foregoing was in type we hear that Dr. Bentley, wife and child, have already arrived.

Preparing for Steam.

The Messrs. Eudeys, of the Eclipse, are putting in a boiler with which to furnish steam to the amalgamating pans. The later workings of the ore and bullion shipments have been slightly better than at any time previous, but working the pulp cold, which they have done from necessity rather than choice, causes a considerable loss of gold as is manifest from the rich assays of the tailings. It is possible some new and better machinery will be required before the tailing assays are brought as low as they should be, although the present method even produces a tolerably fair paying margin.

A Warning.

It is well to state for the information of all concerned that the new road tax, now assessed and collected the same as other taxes, becomes in the same way a lien upon the property of the tax payer, and consequently has to be paid. Moreover, that after the 1st of July it is raised from two to three dollars. All those parties who were assessed this season before this law went into effect will be held the same as others assessed since for this road tax, and will save expense by sending in the money before it becomes delinquent at the time stated.

Off.

Ex-County Clerk M. W. Hammarstrand bid his numerous friends here a final adieu this week having started on his proposed visit to his old home in Sweden. He thinks he will come back some time or other. W. J. Lake accompanied him down the road, both intending to take a look at some mines lying off towards the Colorado of which they have considerable hopes. Hope to see Mr. H. among us again ere long and in any event he has our best wishes

Changed Hands.

Havey, or "Pap" Russell has purchased his brother William's interest in the Bishop Creek flouring mill property and is now we believe, sole proprietor. Pap was down here this week in connection with this transfer.

First Steamboat on the Hudson.

[From Harper's Magazine for April.]

The steamboat itself is a romance of the Hudson. Its birth was on its waters, where the rude conceptions of Evans and Fitch on the Schuylkill and Delaware were perfected by Fulton and his successors. How strange is the story of its advent, growth and achievements! Living men remember when the idea of steam navigation was ridiculed. They remember, too, that when the Clermont went from New York to Albany without the use of sails, against wind and tide, in 32 hours, ridicule was changed into amazement. That voyage did more. It spread terror over the surface of the river, and created wide alarm along its borders. The steamboat was an awful revelation to the fishermen, the farmers and villagers. It came upon them unheralded. It seemed like a weird craft from Plutos realm—a transfiguration of Charon's boat into a living fiend from the infernal regions Its huge black pipe vomiting fire and smoke, the hoarse breathing of its engine and the great splash of its uncovered paddle wheels filled the imaginations with all the dark pictures of goblins that romancers have invented since the foundation of the world. Some thought it an unheard of monster of the sea ravaging the fresh waters; others regarded it as a herald of the final conflagration at the day of doom. Managers of river-craft who saw it at night believed that the great red dragon of the Apocalypse was loose upon the waters. Some prayed for deliverance; some fled in terror to the shore and hid in the recesses of the rocks, and some crouched in mortal dread beneath their decks, and abandoned their vessels and themselves to the mercy of the winds and waves, or the jaws of the demon. The Clermont was the author of the most wonderful romances of the Hudson, and for years she was the victim of the enmity of the fishermen, who believed that her noise and agitation of the waters would drive the shad and sturgeon from the river.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

LITERARY.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove"

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Number, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

Mark Twain as a Reporter.

Mark Twain recently tried his hand writing up a distressing accident for a Boston local paper, and this is how he did it: Last evening about six o'clock, as William Schuyler, an old and respected citizen of South Park was leaving his residence to go down town, as had been his usual custom for many years, with the exception only of a short interval of 1850, during which he was confined to his bed by injuries received in attempting to stop a runaway horse by thoughtlessly throwing up his hands and shouting, which if he had done so even a moment sooner, must inevitably have frightened the animal still more instead of checking its speed, although disastrous enough to himself as it was, was rendered more melancholy and distressing by reason of the presence of his wife's mother, who was there and saw the occurrence, notwithstanding it is at least likely, though not necessarily so, that she should be reconnoitering in another direction, when incidents occur, not being vivacious and on the lookout, as a general thing, but even the reverse, as her mother is said to have stated, who is no more, but died in the full hope of a glorious resurrection upwards of three years ago, aged 86, being a Christian woman without guile, as it were in property in consequence of the fire of 1849, which destroyed every solitary thing she had in the world. But such is life. Let us all take warning by this solemn occurrence, and let us endeavor so to conduct ourselves that when we come to die we can do it. Let us place our hands upon our hearts, and say with earnestness and sincerity that from this day forth we will beware of the intoxicating bowl.

White Pine Outlook.

The News of April 8th gives this intelligence: From present appearances around us, in the way of contemplated furnace building, mill building and projected tunnel enterprises, all of which will be commenced as soon as the weather permits, we feel highly encouraged for the future of Hamilton and White Pine generally. The erection at Ward District of two large furnaces for the reduction of the rich carbonate ores of that district, and the building of a ten-stamp mill at Lake District for the working of the free ores produced in that place, also the two tunnel enterprises for piercing Treasure Hill, the immese wealth of which is well known—all these mining projects are in the hands of men who have both money and skill to put them through in shape, and being around Hamilton must prove highly beneficial in a business point of view to this county seat as well as the county of White Pine generally, and will give an impetus and value to the property about town which of late has been selling at the Court House door for delinquent taxes. Those who, by neglect or otherwise, have allowed this property to pass away from them by non-payment of taxes will see their mistake, we think before one year has passed by, and the property now looked upon by them as useless will be in demand at good prices. We have seen in Virginia City about the same state of things—from the Spring of 1860 to the fall of 1863 everything looked dark and gloomy and property had but little value; but as facilities for opening the mines were furnished and their development proved that there was something of real worth in the bosom of the earth, property began to advance and has now a staple value.

Essay on Fish.

The following essay on "Fish" The Boston Herald attributes to a Cambridge boy: "Fish live in the Atlantic Ocean, Charles River, and some in Buzzard's Bay. When they are small they are called codfish and herrin, and sich; but when they grow up they are called whales. The fat of whales is cut up and biled and made inter kerosense oil for gas light; their bones is made inter whalebone for ivory pianer keys and dominoes; also for jack-knives and horne bottons. I wish a whale would swallow my school teacher, you bet. Fish is alwas eat Friday—blame a fish, I hate em; there's too many bones ter pick out; I'd ruther eat a paper of pins fried in lard, you bet."

FOUR-IN-HAND OF WHALES.

Preparing to Drive Across the Ocean in the Three Days.

Capt. Elijah Williams is a weather-beaten old sailor who lives on the north shore of Long Island. For over thirty years he was engaged in the whalefishery, and was known as one of the most successful captains in the trade. He is a bachelor, and his homestead—which looks as weather beaten as himself—stands at the end of a creek, miles away from any habitation. "Old Elijah"—as he is called—is known to be eccentric, but some years ago when he put down a fence at the mouth of the creek and was seen in a little boat, all day long, talking to invisable beings in the water, the neighbors thought the old man crazy. Last summer a lady from the city determined to pay him a visit. Capt. Elijah at first threatened to put her off his farm, but after a while he took her down to the creek to show her his wonders, which would revolutionize sea traveling.

The lady followed the Captain, and without hesitation stepped into a little boat with him, and was soon in the middle of the stream. The Captain took his oars and blew his whistle, which immediately brought several monsters to the surface. The lady was so thoroughly frightened that she shrieked, and compelled the Captain to land her. As soon as her feet touched terra firma she ran home, and since then the people have verified the lady's statement, that the old man kept several large pets in the creek. Last Christmas the community of the North Beach were thrown in consternation by the report that the Captain had contracted with a ship-building firm in Port Jefferson for the construction of a vessel, to be built under the supervision of the Captain, and soon after the keel was laid, and the ribs of a curious construction became visable. The shipbuilder said that the Captain was "all right," but that the vessel would have neither steam or sails; that the Captain had discovered a power by which the vessel could be drawn to Liverpool in three days.

The Star reporter started for the Captain's farm, and walking down the north road found the old cabin hid away in a cluster of trees. No one answering the knocking at the front door, the reporter walked around the house and hearing voices in the barn went toward it, and on pushing open the door discovered an old man sewing on a large strip of leather.

The Captain said he had heard of Barnum training a seal, and why should.t we train the fish to pull us around on water as the horses did on land?

"You see," continued the Captain, "I must commence at the commencement. When I was a boy and made my first trip on a whaler I saw a boat pulled by a harpooned whale about as fast as I ever saw anything go. It made a deep impression on me, and I made up my mind if I ever became anybody, I would tame a whale the same as farmers tame a colt, and drive upon the sea. Many years passed, and I seen the same things many times, and have often been in a boat pulled along like lightning by one of them. On my return after a long cruise, I found that an old maiden aunt of mine had left me this farm and a little ready money. I soon after bought a share in a whaling ship, which I commanded until a few years since. One day I seen as how a man up East had caught a whale. That started me a going again. I went to New Bedford, and soon after brought the young whale down here. I planked the mouth of the creek so he couldn't get out, and then I let him loose. By the time I had finished fencing the creek I had tamed the creature so that he knew me and would do anything I wanted to. I christened him "Brandy," and every day I played with him in the water. He would let me ride on his back, and he used to pull my boat and play with me as long as I wanted. I then wrote to a paper in New Bedford, advertising for live whale cubs, and soon found I could get as many of them as I wanted. I bought four more, which I called 'Gin,' 'Sherry,' 'Port' and 'Rum,' keeping them all in a tank at first, playing with them till they were as tame as 'Brandy.'"

On asking the Captain to show his sea coach and four, he commenced by showing some huge collars hanging on the wall. "You see," said the Captain, "the Greenland whale is the only one I can use; the head is much larger than any other kind, and they have a notch just back of the head, which fits the collars so as not interfere with the working of the fins. When the collar is on them, I just hitch on the traces and the harness is all right. On each side of their jaws I have fastened a ring, and I can drive them as easy as any farmer can his old horses. The thing that bothered me most was that the 'critters' would dip and go way down under water, but I remedied that by attaching a straight bar of iron to the bottom of the collar. The iron bar has a nob at the end; on this bar I fixed a flat, round piece of thin copper, with plenty of sharp nails pointing upward, making it so that the plate would slide up and down easily. You see, when they go along the weight of the copper keeps it down to the knob, but as soon as they go to dive the pressure of the water forces it up, and pricks them to the surface. It took some time to make them understand it, and when they were struck, they kicked up darnation. Now, however, when in harness they mean business all the time, and just scoot right along, only rising their heads now and then to blow. I shall hitch the traces so far down as not to interfere with their tails."

The Mermaid—the name given by the captain to the vessel—is almost finished, and as she appears on her shoes looks very much like an ordinary vessel. She is 250 tons burden, very sharp forward, and has a straight up-and-down cutwater. She has no bowspirt, and her keel projects about two feet, ending in an immense iron hook. Her deck slants down forward from midships, the slanting part having no bulwarks; from the middle forward there is a covered passage, that leads to the steering house, which is immediately over the cutwater, and through which the whales will be driven by long reins. In this will also be placed the hoisting apparatus, which will hook and unhook the whiffletrees. From midships aft the deck is covered with a poop deck, and on that a promenade will be arranged. The poop will be arranged into a gorgeous saloon, large enough to seat comfortably 250 people; under that again is the dininig-room, which is as large as the saloon above; this is further extended by a magnificent smoking room, ladies' room, etc., and the hold below, contains 250 elegant berths. The captain intends only to carry passengers first-class, and will only charge $50 in gold, or $75 for the round trip.

Captain Williams then led the way to his whale barn, which is a regular building under water, with pine plank division and floor for the five monsters. On being asked why he had gone to such expense in building the house under water, the Captain stated that the whales had been blinded by the mud near the shore, and that he had built the barn so that no impurities could enter. In the morning, as soon as the doors are opened, they go out as far as the fence, and remain there during the day.

Indolence.

Lavater, having once been asked which has the most difficult things for man to overcome of all the passions and qualities attached to his nature, answered that if indolence were conquered he would be answerable for all the rest. Perhaps a more just observation than this was never made. If men would generally examine themselves closely they would find that the predominence of indolence supercedes almost every other consideration. To it may be ascribed the greater part of the vices that attend us; what will not man do to gratify this disposition—he will employ every artifice, every means in his power in order that he may avoid fulfilling those active duties for which he was created. He screens himself by the most detestable methods; he forms a thousand excuses for not performing his duty; and many men we find in the world who will almost permit themselves to starve before they would betake themselves to some active employment to gain a subsistence, and thereby render both themselves and their families miserable. Even the most virtuous minds with difficulty oppose this all-powerful malady; and the least advantage given to it loses more than a person would at first imagine, for like an ill weed it grows with wonderful rapidity, and in a short time gains a powerful ascendancy. To avoid this detestable evil it is necessary that a man should be continually on his guard, and watch for the smallest approaches of this subtle and corroding enemy—to this end the mind should be continually employed, if not in really useful pursuits, at least in such as give a spring to the passions, and suffer them not to rest in stupefaction and idleness; by this means we may avoid the accursed evil, and render, not only to ourselves, but to the community, more essential benefit. Would you behold the man far gone in this way, look at the tavern-keeper, from the rising until the going down of the sun you may find him tippling; enervated, enfeebled and effeminate, he lives to no purpose, he lounges away the hours, a burden to himself and a disgraces to his species, and when the hour of rest has arrived, 'tis with difficulty he can convey his body to the bed of respose. On the other hand, you behold the active man; he rises at an early hour, pursues his business, fulfills his engagements, discharges his duty toward his fellow-men, and at evening returns to the enjoyment of the pleasing reflection that he has performed his task with faithfulness.

A First Experience.

Last evening a young lady abruptly turned the corner and very rudely ran against a boy, who was small and ragged and freckled. Stopping as soon as she could, she turned to him and said: "I beg your pardon. Indeed I am very sorry." The small, ragged and freckled boy looked up in blank amazement for an instant; then, taking off about three-fourths of a cap, he bowed very low, smiled until his face became lost in the smile and answered: "You can have my parding and welcome, miss; and yer may run agin me and knock me clean down an' I won't say a word." After the young lady passed on he turned to a comrade and said, half apologetically: "I never had any one ask my parding, and it kind o' took me off my feet."—[Indianapolis Herald.

Model Method of Divorce.

The "marriage knot" among the Burmese is very easily undone. If two persons are tired of each other's society, they dissolve partnership in the following touching but conclusive manner: They respectfully light two candles, and shutting up their but, sit down and wait quietly until they are burned out. The one whose candle burns out first gets up at once and leaves the house (and forever) taking nothing but the clothes he or she may have on at the time; all else becomes the property of the other party.

Proper Punctuation.

Punctuation, that is, the putting of the stops in the right places, can not be too seduously studied. We lately read, in a country paper, the following startling account of Lord Palmerston's appearance in the House of Lords: "Lord Palmerston then entered on his head, a white hat upon his feet, large but well polished boots upon his brow, a dark cloud in his hand, his faithful walking stick in his eye, a menacing glare saying nothing. He sat down.

Urbanities of Travel.

As the train stopped for ten minutes, and that individual who goes along tapping the wheels with his hammer was passing rapidly by the smoking car, one of the windows was hoisted and a torrent of tobacco spit was ejected which completely deluged him. The machinist paused a moment, and, wiping some of the streams from his person, said to the offender:

"Mister, what part of the country did you come from?"

"Me?" said the spitter, puckering his lips for another expectoration. "I came from Kansas."

"I thought so," said the machinist, "for if you had lived in Massachusetts, or Connecticut, they would have had a water-wheel in your mouth long ago."

—Why is the letter "o" like two quarters of beef? Because it is half of "ox."

—"Cub, gedtle sprig; eitherial bilddess, cub." Ah kit-chew!

FOR A PARDON.

Mrs. Pierce, the good mother of young Pierce, the postal thief at Carson, is already circulating a petition to the President for the pardon of her nice young hoodlum son. Many respectable Carsonites, according to The Tribune, out of sympathy for the mother, who is a widow and really a most respectable, and good woman, are signing said petition. That is all very fine, and shows the goodness of heart of the Carsonites the same as in the Perasich stage onslaught, but the question that militates against their judgement is: What distinction should a community or the President make between a crime committed by a son of a good, respectable woman or the son of a woman who is not good or respectable to any marked degree? But may be it is on the grounds that young Pierce was afflicted with emotional thievery, and as that plea is good in murder cases, why not in petty thefts? Any way those are the grounds we would advise the Carsonites to put their petition on. They can prove that young Pierce was afflicted with kleptomania not only once, but a great many times—in fact the sight of a registered letter always excited his emotion, and therefore he never did any stealing with due consideration, or malice aforethought, or from a perverted nature, except in this emotional sense. With this sort of an argument, aided by the President's recently extensive experience and alleged sympathies with thieves of higher degrees, we don't see but what this good mother may have reasonable hopes of having her son pardoned right away, so that he need lose no time in proving to the community and the world wherever he may go that he can suppress this peculiar emotion in all cases—except when a good opportunity for its exercise happens to present itself. Further, that it is the business of the community and the public generally to keep their little valuables out of sight, so as not to tempt the young man. There is where the public was to blame for young Pierce's misfortunes, and in justice the young man ought to be turned loose to at once begin the work of teaching the public better sense.

School Legislation.

The recent session opened as if legislation on the public schools and on school text books was to be its crowning work. But looking back during the past four months, the appearances are that our Senators and Assemblymen have been practicing a masterly inactivity. The session closed without absolutely anything of moment being done. That vexed text book business remains in exactly the position it held when the Leislature adjourned for the Christmas holidays, after passage of the Tuttle bill forbidding any change in text books, intended to circumvent the action of the State Board of Education in adopting the Bancroft readers. It is scarcely necessary to recapitulate all the moves made on this school book political chessboard, to drive out and retain McGuffey. The agents on both sides adopted every available method of parliamentary strategy, and the investigation by the Assembly Committee on Education into the respective merits of the two series of readers and geographies has cost the State a good round sum. The particulars of this will form an interesting chapter in the Controller's next biennial report. We have still State uniformity, and there can be no change for the next two years.

A New Law Firm.

The following from The Bakersfield Courier, relates to parties well known in this county, one of them, Rufe Arick, having been a candidate for the County Clerkship last election. Together they will make a pretty heavy law firm:

A legal partnership has been formed between A. C. Lawrence and R. E Arick, under the name of Lawrence & Arick. Their card appears in another column. The senior member of the firm, Mr. Lawrence, is well known here as one of our most successful practitioners. Mr. Arick is not an old resident, but has been here long enough to inspire confidence in his legal ability and esteem as an individual. It is a new firm composed of old heads and will prove a strong one.

The Spirit of 1876.

The eternal spirit of seizure and grab has developed itself even upon the grounds occupied by the Centennial buildings at Philadelphia. A North Carolina man holds the title to the property, and declares he will go to the courts for his rights. The 408 acres which he claims are valued at $15,000,000, but it was deeded to his father in his early life for $480.

THE PRESIDENT'S TROUBLES.

Until quite recently President Grant has escaped accusation of personal participation in the prevailing rascalities now being so extensively brought home to his official family, but now comes his turn. He stands accused of authorizing the use of large sums of Secret Service money, for partisan election purposes—in stealing it, in short. There is enough truth in charges to give the thing an ugly aspect, and yet we are inclined to think, when the matter becomes fully investigated as is promised, it will be found that Grant has simply been Babcocked and Belknaped again, and that he himself is no more corrupt or venal in this than he was in their operations. We most sincerely hope for the credit of the nation, that such may prove to be the case. It will be a sorry showing indeed if the very head of the nation is shown to be hand in hand with those scoundrels, who, trusted as they have been with high positions, are in reality meaner than highwaymen. These latter steal and rob as opportunities offer because, as we may suppose, it is there nature so to do, but they betray no trust to add heinousness to their crimes as those trusted officials have done. The President, while admitting that he ordered certain sums of this fund to be paid, earnestly claims that it was done strictly in accordance with the law—to prevent and punish frauds in elections.

But if he is guilty of wrong doing in this matter, it is much to be hoped the fact may be brought unequivocably home to him. His punishment, in the nature of the case, can be nothing other than a fall in public respect, as the law leaves it almost entirely optional with the President as to how the Secret Service money is to be used, and no matter how misused in fact, the technical defense would most likely be quite strong enough to insure him against legal punishment, even through impeachment. But the crime, and shock to moral sentiment, would be none the less, if it is shown that he did make or conive at a corrupt use of his trust as now charged. We repeat we most sincerely hope the President may wholly vindicate himself, not because it is U. S. Grant, but because it is the President, for the time being the very head and front of the American people. It is a matter of comparative insignificance what acts of scoundrelism may be proved against the understrappers. Such betrayals of confidence, as many of Grant's appointees have shown toward him, have their typical representatives in all walks of life, and are merely individual in effect. But things have a different aspect and effect when the very head of the nation himself is shown to be a scoundrel. The President being the people's appointee, the logical deduction would be that it is a scoundrelly people who would make such appointments, pretty much in the same degree that Grant is called a dishonest man for having trusted Babcock, Belknap, this Secret Service Davenport, and many other such scoundrels, with the public funds. The responsibility in a material sense for such appointments is his without doubt, yet so long as he does not connive at their rascalities, and shows himself to be honest, he may still command personal respect and the respect due his high office, whatever may be said of his judgment.

Grant has been President long enough—too long in fact, else his appointees would not have had time enough to become such adepts at rascalities—and, without any reference or bearing in a political sense, we still believe that he is an honest man and President, and that to the best of his judgment he has done the best he could for the welfare of the Republic. He has been victimized by not only friends, but relatives, and the consciousness of this last fact, ought, if he is an honest man, be a fair punishment for his nepotism, the most disgusting feature of his administration. The oft repeated charge of his unusual and unbecoming thriftiness has also lowered him somewhat from the self-abnegating standard supposed to honor his high office, but in the light of actual facts, we believe these charges go very far beyond actual truth or justice. Notwithstanding all these things, notwithstanding the great corruptions which have prevailed under his administration, and have brought disgrace upon it and the nation, yet we believe the historian of the future will pronounce Grant's presidential career in many important respects one of the best of the entire list. That's our estimate of the man, now arraigned before the world for corrupt and unbecoming if not positively rascally practices. Yet under no imaginable circumstances could we wish to see him so trusted for another term, not so much on his own account as for fears of his surroundings. These surroundings learn altogether too much in the course of two terms or more. They learn that money is required to maintain the status shoddy demands of officials, and in due course, find it easier to smother conscience and to steal, absolutely steal, than to bear shoddy sneers because of inability to make display.

TRUE AS GOSPEL.

The facts conveyed in this extract from a lengthy article in a late number of The Los Angeles Express will bear reiteration a thousand times, or until a realization of the plan confirms the truth of every sentence:

Of all the railway enterprises in the United States, we know of no one which offers a fairer prospect of a remunerative investment than the carrying forward of the Los Angeles and Independence Railway to a junction, through the Southern Utah, with the Union Pacific, at Ogden, near Salt Lake. The successful execution of such a work would instantly convert its projectors into railway magnates as formidable as the Messrs. Leland Stanford, Huntington, Hopkins and Crocker themselves. That is a legitimate ambition. It would really be a work of national moment, and its completion would give us another transcontinental railway. It would pass through a region incalculably rich in argentiferous galena ores. It of itself would open up a series of bonanzas. Independence, Coso, Darwin, Panamint and a hundred other mining camps would be chronicled as producing lead and silver almost to a surfeit. The carrying of the crude ores to reduction works which would undoubtedly be shortly established in this neighborhood, and the merchandise and produce which would be consumed by these innumerable camps would insure a profitable business from the very initial of the enterprise. The Los Angeles and Independence Railway could be made to strike the Southern Utah near the "Needles," about the thirty fifth parallel of latitude; and, when the thirty-fifth parallel road succeeds in getting itself built from Venetia, in the Indian Territory, to the Colorado river, the trackway of the former road could be used as a common trunk line to tide water at Santa Monica.

This road, pushed to a point of junction with the Southern Utah, would supply all Northern Arizona, and would open up the rich mining districts around the Needles. When it should have entered Utah, it would traverse St. George county, above Callville, a region full of the best qualities of coal and iron Here, undoubtedly, the road would develop a tremendous business, as St. George is probably the future iron manufacturing center of the Pacific Coast.

Ancient Papers Wanted.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co., the famous advertising agents of New York, are going to great expense to make a complete exhibition at the Centennial of every publication in the United States. The list will amount to full 8,000. Visitors at the great exhibition, no matter from what county, Territory or State, can count upon finding their local paper however insignificant in Rowell's newspaper building, and no doubt this advantage will be duly appreciated by very many. Besides this Rowell & Co., through circulars addressed to newspaper publishers, and through them to the general public, request the loan if nothing more, of as many ancient newspapers and other rare or curious publications as may be obtained—this is to make the exhibition as complete as it is possible to do it. Among the "curious" papers will be those of war times when brown paper and all sorts of expedients had to be resorted to to get out a paper of any sort. We will undertake to say that any one possessing a copy of any such publication who will forward it to Rowell & Co., 110 South Sixth street, Philadelphia, can count upon having it returned or otherwise disposed of according to directions. Every such paper, document or what not, will be duly labeled with the owner's name.

Alleged Frauds on this Coast.

Special Revenue Agent Phillips, who created such a sensation during his recent visit to California, has made his report to a committee of the House of Representatives. He makes some very damaging charges against the revenue officers of San Francisco, and implicates Senator Sargent with them in defrauding the Government. He asserts that the revenue has been robbed of at least $1,500,000 within a very short time, and that the frauds are still being perpetrated. As to the truth of or falsity of these charges a generous public will withhold judgment until Mr. Phillips produces the proofs upon which he bases them. Where there is so much smoke it is very probable that there is some fire; but the faintest flicker of a flame has not yet become visible. It will be noticed by an extract elsewhere that at least one of the suspected officers, Sedgwick, shows a clean balance sheet, and we also have the assurance through reliable friends in position to know, that the San Francisco Custom House has not the slightest reason in the world to fear an investigation—in fact, courts it defiantly.

Found Guilty.

J. Rover, charged with the murder of Sharp, over a year ago, at the Rabbit Hole Sulphur mines, in Humboldt county, Nevada, was on the 21st instant found guilty of murder in the first degree. This was Rover's second trial for this offense, and also the second time he has been found guilty of murder in the first degree. There can hardly be a doubt of his guilt, although the evidence against him was wholly circumstantial.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

In the following private letter will be found the best account obtainable of a daring robbery at Panamint, perpetrated by the well known Nevada stage robbers and roughs—McDonald and Smal (or Smalley). These high-toned gents boast of having "hit" the stage nine different times in Nevada, killing a messenger named Miller and wounding the driver upon one occasion. They immediately after migrated to Panamint, in the neighborhood of which place and Darwin they have since held forth. Upon the occasion of one of their big drunks they tore down Wells, Fargo & Co.'s placards offering a reward of $5,000 for their arrest, at the same time proclaiming their identity and defying any undue interference. It has been said that during this time there was no moment but what one or the other was on the keenest guard, but we have been assured a couple of nervy and determined men could have effected their capture upon numerous occasions. The reward offered by the company has since been withdrawn. Small and McDonald are long ere this across the Colorado river, they undoubtedly having had numbers of stolen animals secreted about Wild Rose. But here is the letter:

PANAMINT, April 21, 1876.

MR. ISAAC HARRIS—Dear Sir: * * I have to report some bad news to-day. We were yesterday morning robbed by McDonald and Small of about $2,300. The way it occurred was this: About 7½ o'clock A. M. Brown went to his breakfast. I and Judge Smith were sitting by the stove. Presently a man came in and bent down to look at some boots, having his face to the street. I went in front to see who it was, when he raised his head and ordered "hands up." It was Small with a revolver leveled at me. He then ordered Smith and myself to lie down and tied our hands. Young Smith who went to breakfast with Brown, noticed him running across the street from Coulter's place, where they had been hidden and could watch everything because it was one of those doors that is used in Summer for flies, and thought he was after his brother for saying that he had stolen his mules, and came running up. He was met at the door by McDonald who ordered him back when he was tied. Brown then came up to see what was up and Small met him with his revolver levelled at his head and ordered him back when he was also tied. Same with Pete and a Chinaman. After these were in they ordered them into our sleeping room, where McDonald kept watch with a Henry rifle. Small then came up to me and after drawing a Bowie knife ordered me to open the safe, and as he said in a "d— big hurry," I could do nothing else but comply. They went through everything * * * After they got through with me they tied me and put me in the room with the others. They then emptied a salt sack and put everything in and left. We freed ourselves a few minutes afterwards and tried to get a few shot guns, but could not get any till Brown went up to the Company where he borrowed some. We then sent a man to Darwin to notify the Deputy Sheriff to keep a lookout for them. Could tell more but will wait for your coming, which I hope will be soon

Respectfully, F. FAUKENTHAL.

A Postal Wrinkle.

It is stated in some of our exchanges that the Department has ordered that all letters having the stamp affixed any where else except in the "upper right cornair" be sent to the Dead Letter Office. That may be so, and no doubt that is where the stamp ought always to be placed, but at the same time it strikes us, it is a statutory obligation for the mail service to forward plainly addressed and fully stamped letters to their several destinations, whether the Washington's, Franklin's, etc., on the stamps are put on wrong end up or otherwise or whichever corner; otherwise the Department has the Constitutional right to prescribe the color of the ink, shape of the letters, style of chirography and exact lines of the superscription. And then ignorant people will wonder what becomes of their letters.

The Black Hills.

The crusade into the Black Hills is likely to prove a financial disaster to all who go there in the search of gold. The report of the geologist which accompanied the Custar expedition is ikely to be verified; notwithstanding it was contradicted by the General himself. The returning adventurers declare that gold does not exist in paying quantities. A circumstance in confirmation of these statements is that no gold is being brought to market. A disgraceful raid, instigated by an officer in the service of the United States, sets a solemn treaty at defiance, while the government is assumed to be making every effort to prevent it, and all for no other apparent purpose than that of securing business for a railroad line or a parcel of skin-flint traders.

From Esmeralda.

H. W. Remington, of this city, who is about moving to Columbus, Esmeralda county, got back, yesterday, from a trip to that place and Belleville. He says that section is rapidly filling up with people, who are flocking there from all directions and that in his opinion the prospects for the mining camps are excellent.—[R. R. Reveille.

Lieu School Lands.

The Visalia Delta says: The following decision respecting fraudulent State locations of lieu school lands is one of great importance to this section, and if it don't make the friends of the two late Surveyor Generals of this State scratch their heads we shall wonder. We advise every one holding school lands that are not on the 16th or 36th sections to examine their titles. The decision is as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
WASHINGTON, March 10, 1876.

SIR: I have considered the application of Geo. C. B. Selby et al., pre-emptors, to be permitted to prove up and pay for certain lands in township 2 S R 14 W; also, application of Jas. McEvoy et al., to be permitted to file for certain lands in township 2 S R 13 W, S B Meridian, Los Angeles District, California, all of said lands being claimed adversely by the State of California under selections made by her.

The case is before me on appeal, by the said pre-emptors, from your adverse decision of December 14th, 1874.

It is alleged that the State selections were made in violation of the law, and are, therefore, invalid, and no bar to the right of pre-emptors. If the allegations are true, the rights of the pre-emptors must be admitted, for it is the established rule of this department that an invalid State selection does not reserve the land it covers from appropriation under the pre-emption and homestead laws. See decision of March 1, 1875, in case of Francisco Aurreoechea vs. State of California et al. (Cobb's land laws, p. 325); of April 8, 1862, in case of State of California vs. Hallie and Watson (Ib. p. 324); and of February 5, 1875, in case of McLean vs. Stonley.

It appears that the selections by the State were made under the sixth section of the act of July 23, 1865 (14 Stat. 218), of lands in lieu of certain school sections, 16 and 36, which, it is alleged were lost to the State by reason of being included in Spanish or Mexican grants. They antedate the claims of the pre-emptors, and for this reason alone, without considering the question of the validity of the said State selections, you reject the pre-emption claims.

You have not forwarded any data with the case to enable me to judge of the validity of the said selecctions, but on an examination of the records of the proper division of your office, I find that in nearly every instance that the school sections alleged to be lost to the State, and in lieu of which these selections are made, are included in the limits of a grant not yet adjusted and without final survey. The question of the loss of such lands to the State had not been settled, for the law just quoted provides that such questions shall be determined in case of Spanish or Mexican grants when the final survey of such grants shall have been made. The State has not lost the land and was not entitled to select indemnity therefor. Her pretended selections were, therefore, without authority of law and void. She cannot be permitted to substitute other lands actually lost and thereby preserve her selections, so as to defeat the claim of said pre-emptor, for such substitution would be virtually a new selection, taking effect from its date. See case of State of California vs. Halle and Watson (Cobb's land laws, p. 324).

You will, therefore, cause a careful examination of the State selections to be made, with a view of determining the validity, and when you find them invalid, by the rule just indicated, reject the same, and examine the pre-emption claims upon their merits.

In cases where persons claim, under the homestead or pre-emption law, and apply to enter or file upon lands covered by a State selection alleged to be invalid, they should be permitted to contest the same after due notice to the State; and if, after investigation, it appears that the State selection is invalid, as alleged, it should be cancelled and their entries or filings received as of the date they were offered.

I reverse your decision, and return the papers in the case, transmitted with your letter of August 16, 1875.

Very Respectfully,
Z. CHANDLER, Sec.

To the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Killed by Indians.

As was resonably expected the Indians have commenced their murderous work on the Black Hill dupes. A Mr. Miller arrived at Laramie on the afternoon of the 20th and makes this report:

He says while coming in on the morning of the 16th his party was attacked by Indians in Red Canyon, near Cheyenne River Rancho, about fifty miles from Custer. A few of the party escaped to the rancho. Mr. and Mrs Metz, of Laramie City, were killed. A colored woman was taken prisoner and a man named Simpson was also killed. The bodies were buried the next day. Mrs. Metz had been ravished. Three men were wounded—Grichan, from Missouri, mortally, Felton, from Missouri, and C. W. Burgesser, from Virginia City, Nevada, seriously. It is feared that the wounds may prove fatal. The wounded men are at Cheyenne River Rancho. The place where the attack was made is about 120 miles from this post. A party from the Black Hills to-day say that about ten days ago three wagons were found at the entrance to Buffalo Gap, on the Yankton route. The stock was gone and there were signs of a fight. Numerous wagon covers had been shot to pieces and part of the material the wagons had been loaded with were lying around, some with marks of balls on them. The Indians had evidently attacked and destroyed the entire outfit.

—A Washington special says the Winslow question, between America and England, is more serious than generally believed, and is likely to lead to grave consequences. The two governments are at a dead lock, and neither is disposed to give way.

Custer.

It is said that Custer is losing prestige at Washington, and that charges have been preferred against him by General Terry which will lead to his being court-martialed. The dispatches do not state the nature of the charges; but it is easy to believe that a man who in his testimony before the Clymer investigating committee branded himself as either a coward or a knave, is both, and that the result of the court-martial will be to strip him of his military position and reduce him to his proper level in the rear ranks. As our readers can remember, we expressed the opinion when the news was first brought over the wires, that the evidence of the man who, knowing the Government to be systematically defrauded by one of its employes (Belknap), who did not have the courage or patriotism to disclose the fact, was not worthy of belief. This same would-be-virtuous Custer, who is so willing to kick a fallen man, is the party who a few years ago was placed in irons by his ranking officer while on duty in one of the Territories, for conduct unbecoming an officer. He is also the man who degraded himself and his position by striking a common soldier with his sword for the heinous offense of not stepping out of the way of his wife as soon as that grand lady thought he should. He is a snob of the first magnitude, and if he gets his just deserts will be summarily kicked out of the United States' service.—[Silver City (Nev.) Reporter.

....TO THE....

KERNVILLE QUARTZ MINE AND MILL SITE.

No. 66.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, INDEPENDENCE, CAL., April 23, 1876

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THOMAS Michell, whose postoffice address is Kernville, California, has this day filed his application for a Patent for Fifteen Hundred (1,500) linear feet of the KERNVILLE quartz mine or vein, bearing gold and silver, with surface ground Six Hundred feet in width; also Mill Site, containing 4 2-100 acres, situate, lying and being in Cove Mining District, Kern County, California, and known and designated by the field notes and official plat on file in this office as Lots No. 45 "A" and 37 "B" in Township 25 South, Range 33 East, Mount Diablo Base and Meridian.

SURVEY OF EXTERIOR BOUNDARIES.

The exterior boundaries of Lot No. 45 A, the Kernville quartz mining claim, being as follows, to-wit: Commencing at a post in stone mound, the established S. E. corner of the Nellie E. Dent quartz mine,—in which mound is set a post marked "K-N-E 1" for N. E. corner of the Kernville gold and silver quartz mine, from which bears a white oak 48 inches in diameter, S. 2½° E. 4 links distant; thence, (variation 15¾° E.) LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Another Change.

When Dr. Bentley reached this Post last week to assume the duties of Post surgeon he found orders assigning him to duty at New York. We are now informed that Dr. Washington Matthews, Assistant-Surgeon, U. S. A., is ordered to this Post, and was expected yesterday. For a short time after his arrival Camp Independence will have medical talent enough present to splint a fractured corps, as there will be no less than three army surgeons of the first rank there. These are Dr. C. B. White, just relieved, Dr. Bently, lately appointed and relieved as above and Dr. Matthews. Dr. White will remain a few days after the arrival of his successor, before with his family, departing to his own field of duty at Columbus, Ohio. Dr. Matthews has lately been on duty at Alcatraz, where he was relieved by Dr. H. M. Matthews, Acting-Surgeon, U. S. A. It was reported here that this second Dr. Matthews was Dr. Homer S. Matthews, formerly of this place, but this is an error.

May Day in Darwin.

We hear incidently that extensive preparations are being made in Darwin to observe the 1st of May. Everybody, young and old, are expected to join within the charmed circle and dance merrily around the pole to the tune "o' Haddam." We heartily congratulate them, for they have a maiden lady to fill the important position of queen. How many would-be kings and plenipotentiaries will dance attendance to the beautiful queen can only be imagined. The spirit of the arrangement savors strongly of the mines and is peculiarly California, albeit, the native material for wreaths, bouquets, etc., is lively enough by this time, for the warm sun will fetch out a variety—of all the hues of the rainbow—of horned toads, lizards, scorpions, centipedes, tarantulas and rattle snakes, besides many a nondescript. A wreath of such ought to delight the most fastidious—bugologist.

Preaching.

Rev. L. Case will preach in this place on Sunday evening upon the subject of "National corruption." His remarks will doubtless be of general interest. We may state here that according to practice heretofore, Mr. Case would have held forth at Bishop to-morrow, but for reasons not necessary to specify in detail he finds it out of the question to do so. After this Sunday, however, he hopes to be able to resume the regular order.

Merchantile Movements.

Mr. Rhine, of Harris & Rhine, got back from San Francisco Wednesday last, while on the previous Monday, Isaac Harris, of the same firm, returned to Panamint to see after the bank house there in his charge, and if so disposed, to get a higher stand point from which to swear at Small and McDonald for tying up Brown and the other fellows at the time they, the aforesaid Small and McDonald, robbed the store of so much cash.

The Celebration.

The various sub committees appointed by the Committee of Arrangements of the Lone Pine centennial celebration will submit reports and estimates at a meeting of the Commi tee to be held this evening, when all the general plans will be agreed upon. A liberal supply of money has been already pledged by the citizens, and a complete success seems already assured. In our next will be given some account of the arrangements, and the entire, official adver tisement.

Repairing.

A force of workmen are being employed on the line of the Cerro Gordo water works, and we presume from this that it is the company's intention to put the whole thing in operation again. The present supply of water for domestic purposes comes mostly from this company's springs, by means of pack trains, while the furnaces and mines are of course supplied by the Belshaw & Beaudry works.

Before our Gaze.

P. Reddy, Esq., who has been to San Francisco on business connected with the Defiance Co., is here now on his regular semi-occasional visit, and to look after some of the numerous cases in Court next week in which he and Judge Conklin appear as attorneys. The latter gentleman, we suspect, will have most of the work to do, since the former thinks he would rather be an honest miner awhile then lawyer all the time.

Theatrical.

The McGinley troupe will stop here on their way back to Nevada and play the first of next week—introducing a new programme. Raised seats will be arranged and the hall put in better shape than on their first performance. It was their intention to play here on next Monday night, but may fail to connect.

Spuds.

Connelly's team brought in a load of the celebrated Piper potatoes the other day for the market. The tubers are prodigious in size and superbly delicious. Leastways that's what the regular boarders at the Pelican Hotel, adjacent, tell us.

Recovering.

Crisanto Gomez, the man who sustained such severe injuries by falling down a mining shaft at Cerro Gordo, is convalescent. Dr. Hehner, of that place, is given great credit for his successful management of the case.

Log Springs.

Broder's furnace at Log Springs made a very successful test run last week, after which it shut down to make preparations for permanent work. This stoppage was specially necessary because of the condition of the road to the mine, six miles distant, upon which the snow yet lay in places so deep as to be impassable until shoveled out, a work that had been deferred until the furnace working was established as a sure thing. We are positively assured that the furnace works to perfect satisfaction, in all respects, Jack Evans, who has it in special charge, having mastered the peculiar combinations required to make the metal run—the only thing that threatened defeat, and which caused considerable trouble at the start. Instead of but forty tons or so of ore per day, the furnace has a demonstrated capacity of sixty tons or thereabouts, the ores running low in lead, but producing bullion of the high grade of $620 per ton, 190 bars of which kind were made. Connelly's team loaded on 140 of these bars, this in fact being the first shipment of any moment. Mr. Connelly informs us that the intention was to start up on a regular run day before yesterday, but he thought that it would take a longer time than that to get the road clear. There is a supply of coal sufficient for a thirty days' run now on hands at the furnace, and any quantity of ore on the dump at the mine, so that whatever question, if any there is, of a permanent success will be fully solved this coming run. A light force has for a short time recently been at work on the mine, though not in taking out ore, as the dumps are already crowded to excess. This force opened up a new deposit of excellent ore, the extent of which can as yet only be surmised, but apparently is going to be lasting. This is somewhat wider than the general run of the mine (which we will remind our readers is the Uncle Sam), assaying 54 per cent. lead and $97 50 silver per ton. The general prospect of Sylvania is very encouraging.

Returned.

After an extended excursion through southern Inyo, our representive arrived home this week, but too late for submitting any extended accounts of what he saw and learned. These will appear from time as the particular mines or districts come under mention. He bows a profound acknowledgment of many courtesies accorded by friends, old and new.

Married.

A private letter received at Cerro Gordo announces the marriage of V. Beaudry, Esq., at Montreal, on the 28th instant.

F. & A. M.

A regular meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., will be held at the Masonic Hall on Saturday, April 6th, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

Our Benton Letter.

BENTON, MONO CO., April 25.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The weather still continues delightful; the grass is springing up on the adjacent hills, and all nature, mankind and brute creation assume an air of blessed content. The few farmers located in this vicinity anticipate a bountiful harvest of hay and vegetables, and expect to dispose of their products to better advantage this season than they have done for years; and, beyond a doubt, their expectations will be realized, as the demand in Benton this season for agricultural products will greatly exceed that of any previous year.

JUSTICE'S COURT.

Judge Crass' Court has been daily thronged, throughout the past week, by anxious parties listening to the evidence pro. and con. in the case of the People vs. Robert Commons; the Court pronounced judgment in this case on the 21st proximo, but upon motion of the acting District Attorney, the Court granted a re-hearing, and after mature deliberation committed the prisoner to await the action of the Grand Jury, in default of $1,000 bail. The prisoner is suffering greatly from the effects of the wounds inflicted upon his head; erysipelas had set in and he was in a very dangerous condition, but through the skillfull treatment of Dr. Stoeckly, of your place, he is now in a fair way of recovery. The case of the People vs. E. P. Robinson also created considerable public interest. The complaint in this case sets forth that Robinson did assault Commons with intent to kill. Mr. E. R. Miner ably conducted the prosecution on the part of the people, while W. P. George, Esq., of Bishop Creek, made a talented, though unsuccessful, defense for the prisoner. After a long and tedious examination, the Court held Robinson in the sum of $500 to appear before the next Grand Jury; he speedily obtained the requisite bail. Judge Cross manifested great judicial talent in most of his rulings throughout these examinations, and certainly displayed great originality in his official capacity.

EXCELLENT APPOINTMENT.

Our efficient and popular Sheriff, Mr. Patterson, has appointed our worthy townsman, Mr. D. Ashley, as his deputy. This is a very judicious selection of an officer, as Mr. Ashley is certainly the right man in the right place; and the appointment gives universal satisfaction, and is a cause of congratulation to all the law-abiding citizens of Benton.

OFFICIAL VISITORS.

Assessor John Stewart of Bridgeport, is now in town, engaged in the discharge of his official duties. Johnnie makes a very efficient Assessor, as no one escapes his vigilant eye; he presents the claims of the county in such an invincible manner that one almost feels ashamed that he does not cut a bigger figure on the assessment roll. Sheriff Patterson is also in town, on official business connected with the Diana Company.

MILLS AND MINES.

Both the principal companies of this town are doing well. The Comanche mill is running steadily day and night and is turning out considerable bullion. Mr. John Howell has taken up a permanent residence in our town, and is filling the office of Superintendent for the new Company. The Diana mine still continues to turn out a rich quality of ore, but the mill is shut down, still awaiting a supply of chemicals, which is expected to arrive about the 28th

TRAVEL.

Vast numbers of men are still coming into our town in search of employment; the majority of whom, pleased with the locality and prospects of Benton, prefer remaining and taking their chances with us.

ARRIVALS AND DEPARTURES.

Messrs. J. A. Creaser, J. Mitchell, and Wm. Wetherill, have returned from Bridgeport; Mr. Peter Swearingen, of Bishop Creek, also paid us a visit, remaining a few days. Dr. Stoeckly, of Independence, is also sojourning with us, on professional business; the Misses Smith, of Bishop Creek, are here on a visit to friends; the Merriman brothers, of Bishop, are here, with a view of remaining permanently; Mr. Hess Yaney has departed for Bishop Creek, but will shortly return, as Benton cannot spare him at present.

CORRECTION.

I stated in my last communication, that Commons was beaten over the head on the evening of the 15th, previous to arming himself, and committing the assault upon Robinson. This was an error on my part, committed through misinformation; the statement should have been that he was beaten on the head with a pistol by Robinson, immediately after the killing of A. W. Abbott.

MINION.

Fisherman's Peak.

The towns of Darwin, Cerro Gordo and Lone Pine are enthusiastic over the idea of Company D's, to place a silver ball upon Fisherman's Peak, and a very considerable sum could be raised in each place if the people were given an opportunity to subscribe. The beauty and appropriateness of this part of our centennial arrangements are so striking as to enlist all hands in its hearty support.

Work Begun.

The sinking of the Dodge & Passmore artesian well at Lone Pine will be commenced in earnest on Monday. The machinery appears to be very complete, and ought to accomplish the work without serious difficulty.

New Brewery.

Louey Munzinger has perfected arrangements for a new brewery at Lone Pine, and expects to get it in operation in about thirty days.

Sedgwick all Right.

Reports, for some little time past, have been rife that great frauds were being perpetrated in Revenue Collector Sedgwick's office in San Francisco. As this region is in Sedgwick's district the matter subjoined has additional interest. It is a satisfaction to know that nothing of the "crooked" is developed, for once, particularly as so many departments of the Government are showing such twists as a rule. The following extract is from The Alta of the 23d:

A few days since statements appeared in the papers of how Supervisor Hawley with his assistants swooped down upon Collector Sedgwick, demanded a count of the cash, seized upon the cash books, and some startling disclosures were expected to be made.

The result of the investigation, which has been concluded, shows a difference of $10 73 in the Collector's favor, and is as follows:

	Accountability	On hand
Cash	$453 75	453 75
Tax list	187,908 67	187,908 67
Spirit stamps	493,441 50	493,448 60
Tobacco and cigar stamps	163,057 41	163,057 71
Beer stamps	75,727 00	75,727 00
Special tax stamps	317,796 26	317,799 59
Totals	$1,238,384 59	$1,238,395 32

Mr. Sedgwick has been Collector since May 20th, 1873, during which time he has collected and deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States $7,469,104 77, as shown by certificates of deposit in his hands, and which, with the accountabilities above noted, make his account foot up $8,707,489 36.

It is known that the Supervisor, by custom, if not according to the letter of the law, is expected, as often as once in two months, to make an examination of the Collector's accounts and report thereon to the Commissioner. Collector Sedgwick has time and again asked Supervisor Hawley to make this examination, and although he has been here some eight months, the swoop of last Thursday was the first time he essayed to do it. The time chosen to make the examination, to fair and candid minds, must seem equally unbusinesslike as it was unofficerlike. Why not have selected the hour when business closed on the evening of the 19th, rather than wait until the morning of the 20th, and thus prevent the virtual closing of the office? The service of the public good, if not official courtesy, would have prompted some such course.

Trying to Implicate the President.

The Washington's special says that Eaton's testimony on the whisky frauds case, April 14, brings out the question whether Grant is or is not a perjurer Grant, last Winter, declared under oath, to protect Babcock, that he didn't know McDonald's bad character, and Eaton shows that he did know it two or three years before.

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the Labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Ninth—The Barb cannot be displaced by thumb and fingers or cattle horns;

Tenth—It is the Cheapest and Most Durable Fence made;

A Political Secret Revealed.

"How shall I go to work to capture the influence of some Congressmen toward getting me a Government position?" inquired a western man of well-posted politician the other day.

"Why, persuade him to help you," was the reply.

"Yes, but how shall I persuade him?" said the office seeker.

"Just as I said—persuade him," persisted the old wire-puller.

"Yes, I know, but how persuade him—that's the question?" insisted the wonld be Government employe.

"Why, persuade him," still continued the sly politician with a wink, "don't you understand—purse-aid him!"

The man understood, but the information came to him—as it has to many others—like a revelation.

—A gentleman one evening was seated near a lovely woman, when the company around him were proposing conundrums to each other. Turning to his companion, he said, "Why is a lady unlike a mirror?" She gave it up. "Because," said the rude fellow, "a mirror reflects without speaking, but a lady speaks without reflecting." "And why are you unlike a mirror?" asked the lady. He could not tell. "Because a mirror is smooth and polished, and you are rough and unpolished."

—Yesterday an aged Burlington Democrat picked up his paper, and with one horrified glance at its telegraph columns, cast it down and burst into tears. Sympathizing friends asked him what was the matter with him. "Another Republican victory somewhere," he said, and pointed to the headline over a Massachusetts date, "Another dam disaster."

—"Was ye iver in Washington, Pat?" "Do I look like a mon that 'ud shtale?" said Pat,

MISCELLANEOUS.

ROCK SOAP.

ROCK SOAP IS A NATURAL PRODUCT, possessing most marvelous cleansing and cosmetic properties. Besides other saponaceous substances it contains Alumina, which is more powerfully detersive than most Alkaline Soaps. Rock Soap is ascertained by analysis to have detersive properties valuable to an eminent degree for the purposes for which it is recommended, and to contain nothing injurious for such use. After using it no one will be will be without it. It is perfectly marvelous in its operation

For Household Purposes.—It cleans kitchen utensils, glass, and tinware; polishes gold and silver; removes oil and grease from tables and floors. It is a great saving of time and labor.

For Toilet and Bath.—Rock Soap possesses remarkable cosmetic properties, without any deleterious effect upon the skin. It is perfectly harmless, and gives a vigorous and healthful tone to the skin; it restores the freshness and bloom of youth in a manner which is marvelous. It is put up with a brilliant label, and is having an immense sale. It sells itself. See quotations.

LITERARY.

It Pays! It Pays!!

WHAT PAYS?

IT PAYS EVERY MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, Mechanic, Inventor, Farmer or Professional man, to keep informed on all the improvements and discoveries of the age.

It pays the head of every family to introduce into his household a newspaper that is instructive, one that fosters a taste for investigation, and promotes thought and encourages discussion among the members.

The Scientific American,

Which has been published weekly for the last thirty years, does this, to an extent beyond that of any other publication. It is the only weekly paper published in the United States, devoted to Manufactures, Mechanics, Inventions and New Discoveries in the Arts and Sciences.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various arts.

The Scientific American is the cheapest and best illustrated weekly paper published. Every number contains from 10 to 15 original engravings of new machinery and novel inventions.

Engravings, illustrating Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works, pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Ship Building, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions, will find The Scientific American useful to them. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

A year's number contains 832 pages and Several Hundred Engravings. Thousands of volumes are preserved for binding and reference. The practical receipts are well worth ten times the subscription price. Terms, $3 20 a year by mail including postage. Discount to Clubs. Special circulars and Specimens sent free. May be had of all News Dealers

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents, and have the largest establishment in the world. More than fifty thousand applications for patents have been made through their agency.

Patents are obtained on the best terms. Models of New Inventions and sketches examined and advice free. A special notice is made in The Scientific American of all Inventions Patented through this Agency, with the name and residence of the Patentee. Patents are often sold in part or whole, to persons attracted to the invention by such notice. Send for Pamphlet, 110 pages containing laws and full directions for obtaining Patents.

FINE ART MAGAZINE FOR THE YOUNG.

St. Nicholas for 1876!

AFTER TWO YEARS' OF PROSPERITY, UNEXAMPLED in the annals of juvenile literature, during which St. Nicholas has consolidated with itself all its strongest competitors, the publishers find themselves in a position to promise that the Third Volume, beginning with the number for November, 1875, shall, in its unusual attractions for Girls and Boys, surpass even the preceding volumes. In addition to contributions from the first writers in America, there will be Stories, Poems, and Sketches by some of the most prominent English Authors. Arrangements have been made for a very interesting series of papers on Windsor Castle, by Mrs. Oliphant, treating of its History and the Childs Life of Successful Royal Generations.

In the November number, the opening of the new volume will begin an American serial story,

The Boy Emigrants,

by Noah Brooks, giving the adventures of a party of boys in the California gold mines, in the early days of the gold fever.

J. T. Trowbridge, author of the "Jack Hazard" stories, will contribute some highly interesting sketches of adventure at "Bass Cove."

"Talks With Girls," by leading authors, will be a prominent feature of the new volume. Especial attention will also be given to

Incidents of American History,

with spirited pictorial illustrations.

The various departments "Jack-in-the-Pulpit," "The Riddle-Box," and "Letter-Box," and the pages for "Very Little Folks," are to be more attractive than ever. The French, Latin, and German stories, for translation, which have proved so popular, will be frequent in the new volume. Some of the finest works of the Greatest Painters of the country have been engraved expressly for St. Nicholas, and the first artists of the day will contribute fresh and original drawings for this fine art magazine for the young. Definite announcements of many interesting and novel features will be made in the December number. St. Nicholas will continue under the successful editorship of

Mary Mapes Dodge,

And no efforts will be spared by editor and publishers to maintain and increase the attractions and value of the magazine.

Subscription Price, $3 00 a year; Single Number, 25 cents; Bound Volumes, $4 00 each.

These volumes begin with November. The two now ready for 1874 and 1875 are elegantly bound in red and gold, and form the handsomest Gift-Books for children ever issued. We will send the magazine one year, beginning November, 1875, and either of the volumes bound as above, post-paid, for $7 00; or, a subscription one year, and two volumes, for $10 00. All newsdealers and booksellers will receive subscriptions and supply volumes at the above rates.

A Hungry Printer with a Colored Moustache.

An out-and-out "tramp," in broken boots, soiled shirt, and a very discouraged looking suit of clothes, dropped into the composing-room of a Rhode Island daily one day, and said he wanted some "subbing." He was worn out, he added, had walked from Worcester, and hadn't had a square meal for a week. One of the typos "put him on," and giving him a half dollar, told him go and get something to eat and come around at 7 o'clock sharp for "composition." The "tramp" shuffled off, but shuffled back again at 7 o'clock, and began to pile up the type at a rate of speed that made the heads of the other chaps fairly swim. He gave his whole attention to business, and as he snaked up a "phat ad." off the hook which the others had been working for dear life to get hold of, some one ventured to say that he was doing pretty well for a starter.

"Yes, tolerably well," he replied, as he skipped back to his "case" and "set up" a line in about a second. "Doing as good as I generally do when I am short of rations I am as hungry as a shark to-night."

"Hungry!" repeated two in chorus. "Haven't you had your dinner?"

"Yes, sort of a dinner," he remarked, "but an empty comp. cannot spread himself on fifteen cents, you know"

"Fifteen cents," said another in surprise. "He gave you half a dollar."

"So he did," responded the tramp as he reached for a fi, "but I paid out thirty five of it for getting my mustache colored."

The musical click of the types as they were dropped into the sticks was all that broke the stillness for next half hour.

A Much Traveled Letter.

During the week we were shown a letter addressed from London to a lady in Sutter Creek, which has taken 23 years to reach its destination. The letter concerns the disposal of about $15,000 worth of property in England, and hence the authorities have put themselves to more than ordinary trouble to see that it fell into hands of the party to whom it was addressed. It bears the date of April 1853, and has circumnavigated the globe twice. It has sought its owner in Sydney, Australia, on two different occasions, and failing in its mission to the Southern Cross it into the London Dead Letter Office, where it remained for five years. At last it was forwarded to Sutter Creek, and was perused by the rightful party nearly a quarter of a century after it was penned In the protracted interval that elapsed between its penning and delivery, the estate to which it related was wasted by costly litigation and is now scarcely worth the trouble of going to look after it.—[Amador Ledger.

New Mexico.

The House Committee on Territories have reconsidered their action to change the name of New Mexico to Montezuma, and agreed that the new State when admitted shall have the present name of the Territory. The committee have also voted to amend the bill so as to provide that the election for the adoption of a State Constitution shall be held in June, 1877, instead of not later than January, 1877, as the Senate proposed. This will prevent the new State from taking part in the presidential election It will also enable the Democrats, if they elect their candidate for President, to remove Federal officeholders, prior to the election of State officers, etc. The bill will now be reported to the House for printing and recommittal, when some additional amendments of minor importance may be made, though the main provisions of the bill will not be changed by the committee.

—An Indianapolis detective being sworn, deposes and says: "Pearl chinned me to fake this house work; this was not at the sheeny's. He told me to cheese it on the sheeny as he had given him away. I then asked him what kick up he and the sheeny had, as my mob had split on me, and left me without a finneff."

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, April 20th, 1876.

MESSRS. EDITORS—"A frog would a wooing go" and so these fine springs seem inclined the politicians. Strange rumors are afloat that the regular party hacks, "the favorite sons" are to be ignored by both parties and the role of Diogenes with his lantern is to be played both at Cincinnati and St Louis. It is said that outside of the threadbare platitudes which iterate and reiterate the devotion of "the party" to "honesty, economy and reform," that an actual effort will be made to select at each place a man whose name shall be a platform of itself—a platform that insures an honest administration, and the strict adherence to party will not be the only and crowning qualifications required of the candidates. What a glorious thing it would be for our Centennial year. How the memory and the vitues of the heroes, who in 1776, pledged their lives, fortunes and honors to secure their liberty and ours, would be revered by such a spectacle. And mind you I am not one of those who believe all our politicians are thieves, but I recognize that the party machinery is controlled by some of the worst men n the country and they have to use fitting tools to do their work. The talk about here for the past few days has been that David Davis is the man for the St. Louis convention to select if it hopes for success. He is the embodiment of the manly, honest, outspoken American. Like Cardinal Wolsey, though in another sense, "he has an unbounded stomach," for he weighs three hundred and fifty pounds, and his brain is as capacious as his stomach. He is a man whose private life is unblemished and whose political record is unimpeachable and after all the mistakes made not to say crimes committed by this Democratic house, they will need a man of that character to give them the faintest hope of success.

For Cincinnati I find a strong feeling in favor of Bristow. The Republican politicians, who do not like him any more than the Democratic ones do Davis, see that they must do something to save themselves from defeat. They too have a heavy load to carry. It is indisputable that the discovery of Belknap's action and the continual and reiterated charges of frauds and corruption in other high places, to which the Belknap expose lends a shadow of proof, have alarmed the Republicans. They have had warning voices from the country that "the independent voter" is abroad and will be a power in the land. They know that they must select a man against whose character no word of blame can be brought, and the public republican mind turn to Bristow as the man. Like Davis his private character is above reproach and his political record is unassailable. He is a man of large brain power, bold and undaunted in the defence of what he believes to be right, and not easily misled as to what is right and what wrong. His locality is urged him and it is said that no one from the slave-holding States should be trusted with the presidency. The reply to this is simple. It required ten times the courage to be a Republican in Kentucky, that it did in Maine, New York or Indiana, and that Bristow has been a consistent one. That he is honest, brave and capable all admit. With these two candidates before the people "the independent voter" could go to sleep, knowing that the destiny of the country would be safe in the hands of either, and that party hacks would have to go to the rear, while honest men came to the front and adminstered government affairs. Let us hope, as Brother Moody would say, that the good Lord will inspire the two conventions to such sensible conclusions as the selection of Davis and Bristow.

The House by a vote of 175 to 75 decided to obey the writ of habeas corpus and thus settled the vexed question of the Kilbourn case for the time being. It is a little remarkable that seventy-five members could be found to vote against this proposition, and I am inclined to think that the constituents of these seventy-five could do no wiser thing than to invite these men to stay at home, and in the privacy of retired life reflect upon the folly and madness that urged them to precipitate a conflict between the judicial and legislative powers of the Government and to suspend in time of peace the writ which is regarded as the safe-guard of Anglo-Saxon liberty and has been obtained and held by nearly seven hundred years of bloodshed. The court is now hearing the arguments in favor of Kilbourn's release and the case will probably be determined this week. In the meantime Kilbourn is in the custody of the Marshal for the District, who is the officer of the court.

The Belknap impeachment trial commenced on Monday, when the plea that he was a private citizen and not liable to impeachment was made and the case was continued until Wednesday. A large crowd, the largest since the bench arms debate was assembled in the Senate galleries. The argument on this question will be exhaustive and it is the most important part of the trial, to determine whether an officer by resigning can escape the penalties of impeachment. As I looked from the reporter's gallery on Belknap sitting as an indicted and confessed criminal, I could not help looking back a few weeks to the time when I saw him one of the highest official and leading men of the country, honored by all who knew him. Two things were brought to mind—"how are the mighty fallen," as I looked at him, and something about "whited sepulchres" as I remembered him as he was, receiving the homage of honest men, with bribes in his pocket.

Our speck of war with Mexico has blown over and "the silver winged angel of peace" once more smiles upon our borders.

If the babblers have done anything lately I have not heard of it, and if they should do anything I will send you a telegram at my expense, which is a safe promise and will involve no outlay for SAXON.

An Organ with a Will.

The good people of a certain country village in Indiana hungered and thirsted for an organ to assist in the church services; but as they could not afford to hire an organist they bought a self-operating instrument warranted to grind out forty tunes of a religious cast. The musical instrument was placed in position for the next Sunday. The sexton was instructed how to set it going, and how to stop it, but unfortunately forgot the latter part of his business; and after singing the first four verses of a hymn before the sermon, the organ could not be stopped, but continued playing two verses more; then just as the clergyman completed the words, "Let us pray," the organ again clicked and started another tune. The sexton and others continued their exertions to find the spring, but no one could put a stop to it. So they got four of the stoutest men in the church to shoulder the instrument, and they carried it down the aisle of the church, playing away, into the churchyard, where it continued clicking and playing until the whole forty tunes were finished.

Gave It Up.

The custom of appointing young lawyers to defend pauper criminals, says The San Antonio, Texas, Herald, received a backset the other day in our District Court. His Honor, Judge Neonan, had appointed two young lawyers to defend an old and experienced horse thief. After inspecting his counsel for some time in silence, the prisoner rose in his place and addressed the Bench:

"Air them to defend me?"

"Yes, sir," said his Honor.

"Both of 'em?" inquired the prisoner.

"Both of them," responded the Judge.

"Then I plead guilty," and the poor devil took his seat and sighed heavily.

A Grand Reception Nipped.

When Dom Pedro arrived at New York there was any quantity of high American officials and toadies of all degrees, there expressly to hug him to their bosoms and do him, or his title rather, honor without stint. But Dom Pedro would have none of it, not a bit, so the crest fallen high officials and toadies of all degrees went home again. And now when they speak of Dom Pedro his first name is pronounced as if an a was substituted for the middle letter. The Dom's determination not to be bored to death by such people has cast a wide spread gloom over republican America.

The Old Thing

The San Francisco Bulletin says the Sacramento County Republican Convention have elected as one of the delegates to the State Convention Robert Gardner, late incumbent of the Surveyor-General's office, and about whose fitness, either for that office or for a delegate, there cannot be two opinions among honest men. If the Convention does not refuse this man a seat what claim could it have to the confidence of the people? Gardner's record is notorious, and of that all honest Republicans are bound to take notice.

Petroleum.

The interest in the San Fernando oil region is developing steadily. Mr. Potter, the Pennsylvania oil expert, has now got his well down to a depth of 464 feet, and the indications are of the most favorable character. The yield of the wells already flowing continues in undiminished volume, and Mr. Potter thinks that one thousand feet, at least, should be reached before the status of the district can be determined. The character of the oil itself is superb.—[Los Angeles Express.

—When the Emperor was a little boy his mother used to flourish her slipper out of the nursery window of the royal palace and shout to him: "Pedro de Alcantara Juan Carlos Leopold-Salvadoro-Bibianco-Francisco-Xaviero de Paulo Leocadio Michello Gabrielo-Rapaelo Gonzagu, como in or you'll catch it, O! Humpo yourselfo!"

—A red headed man with a red nose and a red shirt stalked into the Palace Hotel the other evening and wanted to be introduced to Dom Pedro. He said he had lost his bottom dollar playing pedro and he wanted to see the man who invented the game and get some points from him.

—"Jury," said a Western Judge, "you kin go out and find a verdict. If you can't find one of your own, get the one the last jury used." The jury returned a verdict of suicide in the ninth degree.

—Figures won't lie. Yes they will! P. S. There is only a single upright 1.—[Danbury News.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention met at Sacramento on Wednesday April 26. The fusion of the Independents and Republicans, which has been going on for some time, was completed. W. C. Norton, of Placer county, was chosen permanent Chairman, and M. D. Boruck, of San Francisco, Secretary. The following is the import of the resolutions adopted: The first resolution reaffirms faith in the integrity of the Republican party. The second applauds the punishment of dishonest officials and favors the honest administration of the Government. The third resolution says the Republican party of California deprecates, as it always has done in the past, the presence among us of a horde of Chinese as inimical to our advancement as a nation, and while the Democratic party has repeatedly resolved against the introduction of these people, it has never taken action to prevent it. That we are in favor of such modification of the existing treaty with China as will effectually prevent any further influx of Chinese into our State. The fourth is a square hard money resolution, recommending the equality of silver. The fifth resolution declares that the national debt should be paid in gold coin, and condemns repudiation in any form. The sixth proclaims that the Democratic party should not be trusted, because of its purpose to add hundreds of millions to the national debt in payment of Confederate pensions. The seventh recounts the loyal achievements of the Republican party. The platform further recognizes the necessity for reform in the Civil Service, and a complete extirpation of the spoisl system. The platform was adopted, and an addendum expressing opposition to a third term was withdrawn as unnecessary. Delegates to the Cincinnati National Convention were then elected, two from each Congressional District, and four from the State at large. The following is a list, with the supposed Presidential leanings of each:

First District—John Martin, Blaine; I. Hecht, Blaine, but also favorable to Bristow. Second—L. H. Foote, Bristow; E. H. Lyer, Blaine. Third—N. D. Rideout and A. P. Whitney, both Blaine. Fourth—Joseph Belden and M. E. Gonzales, both Blaine. At large—Alex. G. Abell, Blaine; George S. Evans, Blaine; C. E. Reed, Bristow; and J. M. Pierce, Bristow.

But all the Bristow men have Blaine for second choice. A resolution expressing preference for Blaine, but leaving the delegation uninstructed, was passed and the Convention adjourned.

Democratic State Convention.

The following apportionment of delegates to the Democratic State Convention, which is to meet on May 24th at Union Hall, San Francisco, has been made by the Democratic State Central Committee: Alameda, 13; Alpine, 1; Amador, 7; Butte, 8; Calaveras, 6; Colusa, 7; Contra Costa, 4; Del Norte, 2; El Dorado, 7; Fresno, 4; Humboldt, 5; Inyo, 3; Kern, 4; Lake, 4; Lassen, 2; Los Angeles, 15; Marin, 3; Mariposa, 3; Mendocino, 6; Merced 4; Modoc, 3; Mono, 1; Monterey, 5; Napa, 6; Nevada, 9; Placer, 5; Plumas, 4; Sacramento, 17; San Benito, 4; San Bernardino, 5; San Diego, 5; San Francisco, 72; San Joaquin, 8; San Luis Obispo, 5; Santa Barbara, 5; Santa Clara, 14; Santa Cruz, 5; Shasta, 4; Sierra, 1; Siskiyou, 5; Solano, 8; Sonoma, 12; Stanislaus, 5; Sutter, 4; Tehama, 4; Trinity, 3; Tulare, 5; Tuolumne, 6; Ventura, 3; Yolo, 7; Yuba, 5. Total, 355.

Lost Pedro.

The toadies of San Francisco who assembled at the Oakland wharf with the expectation of taking in Dom Pedro or Big Pete got set back a few points for the fact that a smooth game was played and he slipped in on them some two hours ahead of the regular train, on a sleeper. Couldn't say whether the trick made Little Pete or not, but there was considerable scouring over it.

New Rule for Teachers.

The State Board of Education has adopted a resolution to the effect that if teachers fail to attend the Teachers' Institute of the county in which they are teaching without good excuse therefor, it lies in the power of the Board granting their certificates, to revoke them. The law upon the subject will be found in section 1560 of the Penal Code.

Eastern.

It is understood that Postmaster-General Jewell is for Blaine, and will not hesitate to use all legitimate influence under the postal service in his behalf. The New York Herald urges the President to discharge his entire Cabinet in order that the administration may work solely for Conkling.

The Panama Railroad Company, and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company are out, and there is skirmishing all along the line. The latest turn is by the railroad company. It has secured writs of seizure, and all the Pacific Mail Steamship's property in San Francisco is now under Sheriff's attachment.

The fast mail trains which have been running in the East are to be discontinued, for want of a supporting appropriation by Congress.

The great New York and Brooklyn bridge is to be carried to completion, at an expenditure of not more than $3,000,000 per year—raised by bonds of the two cities.

The entire cost of the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition is estimated at $8,500,000. Present funds on hand will cover all expenses up to the day of opening.

Life is cheap in Tennessee. An old man was murdered there a few days since by a tramp to whom he had refused to give a chew of tobacco.

There is every prospect that there will be a Mexican war this Summer, which will enliven the monotony incident to Centennial proceedings.

A revolution in prices seems to be in progress in the hotels in the East. The leading houses of Chicago, which are almost unsurpassed in the world, are now only charging $3 per day.

Senator Sargent has introduced a resolution in the United States Senate recommending to the President to open negotiations with the China for restrictions on the great influx of Chinese into the United States.

Robert Lincoln, son of President Lincoln, is talked of in Illinois for Republican candidate for Secretary of State.

Dr. Mudd, who set the shattered leg of J. Wilkes Booth, has been elected to the Maryland Senate as a Republican.

Daniel W. Voorhees has entered the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Indiana. He is represented to be as rabid an inflationist as Landers.

A motion to have the investigations by Congress held publicly will be made by a Republican member, and many Democratic members will support it.

A family of emigrants were surrounded by Indians about 100 miles northwest of Custer City. They were brained with tomahawks and scalped

Some disclosures, it is said, are to be made, showing there was something wrong in the Treasury Department under Secretary McCullough.

An important error has been corrected in Congress in regard to the law allowing private advances of Government surveys.

Morton's chances for a nomination fade rather than gain.

The Bender family have been arrested once more. This time at Laramie, Wyoming Territory.

Frauds of nearly $200,000 have been committed in the Government printing office in Washington.

The Democrats are looking mainly toward Bayard, Thurman, Tilden and Judge Davis of the Supreme Court.

An army officer in Texas reports that the stories of forced loans by Mexicans on Americans are all untrue.

Fifty-nine State Conventions are to be held within two months.

The Baltimore American publishes a statement that Don Carlos and three of his Generals are now in the United States.

One Richardson, of Albany, New York, accuses Spinner, McCulloch, Boutwell and Bristow of crookedness.

A Boston special says that Republican delegates from Massachusetts thus far are nearly equally divided between Blaine and Bristow. The best organization is for Blaine, but the people are more for Bristow.

The committee investigating the Freedman's Savings Bank at Washington find that its bankruptcy is owing to several of the late officers of the bank making free with its funds.

Belknap has written a letter to a friend denying that he has made any confession whatever in regard to the charges against him.

It seems that one branch of the Prussian mining officials who are to visit the Centennial are to switch off to visit our mines.

One Washington investigation committee, in its anxiety to prove something against Grant, had a lunatic before it recently.

Foreign.

The Canadians think themselves as good as the Hindoos of India, and are beginning to inquire what conciliatory title Queen Victoria will add to her list in their honor.

Ex Queen Isabella has written a letter to the Pope, offering to intervene with her son, King Alfonso, in connection with the religious questions.

The largest skating rink in the world has just been opened in the Bois de Bologne.

General Quaintana has ordered that the Americans in New Laredo, Mexico, shall not be required to submit to forced loans.

The Prussian Government is studying the French police and prison systems, with a view to introduction of reform at home.

The Egyptian army have taken up the homeward march from Abyssinia.

A majority of the Scotch and Irish members of Parliament are in favor of woman's suffrage.

Our Benton Letter.

BENTON, Cal., May 1.

MESSRS. EDITORS: May-day has dawned upon us, and I regret to say, has found us (as a community) unprepared to do it suitable honor as an anniversary. This state of affairs is attributable to the extreme busy times of the camp, and not to our inability to furnish a queen for the occasion; for I would respectfully state that for moral worth, intellect and beauty, the ladies of Benton (God bless them) compare favorably with those of any other interior locality of our State. But we have in our midst public-spirited stiffs, (mostly exemplifications of the "crooked,") who, desirous of celebrating the resurrection of nature, decided therefore to get gloriously drunk, which they completely accomplished. Your correspondent counted 18 on Sunday, who were extremely happy under the influence of the Babcock spirit, and this morning dawned upon them—finding them totally oblivious to the cares of this transitory existence. And still they celebrate.

MILLS AND MINES.

The Comanche mill closed down yesterday in order to make some repairs on the battery, but resumed this morning. The mine is turning out a superior quality of ore, and affairs of the company were never in a more prosperous condition than they are at the present time. The present company were indeed fortunate in purchasing this property, as it is proving itself to be the best paying investment in this portion of the country. John Howell, Esq., who superintended the working of the "Indian Queen" with such marked financial success, is the General Superintendent of the new Comanche company. The company employs altogether about 90 men.

DIANA MILL.

The supplies for the Diana mill have arrived and the mill will resume operations to-morrow. The mine still continues to turn out a rich quality of ore. It is generally supposed that the Diana company will shortly erect hoisting works at the mine, which will greatly facilitate the taking out of ore. This Combany proposes to accommodate the mining public by working custom ore. They employ about 20 men at present.

LAURA COMPANY.

The Laura company are making preparations to resume work on their mining property. I hope to be able to forward you some good news of this company for your next issue.

INDIAN QUEEN.

The Indian Queen still continues to turn out the Benton bits at the rate of a thousand per day. There are now six bars of fine bullion in the Express office awaiting shipment—the result of two days run of the Comanche and Indian Queen.

DANCE.

In order to partly atone for the indifference in regard to May-day celebration, some of our public spirited townsmen got up an impromtu dance, which was largely attended and gave entire satisfaction to all who had the pleasure of participating. About twenty ladies and a fair proportion of gentlemen were present.

ARRIVALS.

Dr. Middleton and Jerome Hoover, of Bishop Creek, arrived in town last week. Hoover went to Columbus, while the doctor patiently awaits his return to Benton. Stubbs' team, loaded with hay for the stage Co., arrived in town to-day. Strangers still continue to wend their way to our camp. The hotels are doing a lively business—while everything denotes prosperity. J. B. Hiskey is in town and will remain with us a few days.

APPOINTMEMT.

Assessor John Stewart has appointed Geo. W. Rowan as his deputy. This appointment gives universal satisfaction, as Mr. Rowan is long and favorably known in this community, and possesses every requisite to make him a first class assessor.

SOCIAL.

All we need now to complete our social happiness is a good local theatrical troupe, or musical club—and that such a club may soon organize in our midst is the wish of many besides MINION.

Lone Pine Correspondence.

LONE PINE, May 4.

MESSRS. EDITORS: C. C. A. Burringhausen, better known as "Snow Shoe Charley," has just arrived in town from the soda springs and fishing grounds on the North Fork of Kern river, where he has been stopping since last October. He made the trip on snow shoes in one day. He was a novice in the business of engineering snow shoes systematically, but after several weeks practice previous to starting he managed to become quite an expert. The snow was from four to six feet deep While crossing the high ridge or divide between Mulkey's Meadows and Round Valley, he suddenly came in contact with a huge grizzly bear. Both parties were too much astonished to do otherwise than to gaze at each other for a while, but after the first surprise Charley managed to tack up the mountain and reaching the summit of the ridge while the bear's gaze was diverted to the dog, he sped down the steep declivity on the other side and for ought he knows the bear sits there yet still gazing. Charley has established a sort of a station at the Springs and will plant a garden for the accommodation of tourists. This is at an altitude of 6,475 feet, at least the spring is, near by. The following is a weather report, and as no such observations were ever before taken during the cold season, it may be of special interest:

	SUNRISE.	NOON.	SUNSET.
October	45°	78°	60°
November	30	55	43
December	36	55	43
January	14	42	28
February	25	54	33
March	22	50	34
April	32	58	40

This is the mean temperature. The total snow fall was 19 feet and two inches—coldest day was on March 5th.

The artesian well is down 54 feet—are in quicksand. Everything bids fair for a grand success on the Fourth—the races in particular. Nothing else here worthy of mention. SECRETARY.

Merchant Tailor.

As will be seen by George Davis' advertisement, a first class suit of clothes, made to order and warranted to fit perfectly, can now be obtained at Lone Pine. This arrangement is certainly a good thing, as the expense and trouble of sending to San Francisco for misfits can be entirely avoided.

Junction.

The inimitable Chris. Docwieler still holds out at Swansea, and for southern travelers bound for Cerro Gordo his establishment is found indispensable. It is worth while to stop there to take a swim in the lake anyhow. His advertisement is given this week.

Cosmopolitan.

The posted traveler will at once strike for John R. Hughes' well known saloon immediately upon accomplishing the tiresome ascent of Cerro Gordo Hill. His stock is of the finest quality, and "dished out" in style. See his card.

Pacific Coasters.

Twenty-six persons in Santa Clara county, Cal., own together over 1,000,000 acres of the best farming land, and 122 persons throughout the State control 6 500,000 acres.

The Chinamen don't want to remove from their present quarters in San Francisco, and they don't think the Melican man's laundry ordinance affecting them is constitutional.

A shooting affair occurred at Borden, Kern county, April 26th, wherein a Spaniard named Miguel Valencia was shot and killed by J. A. Griffith, a blacksmith. Deceased has been accused by Griffith of holding criminal relations with his wife.

The third assessment of $500,000 on the capital of the Bank of California was all paid up before the same became delinquent. The fourth assessment of $10 per share was levied May 1, to become delinquent May 23d.

The Custom house officials of San Francisco deny that the recent Republican primary was run by the Custom-house brigade, alleging that with one exception employes of that Department took no part in the election.

A walking match for $2,000 a side for 500 miles, is to take place in San Francisco next month, between Dan O'Leary and Henry Schmehl of Chicago.

READ AND CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING FACTS. THE MOST IMPORTANT INVENTION OF THE AGE.

GLIDDEN'S PATENT

BARB FENCE WIRE.

WE CHALLENGE THE WORLD TO PRODUCE as good a Fence for the money. It has been tested by thousands of practical farmers, and all are enthusiastic in its praise, for the following and other

GOOD REASONS:

First—It takes less Posts than any other Fence;

Second—It can be put up for one quarter the labor of any other Fence;

Third—Cattle, mules and horses will not rub against it and break it down;

Fourth—The Wind has no effect upon it and Fires will not burn it;

Fifth—You will know that your Crop is Safe by night as well as by day;

Sixth—Because two men can fence 160 acres in two days;

Seventh—The change of Season has no effect upon it;

Eighth—The wire is manufactured entirely from Steel, which has a relative strength of over Thirty Per Cent greater than any Iron Wire;

Panamint.

The mining outlook at Panamint is not so bright just for the present as we confidently hoped for all along. At a depth of four hundred feet the Hemlock, from which the larger portion of food for the big mill has of late been derived, now shows no less than seventeen feet of quartz, but containing scarce a color. The walls are perfect and in all respects save the above little deficiency no better ledge exists. There is a bonanza somewhere below as there was above, but it will require hoisting works to reach it. Though we have no definite information in regard to the Wyoming we believe a similar state of affairs exists there also, and that in consequence the mill will have to shut down soon for want of ore, and until some deep prospecting is done, which of course will take time and steam to hoist.

Arrangements Progressing.

The Executive Committee in charge of our Centennial celebrate at Lone Pine favor us with a list of the officers of the day so far as selected, together with an extended list of honorary invitation and sub committees. All will in due time be announced in the advertising columns of our Inyo papers, but we may anticipate this regular publication by stating that the principal officers are as follows, each of whom have accepted their respective duties: President of the Day, P. Reddy, Esq., of Darwin; Chaplain, Rev. L. Case, of Independence; Orator, Hon. Jas. E. Parker, of Independence; Reader, G. H. Palmer, Esq., of Lone Pine.

Gone.

Dr. C. B. White, for so many years Post Surgeon at Camp Independence, departed for the East on Tuesday last. His future address will be Columbus Barracks, Ohio. During the Doctor's long stay in the valley he identified himself thoroughly with our people, and received in turn the respect due his station and qualifications. The departure of Mrs. White and Miss L. Barnes, is a source of real regret to all who had the pleasure of their acquaintance. His successor at the Post is Dr. Washington Matthews, as noted last week, who comes well recommended as a medical man.

A Saving Order.

The Board of Supervisors has made an order allowing the Auditor to draw warrants in pay of services and mileage of Grand and trial jurors on Sheriff's return of mileage due, on the basis established, and immediately after the close of juror's term of service. The effect of this is to save to each 50 cents expense for certifying to his account of distances, and to enable each to draw his warrant at once, instead of having to wait for weeks or a subsequent convenient opportunity, as was frequently the case under the former rule.

Get No Pay.

Co. D, at Camp Independense, and the army generally, will have to do one months service for Uncle Samuel this year without receiving a cent of pay therefor, all for the reason that the appropriation for the fiscal year is not sufficient to meet the year's expenditure by the sum of the pay due for June. Last year it was half a month short.

Doing a Good Business.

The Hotel de Passmore is now better patronized than at any previous time under the present administration. There are six regular boarders—two under conviction for manslaughter, one awaiting trial for murder, two for stealing mules or something of that sort, and one for an assault to commit murder—all with fair appetites.

Picnicking.

A May party, with usual concomitants of dancing and fun, was had by the Lone Piners, on the banks of Owens River, May day. So says our letter from that point, which eulogistically alludes to the gracefully gyrations of Charley Begole and Johnny Lucas as among the prominent dancists.

The Grand Jury Report.

The Grand Jury has been hard at work all week until Thursday afternoon when they submitted their report to the County Court, and were discharged. Several indictments other than those of parties in custody were found, but against whom and for what, we cannot, of course now speak.

Sign Your Letters.

We are in receipt of an order to send THE INDEPENDENT to somebody's friend in the Atlantic States, but as there is no signature to the letter, how in the name of business are we expected to attend to it? Remember, partners, this is only one case in many.

Not Set.

In consequence of the criminal business before the District Court, the time of hearing civil suits has not yet been set. We cannot state definitely the time when they will be set, as there are several criminal cases yet to be disposed of.

To Participate.

A note from the Secretary of the Executive Committee informs us that Capt. A. B. Macgowan has accepted an invitation to participate, with his command, in the Centennial observances at Lone Pine on the Fourth. Good.

The Water Suit.

In the matter of the water suit between Rennett and Schalten, on Friday, Briggs for defense entered a demurer, which, after much argument, was overruled. Answer to be filed this morning.

Theatricals.

The McGinley troupe have been playing to good houses during the week. They go northward, and will give our sister towns a show time as they go along.

Quashed.

In the District Court, this morning the indictment against Notton, for murder, was quashed, on motion and argument of his counsel, Reddy & Conklin.

Road Law.

The full text of the new special road law will be given in THE INDEPENDENT next week.

Caught on the Fly.

Out at Darwin last week one E. J. Keeney or Cheeney, a coal hauler, was arraigned in Justice McManus' Court, on a charge of attempting to kill L. M. Cobb, another coal hauler. As since appears, if Cheeney made the assault at all, as charged, he did it with murder in his heart, and left his victim with the belief that he had accomplished his aim. But we do not mean to affirm or deny, for the matter of that, that Cheeney did or did not assault Cobb. S. A. Densmore appeared for Cobb and the People, W. H. Woods, Esq., for Cheeney. After a partial hearing the Court found it necessary to postpone the case until after the adjournment of the District Court in session here. The defendant was accordingly required to give bonds in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance, and upon doing so he was released and allowed to go on with his coal hauling. Soon after, some mules or mustangs belonging to a Mr. Harrison were missing, as also were Cheeney, his wife and two children, his team and a Mr. Henry Frost. Harrison swore out a complaint against these two men, believing they had taken his stock, and Deputy Sheriff Wales took their trail. About 9 o'clock Wednesday night the Cheeney party passed through this place, going northward. Soon came Wales, who, accompanied by Under Sheriff Gregg, followed on to Taboose Station, where he found and arrested the two men, returning here on the following morning with the entire outfit. The wagon was an open one, drawn by four sorry looking mustangs, with two others towing in the rear. In the wagon were seated Cheeney's wife, a fair looking young woman, and her two innocent little children, with whom rested the sympathies of the large crowd collected in the streets at the time. The two men were locked up, but were called before the Grand Jury the same day. Some friend from Darwin, to his credit, took it upon himself to see that the poor wife and little ones were properly cared for, and if appearances are not deceptive they needed just such a friend.

An Affray Among the Indians.

A disgraceful scene was again enacted among the Indians last Sunday, occasioned by some miscreant furnishing them a supply of whisky; whereupon several stalwart bucks got fighting drunk, and, to use their own phrase, made big asses of themselves "all same white men." One, a George's Creek Indian, received an ugly cut in the side from a butcher knife in the hands of one of his companions. The wound, however, is not dangerous enough to prove fatal, although he bled and groaned like a half slaughtered hog. Sheriff Passmore, on going to the spot to quell the disturbance and if possible find out where they obtained their liquor, was confronted by a long legged, over-grown warrior on horseback, who drawing a pistol ordered the Sheriff away, calling him all the pet names that an accomplished white man could think of. The officers armed themselves, but ye noble red made good his escape.

The Crop Prospect.

From reports we learn that the crop prospect for this valley this year is considerably better than common. The yield per acre of staple crops varies one year with another so very little as to generally form but a small consideration in estimates, therefore, the above reference is scarce worth making on that point alone, only as indicating the unusual favorableness of the season, in connection with the fact that the acreage being put under cultivation is larger than ever before. The prospects for fruit were never more flattering than at this season for previously bearing vines and trees, while there are very many new ones in bearing this season.

What a Trial Cost Him.

It will be remembered that two of the bullion robbers captured by Wales and taken to Aurora for trial, plead guilty—each receiving a sentence of ten years imprisonment, while the third, Jose Estrada, demanded a trial and was going to prove an alibi. Well, he got the trial, and also twenty-five years in the State's Prison. When sentence was pronounced, at its conclusion, Estrada said: "Judge, make it even, and call it thirty years." The moral of all this is, that it is not always best to insist on your full constitutional rights.

Returned.

Isaac Harris got back from Panamint a day or two since. He made but a brief stay there, finding that Brown had so far waived his religious predilections as to do all necessary swearing at Small and McDonald for tying him up, and so didn't need any help in that line. "Boss" Belshaw is now at Cerro Gord, stirring things up—and here we will remark that so plentiful is the ore in the Union mine, seven or eight men are all that are required in the mine to much more than supply both furnaces, though running constantly.

Severe Accident.

Jas. Hitchcock, son of Isaac Hitchcock, of George's Creek, met with a severe accident the other day in attempting to subdue a bronco saddle horse. The fiery mustang, finding his rider equal to the ordinary tricks of bucking, suddenly threw himself backwards—falling with his entire weight upon the boy, who sustained the most severe injuries, the worst being the crushing in of the symphysis pubis. Dr. Blair was summoned and by skillful treatment put the patient in fair way of recovery.

New Agents.

A list of our authorized agents for their respective localities is this week given at the head of our local columns. Any one of the gentlemen will receive and forward coin and orders for subscription, advertising, job-work, etc.; and, while speaking of the matter, we would urge upon them and our friends generally the propriety of a little judicious effort in behalf of THE INDEPENDENT.

Lone Pine Postoffice.

Mrs. A. D. Eames, of the Orleans Hotel, Lone Pine, has received by telegraph the appointment of Postmistress at that place. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express agency is in the hands of Jos. Seeley, and is located with the Postoffice, in a building adjoining the hotel. It is presumed that the main labor of both offices will be principally attended to by the two sons of Mrs. Eames.

Returned.

J. L. Porter, well known as a most successful furnace superintendent, returned to Cerro Gordo early this week, from an extended sojourn in San Francisco. He was in town with W. L. Hunter, both of whom managed to reach Cerro Gordo just in time to receive orders from Dad Moore to attend Court, in the capacity of jurymen.

The Races.

A number of the committee thereon informs us that the Lone Pine horsemen are rapidly moving toward raising purses and perfecting arrangements for horse racing on the Fourth, in which matter a success seems already assured. The Lone Pine track is well known to be one of the best in the county.

Clarksville Hotel.

Densmore & Honica of Lee District, the principal settlement of which seems to have been informally chartered Clarksville, advertise hotel accommodations for travelers and residents. They have also a general stock of miners' supplies for sale in the store-room.

Masonic.

Inyo Lodge, F. & A. M., meets at its hall to-night, at 7½ o'clock.

Cromwell $2,920; overplus, $1 40 each. Colleau, $2,800; overplus, $1 each. The bid of Dr. Colleau, being the lowest, was ordered accepted.

WEDNESDAY, May 3.

Dr. Colleau's bond filed and approved.

Resignation of Joel H. Turner as Justice of the Peace, Sixth Township, received and accepted.

Road Fund warrant No. 983, for $75 80, being lost, ordered that duplicate therefor be drawn in favor of A. G. McDonald.

The County Clerk was authorized to purchase the California Reports, twenty-seven volumes, for the Clerk's office.

On petition of citizens of Cerro Gordo, S. B. Brown was appointed Justice of the Peace for that township and place.

Vote rejecting allowance of full amount of R. L. Peterson's bill in case of People vs. Allison, reconsidered and bill allowed at $4.

Rates of toll on Waucoba-Big Pine toll road raised to the following figures:

Wagon and one pair of animals	$0 50
" " each additional pair animals	20
Horse and rider	10
Loose stock per head	2

Report of the commissioner of the Look Out Toll Road accepted.

A petition from the citizens of Wild Rose for the appointment of Milo Page, as Justice of the Peace, passed to the next term, for the reason that said Page declined to serve and no alternate is named in said petition.

Three deputies allowed Assessor, term of services chargeable to the county not to exceed sixty days each.

Ordered, that the County Auditor be authorized to draw warrants in favor of Grand and Trial Jurors, services and mileage on the basis of distances established by this Board. Sheriff to report to Clerk report venires accordingly.

Report of N. Rhine, financial agent of the Owens Lake and Panamint toll road was presented and accepted.

Meysan moved that the tolls upon said road be reduced (about 33 per cent on the average). Argued at some length and lost. Aye—Meysan; Noes—Curtis and Garretson. [Circumstances permitting we shall next week present the report and some other facts in relation to this road, tending to show the propriety and justice of the action of the majority in refusing to reduce tolls on this road at this time.—EDS.]

On motion of Mr. Curtis it was ordered that the rate of tolls on said road be maintained as they are for the ensuing year. Aye—Curtis and Garettson; No—Meysan.

Report of Dr. Gelcich, County Physician, presented and accepted.

Ordered, that no indigent sick person shall be admitted in the County Hospital except by application to and by order from one or more of the following duly appointed examiners, namely: Board of Supervisors or some member thereof; Clerk of said Board, W. R. Johnson or A. Gen, Cerro Gordo, J. Wilcox Sharp or Joel Turner, Darwin; W. C. Smith or Isaac Harris, Panamint.

Upon verbal application of W. H. Woods, A. K. Briggs was appointed Road Viewer of Safford's toll road.

Ordered that the duplicate assessment book for 1875 be used in lieu of a new one for the current year.

On Thursday Board adjourned for the term.

Germania Brewery.

More as "zwei glass bier" is required by every one who tries the celebrated Lone Pine beer, manufactured at the old established brewery of Messrs. Lubken & Meyer, whose characteristic advertisement will be found among the new "ads." of this week. The firm keeps a fast delivery wagon constantly plying between Darwin, Cerro Gordo, Swansea and Lone Pine—showing how their beverage is appreciated these Summer months.

The Southern Stages.

From Lone Pine southward, the stage outfits sent out by the Southern company at the present time, far eclipses anything in the way of fine teams and wagons ever before run in Inyo. The roads are now in excellent condition, and a ride upon the box most forcibly recalls to mind the style in vogue during the palmy days of staging across the Sierras. Good time is made, and as a rule full loads are carried both ways.

Check Stolen.

Check No. 182, for $75, drawn by Harris & Rhine, on Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, was taken by the enterprising firm of Small & McDonald at the late robbery. It may be in this county yet, so look out for it.

American Hotel.

L. Samuels is now mine host of the American, Cerro Gordo. He has a steady run of custom, and deserves it. See his card.

DISTRICT COURT.

Hon. Theron Reed, JUDGE.

MONDAY, May 1.

On the application of W. H. Woods for a license to practice in this Court P. Reddy moved the appointment of a committee of the bar to inquire into his qualifications, whereupon the Court named R. M. Briggs, Paul Bennett and P. Reddy as such committee, with instructions to report a rule to govern in the admission of attorneys.

Committee reported a rule and favorably upon the applicant's qualifications, and the license was granted.

Upon presentation of license from the Supreme Court of the State, R. M. Briggs was admitted to practice in this Court.

W. B. Daugherty was appointed Court Commissioner to fill vacancy.

A venire for 50 trial jurors having been ordered and returned, the same was ordered called.

C. Eisel, A. Livingstone, E. P. Baker, J. Lubken and G. W. Todd were excused.

People vs. Loyal Merritt and Phillip Klein, alias Shorty, alias Gaudalupe Garcia; murder. District Attorney Bennett and Reddy & Conklin, associated by District Attorney's request, for the people; R. M. Briggs, appointed by the Court, and, by his request, W. H. Woods, for defense. Case closed on Thursday evening: verdict of manslaughter against both defendants, with recommendation to the mercy of the Court. Stay of sentense granted till Monday. Defense demand a new trial or to appeal on the grounds of insufficiency of the testimony to justify the verdict.

J. A. Sanchez vs. J. W. Wolfskill et. al.; judgment for plaintiff by default.

John Meehan vs. V. Beaudry et. al.: dismissed.

Harris & Rhine vs. J. H. Floto et. al.: judgment for plaintiffs.

G. W. Chesley & Co. vs. Boultinghouse & Dempsey; judgment for plaintiffs by default.

A. A. Riddle vs. J. Tyler, Jr., et al.: default having been entered, referred to Court Commissioner for computation.

John H. Rawlings vs. J. Tyler, Jr., et al.; same order.

J. J. Howe vs. J. Tyler, Jr., et al.; same order.

Duncan Campbell, Sr. vs. S. G. Halsey; continued for the term.

A. Wapelhorst vs. T. K. Hutchison; demurrer overruled and judgment for plaintiff.

A. G. Boley vs. John H. Givens; passed.

Another Case.

Deputy Sheriff Jas. Wales came very near being made the subject for a coroner's inquest, the other day, if we hear the facts aright. It happened substantially in this way: In his line of duty he went last Saturday to Lee district to subpœna witnesses in the Norton case—among whom was a Frenchman named A. Tontini. This man said he could not appear as he had no money to pay expenses. Wales, with certain conditions not necessary to specify, said he would furnish funds enough for the purpose, and for him, Tontini, to come into Darwin ready to start for Independence on the followihg day. Tontini did so, and soon after getting into Darwin began to make a display of $20-pieces—taking numerous drinks between times. Seeing this Wales told him he would not advance him a cent; to pay his own way. Tontina said he would not go a step unless the Deputy Sheriff paid his expenses and $5 per diem besides—deeming that his legal right, as some one had told him. Wales said he had done his duty as an officer and should report the matter to the Court which would compel the witness to answer. The Deputy then went to his dinner. The Frenchman went and purchased a pistol, and after some search, found Wales at his meal. Stepping up behind the unsuspecting officer he remarked, "I am going to kill you, Jim Wales," drew his cocked pistol at his head. Mr. Boulton, of the establishment, fortunately stood very close and caught the weapon just as the hammer fell, the latter striking Boulton's thumb instead of the cap, preventing the discharge, and doubtless saving the Deputy Sheriff's life. Tontini was immediately disarmed and locked up and on the following day had an examination before Justice McManus, who held him to answer to the Grand Jury, whose action he awaits here in jail at this writing. Tontini is represented to be a quiet, peaceable man ordinarly, but drink crazes him and that was the cause of this most unjustifiable effort to take another's life. In view of this fact—that it was done under the crazy impulse of drink—Wales as we infer would rather let the matter drop than to prosecute, if he could follow the simple bent of his own feeling, but in the nature of the case he has little or no choice in the matter.

County Hospital.

The Board of Supervisors, as will be seen by our report of its proceedings, have awarded the contract for the care of the county indigent sick to Dr. L. Colleau, of Lone Pine, for the sum of $2,800 per annum for an average basis of four patients per day. It will be remembered that payments are made for this service by warrants drawn upon the Hospital Fund, which have for the last year lacked about fifty cents on the dollar of being equal to cash—which fact has a material bearing upon the matter. This unfortate state of hospital affairs could have been corrected by judicious legislation at the last general Assembly, by a bill somewhat similar to that creating our present Expense Fund, but our wiseacres seem to have forgotten all about it. In this connection—since we cannot now be accused of favoritism—we may state that during a recent visit to the hospital of Dr. Gelcich, the retiring contractor, we were afforded every opportunity of a thorough examination of the premises and accommodations, as well as to closely and privately question the three patients then under care. The hospital rooms are airy, light and kept scrupulously clean; the beds themselves are all that could be asked for. The nursing and attendance were admitted to be of the very best, and only one patient—a cripple, who seemed to be convalescing so far as possible—had a murmur of complaint. This was to the effect that not a sufficient variety of food was furnished, on which count the others disagreed totally. On the whole, we believe there has been no occasion for fault-finding with hospital management for the past year, and that the records will present a most favorable showing as to the proportion of complete cures. In preparing his hospital, Dr. Gelcich went to a heavy outlay, and of course will be injured in not getting the contract for another term; nevertheless, he expresses himself satisfied at the award made, since the accepted bid was much lower than his. The new contractor, Dr. Colleau, is undoubtedly a well read physician and surgeon, and it is presumed that he will be prepared to give the unfortunates equally as good care and attention as they have hitherto been accorded.

Indicted.

A. Tonini stands indicted for an assault with a deadly weapon. This is the case wherein Deputy Sheriff Wales came so near being victimized by the drunken frenzy of this Tonini as mentioned elsewhere.

Miners' Headquarters.

The saloon and restaurant of Von Brisen & Thompson, in the old Union Hotel building at Lone Pine, is doing a thriving business, and the boys really deserve the patronage received. See their "ad."

Discharged.

The Grand Jury having ignored an indictment for grand larceny against Cheeney and Frost, the two were discharged from custody on Friday evening.

THE MERRITT-GARCIA-SALAZAR-KIMBALL MURDER.

Verdict of Manslaughter—Evidence and Pleadings.

The trial of Loyal Merritt and Philip Klein, alias Shorty, alias Garcia, for complicity in the Kimball murder at Cerro Gordo in January last, was called in the District Court last Monday, and fairly entered upon on the following day. It was a peculiar case throughout, as will presently be seen. A venire for fifty jurors had been ordered and returned, from which, after three or four efforts, the following generally known citizens were finally sworn to try the cause: H. H. Harkless, G. W. Norton, Thomas Boyce, B. E. Theban, R. S. Hatch, I. P. Rittgers, O. I. Mairs, L. A. James, J. N. Rose, T. J. Furbee, O. Cromwell and N. Petersen.

THE COUNSEL.

R. M. Briggs, Esq., was by the Court appointed counsel for the defense, and subsequently at his request, W. H. Woods, of the Darwin law firm of Woods & Grant, was named as his associate in the case. District Attorney Paul Bennett, for the People, asked that Messrs. Reddy & Conklin be appointed to aid in the prosecution, which was also done. As Mr. Bennett had to look after the Grand Jury and Board of Supervisors, both bodies being in session and requiring most of his time, he assigned the almost exclusive management of the prosecution to those gentlemen—the first named doing all the oral work.

PROCEEDINGS.

The defense asked for separate trials, which request, however, was denied.

The indictment charged defendants with being accessories before the fact in the murder of —— Kimball, etc., the District Attorney stating in usual form what he expected to prove against said defendants, after which he resigned the case to the hands of his associate counsel.

Five witnesses were called for the prosecution, their testimony in the main being in fair accord, although not enough so in one or two particulars of considerable importance to the welfare of the defense as to pass unchallenged by them. We were not personally present during the examination of any of the witnesses but are told that West, one of the principal ones, manifested so much of bias or prejudice against the defendant Merritt, if not both of them, as to detract no little from the intended force and fairness of his statements. The doubts thus engendered as to the actual truth of what Merritt did say and do, though bearing strongly upon the merits of course, do not, however, seem to have been of sufficient weight to tell much in his favor, notwithstanding his senior counsel pointed them out with earnestness and decided force.

THE EVIDENCE.

We offer the following as the actual sum of the evidence adduced, merely indicating parenthetically the points counsel for defense claimed as not fully substantiated: On the night of the 1st of January last, immediately following the close of a ball, which is said to have been entirely respectable in the class of its attendance, though given in a former dance house, this Kimball shot and instantly killed—and is believed, simply murdered—a Mexican named Salazar. The fact that Salazar enjoyed the respect of both Americans and his own people, and in short was esteemed a very good man, cuts no figure in this particular matter, other than it probably excited a more determined desire among the Mexicans present (among whom were his two brothers) to avenge his alleged unprovoked murder. Immediately after killing Salazar, his slayer fled into an adjoining saloon kept by Robert Delehante. While doing so a number of shots were fired at him, from one of which, or possibly from one previously fired by Salazar, Kimball received a bad wound in the leg. The saloon was soon surrounded by some twenty-five or thirty enraged and generally armed Mexicans, against whom Delehante barricaded his doors. He bandaged Kimball's wound, and sent him into a room in the rear of the saloon. West and Archambeaux were in the saloon, and assisted in guarding the doors, etc. The crowd outside made several demands that Kimball be given up to them. After about one hour had thus elapsed defendant Merritt for the first time appears on the scene. This was in going to the house of C. F. Duval, a Justice of the Peace up to that night, and demanding a warrant for the arrest of Kimball. Duval told him he could not give him the warrant, as his term of office had expired at 12 o'clock that night, it then being about 2 in the morning. The ex-Justice told Merritt that it was the right of any citizen to make such an arrest without a warrant, but for him to go to John R. Hughes, the other Justice, and there procure one. It was not proved that he did or did not go to the new Justice's office, but if so, failed to procure the desired document. Merritt then returned to the scene of impending trouble. Tim Richards, the proprietor of the saloon in which Kimball lay, was outside the door, and to him defendant said that Kimball was in the room and that he (Merritt) asked admittance that he might arrest him. Richards pushed open the door, entering first (about which the witnesses differed) followed by Merritt and a number of Mexicans. A candle was lighted and the search for Kimball began. At this juncture Gaudalupe Garcia, the co-defendant, makes his debut in the tragedy. Not finding Kimball under one bed, Garcia pointed out that he was under another. Merritt advanced and catching Kimball by the leg, dragged him out, saying: "I've got you now, you —— —— ——!" (there was a doubt as to his exact words), and raising him to his feet began to search his pockets—whether for his valuables or arms does not appear. During this many knives and pistols were exhibited by the Mexicans, one of whom made a demonstration to shoot Kimball, but was prevented from doing so by a Mexican, Garcia we believe, who drew his pistol and commanded the others to stand back and give the man a fair trial or fair show. Kimball appealed to Richards to save his life; not to let him be taken out of the room. He also made a similar appeal to Garcia. The latter said he would do all he could to protect him. Merritt then started to take Kimball out of the room and, as is claimed, to Justice Hughes' office for safe keeping. Richards objected to his removal at all. West said to "wait until he got his pistol from the other room and he would go with Merritt to help protect the prisoner." Merritt paid no attention to this, but led his captive to and out of the door, up to which point Garcia followed, one witness saying, with his hands on Kimball's back, pushing. (There is a question as to the truth of this). Garcia remained near the door; Merritt, with Kimball by the arm surrounded or closely followed by the crowd, had advanced some twenty steps towards the Justice's office when a pistol shot rang out and Kimball dropped dead. About two minutes later Richards and the other Americans from the saloon came out and found Kimball lying dead, Merritt and all the Mexicans having disappeared. Merritt did not go to inform the magistrate of what had occurred, nor, as has been stated, did he remain with or near the body, which facts, together with his previous and subsequent brutal remarks, tending to prove his complicity in the murder of Kimball. Neither did he at any stage endeavor to point out the party or parties engaged in the shooting. He himself had no arms. A few hours later—early in the morning—he was heard to say that "he did not care a d—n; that he had made $10 out of the operation." Also, that "the bullet that killed Kimball came very near his head, and that he thought at first he was shot himself." That Kimball fell into his arms "and you ought to have seen me drop the —— —— ——."

TOLD TO LEAVE.
